Wash Suits

For Boys.

Those at 75c are the lowest priced ones we sell, but when we can find good ones for less then we'll have them, but not before. It was satisfaction that built up this store's Boy's Clothing business—satisfaction for the boys and the mothers of the boys. And so we keep our standards high and reject trash—making prices so little for clothes of the best quality as to remove the temptation to buy anything else.

SAILOR SUITS
95c to $2.95.

Cute little suits of Galatea cloth, neatly striped, brown linen, Madras and Seersucker, white pique, and duck and white Galatea and linen duck—all pretty, stylish, and made so good that we can promise a new suit for one that goes wrong. Sizes 3 to 12.

A GRAND SPECTACLE

London, June 12.—London seldom had a finer spectacle than was witnessed on the horse guards parade today when King Edward presented medals to 3000 soldier participants in the South African campaign. The great square was lined with guards, drawn from the various regiments. In the center of the ground was a purple covered dais surmounted by an Indian tent with silver corner poles. In the space between the dais and St. James park were drawn up 2000 officers and men of the guard, household cavalry and City Imperial volunteers, all of whom had served in the campaign. The admiralty, horse guards and other official buildings fronting the parade were all decorated with flags. From the house of Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador, on Carlton house terrace, flew the American flag. The lord mayor, Frank Green, attended in state and the members of the special Moorish embassy, in picturesque costumes, were interested spectators.

Promptly at 11 o'clock the king, in a field marshal's uniform, the queen, Princess Victoria and other members of the royal family arrived and took up places on the dais, and the ceremony began. The recipients of the medals, in a long line, marched past the king, received the decoration from his majesty's hand, saluted and passed on. Lord Roberts came first, followed by Lord Milner, while behind them came crowds of generals and lesser officers whose names have become familiar owing to the war—Buller, Ian Hamilton and a host of others. Among the members of Lord Roberts' South African staff who received medals was Capt. the duke of Marlborough.

The procession as a whole was most incongruous. The officers of the guards, lancers, hussars and Highlanders, in dazzling uniforms; groups of solemnly garbed men in frock coats, doctors who had served at the front, and half a dozen foreign attaches in uniform. Capt. Stephen L. N. Slocum, the United States military attache, was not present. He is in St. Petersburg. There were also groups of time-expired men in civilian clothing, policemen and wounded soldiers, limping along in hospital clothes. The ceremony lasted nearly three hours, the queen stading beside the king throughout.

EMPEROR AT KIEL.

Goes There to See Launching of Battleship.

Kiel, June 12.—Emperor William, accompanied by the headquarters' staff, Prince Henry of Prussia and the chiefs of his majesty's private cabinet, arrived here today to witness the launch of the battleship Zaehringen at the Germania yards. The emepror boarded the imperial yacht Hohenzollern amid salutes from the war vessels.

Owing to the unfavorable weather, the launch was postponed until the afternoon.

While the work of removing the shores, preparatory to the launch was in progress, a crane collapsed, killing two men and seriously injuring three others.

TO TRY AGAIN.

Lipton Seeks Admission to Royal Yacht Squadron.

New York, June 12.—The Tribune's London correspondent says: The duke of Cornwall will be elected vice commodore of the royal yacht squadron. The king has been compelled to resign the comodorship and the election of the duke to the second office will be a graceful recognition of his royal highness' enthusiasm for yachting. It is understood that Sir Thomas Lipton has resolved again to seek election to this very exclusive club and the king himself will be his sponsor. Sir Thomas' rejection last year was a poor reward for his plucky attempt to win the America's cup and did not reflect credit upon the squadron.

UGLY MOOD

Serious Trouble Feared With Indians.

Arapahoes In Wyoming Defy Authorities.

St. Paul, June 12.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: A special from Red Lodge, Mont., says that serious trouble is threatened with the Arapahoe Indians, on the Shoshone reservation, just across the state line in Wyoming. The reds have openly defied the authorities and are preparing for the barbarous sun dance. A company of state militia has been ordered to the scene and should arrive in the morning. The Indians are said to be in an ugly mood and, as they outnumber the whites ten to one, the outlook is regarded as serious.

St. Paul, June 12.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: The county commissioners of Flathead county have reported to Governor Toole that a band of Cree Indians is camped in that county and smallpox is rife among them and asks advice. The governor referred the matter to the attorney general, who wired to have the band quarantined. The Indians are a small part of the band which had strayed over from Canada and was returned across the boundary about five years ago by United States troops after long correspondence with Governor Rickards. They no sooner got away from the soldiers than they slipped back into Montana. They went on the Flathead reservation and maintained with other Indians there, but were driven out by Agent Smead and have been roaming like gypsies ever since.

CONTROL NOVA SCOTIA

Vanderbilts Are Behind a Gigantic Financial Scheme to Secure Commercial and Industrial Interests In Dominion.

New York, June 12.—The Mail and Express says: "Capitalists of this city are reaching out to control the commercial and industrial interests of Nova Scotia. The Vanderbilt millions are behind a gigantic financial scheme, which has been incorporated under the name of the Dominion Security company, with a capital of $1,500,000.

"This is the first step in the direction of permanent control of all the Nova Scotian transportation and industrial companies and the establishment of a splendid steamship service between this city and the seaport towns of Nova Scotia.

"Dr. William Seward Webb has been made president of the company, and the directors are John Jacob Astor, S. R. Callaway, Edgar Van Peten and Percy Clemen.

"Representatives of the company are already on the scene of the proposed operations, and the first stretch of tracks of the Cape Breton Railroad Extension company is being laid. Within four years 600 miles of track will connect Cape Breton with the various mining sections of the country.

"It was learned on good authority that this enterprise is a movement by the Vanderbilt railroad interests, which will be felt all over the world. It will open a new line for American commerce, and fill the great coal sheds of the entire New York section with almost unlimited supply from the extensive coal mines of Nova Scotia."

STILL A CUCKOO SONG

New York, June 12.—Peace in South Africa, says the London correspondent of the Tribune, is still a cuckoo song, although the echoes come from many quarters. The most effective peacemaker is probably the discreet wife of the Boer commander-in-chief, who has concealed her work in London and baffled the most enterprising news gatherers. While there is no authentic information, it is generally believed that she has delivered to Lord Milner, or to Mr. Chamberlain, some messages from Gen. Botha and other Boer leaders and that Mr. Kruger has also been consulted. South African rumors respecting a change of cable communications between the Moer leaders and Mr. Kruger are less creditable. The surrender of a small commando at Pietersburg is encouraging to optimists to hope that the end is close at hand, but the judgment of the more experienced South Africans is that the war will drag along for several months, and that the only result of premature peace negotiations will be the renewal of pro-Boer agitation in England.

THE CABINET GUSHES

Secretaries Long, Hitchcock and Smith Inject a Large Amount of Hot Air Into Comments on President's Action.

New York, June 12.—Secretary Long is quoted by the Washington correspondent of the Tribune on the subject of President McKinley's statement on the third term, as follows:

"I think the president by this act has given another evidence of his wisdom and prominent patriotism. After six years of the burdens and responsibilities of office, he looks forward to the relief of private life. As a matter of principle and conviction also, he would not accept a third term and has evidently felt it his duty to conform to the traditions of his country in this respect. This action of his, I believe, will do more than anything else can do to settle this question for all time."

Secretary Hitchcock said: "It is a noble statement, saturated with patriotism from beginning to end. It will forever be history and is just what might be expected from such a loyal lover of his country and his countrymen."

Postmaster General Smith said: "In taking this step he has not only followed his personal inclinations, but he has acted from a deep sense of duty and from his belief in a principle of our institutions which he thinks absolute and unchangeable. Beyond this, his administration is dealing with great public questions of the first magnitude, which he feels should everywhere be considered fully and exclusively on their own merits, without the possibility of the imputation in any quarter of personal thought or purpose."

WANTS DIVIDEND.

Holder of Guaranteed Stock Makes a Kick.

Pittsburg, June 12.—In the United States court a bill was filed against the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad by Francis T. White, of New York. He states that he is the owner of 200 shares of 7 per cent special guaranteed stock of the company and that on April 19, 1901, the directors of the company passed a resolution declaring a dividend of $2 a share on the original stock of the company. He asks that the directors be restrained from paying dividend on the original stock unless the same dividend is paid on special guaranteed stock

FOR MADAGASCAR.

New York, June 12.—The Commercial Cable company this morning issued the following notice: "A mail opportunity for telegrams for Madagascar ports is offered from Port Louis, June 14. Such messages should be sent from New York not later than the 13th inst."

SAENGERFEST.

Many Singers Will Attend at Buffalo.

New Orleans, June 12.—Professor J. Hanno Deiler, of this city, president of the North American saengerbund, has called a meeting of the executive board of the saengerbund for June 24, at Buffalo, N. Y. The general meeting of the delegates of the societies composing the organization is called for June 26, in German-American hall, Buffalo.

Three hundred delegates and over 3000 singers from all parts of the country are expected to attend the thirtieth saengerfest of the association, to be held in Buffalo, June 24, 25 and 26.

HARDLY PACIFIED

Insurgents Very Active In Some of the Philippine Territory.

Shots Continually Fired Into Towns Garrisoned By Americans.

Tacloban, Leyte Province, P. I., April 24.—(Correspondence of Associated Press.)—Although the war in the Philippines has for some time been officially described as "practically over," the recent operations of the United States Philippine commission have been about the edge of localities which are still nothing more or less than the "enemy's terrtitory." The commissioners had heard all about the doings of Maxilon, the Cebu insurgent, who still manages to keep more than a regiment of soldiers confined to the coast towns of Cebu; of Samson, Tagalog leader of the Island of Bohol, who, with several hundred follows, keeps the peaceful inhabitants and the American officers guessing as to his whereabouts, and of Mojican, the chief disturber of Leyte. But when the representatives of the United States saw a very serious situation—insurgent banners flaunted on the hills around about Catalogan, chief city of the island; shots fired into the towns garrisoned by American troops, a very common occurrence, and the inhabitants cowed into inaction by fear of vengeance of Lukban, the dominant insurgent commander in Samar.

When the Americans first entered Bohol, they were surprised to learn that the "Republic of Bohol" was about being founded. Aguinaldo's picture hung prominently in the provincial building, and the Bohollans believed in film as their leader out of Spanish tyranny, but when all was said and the victory won, they are resolved that Bohol itself be free and independent. At that time Sampso the present insurgent commander, was living at Tagbiliran, and was on friendly terms with the Americans. But he frankly told the army officers that his principles would never permit him to cherish any lesser ideal for his people than absolute independence. He was given charge of the local police. One day he went out to make a pretended tour of inspection of other towns, and never returned.

A very marked change of Tagbilaran and the smaller towns is the progressive character of their schools. Some of the subordinates of Major Woodbury, the military commander, have taken special interest in the children. The night of the commission's arrival, the young Visayans were out to the number of several hundred, carrying fancy lanterns, torches and emblems of seemingly innumerable native design and shouting "V Vas" in front of the houses occupied by the American guests. The demonstration ended with the spirited singing of America by those of the children who were good at English pronunciation, accompanied by native bands.

Leyte has suffered badly from the ravages of the war and the consequent idleness of its people, but the aggressiveness of the Forty-third infantry and the rapid spread of the Federal party in the island have combined to bring about almost perfect peace. Fine new barracks, officers' quarters and a hospital are being erected on the water front, and the town appears scrupulously clean.

Col. Murray, of the Forty-third regiment, had hoped to have the rebellion entirely wound up before the arrival of the commission. The influential native presidente of Tacalogban had seconded the effort to such an extent that even then he was out hiking for Mojican, accompanied by twenty-five of his townsmen. Leyte was, the following day, organized into a province without delay.

Crossing the narrow channel between Leyte and Samar a totally different state of affairs was found. It was known that the insurgents occasionally took some shots at Catbalogan from the adjacent hillsides, which almost surround the city, but the visitors were quite amazed to learn that the defiant waiving of flags on the hills was a common occurrence, and that the garrisons in Catbalogan and other Samar towns were shot at so often that little was really thought of such an incident. On the very day of the arrival of the commissioners the town was fired into.

STRICT RULES

Issued By War Department For West Point.

New York, June 12.—According to a special to the Herald from Washington, stringent regulations defining and prohibiting hazing have been issued by the war department. These regulations are the direct result of the recent mutinous proceedings at the military academy. Dismissal is the penalty of violation of these regulations. The practice of a duel or personal combat is also prohibited, and the principals and other persons involved or any cadet abusing or condemning another for declining to accept a challenge will be dismissed.

SWEDISH AUTHOR DEAD.

C. F. Peterson Has Passed Away at Chicago.

Chicago, June 12.—C. F. Peterson, Swedish author and newspaper editor, died yesterday at his residence in this city after an illness of several weeks, cancer of the liver being the cause of death. Mr. Peterson ranked among the foremost Swedish writers of America. He had written a dozen books on historical, political and sociological matters in Swedish, and to newspaper readers of his nationality had been known for thirty years under the nom de plumes of "Jeppe" and "Fredrik." Mr. Peterson was born in Sweden on April 6, 1843.

CAPT. WILHELM DEAD.

Manila, June 12.—Capt. William H. Wilhelm of the Twenty-first infantry, who was recently wounded in the shoulder in an engagement with insurgents at Lipa, Batangas province, died today.

COLLISION

Trains Meet on Eastern Minnesota Trestle.

Terrific Smash-Up But No Lives Are Lost.

In a dense, driving fog, and thirty feet above the ground, two Eastern Minnesota railway engines fought a duel shortly after 8 o'clock this morning.

Engine No. 222, southbound on the elevated track on Rice's Point, drawing passenger train No. 13, crashed into switch engine 42, northbound with a heavy train of freight cars.

The collision occurred about midway down the elevated track. The two engines met with such terrific force that the crash was heard for a quarter of a mile. Passengers on the Fosston train were thrown from their seats and badly frightened and some painfully bruised. Engine 42 was battered into junk but did not leave the track. This engine was thrown back off its trucks and on to the trucks of the tender, the tender in turn telescoped a box car, and the footboard of the engine cab was raised in the air to an elevation above that of the top of the box car.

By singular good fortune no person was seriously injured. The fireman of No. 42 jumped from the cab to the ground below, fully thirty feet, and escaped with scarcely a scratch. Both engineers stuck to their posts and did their best to reduce the speed of their engines up to the very moment of the collision. Both were thrown violently against the walls of their cabs and were cut and bruised.

People that saw the accident say that it was a wonder that several lives were not lost. Had either engine left the trestle loss of life would probably have been inevitable.

The collision could not have occurred on a clear day, but the clouds of dense fog which were driven across from the harbor made it impossible to see more than half a block ahead.

Train No. 13 got away from the Union depot about fifteen minutes late and, getting on the single elevated track of the Eastern Minnesota, free from the tangle of tracks in the railroad yards, was making good time down Rice's Point. On the south end of the trestle, it is claimed, the freight train was given the right-of-way under the impression that the passenger train had gone through.

Among the passengers that were slightly injured was J. Winterfield, a well known traveling man. He was in the toilet rom when the crash came and he was cut and bruised about the head and limbs.

As a result of the wreck, traffic on the Eastern Minnesota between here and West Superior was blocked all day. Owing to the height of the trestle above the ground, and the fact that the wreckage blocks the only track available, the wrecking crew had to work at a great disadvantage.

The Eastern Minnesota trains were finally sent around by the Northern Pacific tracks.

The Eastern Minnesota officials, with the air of persons imparting valuable information, announced this morning that they did not know the names of the engineers and firemen on the two engines. For the benefit of the company it may be stated that Engineer Flaherty and Conductor McCurdy were in charge of the passenger train, and Engineer Samuel Thompson was in the cab of switch engine No. 42. The fireman on 222 was C. W. Lee, and Edward Murphy was the fireman of No. 42, who made the flying leap. Fireman Lee had one leg slightly jammed. All the crew live at West Superior.

WOODMEN ELECTIONS

Northcott, Hawes and Home Were Re-Elected as Head Consul, Head Clerk and Head Adviser---Other Officers.

St. Paul, June 12.—Pleasant weather gave the Modern Woodmen a good day for the opening of the competitive drills at Camp Northcott today. Over fifty teams have entered the contest, which will continue daily until completed. The head camp resumed its work at the Auditorium a little after 9 o'clock. The matter of city membership was laid aside until after the elections, which were then taken up. Head Consul W. A. Northcott, of Illinois, Head Clerk C. W. Hawes, of Illinois, and Head Adviser Dan B. Horne, of Iowa, were re-elected. R. R. Smith, of Brookfield, Mo., was elected head banker. Physicians were elected for each state and the following were named for directors, five vacancies having to be filled:

Benjamin D. Smith, of Mankato, Minn.; J. N. Reece, of Springfield, Ill.; E. E. Murphy, of Leavenworth, Kans.; G. W. Reilly, of Danville, Ill.; S. G. Saunders, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and T. F. Hopkins, of Rockford, Ill. Smith, Reece and Murphy are present directors up for re-election. After the election of Head Consul Northcott, who has served five terms successively, that official announced that he would not again be a candidate for the position, but would retire at the end of this new term.

Head physicians were chosen for the various states as follows: Illinois, Edward L. Kern, Moline; Iowa, John W. Lauder; Wisconsin, S. C. Armstrong, Boscobel; Kansas, B. E. Jones; Nebraska, E. F. Blair; Minnesota, Thomas Lowe, Slayton; Michigan, Frank W. Martin, Portland; South Dakota, Alfred W. Hyde; North Dakota, John W. Sifton, Jamestown; Missouri, John R. Boyd, Springfield; Indiana, C. Z. Wolfe, Corydon; Ohio, Frank A. Smith; West Virginia, C. T. Taylor, Huntington; Pennsylvania, G. T. Urlor, Sheffield; Wyoming, J. H. Conway, Cheyenne; Idaho, W. A. Adair, Moscow; Washington, F. C. Miller, Tacoma; Oregon, Hamilton Meade, Portland; California, Foster W. Bassett; Colorado, A. K. Carmichael; Oklahoma, John L. Hosworth; Indian territory, J. Moffatt; Maryland, Martin W. Goldsborough; Delaware, James W. Bastin; New Jersey, A. Sprenger; New York, T. T. Mooney; Connecticut, M. J. Hanford; Rhode Island, Michael B. Milan; Vermont, John H. Judkins; Maine, T. T. Bemis, Bangor; Montana, S. E. Leard.

The discussion on the admission of cities of over 200,000 will be renewed this afternoon. Indianapolis seems to be in the lead for the next meeting, but Grand Rapids, Mich., is fighting hard.

TO FIGHT MACHINISTS

New York, June 12.—The convention of the National Metal Trades' association continued its session today. The closing hours of the convention are being devoted to the completion of organization and the final arrangement of plans designed to strengthen the hands of the manufacturers in their fight against the striking machinists. The sum of $500,000, raised by assessment, is to be placed at the disposal of a strike committee, to be used in behalf of the employers. That committee is constituted as follows:

Asked as to the use of this sum, W. J. Chalmer, president of this committee, said: "I suppose we will use it as the strikers do, to support their fellows, pay pickets and meet other general expenses. We used $166,000 in the Cleveland strike, where we paid some men a bonus of $4 a day. There are millions more if they are needed. We have just received a telegram from the Pacific coast pledging 114 out of 135 firms to membership. We have delegates from San Francisco, Seattle and Portland, and the West is with us. We are gratified to receive their support. We know nothing of a conciliation committee from Toronto or elsewhere and no man not a member will get a hearing before us. We seek no trouble, but propose to protect our interests and industry. We are perfecting district organizations which will be in a measure independent, but all the members will be in the national association and we will work back and forth in harmony. We regard the outlook as satisfactory and are elated at the support we are getting.

"We are suffering no loss arising from delay on contracts which we were fulfilling at the time our machinists struck, for all of our contracts contain a strike clause releasing us from liability."

GLASGOW UNIVERSITY.

Four Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary Celebrated.

Glasgow, June 12.—The week's celebration of the four hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the foundation of Glasgow university commenced today with a religious service at the cathedral. The gathering was strikingly international. America was represented by delegates from California and Massachusetts and by several Canadians, while most of the universities of the continent were represented.

COMMISSION SIGNED.

Washington, June 12.—The president today signed the commission of Edward H. Callister as collector of internal revenue for Montana.

FIRE AT WOODWARD.

Perry, Iowa, June 12.—Fire at Woodward today destroyed nearly half of the business portion of the town. Loss about $30,000.

GREAT FORCE

Of Eastern Minnesota Collision as Felt By Passengers.

Daniel Waite, the well known attorney, was a passenger in the chair car of the wrecked Eastern Minnesota train this morning. He said that the train was going over the elevated track at a good rate of speed, having been delayed at the Union depot nearly half an hour by the breaking of an automatic coupling. He heard the whistling and felt the air-brakes clutch. He instinctively braced himself for a sudden stop, putting one foot out in the aisle. He was in the last chair away from the engine, and when the crash came he was hurled clear to the forward end of the car. He says that any person not in the wreck cannot understand the force of the collision.

Duncan McPhee, of Koochiching, was another passenger in the chair car. He clutched the chair when the shock came and had his shoulder severely wrenched. Another man named McIntyre was slightly injured.

A number of physicians report having treated passengers for bruises and slight cuts.

GETS AN INJUNCTION.

H. N. McHarg Did Not Pray In Vain.

The injunction suit of H. N. McHarg against County Auditor Halden has been referred by stipulation to William B. Phelps to report judgment, and he has reported a judgment in favor of McHarg, granting him a perpetual injunction restraining the county auditor from selling the property in dispute at the coming forfeited tax sale. The property was bid in at the forfeited tax sale of 1899 by the Duluth Banking company, and McHarg got his title to it through that company and the fee owner. The property brought $100 at the sale, but the court held the sale unconstitutional, so the auditor was about to sell it again, but the referee says this cannot be done, and Judge Ensign signed an order carrying out Mr. Phelps' finding.

Take your best girl to O-at-ka this evening. If she won't go, take some other fellow's.

Lease Is Filed.

The lease of the part of the new Bevier building at the northeast corner of First street and Third avenue west was filed for record this morning in the office of the register of deeds. L. H. Bayha & Co. lease fifty feet of the first floor and all of the second and third floors of a brick building 100 feet by 140 feet, to be completed by Sept. 1, 1901. The lease runs for ten years from that date, and the rent is $4500 for the first year, $4700 for the second year, $4900 for the third, fourth and fifth years, $5200 for the sixth, seventh and eighth years, $5500 for the ninth and $5500 for the tenth year.

New Lumber Company.

The Leaf Lumber company has been incorporated, and its articles of incorporation were filed yesterday afternoon in the office of the register of deeds. The company is to do a general lumber business, with a sawmill at Feeley's spur, on the Fosston branch of the Great Northern, and its principal place of business at Duluth. The capital stock is $25,000, divided into 250 shares, and the limit of indebtedness is $21,000. Thomas H. Martin, of Duluth; Andrew M. Johnson, of Superior, and George W. Martin, of Foley, Minn., are the incorporators and the first board of directors.

Another Mill Starts.

The Minkota mill, which is now operated by the Duluth-Superior Milling company on the other side of the bay, with a thousand-barrel capacity, has been started. This is the second mill to start up since the new company took charge of affairs and it is said that the intention is to keep these running steadily and start up others as the circumstances warrant.

Feast of Its Patron.

St. Anthony's German Catholic church will celebrate the feast of St. Anthony, the patron of the church, tomorrow. There will be high mass at 9:30 o'clock and solemn vespers and benediction at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. Additional interest will be given the event by the fact that during the past year Father Kosmerl has received from the bishop of Padua in Italy some of the true relics of St. Anthony and these will be exposed all of tomorrow.

COMPANY C.

St. Paul Delighted With the Spectacular Pageant.

Company C of this city presented its celebrated 'military carnival" in St. Paul last evening. The Pioneer Press says:

"The 3,000 or more people that witnessed the exhibition drills of Company C, Third regiment, of Duluth, in the Auditorium last evening, went away pleased with the exhibition. This was attested by the general applause throughout.

"The exhibition consisted of representations of historical bodies in fancy drills and in action. Germany was represented by Emperor William's Black Hussars; France by Imperial Guards of Napoleon I.; England by a company of British sailors in cutlass drill, and the United States by two military drills and a burlesque, 'The Beginning of an Army.' Representations were also given of Japanese mountaineers in skirmish; Arabians in a gun drill; old-time Swedish halberdiers and Roman swordsmen of the time of Caesar. Interspersed was a list of selections by the state Modern Woodmen band and vocal solos by George Tyler.

The drill of Emperor William's Black Hussars was easily the best. The fancy marching was especially fine, and would have done credit to a troup of professionals. The saber drill, while not showing the practice of the marching, was very well done.

The British sailors' drill was cleverly presented. In this, too, the fine effect was in the marching, some new figures being introduced which were especially difficult of execution.

During the drills of the French Imperial Guards and the Arabians, Miss Georgia Alexander, of Duluth, sang. She appeared with the guards as a water girl and sang as she passed water to the members of the company after the drill. She has a clear and ringing voice, and rendered with pleasing effect the quaint airs she chose. With the Arabians she appeared as a gypsy singer and gave a dancing song with a tambourine.

The entertainment closed with the appearance of the company in khaki uniforms and in heavy marching order. It executed regular military drills with marked precision. In fact, the company appeared to take its greatest pride in this part of the exhibition, and worked the hardest to make it perfect. Capt. R. Little was in command.

A QUICK CHANGE.

Water Settled His Desire For Suicide.

Bitterly wending his way to the edge of the lake, George Wood, a colored musician of St. Croix avenue, sought to commit suicide yesterday afternoon. He did it because he had acquired trouble with his sweetheart.

He waded out in Lake Superior up to his waist, and at that interesting stage of the proceedings he was struck amidships by a big wave. The colored man disappeared and when he came up again his ideas of suicide were changed.

As he was hastening out of the surf, Officer Norman Terry met him. "What were you doing out there?" demanded the officer.

"Oh, I was just drunk and went out there to cool off and sober up," gurgled the negro.

DO NOT LIKE IT.

Park Pointers Object to Changing Schedule.

Residents of Park Point are talking of calling a public meeting to protest against any change in the ferry schedule It has been recommended to the council that the ferry run every twenty minutes in order to make good connections with the cars of the Interstate Traction company, instead of every fifteen minutes as at present. This is at the urgent request of the campers.

"Why," exclaimed an old Park Point resident, "I don't see why the campers should have so much to say about it. We old settlers that have been living here for years, winter and summer, would prefer a rowboat service in preference to a 20-minute service."

HEATHCOTE WAS JEALOUS.

Des Moines, June 12.—Elijah Heathcote, a contractor, shot his wife early today, because of jealousy. Heathcote is now in jail. His victim is at the point of death.

RETURN TO WORK.

Buffalo, June 12.—About 120 machinists of the Snow Steam Pump works, who have been out since May 20, returned to work today. Neither side will state the nature of the agreement under which the men resumed.

GIVES AN OPTION

Ex-Governor Ramsey's Company to Have Its Property Exploited.

Duluth Parties Are Said to Have a Working Option.

Ex-Governor Alexander R. Ramsey of St. Paul is at the Spalding. He is in Duluth on his annual visit for the purpose of attending the meeting of stockholders and directors of the Mesaba Iron company, which owns 1000 acres in town 60, range 11-12, the property being two miles east and west and one mile north and south. This property is among the first of the iron lands surveyed in this state. At the annual meeting of the stockholders this morning the officers were re-elected.

The business of most importance, however, was the giving of an option to Duluth men to work the property. This has never been developed, and the local men will exploit the property with the privilege of purchase within one year. Governor Ramsey said this noon that this had been done, but W. W. Spalding, later said that it had not.

Minnesota's grand old man is enjoying his visit in Duluth, and is not allowing business to annoy with any cares. Governor Ramsey followed an Indian trail into Duluth when there was hardly a trace of civilization here, and few, if any buildings, unless the red man's tepee can be designated a building. The governor admits that it is with much pride that he can say he has been a resident of Minnesota for fifty-two years. In 1849 he was appointed territorial governor by President Zachary Taylor, coming from Pennsylvania, and he served as chief executive of this comonwealth until January, 1863, when he was elected to the United States senate, where he served for a term of years.

This sturdy pioneer of Minnesota is enjoying good health, and is not at all bashful in ownign to 86 years, and is looking forward with pleasure to his 87th birthday anniversary in September.

The governor will leave for his home tomorrow.

WEDDINGS.

June is the month of weddings, and this is the day of weddings, for there are a number of Duluth people to be married today.

This afternoon, at 3 o'clock, Miss Ora Ida Gridley, daughter of Mr and Mrs. E. C. Gridley, and William D. Bailey were married at the home of the bride's parents, 1003 London road. Rev. Alexander Milne, of Pilgrim Congregational church, performed the ceremony. The wedding was a very quiet one, only relatives being present. Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will leave this afternoon for a wedding trip.

This evening, at St. Paul's church, Miss Lillian Skuse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Skuse, and Hans Christenson will be married. The hour of the ceremony is 8 o'clock, and Rev. A. W. Ryan will officiate. They will leave for the East for a wedding trip.

This afternoon, at 4 o'clock, the marriage of Miss Mary Ellen Campbell, of Superior, and Clifford G. Howard, of The Herald repertorial force, took place at the home of the bride in Superior. It was a very quiet wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Howard will go East for a trip.

This evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Hood, will take place the marriage of their daughter, Miss Vina Hood, and J. M. Oldham. Rev. Alexander Milne will officiate.

GRAND HURDLE RACE.

Paris, June 12.—Mgr. Piperlin won the grand hurdle race at Auteil today. Robespierre was second, Pont Chevron third and Gilbert fourth. Fifteen horses ran.

A SOCIALIST PRESIDENT.

Paris, June 12.—The council general of the Seine today elected for the first time a Socialist as president. The successful candidate, M. Veber, had a majority of one over M. Galli, Nationalist.

PUTS THE "GINGER" IN.

The Kind of Food Used By Athletes.

A former college athlete, one of the long distance runners, began to lose his power of endurance. His experience with a change in food is interesting.

"While I was training on the track athletic team, my daily 'jogs' became a task until after I was put on Grape-Nuts Food for two meals a day. After using the Food for two weeks I felt like a new man. My digestion was perfect, nerves steady and I was full of energy.

"I trained for the mile and half mile runs (those events which require so much endurance) and then the long daily 'jogs,' which before had been such a task, were clipped off with ease. I won both events.

"The Grape-Nuts Food put me in perfect condition and gave me my 'ginger.' Not only was my physical condition made perfect, but my weight increased, but my mind was made clear and vigorous so that I could get out my studies in about half the time formerly required. Now most all of the university men use Grape-Nuts for they have learned its value, but I think my testimony will not be amiss and may perhaps help some one to learn how the best results can be obtained. Please do not publish my name."

There is a reason for the effect of Grape-Nuts Food on the human body and brain. The certain elements in wheat and barley are selected with special reference to their power for rebuilding the brain and nerve centers. The product is then carefully and scientifically prepared so as to make it easy of digestion. The Food can be secured at any first class grocery store.

Washington, June 1.—After the consultation of Mrs. McKinley's physicians this forenoon the following was issued:

"Mrs. McKinley's physicians report that she continues to show improvement, and expects to spend part of the day in her rolling chair."

AMERICANS LEAD.

Ahead on Totals In Clay Bird Shoot.

London, June 12.—The international clay bird trap shooting match, which began yesterday on the grounds of the Middlesex Gun club, Hendon, was resumed under entirely different weather conditions today. Rain, with varying winds, fell during the early afternoon, making shooting extremely difficult. At the end of the sixtieth round when each side had shot 600 targets, the British gunners had broken 476 and the Americans 473. The match closed for the day in a driving rain, with the following totals: Americans, 877; British, 794.

ILLINOIS' TIME.

Averages 17.4 Knots on Her Trial Run.

Rockport, Mass., June 12.—The battleship Illinois was sighted returning at 12:55. She finished her run at 2:18:42, showing a total elapsed time of 4 hours, 7 minutes, 36 seconds.

KILLED BY NEGRO.

Shreveport, La., June 12.—John Gray Foster, brother of the wife of Gov. McMillan, of Tennessee, was shot and killed today on his plantation by a negro laborer. A posse is now in pursuit. The Foster family is one of the most prominent in the state and the murder has caused intense feeling.

BALLED UP AGAIN

Amount of Chinese Indemnity Not Yet Agreed Upon.

No Formal Agreement Made By Powers on Any Sum.

Believed That The Hague Arbitration Scheme Will Prevail.

Washington, June 12.—Mr. Rockhill's proposition to submit the indemnity question to The Hague tribunal, it is now learned, carried with it the adjustment of the total of the indemnity. Through a misunderstanding which was perhaps purposely created by some of the powers, the sum of 450,000,000 taels was supposed to have been finally agreed on by all the powers as the total of indemnity to be demanded from China. As a matter of fact there is nothing official to show that the powers or indeed a majority of them actually made this a matter of formal agreement. It is true that China undertook to pay an indemnity of 450,000,00 taels, but it is equally true that this undertaking, doubtless based upon the misunderstanding above referred to was at least in advance of a formal agreement among the ministers themselves.

Hence Mr. Rockhill's proposition to include the total of the indemnity in the matter to be submitted to The Hague arbitration. European criticisms based upon the idea that Mr. Rockhill's proposition as to arbitration concerns only the method of payment are therefore found in error. The hope that the arbitratin plan will prevail is based upon the belief that no other scheme so far brought forward is sufficient.

GROW GRAIN.

St. Paul, June 12.—The National Grain Growers' Co-operative association elected officers at the capitol today. The old officers were re-elected and T. C. Rogers, of Whipple and Thomas Dodd, of North Dakota, were added to the executive committee.

The state association elected as president, T. C. Rogers, of Whipple; first vice president, James McQuade, De Graff; second vice president, John Hartle, Owatonne; secretary, Dennis Fitzpatrick, Waverly; treasurer, Andrew Wise, Morton; executive committee, Henry De Young, Morton; John Gerard, Buffalo; Levi Dumas, Waverly.

Samuel H. Greely, vice president of the national association and president of the Illinois Grain Growers' association was present with a set of resolutions in opposition to bucket shops and the special privileges granted holders of grain elevator receipts on the Chicago board of trade. His resolutions went through without opposition.

The resolutions closed with a petition to congress to increase the present internal revenue tax on bucket shops and their transactions to a prohibitive figure.

MANY DIFFICULTIES

In the Way of Establishing Catholic Priests.

Paris, June 12.—The Rome correspondent of the Temps says the pope, in private audience which he accorded to Cardinal Gibbons yesterday, discussing the question of the religious orders in Cuba and the Philippines, referred to regularizing the position of the friars and creating a native priesthood, who would not be slavish adherents of Spanish traditions.

The pope and Cardinal Gibbons, the correspondent adds, do not deceive themselves regarding the difficulties of the problem they have before them.

PARADED STREETS.

Strikers at Rochester Cause Considerable Trouble.

Rochester, N. Y., June 12.—About 1,000 men who recently struck work on street improvement contracts, paraded the streets today and attacked a gang of men who had taken work at the old rate of wages. Policemen drove off the rioters, who resumed their march and caused the suspension of work on other contracts. Subsequently the paraders visited the city hall, where their leaders interviewed Mayor Carnahan. That official promised his best endeavors to induce the contractors to come to terms.

TOOK THE OATH.

Counterfeiter Is Finally Out From Montana Prison.

St. Paul, June 12.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: Gustavus Schrikengast today took a pauper's oath and thereby relieved congress of the necessity of passing a special enactment to remove him from the Montana state prison, where he had been sentened to five years and fined $500 for counterfeiting. After completing his tern several months ago he declined to take the pauper's oath, thereby securing the remittance of the fine and his liberty, because Idaho officials wanted him for highway robbery. Having been convicted in the federal courts, congress was to have been appealed to this wirter to order his discharge.

HAVE HIGH OPINION.

Berlin, June 12.—Frederick W. Holls, United States member of the International arbitration court at The Hague, has had a conversation with Count Von Bulow, in which Von Buelow assured him that both Emperor William and himself held a much higher opinion of The Hague tribunal and its possibilities for maintaining and restoring the peace of the world than the papers here and elsewhere credited them with. Mr. Holls at the end of the week goes o Vienna.

POSITIVELY DENIED.

Philadelphia, June 12.—Pennsylvania railroad officials today denied positively that the company had acquired a controlling interest in the Pennsylvania Steel Company and also that the Pennsylvania Railroad company had purchased the Berwind-White Bituminous Coal company. At the offices of the Pennsylvania Steel company, the officials would neither confirm nor deny the rumors.

Eczema, salt rheum, tetter, chafing, ivy poisoning and all skin tortures are quickly cured by DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. The certain pile cure. Max Wirth.

THREATENS INDUSTRY.

Frenchman Alarmed By the American Steel Trust.

Paris, June 12.—Francois Laur, a former deputy, deposited in the chamber of deputies today a petition calling attention to the American Steel Trust which it is claimed, threatens the disorganization of the French metal industry. The petitioner suggests as reprisals an increase in the duties on American steel products, especially machine tools. The petition will be referred to the petitions committee. M. Laur proposes to visit the United States next year to study trusts. Afterwards he will be a candidate for re-election to the chamber of deputies at the general elections of 1902. His sole program will be an anti-trust war. M. Laur, some time ago, attacked the Standard Oil company's operations in France. The company sued him and won the lay.

TERRIFIC HAIL STORM.

Thousands of Windows Are Broken Near Oshkosh.

Milwaukee, June 12.—A Journal special from Oshkosh, Wis., says a terrific hail storm started in after 2 o'clock this afternoon and continued fifteen minutes. The stones were as large as hickory nuts. Thousands of windows were broken and trees and shrubbery damaged. A score of big windows in the city hall were blown in and a heavy hatchway on the top of the city hall was blown down. A number of buildings in the city were partially wrecked. The storm extended from ten miles south to a considerable distance north.

AS A SEAPORT.

Chicago Attracts the Attention of Europe.

Washington, June 12.—Chicago as a seaport commences to attract the attention of Europe, says Consul General Istoe, writing from Rotterdam to the state department. A Rotterdam ship broker firm, says the consul, advertises in the local papers that it will accept freight to go through with bulk unbroken to Chicago, the first time in maritime history that such a step has been taken.

SCHWAB A DIRECTOR.

Chicago, June 12.—The annual meeting of stockholders of the Illinois Steel company was held here today and C. M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel corporation elected to the directory. No change was made in the list of officers. As the company is now a constituent part of the United States Steel corporation, no financial statement was called for.

HAS A CHILL.

London, June 12.—It was reported today that Gen. Wm. Booth of the Salvation Army was seriously ill, but he was merely suffering from a slight chill and from fatigue.

FLAMBARD WINS.

London, June 12.—Richard Croker's Flambard (L. Reiff) won the imperial cup handicap of 400 sovereigns in specie, and a cup valued at fifty sovereigns at the Lingfield Park spring meeting today. Ten horses started.

SECURING OPTIONS.

Cleveland, June 12.—Capitalists represented by Washington bankers are engaged in securing options upon stock of the Republic Iron Mining company, which is largely owned in this city.

GRANTED A DIVORCE.

Washington, June 12.—Esther Bartlett Clarke this afternoon was granted a divorce from James King Clarke, of Pittsburg. Desertion was the ground on which the application was based. Some time ago Mr. Clarke sued for a divorce in Pittsburg, but the jury failed to agree.

FLEAS ARE PIRATES.

The Intense Ferocity of the Little Insect.

The flea possesses all the piratical instincts—thirst for blood, rapacity, cruelty. He is, further, as ingenious in devising tortures as he is untiring in the torment of his victims, says the Washington Star.

The flea is built upon lines that make him forever hungry. But his continuous performance appetite is far from being the oddest thing about him. Proportionately to size, he is the Samson of the universe. If an elephant had the same relative strength he could come near to oversetting a steel-framed skyscraper.

A flea, wingless, with a body out of all proportion to his head, and all over less than the sixteenth of an inch in length, will leap upon a plane surface more than a yard. This, too, when he has been hatched in hair, or straw, or sand, and never known what it was to have a full meal. More marvelous still, he will spring perpendicularly upward from one to two feet. Fancy a man or boy standing flat-footed and all of a sudden leaping over a church spire.

Wonderful things have been done with fleas. They have been put into gold collars and set to drag about lengths of gold chain at least 100 times their own weight. Further, an igeniuos goldsmith back in the leisurely seventeenth century made a coach and four in ivory and gold, with a coachman upon the box, postillion and outriders, yet all so tidy it was dragged by a pair of fleas, working in gold collars. They worked under a bell glass, and were exhibited in London and Paris.

To fight like cats and dogs is the synonym of continuing strife, but even cats and dogs do not fight so bitterly as cat fleas and dog fleas. Oddly enough the cat fleas are bigger than the dog fleas, so should be always victors. But here as elsewhere condition tells. If the cat fleas are lazy and luxurious—fat they can never grow—the small, lean, keen-beaked dog fleas kill them out.

The combatants stand up to fight quite like a pair of prize ring ornaments. As they have six legs they have plenty to stand on and still spare a couple with which to belabor each other. Upon neutral ground, as a floor or walk, the cat and dog fleas keep the peace. But let one invade litter or a coat sacred to the other, and there is straightway a fight to a finish. Something even more curious than this inborn antipathy is that dog fleas will not live upon a cat nor cat fleas upon a dog.

Fleas lay eggs after the insect manner, which hatch out tiny wrigglers very nearly invisible to the naked eye, yet capable of feeding on moisture and microbes—at least one judges that to be the diet, since fleas breed so largely in sand, hair, straw and litter where no other food is lacking—and after a while spinning themselves cocoons. The cocoons are no bigger than tiny grals of sand, but under the microscope show as semi-translucent ovals beautifully banded with pink and pearl. They are formed upon top of the matrix, whatever it may be, where the sun or the light can strike them fair. Rain just at the hatching time often kills a whole brood of sandflies.

A flea's beak is sharp and hard, something like a bird's, only more pointed. A fleabite is not poisonous, save and except in rare cases where a flea has previously been biting infected tissue. Certain French scientists have shown that both fleas and bedbugs could thus carry tubercular infection. Further, rats and rat fleas are greatly dreaded as helping to spread the fearful bubonic plague.

HAVE IT IN MIND

County Board Is Considering Court House Project.

Each Commissioner Is to Sound His Constituents.

Action Will Depend Upon Sentiment of the Public.

At the meeting of the board of county commissioners Monday it was decided that each member of the board should start on a still hunt to counted the sentiment in his district on the question of calling a bond election for the purpose of issuing bonds for building a new court house.

The action of the board in the matter will depend on how the members of the board find the sentiment of the public. If it appears to be against taking any steps in the matter none will be taken, as there would be little use in calling an election and going to the expense involved in it if the people were pretty sur to vote down the proposition.

There has been very little said about the proposition of building a court house publicly, so the board had nothing to work upon. Therefore it was decided to take this course. During the next month the seven members of the board will be seen button-holing their constituents and asking them what they think about building a new court house, and if the expressions are generally pretty favorable an election will be called at a meeting within a month or two, possibly at the next meeting, when the members will report.

If an election is held it will take place this fall, and it will, of course, be separate from any general election, as there is none this year. There will be nothing to prevent the public giving a complete and decisive expression on the subject.

The most important matter, however, will be the canvass of the members of the board, because bond elections usually go through no matter what they are for. That has been the experience in the past.

APOPLEXY.

Thomas Smith Found Dead In the Vega Saloon.

Thomas Smith, formerly of Winnipeg, was found dead last night in a rear room of the Vega saloon, No. 27 East Superior street. Mr. Leonard, proprietor of the saloon, went into the room and in the darkness stumbled over the body. Smith was on his back apparently asleep, but when a light was turned on it was noticed that his face was nearly black.

He went to the saloon about noon yesterday and after spending about 20 cents for drinks, he told the bartender that he was financially shattered and asked permission to go into a rear room to sleep for awhile. The consent was given and later the bartender noticed several times that the man was there. He thought him asleep.

The body was taken to the undertaking rooms of Durkan & Crawford, where it was identified this morning by F. W. Ross.

Mr. Ross says that several days ago Smith stopped him on the street and introduced himself. Mr. Ross then recognized him as a former traveling man connected with the wholesale grocery house of Sutherland & Campbell, of Winnipeg.

Efforts are being made to find relatives or friends of the dead man, but up to noon these efforts had not met with success.

Dr. Hatton made an examination of the body and pronounced death due to apoplexy.

VIADUCT IS BEGUN

Contractors Start Building of the Masonry For Approach.

Northern Pacific to Have the Steel By August 1.

After years of agitation, litigation and waiting, work was begun on the approach to the Garfield avenue viaduct this morning.

MacLeod & Smith, the Duluth firm that received the contract for building the masonry for the approach, are rigging up their heavy lifting apparatus preparatory to pushing the work through without delay.

The Northern Pacific road will have its structural steel on the ground as soon as possible. An officer of that road says that while the Northern Pacific contract with the American Bridge works does not call for delivery of the structural steel till Aug. 1, he has been advised that the steel will be delivered before that time and that the work will be well underway by the middle of August.

That this morning the first work on the big viaduct was begun under the city's contract with MacLeod & Smith. This calls for the erection of the masonry abuttments for the approach from the south side of Superior street to the north side of Michigan street.

The masonry work will cost about $8066.

The viaduct proper will be 1338 feet long and 54 feet wide. The city will build about 204 feet of this.

REFUSES IT.

No Receiver For the Scott-Graff Lumber Company.

Judge Dibell refused to grant any relief to James C. Hunter in his suit against the Scott-Graff Lumber company, in which he sought to have the company enjoined from going into the logging business, and to have a receiver appointed to conduct its affairs so that he and other minority stockholders would get their rights.

The arguments were made this morning and yesterday afternoon. W. W. Billson, who, with W. R. Spencer, represented the company, started them, and J. L. Washburn and John G. Williams, for the plaintiff, spoke this morning. At the conclusion of the arguments Judge Dibell decided the case immediately, refusing to grant either an injunction or a receiver.

In passing his decision he said that such contracts as those with Mitchell & McClure and Duncan, Brewer & Company, for simple logging, were not within the powers granted by the articles of incorporation, but as the evidence did not show that the company intended to do any more of it there could be no injunction. The court held that such contracts as that with Richardson & Avery, by which the company handled the product of the forest from the tree to the finished lumber, were quite within its powers.

On the question of the appointment of a receiver he said that in order to induce the court to appoint a receiver it must be shown that the defendants were acting in bad faith and by fraud. The evidence did not justify a finding of that kind, the court said. The defendants did nothing that a majority stockholders, having control of the company's affairs, they should not have done. There was no showing of bad faith or fraud on their part.

STOLEN AT CLOQUET.

Two Horses Belonging There Are Found.

Detective Troyer this afternoon recovered two horses that were stolen from Cloquet on Sunday evening. He found them in a pasture up on Duluth Heights.

The horses belonged to employes of the Johnson & Wentworth Lumber company and were stolen late in the evening. They were traced to this city, but once within the city proper the trace was lost. Last night the animals were found wandering along the hillside not far from the top of the Seventh avenue incline, and were locked in the pasture, where they were found this afternoon. The authorities have no trace of the thieves.

NO ABATEMENT

Of the Interest In the Kennedy Case.

Kansas City, June 12.—No abatement of interest was apparent when the ninth day of the trial of Lulu Prince-Kennedy, for killing her husband, Philip H. Kennedy, began. The defendant appeared in the best of spirits. H. H. Allen, for whom the prisoner formerly worked, testified of frequent calls by Kennedy. C. E. Woody, who boarded at the Prince home, testified on similar lines.

E. W. Lewis began to tell of a conversation with Kennedy, but objections precipitated a long argument.

The Army Canteen.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I have been greatly interested in your recent editorials on the subject of the army canteen. It seems to me, however, that you do not take account of all the facts. For example, you assert that the army officers are opposed to the anti-canteen provision. While that is no doubt true in many instances, yet there are prominent exceptions, notably Lieut.-Gen. Miles, the commander-in-chief, and Gen. Wheeler, the latter of whom I was glad to see you quoted in Saturday's Herald. Again, you in common with many newspapers throughout the country, claim that there has been marked increase of drunkenness, desertions, and the like, since the abolition of the canteen. I am aware that there have been numerous press dispatches to that effect since the law went into operation in February. I desire, however, to call your attention to the fact that in two prominent cases those dispatches have been proved to be fakes, made out of whole cloth, and there is no reason to believe that others have not been likewise false. The two cases to which I refer are as follows:

Immediately after the first pay day following the abolition of the canteen it was reported in the daily papers that a riot had occurred in Highwood, the suburb of Chicago where Fort Sheridan is located; a large number of soldiers, drunk on cheap whisky purchased at the new saloons which were alleged to have sprung up in the vicinity of the fort, having come into conflict with the village police, and a great deal of trouble having followed. When his attention was called to this report the mayor of Highwood declared there was simply no foundation whatever for the story, since there were no new saloons, there had been on riot, nor any unusual trouble with the soldiers on pay day.

The other case is that of our own Fort Snelling. In the St. Paul Pioneer Press of May 24, under the caption "Snelling Favors the Canteen," there appeared a dispatch from Washington, purporting to give the substance of a recent report received from Col. Ray, the commandant at Fort Snelling, in which he declared that never in the history of the Eighth regiment had the officers had so much trouble with intoxication as had occurred since the canteen was abolished. It was asserted that the guard house was full, that two warrant officers had been reduced to the ranks for drunkenness, that desertions were frequent, that low groggeries had sprung up across the river which gave much trouble to the city authorities, etc. The dispatch closed with a verbatim quotation from Col. Ray's report. The next morning, May 25, the same paper published an interview with Col. Ray himself, in which he denied the report in toto, saying that he had made no report to Washington on the subject; that there was no new saloons across the river, nor anywhere else in the vicinity of the fort; that he had not had any trouble whatever as the result of abolishing the canteen; and further asserted that the canteen cuts absolutely no figure in the discipline of the army. To say that it does, said the colonel, is to cast an unwarranted reflection on the soldiers of the United States army, and on the efficiency of their officers. He goes on to say that when the canteen is properly managed it does not satisfy the desires of the hard-drinking soldier, and when it is not properly managed, it is worse than the outside saloons. Furthermore, he declares that in all his experience he never saw but one decently managed canteen; that the desire to swell the receipts of the canteen for the benefit of the company fund puts a premium on drinking, thus defeating the very purpose of the canteen.

Now, Mr. Editor, these are not the sentimental ideas of a long-haired fanatic, but are the observations of an old and experienced army officer, who has no desire to deprive the sober soldier of his occasional glass of beer, but who has the interests of the service at heart. Moreover, the fake dispatch from Washington indicates very clearly the methods to which the opponents of the anti-canteen law, whoever they may be, are compelled to resort to prejudice public sentiment. You would confer a favor on the public if you would publish the Washington dispatch and the actual interview side by side.

One other point I wish to make. In your editorials you have assumed that the prohibition of beer and wine selling in the post exchange deprived the soldier of his quiet club. The interview with Col. Ray brings out the fact that since the canteen was abolished, the company reading room plan has been adopted. Reading rooms have been fitted up in the company barracks. Cigars, fruit and the like are on sale at prices about one-third less than was charged at the canteen and the results are entirely satisfactory. A recent letter from the chaplain of the post on Staten Island, N. Y., details a similar plan in operation there.

Now, sir, in all fairness to the public, it seems to me that such facts as these ought to be made prominent. The friends of the anti-canteen provisions are not afraid of investigation. If the soldier and the service is better off with the canteen than without, by all means let us have the canteen. But we deny that he is better off, and we do not think that the methods of misrepresentation and suppression of evidence which the opponents of the law employ speak well for the soundness of their contention. I believe the newspapers wish to be fair, but they are misled by their dispatches, and it would be well if all could follow the commendable example of the Pioneer Press, and go to headquarters for the truth. Yours sincerely,

JOHN W. POWELL, JR.

TRIAL TRIP.

Boston, June 12.—The new United States battleship Illinois, built by the Newport News Shipbuilding company, was given her official trial over the government course from Cape Ann to Boon island today. The vessel left the upper harbor, where she had been anchored at 8 o'clock and made her way slowly toward Gloucester. All conditions were perfect for a successful test of the vessel. The sky was clear and light, warm sunshine bathed the battleship as she pressed her way toward Cape Ann. A light breeze from the northwest cooled the heat of the summer day and gave a clear atmosphere.

The official course over which the Illinois to fulfill her contract, must sustain a speed of sixteen knots, is thirty-three knots in length, to be covered twice. At intervals of 6-6-10 knots government vessels were stationed to mark the course.

Rear Admiral R. D. Evans was in charge of today's trial as the head of the government's board. The other officers of the board are Capt. C. S. Train, Commander N. H. Hemphill, Commander Charles P. Roelker, Lieut. Commander Charles D. Vreeland, Lieut. Commander Richard Henderson.

A DOUBLE MEETING

Fourth of July and Excursion Committee Meet Together.

For Present All Efforts Will Be Devoted to Celebration.

That Committee Will Afterward Aid In Getting Excursions.

The two committee meetings that were scheduled for the city hall last night were merged into one very active and encouraging gathering. The committee on excursions joined with the Fourth of July committee, and will hold off in its work until after the latter committee gets through with its arrangements for celebrating the Fourth in an old-fashioned spread-eagle manner. Not only that, but it will help the Fourth committee in every way in its power, and especially by not trying to take up any collection for the excursion business until after the Fourth of July committee has done all it can in that line.

When the meeting was called to order with a large attendance, Mayor Hugo explained how it happened that the two committees were meeting together. It had been found that if the two committees worked independently they might conflict, so it had been decided to hold off on the excursion work until after the Fourth, when everybody will turn in and work up the excursion business.

J. M. Gidding, of the excursion committee, said that the committee had met with the representatives of the railroads and had come to an understanding as to what can be done along that line this summer. The local railroad men will report to the St. Paul officers and arrange dates for the excursions so that none of them will clash. The traffic association in the Twin Cities will arrange the excursions and submit dates to the committee for its approval. The committee also expects some of the best boat lines to give a series of excursions to Duluth.

Thomas H. Hill, of the Duluth Improvement association, said that he had been interested in securing accommodations for the Fourth of July and other excursions. This had been neglected in the past, and the result was that sometimes accommodations were limited. The association will be able to take care of all the people that will come here, so there will be no risk in sending people looking for accommodations to the association. Fifty cents a day is the rate that rooms can be furnished for. The railroad will do all they can for the excursions, and there will be an average of one a week during the season. It will be necessary to do some advertising aside from that done by the roads, and Mr. Hill submitted a draft of a lithograph poster that he would like to see printed and generally distributed.

I. Freimuth, of the excursion committee, said that the members of that committee were glad to gather with the Fourth of July committee and come to an understanding. He combatted the idea that the excursions are to be for the special benefit of the storekeepers of Duluth. It is the work of the committee to arrange a series of excursions through the summer. It was the intention to call upon the people for a subscription for this purpose, but the Fourth of July committee got in a little ahead, so it was decided to give way to that committee for the time being and arrange later for the excursions.

Mayor Hugo said that the Fourth of July committee would be glad to have the excursion committee remain and take part in the excursion, and later the Fourth of July committee will help out the excursion committee.

B. Silberstein said that a visit to some business houses and offices had been made yesterday morning and that a good spirit was found, many people who had never contributed before giving what they could to help the thing along. The excursions are not be exclusively for the benefit of the merchants, but for the city generally.

Mayor Hugo, for the executive committee of the Fourth of July general committee, reported that Hon. R. G. Evans had been secured as the orator of the day, and that L. C. Harris had consented to read the Declaration of Independence.

William E. Richardson, of the committee on parade, read an invitation that had been sent to public bodies of all sorts asking them to join the parade. Of these 400 had been printed and sent out, not only in Duluth, but to range towns, Superior, as far west as Bemidji, and to Northern Wisconsin and Michigan. Besides that personal letters have been sent out by members of local organizations to similar societies elsewhere. M. E. Allezhaeuser is arranging to have 2000 school children in line, and Mr. Boyd, of the West End, will have a boys' brigade of 200 in the parade, besides a company of boy cavalry. The laboringmen have been interested, and the unions will be out in force. The militia will be out and Company C will exhibit its collection of uniforms of all nations.

G. K. Nesbitt, for the committee of publicity and railroads, reported that most of the roads had promised a rate of a fare and a third for the round trip to Duluth, and the Missabe and Iron Range roads will offer one fare for the round trip, with special trains. The Iron Range will leave Ely at 5 o'clock a. m. on the morning of the Fourth, and arrive in Duluth at 9 o'clock. Capt. W. H. Singer will probably run excursions in on both the Bon Ami and the Mabel Bradshaw, from the north and south shores. Arrangements have also been made to properly advertise the celebration through Frank Burrows, who has placed space and local advertising in a number of outside papers.

J. M. Gidding spoke of the fact that The Evening Herald will be distributed free in towns from which excursions are to come during the summer, far enough in advance so that everybody will know from the paper that the excursions are to take place, and he presumed the same thing could be done for the Fourth of July celebration.

Mayor Hugo suggested that the executive and legislative officers of the nearby towns be especially invited to attend.

A. T. Park and William Burgess reported for the committee on decorations. Arrangements will be made to have a continuous and systematic decoration. One lot will be in red, the next in white and the next in blue, and so on down the line. Some arches will be needed, and there will be games and sports and aerobatic performances in the streets. The board of public works will be asked to loan some sidewalk lumber to make platforms for the platform shows.

Mayor Hugo reported for the corner stone committee that arrangements had been made to have the corner stone at the northeast corner, which is the proper corner, laid on the Fourth. Grand Master G. S. Ives will be here, as well as other prominent Masons.

Paul Sharvy, for the committee on sports, said that several horses are now training for the races, and there will be about twenty horses here. A. C. Pearson, of The Herald, will have charge of some newsboy races, to come in between the horse races. The track and stands are now being fixed up.

Alderman Johnson wanted to know how far west the parade would go, and said that some of the West End people who might not be able to get down town to see it had hoped that it might go as far west as Twentieth avenue. W. E. Richardson said that depended on the length of the parade, but if it was as long as expected now it could not go that far. Besides, the number of children in the parade made that too long a distance to travel.

Mayor Hugo said that the West End part of the parade would be given a hand to march down town with. An effort has been made to get all parts of the city into the celebration, and every part except West Duluth will have part of it. As to West Duluth, all that could be done is to promise to help them out next year.

Mayor Hugo reported for the naval committee that not much success had been had with the regatta owing to the lack of money for prizes for the boat club. The evening pageant of illuminated boats will be large, however.

F. W. Kugler reported for the fireworks committee that a large display will be had, including some handsome set pieces.

B. Silberstein asked if arrangements were being made to provide places for the crowds to get drinking water, and Mayor Hugo said that the board of health will have arrangements for this and to care for anybody that may be taken ill.

Mayor Hugo said, in closing the meeting, that he believed that the Fourth of July celebration would be the means of kindling so much enthusiasm that the work of the excursion committee would be made easier.

CONTROL

Of American Linseed Oil Company Secured By Standard.

New York, June 12.—Announcement is made that the control of the American Linseed company has passed into the hands of interests identified with the Standard Oil company, and that the absorption of the Linseed company by the Union Lead and Oil company, as extensively advertised, has been abandoned. The latter will, however, be largely interested as a stockholder in the Linseed company under the Standard Oil management. The new directors chosen at the meeting just held show conclusively that the control of the American Linseed company has passed. The new board is: John D. Rockefeller, Jr., F. T. Gates, George Welwood Murray, E. Parmalee Prentice, L. L. Bowers, J. A. McGeans, George D. Rogers, E. V. Carey, F. J. Lovett, W. A. Jones, Gay S. Major, Gomer E. Highley, J. W. Daniels, W. P. Orr and A. N. Eddy. The five last named are representatives of the old management. So far there has been no announcement regarding the personnel of the interests behind the Union Lead ad Oil company, the concern which it was announced was to absorb the American Linseed company.

It is explained that it was the intention to combine the management of the two concerns, but that, when the call for stock was made to be deposited under the terms of the purchase it was found that a majority of the stock rested with the syndicate which subsequently disclosed itself as being identified with the Standard Oil company.

At this time the Union Lead and Oil company had obtained an interest of 16,-00 shares of stock of the American Linseed company. When the disclosure was made it was decided to abandon the plans for merger and to work in harmony with those now in control. It is noted, however, that in the list of directors elected there is none who can be said to represent directly the Union Lead and Oil company, and this fact has given rise to the conjecture that an issue was taken by the Standard Oil syndicate to regard to the prices offered for the exchange of stocks.

MANY ARE BIG LOSERS

Failure of Hans Gronnerud, the Renville County Banker.

Depositors Clamoring For Money But No Assets In Sight.

Liabilities Run Into High Figures---He Has Disappeared.

Olivia, Minn., June 12.—Hans Gronnerud, who has for forty years been one of the most respected citizens of Renville county, and supposed to be worth a quarter of a million dollars, has failed, with reported liabilities amounting to $125,000 and no assets.

For many years he has been the owner of the Bank of Beaver Falls and a heavy stockholder in the Morton bank and State bank of Olivia, and the Renville County Abstract company, and has been engaged in loaning trust funds for Wisconsin and Eastern parties, as well as hundreds of people in this county, who have entrusted him with their earnings.

To the astonishment of every one who knows him, it has now leaked out that he is in a hopeless state of insolvency, with liabilities ranging from $100,000 to $200,000. The Bank of Beaver Falls has closed its doors, and depositors are now clamoring for their money, but there appears to be no assets.

Creditors from other places are trying to locate their investments made through him, but everything seems to be in a tangle, and no one appears to know much about it.

Gronnerud left here several years ago, saying that he was going to some hot springs in Indiana for his health, which has been badly shattered for more than a year, as a result of a stroke of apoplexy, received about a year and a half ago. For years he has been a public benefactor and an ardent friend of the poor, and his friends cannot understand what brought about his financial reverses. Many attribute it to ill-health, his inability to attend to business, and but few charge him with dishonest motives.

Several experts are at work at his books, and it is hoped that when all the facts are known the loss will not be as great as now reported.

Some time ago he disposed of all his bank stock and real estate, and has apparently converted all his former assets into cash, with the view of satisfying his creditors, but it seems they were insufficient in amount. The banks mentioned, except the Beaver Falls bank, are in no way affected by the failure.

Mr. Gronnerud was for many years treasurer of this county, and has been prominent in local and state politics. A year ago he was mentioned as a possible candidate for congress from this district, but ill-health prevented his friends from pushing his candidacy.

TRANSFERRED PROPERTY.

Morton, Minn., June 12.—One week ago, when the failure of Hans Gronnerud was made public, there were few if any outside the Cheney family who imagined the magnitude of the failure. Facts and figures are coming in slowly, but enough is already known which goes to show that the financial collapse of Hans Gronnerud is by far the most disastrous of any in the history of Southern Minnesota.

Widows, hired girls, farm hands and farmers are the victims of the Gronnerud failure. It is understood that previous to his departure to points unknown, Mr. Gronnerud submitted a statement of liabilities aggregating nearly $100,000, but according to authentic reports the amount will far exceed that figure, and farmers will be the principal sufferers.

Long before there was any suspicion of the Gronnerud's financial embarrassment, D. D. Cheney, his business associate, acompanied by an attorney, spent several days in Olivia, during which time all the realties in the name of Gronnerud were transferred to D. D. Cheney, all other creditors being ignored.

At the present writing there is most likely to be a general uprising among the creditors to contest the right of Mr. Gronnerud making the Cheneys preferred creditors and that there will be a war of litigation goes without saying.

Gronnerud has two sons both practicing physicians—Dr. Paul, in Chicago, and Dr. August, Warren, Minn.—both of whom were overlooked in the transfers of their father's property. Up to this writing no person seems to know or admit Gronnerud's whereabouts. None of the local banks are affected by the big failure.

DESPERATE

Watseka, Ill., June 12.—With no clothing on his body, John J. Craig fled through the country north of Watseka, pursued by an angry posse of officers and farmers. For twelve hours his bare body was whipped by overhanging branches of the trees or scratched by the sharp stalks in the fields. He begged at farm houses for clothing, and finally succeeded in getting a pair of overalls, a weather-worn shirt and a battered hat. With these he escaped north, bound, possibly, for Chicago.

Craig's pursuit is a story of two days. His crimes and misdeeds a story of years. He robbed his family, killed his brother, and beat his sweetheart in Kentucky. He stole cows and horses in Ohio, where he worked for the state for five years. He fled from Missouri because the laws disagreed with his health, and found refuge in Illinois. Here he won the love of a 16-year-old girl, whose brain had been turned by the perusal of cheap novels.

The final act was about to be played in the divorce court of Iroquois county when Craig appeared and sought the life of his wife.

The romance of Daisy V. Dement and John J. Craig began one year ago in Iroquois. Samuel Dement and wife, a childless couple, adopted Daisy when a little girl, and she was trained in their home. They neglected, however, to protect her in her reading, and she perused many highly sensational novels, which left her mind ripe for the coming of Craig. He succeeded in making the girl believe him a hero. They were married on Oct. 23 last. Soon, as related in the petition for divorce filed last month, Craig struck his wife with his fist and knocked her over a red hot stove. On Feb. 24 he felled her and threw her over the fence. When he threatened her with a knife she left him and returned to her adopted parents.

One night last March Craig, accompanied by two men, unlocked the back door of Dement's home and crept in. Craig felt his way to the bedside of his father-in-law, and, with uplifted club, was about to brain him, when Dement woke up. The old man turned over, and the club struck his nose, carrying away the tip of it.

Craig was about to strike again, when the threatened man drew a revolver and fired. Craig fled.

Dement with his family removed to Watseka for safety, and Craig was unable to locate his wife for several weeks. Dement awoke late Saturday night. As he arose he saw the face of Craig pressed against a window. Fearing an attack Dement remained up until 5 o'clock, when Craig left. On Sunday afternoon some boys saw Craig in the woods north of Watseka. They informed Dement and the police. City Marshal Harper, Assistant Ireland, Sheriff Martin and several citizens started out to find Craig. They saw him in Old Town and the pursuit began. Craig ran with the posse spread out behind him.

Finding he could not shake off the posse Craig started for the Iroquois river. When the party came up the man was under some vines. Harper called to him to give up. Craig threw off his clothing and leaped into the river. Harper and Dement opened fire, and the bullets struck near the bobbing head of the swimmer. The officers secured a boat and crossed the river, which is about thirty yards wide. Craig had made good use of the time gained and was not to be seen. The officers had the general direction he pursued would take, and ran that way. All night they chased him, but at daylight they gave up.

At the home of John Connors, Craig, it was learned, was given a pair of overalls, a pair of boots and an old gray shirt and a felt hat covered with paint. He is supposed to have gone to Chicago.

There is a reward of $300 offered in Kentuck for Craig's arrest.

SAMPSON MEDAL VETOED.

Secretary Long Has Refused to Approve It.

Washington, June 12.—Secretary Long has declined to approve the design of the West Indian naval battle medal recommended by the board of awards until he has seen and carefully examined all other design. The secretary has indicated, moreover, that he will not accept the decision of the board of awards for the reason that he does not care to stir up the old Sampson-Schley controversy at a time when it is being lost to public view. The medal recommended by the board has Rear Admiral Sampson's profile on one side and the battleship Oregon on the other. There was bitter and influential opposition to the so-called Sampson medal, and the board of awards practically gave out the information some weeks ago that it would not be selected. Then suddenly announcement was made that the Sampson medal had been chosen from all designs submitted. Assistant Secretary Hackett, who, for reasons of his own, has been a violent partizan of Sampson since he was appointed, approved the work of the board of review. It was supposed that Secretary Long would concur in Hackett's approval without a word of dissent, but the secretary has given the conspirators of the navy department a shock by turning down their selection and commanding that all other designs be brought to him so that he may determine for himself if the most appropriate one was selected. Of course, the secretary may select the Sampson medal, but he has clearly indicated that he does not want to do so.

FEDERAL MILITIA.

New Plan as to State Volunteer Companies.

Washington, June 12.—A number of conferences have taken place in this city between Assistant Secretary of War Carey Sanger and officers of the state militia organizations of the East. Later on officers of the Middle and Western states are to be invited here to talk over a plan which will put into execution this fall for bringing the state volunteer organizations into closer touch with the federal government.

The details of the plan have not been worked out, but its general features can be told in a few words. In return for larger appropriations from the federal treasury the state military organizations are to bind themselves to respond to a call of the president for duty anywhere for a period of from thirty to ninety days. They would become what might be called "federal militia," and instead of being mere state organizations, sworn for duty within the boundaries of the state, and subject only to the command of the governor of the state, they would be subject primarily to the commands of the president, and would be bound to go where sent. In times of peace it is planned that such militia organizations would be drilled by and under the inspection and command of officers detailed for the purpose from the regular army. At least once a year they would be brought together in camps conveniently located, and drilled by regiments and divisions. Thus there would be created a militia auxiliary of properly armed and equipped troops who could be called out by the president on short notice for an emergency. There would be no delay or confusion such as now arises from the traditional theory that each state is an independent political entity and that the state governor must tender the services of the militia before the fedar government acquires any authority over them.

The plan outlined will be put into the form of a bill which will be urged in the coming session of congress.

WOMAN BECOMES INSANE.

She Imagined a Conspiracy to Attack Her.

Atlanta, Ga., June 12.—Miss J. C. Augustine, a well-known young lady of New Orleans, whose brother is a member of the staff of the Picayune, was taken suddenly and violently insane on the Southern vestibule just out of Washington, and is now here at the Aragon hotel in charge of Dr. W. C. Jarnagin. The case is a most extraordinary one.

Miss Augustine teaches school in a Philadelphia suburb, and left there apparently in the best of health. Hardly had the train left Washington when she suddenly developed violent insanity, shrieking and fighting those who attempted to quiet her. By the time Charlotte had been reached she was raving, and the conductor of the Pullman had her taken to a stateroom and locked in with a stewardess, placed on the train at Charlotte by the Southern superintendent.

Miss Augustine labored under the hallucination that there was a conspiracy to attack her, and made the most desperate attempts to throw herself from the train. On arriving in Atlanta the train was met by Dr. Jarnagin, one of the road's surgeons. Every effort was made to get Miss Augustine into a hospital, but admittance was refused, no room being alleged.

At her request she was taken to a service at the Roman Catholic church, but so violent was she and so great the sensation caused that out of pity for her the officials had her taken back to the depot. Finally the road succeeded in securing quarters for her at the Aragon hotel, where she is now receiving the best attention.

On the way to the Aragon Miss Augustine thrice attempted to leap from the cab, but was forcibly restrained. The Atlanta and Westpoint railroad refused to carry her on to New Orleans unless under charge of some one, and her brother will arrive in the morning to take her home.

SNAPS HIS FINGERS

Will Provide East End With Satisfactory Car Service.

Alderman Bertrand Fails to Bluff Street Railway Magnate.

The white-winged dove of peace is at last hovering over the management of the street railway company and the West Superior administration and the people of Old Superior are finally able to sleep nights again without fear that the company will slip in a single track while they are slumbering.

Yesterday afternoon Thomas Lowry met the city officials and a large number of the prominent people of Old Superior at the Euclid hotel. James Bardon was chairman of the meeting and stated the object as being to find out what Mr. Lowry proposes to do in the way of improving the East End line.

Several of the Old Superior citizens objected strongly to a single track system. Alderman Bertrand accused the street car company of not keeping faith in former promises made as to improvements on L avenue after the Omaha company had raised its grade crossing several inches to permit it. He said that the company had agreed to fill in the K street bridge, the city to put in a culvert, but that this had not been done. Alderman Newburg declared that the workingmen needed a waiting room at the Belknap-Tower transfer point.

Some of the East End citizens who talked said that any alderman not in favor of a double track to the East End would be put aside at the next election.

After listening to all the argument, Mr. Lowry said in part: "There is no money in either the Duluth or Superior system taken alone. I intend to take the two sections together and try to build up both cities through them. The service has been bad for years, and we are doing all we can to better it. I think a single track would be eminently satisfactory. We have such a line in use at White Bear Lake and tremendous crowds of people are carried over it every day. In regard to the L avenue matter I will put in double tracks there and will do the same for the whole distance in two years. Further, the K street bridge will be filled in."

Mr. Lowry said that with double gauge tracks the East End cars would run down Tower avenue to Third street. The car line across the Nemadji could not be constructed owing to the condition of the bridge.

There was just one instance when any degree of ligiit was manifested at the meeting. That occurred when Alderman Bertrand began to question Mr. Lowry rather sharply.

He asked concerning the taxes of the company, saying the check for but half the amount of the taxes was at the city hall.

Mr. Lowly replied: "The company will pay its taxes; there will be no trouble about that."

"Will the new track inerease the speed of the cars?"

"Yes, a ten minute service can be secured with the same number of cars."

Alderman Bertrand: "The people are in earnest. We have a position in court."

"You say you have a standing in court? Have you investigated? Can you compel us to lay the track? If you do win the franchise case what are you going to get?" retorted Mr. Lowry quickly.

"We can secure the franchise."

"If you could, you would only hamper the city. As for the suit," with a snap of the fingers, "I don't care that for it. We will do what is fair."

Alderman Bertrand: "The city must protect itself."

Mr. Lowry: "I will make an absolute agreement to build the double broad gauge track by the end of two years, and guarantee satisfaction in the meantime."

The following resolution was then adopted unanimously and the meeting adjourned: "It is the sense of this meeting that if the street car company will enter into a contract with the proper city authorities whereby they agree to put in and operate a double standard gauge track from Tower avenue along the present route to the court house at the East End by Nov. 1, 1902, provided that a single standard gauge track be built this year between said points, that then our aldermen as far as we are concerned are authorized to enter into a compromise of the present controversy between the city and company."

At the council meeting last evening the mayor appointed a committee to settle differences with the street railway company, and it is likely that annulment proceedings regarding the franchise will be stopped and the work commenced immediately on the East End line.

THE SCHOOL CLOSING.

Class Exercises at the High School.

The annual class day exercises will be held at the High chool this evening. The class which graduates this year is an unusually large and able one. The program for the evening will consist of the president's address, the class oration, the class prophecy, the class history and last will and testamennt. The music for the occasion will be furnished by the students assisted by Flaaten's orchestra, which has been engaged for both class night and commencement exercises, which are to be held on Friday evening. All tickets for these exercises are distributed gratis, most of them being given to the members of the graduating class for distribution among their friends and relatives, a number, however, have been placed in the hands of Mr. Brockelhurst for the accommodation of the general public. They may be had of him at the office of the superintendent at the High School building.

Eczema

Some people call it tetter, milk crust or salt rheum.

The suffering from it is sometimes intense; local applications are resorted to—they mitigate, but cannot cure.

It proceeds from humors inherited or acquired and persists until these have been removed.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

positively removes them, has radically and permanently cured the worst cases, and is without an equal for all cutaneous eruptions.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best cathartic. Price 25 cents.

NEW SYSTEM.

Counter Weight Planned For the Incline Railway Line.

The street railway company will put in a counter weight system on the Incline and renew the service to the top of the hill. This is the system that President Goodrich said would probably be adopted, in an interview with The Herald a number of days ago. W. H. Bronson, an engineer from the East has been here investigating and has recommended the counterweight proposition.

Electric motors will be used to run the cars and counterweight instead of steam. The cars will have the most improved safety brakes and will be fitted up to a greater degree of comfort than the old cars, and will be designed to carry such heavy loads.

AMUSEMENTS.

"SAG HARBOR."

Hernes' last play, and from all accounts, his very best effort, in a long and brilliant career that gave to the stage such a list of successes as "Hearts of Oak," "Margaret Fleming," "Rev. Griffith Davenport," "Shore Acres," "Minute Men," etc., is announced at the Lyceum for two nights, next Monday and Tuesday, when Duluth theater-goers will have their first opportunity to see "Sag Harbor." This play enjoyed a run of three months in New York this season. Allan Dale among other things said of it:

"In addition to this we may say that these really marvelous specimens of the scene painters' art were painstakingly drawn from the actual scenes about Sag Harbor on the lovely Long Island Sound, and the whole scheme of setting for this play was carried through with a faithful devotion to the highest art results and at enormous cost. A more perfect equipment in the way of scenes, properties and appointments has never been accorded to any play in our generation."

SIXTH AVENUE THEATER.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather last evening another large and appreciative audience greeted the Myrkle-Harder company at the Sixth Avenue Theater in its second appearance in "The Princess of Patches." Last night the piece moved nicely and the work throughout the performance was received with well-merited recognition. Miss Myrkle, as Selma Silverthorne, with her pretty ways, walked into the hearts of her audience before the curtain went down on the first act. The specialties between acts are novel and up-to-date, and do away with the usual long waits. The illustrated songs and moving pictures are particularly good. Tonight will be presented "For His Sister's Sake," together with an entire change of specialties and new scenery throughout.

AT CASS LAKE

The Baseball Team Is to Be Greatly Strengthened.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The management of the Cass Lake baseball team is reaching out for several new players with which to strengthen the local team. Negotiations are now pending whereby it is hoped that a new pitcher, a first baseman and two fielders will be secured. Arthur Ludwig, the captain of the team, will do the catching, the experience of importing a catcher to support Figgemier in the game with Grand Forks having shown that the imported men are not as good as Ludwig. It is the intention of the management of the local team to secure a strong team and games will be played every Sunday with outside organizations.

W. A. Edwards, of Duluth, arrived in Cass Lake on Sunday, accompanied by his wife. They will visit here for several days, being the guests of H. F. Young and wife.

Dr. Rodwell, official physician for the Cass Lake Indians, has gone to the Red Lake agency to assist Dr. Snyder in attending to several cases of small pox, which is prevalent among the Red Lake Indians.

HIS LIFE SAVED

By Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"I am sure that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at one time saved my life," says A. E. Lafalette, of Gregory Landing, Clark county, Missouri. "I was in such bad shape that the doctors said I could not live. When I was at the lowest ebb, one of my neighbors brought in a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and I took it and got instant relief. I soon got up and around. That was nine years ago and I am still in good health. Since then that medicine has always been in my house and always will be. It is the best on earth." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

This week we have been opening out some new summer gloves. We are pretty certain they will go with a rush tomorrow after considering how reasonably we have priced them.

At 75c a pair Thursday—50 dozen two-clasp French kid gloves, in whites and colors that look well, fit well, and are warranted to wear well.

At 25c a pair Thursday—50 dozen new black taffeta silk gloves, two-clasp—the best glove we have seen this season for the price.

At 50c a pair Thursday—50 dozen of the well known "P. & W." silk gloves, just from the makers. Two-clasp—they bear our name—they must be superior.

Handkerchiefs.

New sacred song.

"O, Shining Star of Bethlehem." A new sacred song. There is scarcely a metropolitan church in America that has not been favored with the singing of this beautiful song. There are very few songs that ever meet with such instantaneous and widespread attention. A copy should be on every piano in Duluth—Thursday's price is but ---- 15c

Hosiery, underwear.

We believe we are more particular than anybody else when it comes to underwear and hosiery. We turn down lots of manufacturers who easily sell elsewhere. It isn't cheapness that catches your eye. Quality is of the first importance, but the shape and finish of a garment is of equal moment—the fit is determined by the way they are made. If they are not knitted, shaped and finished to meet our ideas they don't come to this store. This applies to every garment, from the cheapest to the best. Specials advertised for tomorrow are garments distinctly superior in fit, finish and quality.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth, June 12.—Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. (Central time), June 12.—Showers fell over Florida, the lake region, northern Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Montana, Washington, Oregon and northwest Canada, heavy at Calgary, Havre, Williston, Swift Current and North Platte. Snow was falling this morning at Calgary. Cool weather prevails in Rocky Mountain districts and over western Lake Superior, with light frosts at Helena and Lander. Temperatures continue high over the lower Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio valleys, southern lake region, gulf and Atlantic states. The barometer is lowest near Bismarck and high in eastern states and extreme northwest Canada. The winds in the lake region are light and rather variable, with fog on Lake Superior and portions of northern Michigan.

Local forecast for twenty-four hours from 7 p. m. (Central time) today: Duluth, West Superior and vicinity: Showers tonight and Thursday. Probably warmer Thursday afternoon or night. Fresh and brisk northeasterly to southerly winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON, Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, June 12.—Forecast until 8 a. m. tomorrow: Wisconsin—Generally fair tonight and Thursday except probably local thunderstorms. Minnesota: Local showers and thunderstorms tonight and Thursday. North and South Dakota: Showers tonight and Thursday. Upper Lakes: Fresh and brisk southeast to south on Michigan and Huron, southeast to east winds on Superior. Unsettled with local showers and thunderstorms.

The Mason and Dixon Line.

The famous Mason and Dixon line is being relocated, an operation of interest to every student in the country. The eastern part was originally marked by stone monuments at equal distances of one mile. Many of these stones have been removed or destroyed. The western portion, owing to the great difficulty in traversing the region was marked by wooden posts, cut on the spot and secured in place by mounds of earth or stone piled around them. These posts have disappeared, but some of the monuments remain. Many have been destroyed by cultivation of the ground. It is believed, though, that enough of them can be recovered to enable a relocation of the boundary with ease. The Pennsylvania legislature has appropriated $7000 and the Maryland legislature $5000 for this work of relocation. The new markers will be of iron instead of stone. Vandals are responsible for the removal of the old marks, but the new ones will be so firmly placed that there will be but little danger from their work.

Wet Weather and Suidides.

The remarkable increase of suicides in New York city during the past few weeks has attracted considerable attention among scientists and students in general. Within the brief period of two weeks there were thirteen suicides. Dr. Hartung, the coroner's physician of that city, attributed the cause of the increase to the incessant wet weather which has prevailed there. He says: 'If you examine the occupations of the cases reported at the coroner's office, you will find that a large majority of them belong to the laboring classes. The enormous amount of rain which has fallen during the past few weeks has had much to do with making the workmen lose hope. The fact that bricklayers, hod carriers and masons could not get any work to speak of during the continuance of the wet weather has caused a despondency or melancholia, which seemed impossible for them to overcome. I also think that the depression in business resulting from the unfavorable conditions of things created by such a prolonged period of sunless and overcast days, has had a tendency to increase the cases of self-destruction. Take for instance, the number of persons who have invested their savings in seaside resorts, expecting thereby to improve their financial condition and who have been wofully disappointed in seeing pass day after day in which gloomy skies and pouring rain have been the leading meteorological conditions. Of course, the outdoor season being necessarily limited and the rain drowning all manner of profit, the outlook to persons having their capital—or, you might say, their all—invested in such enterprises, has been discouraging in the extreme. I think also, that some of the well-to-do class of people who have put their money into Wall street, hoping to reap abundant harvests thereby, and whose realizations have not equalled their expectations, have contributed to the list of increasing suicide cases in this section of the country. Carbolic acid and gas have been the favorite methods by which persons weary of the world have shuffled off this mortal coil. A great many of the suicides have been due to spasmodic insanity, and there have been a number of cases for which no reasonable explanation could be offered. There have been cases within my observation of late about which there has been considerable doubt, a doubt that will probably remain forever, for so far as is known the only persons that can explain the motives that prompted them to take their lives were the unfortunate victims themselves. There have been among some of the suicides reported men who had troubles of their own which they did not want the world to know, and who, as a consequence, have made their exits from this bustling planet without leaving the slightest evidence behind them to tell their reasons for going." There is no question but what wet miserable weather has its effect on different people, and with the morbid minded it is no wonder that it leads to thoughts of suicide. There is nothing like bright sunlight as a health rest and a health-keeper.

MINNESOTA'S GREATNESS.

"Minnesota, 'the Bread and Butter States' of the Union," is the title of a handsomely printed and evidently carefully prepared pamphlet issued by the Minnesota commissioners for distribution at the Pan-American exposition. It presents a sketch of the wonderful progress of Minnesota within the past half century, a review of its magnificent resources and a glance at the promises for its future. Within the fifty pages of this pamphlet are compressed a vast amount of information regarding the state—facts and figures, with only statistical information sufficient to attest the truth of the assertions made, that will prove a surprise even to many residents of the state who possess but a meager idea of the great development that has been taking place and which is still proceeding at rapid pace.

For instance, it is pointed out that thirty years ago the population of the six wheat-producing states in the Minnesota Red River valley was 451. Ten years later it was 21,123, and in another ten years it had reached 71,190. Now it is over 100,000. Twenty years ago these counties raised 1,500,000 bushels of wheat. Now they raise 10,000,000 bushels on the average in a year. This is but a small section of the state. At the Falls of St. Anthony there are twenty-five of the largest flour mills in the world, with an annual combined capacity for grinding 65,000,000 bushels of wheat, and at Duluth and other points there are more mills with large capacity capable of furnishing bread to meet the wants of several populous states. And we also produce the butter, the dairy industry having grown with giant strides. Its greatest progress dates from 1893, when the first co-operative creamery was started. Now there are 582 creameries and sixty cheese factories in successful operation, and the total number of cows is 610,496, and the quality as well as the quantity of Minnesota's butter has improved so that it has led all the states of the Union in repeated competitions. The creameries of Minnesota last year made more than 60,000,000 pounds of butter and the value of the output is estimated at $14,000,000.

Great in mineral resources also is Minnesota. It is the greatest iron ore producing state in the Union. This year, it is stated, it is producing enough ore to make all the steel that England smelts, and the trains that are this summer carrying its ore to Lake Superior at Duluth and neighboring ports would make a string of freight cars that would reach in a continuous line from Buffalo to Spokane, from Buffalo to Cuban ports, or almost from New York to Liverpool. This year $10,000,000 is being spent among the mines for labor and nearly $9,000,00 more for carrying the ore to Lake Superior. These are but a few of the many interesting facts that are contained in this excellent pamphlet and which will bear frequent repetition. The visitor to the Buffalo exposition who reads one of these pamphlets cannot fail to be impressed by Minnesota's rapid progress and boundless wealth of resources.

A WILD AND WOOLY TALE.

A wild and wooly tale comes from Washington, inspired no doubt by the administration, to the effect that if the Pan-American congress should fail it will be by reason of unwarranted European interference. The story alleges that German interests are urging Argentina and Brazil to refuse to go into the convention and, at the same time, offering sympathy and comfort to Peru and Bolivia in their quarrel with Chile, the object being to create a deadlock among the South American states on the subject of arbitration, thus defeating the scheme of the United States to secure the united good will of the Latin republics.

This story of European diplomacy is all too thin. It is told to cloak a grievious error made by the state department in the inception of the project. Chile objected to joining the convention unless the subject of arbitration was to be left out entirely, or confined to cases to arise in the future. To make themselves solid with Chile, the representatives of the United States assumed to guarantee that concession. Here Mr. Hay fell down. The one question agitating South America now is the Chile-Peru dispute over the provinces of Arica and Tacna. Not only are Peru and Bolivia interested, but Argentina and all the others have an indirect interest in forcing Chile to live up to her treaties. The United States lost caste with Chile by its action in the Peru-Chilean war, and now by a blundering attempt to curry favor with these South American Yankees the state department has lost caste with the balance. It was, in the language of Metternich, "worse than a crime, it was a blunder." The attempt to lay the blame for the possible failure of the congress at the door of German influence will deceive no one who is acquainted with the progress of the negotiations and the forces back of the disputes.

Apropos of this discussion, it might be remarked that should the Pan-American congress chance to meet, as projected, there will be submitted for consideration a plan for a high court of arbitration, to be composed of the representatives of each South American republic in Washington. Three of these, to be selected by ballot or by lot, will compose the court proper to hear evidence and determine upon a judgment. From this court an appeal will lie to the whole body sitting as a supreme court of arbitration, whose judgment shall be final. Such a court would do much to unite the American nations, both commercially and politically. There seems to be no reason why this scheme in the interests of peace and prosperity should not be consummated.

THIRD TERM FOOLERY.

A lot of tommyrot has been indulged in by the senile members of the Republican gang to make themselves solid with the president. The great Chauncey, of New York, deemed it good politics, after having been turned down by the president in the matter of the assistant secretary of war, to do unto McKinley as he would that McKinley should do unto him. So he advocated McKinley for a third term. By this he thought he would gain McKinley's good will, advertise himself and dispose of McKinley, should that astute politician happen to act upon his advice. Not to be outdone by the joker, that old time-serving, hypocritical sycophant, Grosvenor, of Ohio, took up the strain, and declared that this unwritten law, to which every president has bowed with the exception of Grant, is a myth, and that fear of defeat alone deferred Washington from trying for a third term.

"Verily I say unto you they have their reward." The president has responded to these fool-friends with a clear denial of any purpose on his part to be a candidate for a third term, and more, that he would not accept a nomination were it tendered him. This shows that McKinley has not lost his head in the imperialistic atmosphere where he lives, moves and has his being. They have been able to drive him from his "plain duty," balk his well digested plans of "reciprocal trade," make a gibe of his "benevolent assimilation," cause him to retreat from pillar to post, but The Herald doubts their ability to compel him to sacrifice himself upon the altar of their personal ambition by accepting a nomination for a third term. McKinley is in much the same position occupied by Douglas entertaining Marmion. "My castles are my king's alone, from turret to foundation stone, but the hand of Douglas is his own." The one tarnish upon the good sense of Gen. Grant is that bit of ambition which led him to attempt, at the behest of his friends, a third term. No president will try the experiment again.

THE STORY OF DULUTH.

One of the most interesting and altogether charming sketches of the beauties, resources, legends and history of Duluth has been written and published in pamphlet form by Mrs. Jane W. Guthrie, formerly of this city and now residing at Chillicothe, Ohio. The dainty little brochure is handsomely illustrated, and the story of Duluth is told in Mrs. Guthrie's most interesting style, as these closing paragraphs will testify:

"Nothing could be more beautiful than this land in summer; no more subtle witchery than the clear, bracing, stimulating air; the soft, ever blowing summer winds which whisper delightful romances in the ear, and charm with suggestions of the past and promises of the future; the hoary old hills that veil themselves in a violet glow and draw the imagination to them with whispers of secrets hidden in their depths; the lake which shows by turn its roughest and gentlest sides, the long twilights of the North bringing on the night. The autumns are glorious with bewildering lights and shadows, and when winter settles down and with an iron hand holds the lake and the bay, and all the little streams in his iron grasp, and snow like the flood covers the land, life is just as vivid and eager as in summer. Sport and amusement assume an entirely different aspect from that of other cities. Snow-shoeing, skiing, curling, ice boating and coasting are features of an exhilarating and fascinating outdoor life.

"Romance whispers in the ear, avarice grasps and gloats over her bags of mineral wealth, everywhere is the eager, restless stir of the young West; but, like an insistent, recurring note in a melody is that sense of mystery, a brooding past which dominates the present in an inexplicable manner. The great painted rocks that gaze back at one with the stoical calm of the former sons of the soil are but a part of it. They are hoary with years and red as though the blood of savage warfare had dyed them with its crimson flow, but their immutability is that of the Sphynx, it both baffles and woos. There is ever the thought of change though in this land of contrasts. The short summer hurries by like an exquisite flower quickly blown. The mirage which trembles over the water is vague, impalpable, fleeting.

"As a part of the life today, Duluth is fresh, new and modern; as of yesterday, it is subtle, mysterious, haunting. One is constantly watching for the pageantry of an olden France, her heroic figures, her grand old hymns with the 'black gowns' the dominant note in the harmony; or, listening for the echo of the voyageur's song, for the call of the boatman, for the wail of the fabled Mesaba who guarded the treasures of the earth."

It is not strange that the notable increase in exportation of American manufactures of Europe should have caused something like a panic in certain circles in Europe. From 1893 to the first year of the new century our exports to Europe increased 57 per cent. In Asia and Oceanica, for the same period, the gain was 291 per cent, even greater than that noted for Africa, where the increase in our exports was 231 per cent. The vogue of American-made machinery has become world-wide.

Ex-Governor Jones, of Alabama, protests against the plans of the state constitutional convention to effect an unconditional disfranchisement of the blacks. It would not be just, he urges, and it would certainly bring the state into conflict sooner or later with the federal authority. His plan is to impose a small property qualification for the suffrage, and to permit persons not possessed of property, but otherwise qualified, to qualify themselves fully by making a small contribution each year to some public purpose. It is hardly likely, however, that the governor's plan will be more acceptable than others that contemplate placing the two races under some degree of uniformity of condition.

Dr. Gilman of Johns Hopkins University makes a timely protest against too much reading with too little thinking. He feels that "too much Carnegie" may do harm. The proportion of thinkers to readers is always too small. Yet it is better to encourage reading than have neither reading nor thinking.

As Italy's new royal baby materializes, the nurse, besides receiving liberal pay and a pension, will get $2000 with the baby's first tooth, another $2000 when the child is able to speak and a similar sum when the little princess walks unsupported. The nurse is happy, even if it is a girl.

In the bottom of a strawberry box opened at Hutchinson, Kas., the other day there was found written: "I am Cora Marsh, aged 16, of Logan, Mo. Never been kissed." But the bottoms of strawberry boxes cannot always be trusted, says the Washington Post.

The South Side club of Chicago, comprised of women, have voted to admit men, as "associate' members, privileged to pay club dues and help in the entertainment, but not to hold office. In other words, they want the men to foot the bills.

William E. Curtis, writing of the prosperity of the South, speaks of a man who made $250,000 in a few years raising asparagus on a truck farm in the vicinity of Charleston. It is a good story, even if it does sound big.

The farming industry is keeping pace with manufacturing. The census of 1890 showed 4,564,691 farms under cultivation, and that of 1900 shows 5,700,000—an increase of 1,100,000 farms.

The New York Yacht club has so far failed to devise even a halfdecent pretext for barring the Independence from the coming international races.

IS SUPERIOR ASLEEP?

Superior Telegram: Duluth is advertising extensively and in every way possible seeking to take advantage of the unusual opportunities now offered. Her people are certainly alive to the situation and are securing valuable results. The proper course for Superior people to pursue is to keep still, do nothing, and after Duluth has secured a lot of good things, then in lugubrious terms to lament Duluth's selfishness and proneness to appropriate all in sight. Central Park has money to take the library building from the West End and the West End has ample funds to prevent the library from going east of Hammond avenue, but no going east of Hammond avenue, but no one has a cent for the good of the whole city. Money can be secured for various celebrations, but for things that will be of lasting good to the city there is a great famine in the land.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Next to the girl's giggle the most brainless thing is generally a vacuum.

When a man gets a divorce from his wife it is generally because she has made him get one from too many other things.

If you make a man mad enough, he will always tell the truth; if you make a woman truthful enough, she will always get mad.

Still In the People's Hands.

Indianapolis News: There can be no empire in the United States and no great change in our institutions without the consent of the American people. The matter is as much in their hands as it ever was.

A Change For the Better.

Indianapolis Journal: Just now government transports between the United States and the Philippines come this way loaded with returning volunteers and go back loaded with school teachers It is a significant movement.

Down to Hardpan.

Portland Oregonian: The "Klondike rush" this spring is a quite orderly movement. The business is being handled by regular transportation lines, and even Seattle can tell of no more than 600 people waiting there to go north.

Time Works Wonders.

Boston Transcript: If Gen. Lee could have looked ahead on Appomattox day and seen himself occupying a niche in the Hall of Fame on equal terms with his captor he would never have ceased to wonder at the mutability of human events.

Criticism of Little Avail.

Baltimore American: The American locomotive is criticised by individual Englishmen, but such criticism hurts little so long as the English government testifies to the superiority of our product by buying them in preference to engines of English producing.

A Graceful Act.

Indianapolis Journal: It was a graceful act on the part of the president to ask for the appointment of a one-legged veteran, a member of his regiment in the civil war, to a government position in San Francisco, and it is safe to predict that his request will be complied with. When he remarked that this was the first appointment he had asked for he probably did not mean to imply that he was entirely without influence in such matters.

Forestalled the Supreme Court.

Detroit Free Press: "It is our plain duty to abolish all customs duties between Porto Rico and the United States," were the memorable words of President McKinley. But he reversed himself before the supreme court did.

Repeating the Dose.

Denver News: The administration has decided that Cuba did not swallow that Platt amendment pill right. She will therefore be requested to cough it up and swallow it over again.

SUMMER MERRIMENT.

Yonkers Statesman: Mrs. Crimsonbeak—Don't you think you had better stop at that employment bureau on your way home and see about a girl?

Mr. Crimsonbeak—What's the use? All bureaus are alike—you can never find anything you want in them.

Chicago Tribune: Mr. Hammer—Ah, there is Miss Nail. I'll make a hit in that quarter.

Philadelphia Times: "What! Engage a young doctor who has just graduated?"

"Certainly. He can say what few older physicians can't. He's never yet lost a patient."

Detroit Free Press: "Here's a distinguished scientist who says that after all there is nothing in germs."

"Nothing in germs? Nonsense! Why look how much the doctors have made out of them."

Political economist — Certainly. You wouldn't have a man stoop to earn a dollar, would you?

Chicago Tribune: "Maria, what's the matter with this coffee? It's beastly.

"I made it out of that substitute for tobacco you've allowed to lie about the house so long. I wanted to find out if it wasn't good for something."

Washington Star: "Aren't you afraid that Filipino prisoner of yours will escape?"

Philadelphia Press: "Talk about hard luck," said Jimmy Dores. "I broke into a lawyer's house last night an' the lawyer got the drop on me an' advised me to git out."

"Huh!" exclaimed the other crook, "you got off dead easy."

"Dat ain't all of it. Den he charged me $10 for his advice."

THE MAGIC OF EDUCATION.

Let that man gloat, whose ill-considered plea
Calls life a hollow mockery—a bead
Within the whirlpool of a grasping greed—
A worn bark drifting on a luckless sea—
A rose without a rose's liberty—
A blind man's journey, with no guide to lead—
A weary, passing show for none to heed—
Let that man gloat! Then, let him come to me!

I'll tell him that, beyond his narrow ken,
There blooms a field whose glories are so rare
That all the prizes won by living men
Are infinitely vague—beneath compare,
I'll tell him, but to touch Minerva's truth,
Would fire a life whose limitless domain
Cannot be bordered by the realms of death.

—ROBERT MACKAY, in Success.

They Need the Money.

Philadelphia Ledger: In unanimously declining to accept the proposition of the United States government that the Chinese indemnity be reduced from $337,000,000 to $200,000,000 the European powers probably argue that they need the money, while the United States is rich enough without it. The Americans are not in China for loot.

Will Scotland Let Go?

Cleveland Plain Dealer: There seems to be a general disposition among the Scotchmen who are to share Mr. Carnegie's bequests to cry out indignantly against accepting the glittering millions. But unless Sandy has lost his canny disposition, Scotland will never permit the mighty pile so freely tendered to return to America.

Trouble For Tillman.

Chicago Chronicle: Ex-Senator Tillman is having some difficulty in explaining his resignation to the satisfaction of a people who are wary of politics and want a rest. He had just been re-elected for six years and he resigned for the avowed purpose of being re-elected again. If this isn't tomfoolery what is it?

No Cause For Worry.

Baltimore American: Now that he is in Washington Hon. Perry S. Heath says he did not mean to start o Hanna presidential boom when he was saying so much in London. He need not worry; he did not.

Reducing the Prayer Test.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: King Edward has dispensed with the services of twenty-four of the court chaplains. Only twelve now remain to look after the spiritual welfare of the monarch's household. It is believed that these can do it, though they may have to work overtime.

A Shock to Youth's Ardor.

Baltimore American: A young cadet, writing home from West Point, says he is "sickened and disgusted with the unfairness of the whole proceedings," meaning the proceedings to repress hazing. That is exactly the condition of the whole country reversed. The public is sickened and disgusted with the unfairness of the young men it sends to be educated and trained for officers, but who persist in demanding the privilege of being bullies and of regulating the discipline of the military academy to suit their bullying propensities.

May He Prosper.

Sherburne County Star-News (Rep.): Charles A. Towne has shaken the dust of Minnesota from his feet and gone to New York city to live. There are a good many men Minnesota could spare better than Towne, notwithstanding some of his ultra views on political questions. He is certainly a brilliant young man, and has many friends who will gladly hear of a prosperous career for him.

Independent of Them Then.

St. Louis Republic: Maybe Chauncey Depew reasons that of Mr. McKinley can be elected to a third term he won't need to consult the people as to a fourth.

A Memory That Lives.

New York World: A wreath from the Confederacy—an orator from China! Grant's memory does indeed live.

Gives Them Carte-Blanche.

Atlanta Journal: The Ohio papers appear to regard the supreme court's decision as merely a recognition of the rights of its two most distinguished citizens, McKinley and Foraker, to do as they please with things.

Gone Glimmering.

Memphis Commercial-Appeal: The Beveridge boom has evidently escaped into the universal gas.

Jumped Back Again.

New York World: Senator McLaurin is the "wondrous wise" man who scratched his eyes in again.

Airing the Infants.

DAILY STORY.

The Wife of a Savant.

BY DAVID H. FARRINGTON.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller.)

Sir Rufus Dawson, bachelor, etemologist, geologist, historian and astronomer, was a wise and profound man. He came from an honored family and he was rich. He had spent thirty years of his life in study, research and experiment, and the savants of Europe honored him almost above all other men. He was never seen in society, and not one person in a thousand knew his identity when he wandered about by day. There were days and days at a time when he did not speak to or look at his old housekeeper, and when asked a direct question he woke up as if from a dream.

At the age of fifty-two Sir Rufus set out from London one day to study some bit of Roman architecture which had just been uncovered at a point a hundred miles away. On the train he met a young woman who had lost or been robbed of her purse and ticket, and was consequently in distress. She didn't exactly appeal to him, but he roused up, came back to life, as it were, and took notice of her. It was as if he had discovered a new star in the heavens—a new character in history—a new bug flying about the meadows. She was a governess and alone in the world, and Sir Rufus won her gratitude by his paternal kindness. The new "specimen" interested him. He did not neglect any of his other studies, nor did he lose any sleep over it, but within four months he married the girl.

A week after the wedding Sir Rufus seemed to have forgotten that he had been married. In three months his wife had her own circle of friends, went her own way without regard to him, and had one halted him on the street and asked him if he was a married man it would have taken him a great many seconds to think it over and make answer. As to his wife's given name, it would have cost him half an hour's thought to bring it to mind, and then a doubt might have existed. Sir Rufus had been married a year and a half when his wife eloped with a scapegrace of nobility. She had fallen into the toils and there had been much gossip, but the husband had heard never a word. He might not have missed her for a week except for the housekeeper, who still waited upon him in his old rooms. She was as peculiar in her ways as he was in his. One day, as he stood at a table drinking a cup of cocoa and watching the struggles of a butterfly he had pinned to the board, she walked in on him and said:

"Well, Sir Rufus, what are you going to do about it?"

"Eh? Eh?" he queried without looking up. Why, I shall put it on a card and label it, of course."

"I am speaking of your wife."

"Oh, well?"

"She has run away."

"Eh? Run away?"

"Yes, she has eloped with young Bennett, and what are you going to do about it?"

"Bennett? Bennett?" mused Sir Rufus, as he continued to slp at his cocoa, "I don't believe I ever met him."

Sir Rufus received calls from two scientific men who condoled and advised with him, but he did not seem greatly interested. He took a week to think it over, and then without a word to any one he suddenly disappeared. He had said very little regarding the conduct of his wife, and that little was to express his surprise that she had taken such a step when he would have given her her liberty for the asking. When he disappeared from London he turned up in Switzerland. Few husbands in his situation would have set out to study the glaciers, but that was exactly what took Sir Rufus to Switzerland. He had made no effort to trace the runaways. After the first day he had avoided reading the papers. It was as if he had discovered a new species of insect and lost it before it was properly labeled—something to deplore for the moment, but nothing to worry about. He had been in Switzerland a month, when one day on a mountain trail he came face to face with the couple. There was no retreat for either party. As the erring wife sunk down on a stone and her consort sought to pull himself together, Sir Rufus looked them over in a vacant way and was a full minute in realizing the situation. Then he musingly observed:

"I see—I see. It is my lost wife and the young man called Bennett. I did not know you were in Switzerland, Mary—I believe that is your name. You did very wrong—very wrong."

The wife did not protest or appeal, and the man had nothing to say.

"I think I ought to do something," continued the husband as he looked across the valley at another mountain peak—"I think I had. I have been a very busy man, and I was never married before or had a wife elope, and therefore I did not exactly know what to do in the case. As I said, however, I have a feeling that something ought to be done."

There were only the three of them on the trail, and there was something far more alarming in his absent indecision than there would have been in another man's bluster. The wife looked at him with a shame in her face and alarm in her eyes, and young Bennett leaned against a rock and wondered what manner of man was before him.

"It—it was a mistake—our getting married," said Sir Rufus, as he finally looked his wife full in the face.

She nodded her head in reply.

"Yes, it was, but you owed me a duty just the same. This young man with you—this Bennett—is he to marry you later on?"

A faint smile appeared on Bennett's face, while the wife cast her eyes on the ground.

"Um! Just so! That makes a difference, of course. Something should be done, but what?"

"I hold myself ready to give you satisfaction," said Bennett, opening his mouth for the first time.

"That is better—that is better," replied Sir Rufus, after a long look at him. "Yes, I should have satisfaction, and it is quite honorable in you to offer it. Mary, you may proceed on your way to the village while I talk further with this person."

The woman rose up and tried to speak, but no words would come. The two men watched her out of sight behind a bend in the path, and then Sir Rufus took the young man's arm and walked him along and said:

"I did not know which way you and Mary had fled, and my meeting with you here was quite by accident—quite so. I was here on a question concerning the annual movement of the glaciers. Having crossed you, however, and believing that something should be done in the case—"

The woman made her way down to the hotel and to her room, and hours passed before any one began to wonder why the queer old man and the dashing young fellow had not followed after. Some one finally said that there had been a landslide up the path, but it was late at night before a band of men with torches went up to investigate. There had been a slide covering several hundred feet deep. It was at the bottom of the ravine that the two bodies were found next day, and the woman at the hotel was loverless and a widow. The simple folks pointed their fingers and whispered to each other.

"She sits and stares and shudders, and there are no tears in her eyes, and perhaps she wishes that she, too, had been in the path of the avalanche."

Chance For a Comrade.

Washington Post: If the Grand Army of the Republic will pull together and follow the advice of the Hon. Perry Heath, it may succeed in landing one of its most distinguished comrades in the White House.

Handy Man to Have.

Baltimore Star: Attorney General Knox evidently knows his business. He is ready at a moment's notice to turn out any sort of an opinion to suit the purposes of the administration.

And It's a Huge One.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: When asked about his presidential aspirations, Benjamin C. Odell simply points to his woodpile.

SENSATION AND SERMON.

Brooklyn Eagle: Bishop Leonard, of Ohio, has declared against pulpit sensationalism. He says it has become unfashionable in some places to preach against sin and he reprehends "the vulgarities that are advertised along our streets at the church doors with the paint brush and brown wrapping paper," designed to catch the "empty-headed, the silly citizens." He declares, moreover, that people do not desire politics, civic questions, social themes, ethical theories "doled out to them on Sundays by gentlemen who know but little of what they are talking." Here the bishop may be wrong in spite of the little qualification at the end of his sentence. We do not. It is true, profit much from the discourse of men who do not know what they are talking about, but the modern clergyman must know what he is talking about. He must be a man and a citizen as well as a word. As to ethics, they interest more people today than do scriptural traditions, and after centuries of preaching that had no purpose except to explain the Bible—and did ever a book endure such an amount of contradictory explanation?—the people are glad to get down to something tangible; to come back to the moralities.

In decrying sensationalism the bishop has the indorsement of every right-thinking man and all women, for, needless to say they are right-thinking. The clergyman who takes for his text the last exploit in crime, the last horror in yellow journalism, the freshest scandal in society; the clergyman who gets up theater or music hall shows to illustrate his discourse; the clergyman who preaches with a partisan bias, is a man who is always under suspicion of insincerity. He seems to labor under a distrust of his own gifts, and to try to supplement them with matters of extraneous and dubious interest and value. Sensationalism is out of place in the pulpit, as it is out of place in the school and in the press, and the church that is degraded to it and by it is but the counterpart of the offensive newspaper.

But the church that never departs from mere doctrine, that assembles every Sunday to listen to discourses on variations in the reading of texts that affect the daily life and thought of mankind not one jot, that goes through set forms of worship with never a variation correspondent to variation in the fortunes in the body politic, is a narrow church, and the end of it is not far. It may indicate a weakness in humanity that it expects and prefers to hear the real and stirring facts of life set forth with eloquence and for a moral purpose, but it is a fact to reckon with. It is hard to conceive or concede the success, spiritual or otherwise, of the man who, when a great war is threatening, will mount into his pulpit, and, under the old-fashioned thirdly and fourthly, inquire whether the fiftieth verse of the seventeenth chapter of Ezekiel means what it seems to mean, or can be teased and coaxed into meaning something different, but wholly inconsequent. Dogmatism is out of date; creeds arouse only impatience; the pulpit must broaden, as the world broadens. Sensation, sentimentalism, extravagance of any sort, are out of place in a church, but the living soul of man has more than a single mode of expression, and the church must recognize that fact.

Harsh, But Profitable.

New York Evening Telegram: Asa Bushnell, former governor of Ohio, has posted in his business office for the benefit of the stenographers a notice to cut out "goo-goo eyes and attend to business." Sounds a bit harsh, but the spirit of the order might be profitably applied in many public departments.

Oppressive Obscurity.

Wanted, Improved Motormen.

Philadelphia Record: Recent trolley collisions involving the killing and maiming of passengers and the destruction of property tend to emphasize the necessity of safeguarding this method of travel by greater care in the selection of motormen. These employes cannot with safety either to the street car companies or to the public be selected at haphazard. They are burdened with such serious responsibilities that their competency and circumspection should be beyond question.

Jealousy In the Concert.

Philadelphia Ledger: The surmise that American capitalists would lend China the whole sum of $315,000,000 demanded for its indemnity is probably not correct, but the mere suspicion of such a thing has roused the antagonism of the other nations. It would be, apparently, an excellent thing for them, as they would get their money promptly and might then dismiss the affair as settled, but they do not seem inclined to settle it in that way. Jealousy of the new world power appears to be stronger with them than even the love of money.

Kitchener's Perilous Plight.

Philadelphia Ledger: The Boers have 26,000 men in the field, says their representative. And Kitchener has only 250,000; He must be reinforced at once.

Where He Is Concerned.

Baltimore American: Aguinaldo does not worry whether or not the constitution follows the flag, so long as he is permitted to follow the cook tent.

Two Striking Weapons.

Baltimore American: As to Mr. Tilman, he is remonstrating that in the hands of men entirely great the resignation is equal to the pitchfork.

To Top It Off.

Baltimore American: We trust that, to complete the harmonious arrangement of the affair, the Sampson medals will be made of brass.

A Lesson For the Kaiser.

Indianapolis Sentinel: While Albert Jehosaphat Beveridge is in Germany he will doubtless give his Imperial majesty, Wilhelm, a few points about how to run the universe.

Bargain Day In Transports.

Portland Oregonian: The transports that have been used by the government between New York and the West Indies will be sold at auction in July. The net proceeds realized from this sale will enable Uncle Sam to determine the exact amount of pure metal there was in some of the marine gold bricks which were palmed off on him when he was in the market for transport steamers.

Let Humanity Rejoice.

Kansas City Star: The New Jersey mosquito is being attacked by the government in the Hackensack meadows. Dr. Howard, entomologist of the department of agriculture, is leading the crusade. The Standard Ooil company is donating the oil in the interests of humanity. There would seem to be some chance for humanity when the Standard Oil trust becomes enlisted in its behalf.

RAISES A STORM

Edward Pugh's Success Not Received With Great Hilarity.

Reason Why J. O. Milne's Discharge Was Quickly Revoked.

The announcement made a few days ago that Edward Pugh is to be the member of the board of grain appeals, who will be appointed by Governor Van Sant, has brought a storm of disapproval from the opponents of Mr. Pugh that has hardly been equalled here in political circles in a long time. There would have been louder howl had Governor Van Sant seen fit to appoint William Getty surveyor general of logs and lumber a few months ago. There is no doubt that Mr. Pugh is to get the appointment for A. H. Smith, the other candidate, has received a letter from the governor stating that he regretted his ability to appoint him.

Mr. Smith had, without doubt, the largest petition that went to the governor since he assumed the office. In fact, it is a question if any governor ever received a larger one. Mr. Smith was extremely industrious in the circulation of his petitions and is known among grain men and farmers all over the Northwest and had no difficulty in getting their endorsements. It was merely a matter of getting the paper before them to sign and that feature was attended to. In addition to that the Duluth Board of Trade members held a special meeting and unanimously asked the governor for the appointment of Mr. Smith and sent a special communication to him with their request.

In addition that Mr. Smith had the support of the entire anti-Wilkeits faction, which includes G. Fred Stevens, W. C. Sargent and others. His political strength was quite as good as that which came to him in a business way. But he is turned down.

Within the past two or three days a great number of protests have gone to the governor and others are still to go. It is reported that an ultimatum is being prepared announcing to Governor Van Sant that the announcement of that appointment will mean war and that he need look for no further support to the men that have been behind him here in the past few months.

The men who are in opposition to Mr. Pugh and the faction which is credited with obtaining the governor's consent to favor him with the appointment say that Governor Van Sant has no reason to make any concessions to that element, claiming that the men in it have been his political opponents in the past and will continue to be. Said one of them yesterday:

"Governor Van Sant owed his nomination last summer to St. Louis and Ramsey counties and the very crowd that has been plugging for Pugh was at St. Paul last summer at convention time trying to defeat Van Sant. T. M. Pugh, who has secured the appointment was there for that purpose. What can Van Sant hope to get from them in the future? They do not want him and next year will be found working for another man. Governor Van Sant owes them no quarter whatever. He will gain nothing by giving it and he will lose a great deal for the men who are opposing it here will be left with very bitter feelings when that appointment is announced.

But the appointment will be announced nevertheless. It is regarded among the Smith supporters here as having been promised by Governor Van Sant to Representative Pugh at the time the latter lent his support to the killing of the bill taking the appointment of the members of this board from the hands of the governor and placing it in the hands of the members of the state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners.

There has been quite a little merriment among politicians at the way the board of railroad and warehouse commissioners quickly revoked the discharge of J. O. Milne from the weighing department at Duluth. J. B. Sutphin explained for the benefit of the commission that the announcement of the discharge was a mistake and that he was to be retained on the force. It was a mistake—a political one—the commission finally concluded after strong pressure had been brought to make the members see it. It was a clerical error and had been deliberately planned and executed but when the G. A. R. veterans took up the cudgels and Frank Searle, chairman of the Sixth district congressional committee peeled off his coat and went to St. Paul and put in his strong protest the board concluded that Mr. Milne had better be left.

The indignation of the old soldiers at the dropping of Mr. Milne was intense and they made it known in no uncertain way. Had he been an appointee of the Lind administration there would have been little said for it would have been regarded as one of the natural changes of politics but when he was left through the Lind administration and it remained for a Republican administration, to which party he belongs, to discharge him there was a great storm. Mr. Searle, as chairman of the congressional committee had considerable use of the services of Mr. Milne in the campaign and his sympathies were quickly enlisted.

There is also said to be a strong movement under way to obtain the revocation of the discharge of S. W. Higgins, whose case is similar to that of Mr. Milne except that he has not been on the force quite as long. He is a Republican who was allowed to serve through the Lind administration and is rewarded by being turned out now.

In both of these cases it is said that the law which favors the retention of old soldiers in office so long as there is no complaint as to the character of their work, can be invoked if desired but that there has thus far been no intimation that it would be appealed to.

TO HAVE TREATMENT.

All Children Must Have Medical Attendance.

Chicago, June 12.—Children of Christian Scientists and of believers in 'mind' cure, 'faith' cure and "divine" healing, will hereafter be committed for medical treatment to various institutions.

Such was the decision made by Judge Tuthill, of the Cook county court, in commenting on the case of Joseph Chamberlain, who, while suffering from a shrunken leg, was taken out of the custody of his mother, a Christian Scientist, and committed to the cripples' home. According to the views of Judge Tuthil, adults are entitled to use faith cure or anything else to combat disease. Children, however, according to his idea, must have medical attention whenever it is needed. When parents refuse to have their children treated when they are long suffering, Judge Tuthill holds that it is time for the authorities to step in and commit them to institutions suitable for the care of the children.

SWINDLER CAPTURED

Dr. Borges Arrested In New York For Check Stealing.

He Came to the United States Once Too Often.

New York, June 12.—"Dr. Egon E. Borges," the memory of whom under that name or that of Dr. Emil Blum is as Dead Sea apples in the mouths of several prominent New Yorkers, and who is unesteemed in numerous other cities, was arrested as he alighted from a train in the Grand Central station, and now awaits extradition to England, where he is wanted on a charge of grand larceny.

Dr. Emil Blum, or Dr. Egon Emanuel Borges, or Dr. Franz Von Borges, or Baron Egon Von Neiderndorf, or possibly the marquis de Sannicola, is a man whose peculiar talents have won him an unenviable recognition in Europe, as well as New York, Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati.

Often he has been much sought by the police of the various municipalities, but he has generally succeeded in evading a direct issue, and his present arrest is almost the first instance of the doctor or perhaps his grace lying in a plebian jail. It is his first arrest in this city.

As Borges, as he is pleased to call himself, stepped from a West Point train, accompanied by a young and richly attired woman, Deputy United States Marshal Frederick Bernhard placed his hand on his shoulder and remarked:

"Mr. Von Berger, I want to speak to you."

"That is not my name," responded the startled traveler. "I am Dr. Borges," with which he handed his official card.

Dr. Borges showed no surprise, but his companion, perplexed and pained, burst into tears. She derived small comfort from the official's words, or yet the remark of her erstwhile escort "that it was a confounded mistake, and everything would be all right."

Escorted to a cab by station employes, the woman drove away, leaving neither name nor address, and then Mr. Bernhard, accompanied by Pinkerton detectives, took his prisoner to Ludlow street jail.

The warrant had been placed in the hands of the American authorities by Charles Fox, acting for the British consul general, who had received it from London. The document charged the prisoner with the larceny of a check for $2750 on the Deutsche bank, signed by Helene Cregat.

Borges will be given a hearing before United States Commissioner Alexander. The British authorities have been notified of his apprehension, and arrangements are being made for his prompt removal to England.

For more than a decade Dr. Borges, or, as he is better known here, Dr. Blum, has been somewhat of a thorn in the side of the police of several American cities. Only last April publication of the fact that the doctor had returned to New York caused surprise to many New Yorkers, notably, C. E. Lambert, of the West Shore railroad; George H. Daniels, of the New York Central; Senator Chauncey M. Depew, Carl Schurz and Harper Bros. He then said he was on his way to Japan to accept a position of trust and responsibility under the mikado. He registered at the Waldorf-Astoria, and from his arrival was practically under surveillance.

When Blum or Borges left here in 1894 those mentioned did not think he would venture here again. At that time he went to West Shore officials with a story that he represented the Austrian government, and was to arrange for the transportation to the Pacific of a detachment of soldiers bound for China. He grandly hired trains which were made ready and held to await the coming of the transport.

When Mr. Lambert, of the road, thought the ship was about due he bought a large part of New York's chicken stock and had the poultry cut into sandwiches to feed his prospective passengers. The troops never arrived, and chicken sandwiches were a drug on the market during the following fortnight. The New York Central and the Southern Pacific also had trains in waiting to carry the troops, that never existed, on a duty never to be performed.

Soldier, essayist, journalist, aristocrat in bearing and master of four or five languages, Dr. Blum created a good impression wherever he went.

He visited at the World's fair. There he announced himself the herald of his royal highness the Archduke Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary. Chicago outdid herself in showing him hospitality.

In August, 1895, Dr. Borges by Carl Schurz was introduced to Harper & Bros. He was commissioned to go abroad to write for their magazine. He drew heavily in advance, but never went. Wormser Bros., bankers, and Drexel, Morgan & Co., Philadelphia, were two references he gave.

In the last five weeks the prisoner has had apartments in a fashionable Madison avenue boarding house, where he was known as "Dr. Egon Borges," a journalist.

THE DAKOTAS

The Famous Dupree Buffalo Herd Has Been Sold.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Pierre—"Scotty" Philip has purchased from the Dupree estate its entire buffalo herd, which is one of he few herds of such animals yet in existence. The herd is composed of about fifty full-bloods and several half-bloods. They are the offspring of a pair of buffalo captured by Fred Dupree years ago when it became apparent that the animals were about to be wiped out, and they have been roaming on the Cheyenne river ever since that time. Mr. Philip is preparing a large pasture for them a short distance from Fort Pierre, and will bring them down from their present range about July 1.

Aberdeen—C. B. Collins, who owns a large farm near Groton, tells a story of gulls destroying grasshoppers that rivals the experience of the Mormons at Salt Lake, who attributed the timely action of the birds to divine interposition as the direct result of intercession of Brigham Young. Mr. Collins noticed that grasshoppers had destroyed ten acres of wheat and immediately went to town, where he prepared an outfit of "dozers" on plans outlined by the late Professor Lugger. When he returned to the farm, however, he found an immense flock of gulls feeding on the hoppers. The birds worked so industriously and did such execution that in a day or so they rid the field of the pests and took their departure for other places where hoppers probably abounded.

Yankton—N. Anderson 65 years old, quarreled with J. Gerk over a horse. Gerk seized a baseball bat and pounded Anderson over the head and body until the old man was unconscious and is not expected to live. Gerk is held to the circuit court.

Mellette—The Masons of Mellette dedicated their new hall with a banquet and ball, which were attended by many from surrounding towns. Grand Master Cleaver, of Huron, presided.

Yankton—Bon Homme county farmers suffered seriously from the lightning of the recent thunder storm. Over thirty head of cattle were killed.

Deadwood—W. G. Porter assistant United States attorney, has filed a suit in the federal court against Odo Reder, a prominent Black Hills man, and the Black Hills Lumber company, of which he is president, for the recovery of $3366.43, the amount claimed to be due the government for timber unlawfully cut.

President McKinley will receive on next Saturday an unique invitation to attend the carnival at Deadwood, S. D., beginning on July 3, which will celebrate the opening of the Black Hills reservation. By white people twenty-five years ago. The invitation is engraved on a solid gold plate. The celebration is expected to prove of great interest to the Western states. Vice President Roosevelt and Senator Allison, of Iowa, have promised to attend.

Sioux Falls—A unique family reunion was held at the residence of O. C. Potter, in West Sioux Falls. The ages of the six persons who participated in the union aggregate 423 years.

Fred Gebhard, the prominent New Yorker, who took up his residence in Sioux Falls about two months ago, has decided to erect a $15,000 residence.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Frank Denis, a well-known farmer residing a few miles south of Fargo, was found dead in a ditch by a 13-year-old son. It is supposed that he died from heart disease. An inquest failed to develop any trace of violence and the coroner's jury brought in a verdist of death from natural causes.

The Catholic Order of Foresters is in session, organizing a new jurisdiction to include North Dakota and Manitoba. Heretofore their territory has been included in the jurisdiction with Minnesota, and the order for division was recently made. There are twenty-eight delegates present, and the meeting is one of great interest. Chief Ranger M. P. Morris, of Jamestown, presides.

Jamestown—Charles Hennings, of Corinne township, pleaded not guilty to a charge of being the father of a child born to Miss Nellie J. Posey, of the same township. He had been arrested and will be tried at the July term of the district court. He is a youth of some prominence and his parents have wealth.

Grand Forks—John Bannon, proprietor of the linseed oil mill destroyed by fire, has effected a settlement with the insurance companies. He received $12,000 on the building and machinery and $5000 on stock.

A Card.

We the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

INDUSTRIES ACTIVE.

Business Is Some Better In Great Britain.

New York, June 12.—The London correspondent of the Tribune says: The leading industries of this country are with one or two exceptions more active now than they have been since the beginning of the year. Shipbuilders appear to be fully employed and Glasgow boasts of having achieved success in obtaining a large contract for steel tubes for South America in the face of the keen competition of some United States firms. In the textile industry the outlook is, however not very bright.

Readers of the Mail inspired by the articles in that paper on the subject of the American trade invasion of Great Britain are allowed to give vent to their views in its columns. Some of them aver that the invasion is a myth, others say that the Americans do not play a fair game, and a small minority insist that the invasion is in many respects a blessing.

THE COAST DEFENSES

Artillery Branch of Service Has Grown Greatly In Importance.

Badge For Artillery Corps Approved By War Department.

German Colony In Maryland Said to Be Flourishing.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The coast defense system of the country has grown so large and important with the construction of enormous batteries of mortars and high-power guns and with the increase allowed by the reorganization bill of officers and men, that it is impracticable to control the whole in one military division under Colonel Randolph, the new chief of artillery.

With nearly 20,000 men in the artillery equal to practically the entire enlisted strength of the whole regular army prior to the Spanish war, this branch has grown in importance more than either infantry or cavalry. The completion of the fortifications at several points has given rise to the necessity of garrisons at the new stations.

Baltimore, which until a few years ago was dependent upon Fort McHenry with its obsolete guns and batteries, now has three distinct modern forts to command the city. In the future they are to compose the district of Baltimore, with Major William Ennis in charge. The district includes Forts McHenry, Howard, Carroll, Smallwood and Armistead. The defenses of Washington will be in the division made up of Forts Hunt and Washington, in charge of Lieut. Col. E. Van Andruss. Throughout the country there will be districts comprising the forts of certain sections in charge of the senior officers. An order to this effect issued by the war department dividing the country into artillery districts is as follows:

District of Portland, Lieut. Col. J. R. Myrick—Forts Preble, Williams, Levitt and forts on Great Diamond island.

District of Boston, Lieut. Col. J. L. Tiernon—Forts Warren, String, Banks and Constitution.

District of Chesapeake, Col. F. L. Guenther—Fort Monroe.

District of Potomac, Lieut. Col. E. Van Andruss—Forts Hunt and Washington.

District of Honolulu, Capt. E. Davis.

An order has recently been issued at the war department directing the organization of five batteries of field artillery and three companies of coast artillery in addition to those now in the service. They will be organized at the following places: Fort Sam Houston, Texas, one battery, the Seventeenth; the Presidio, San Francisco, one battery, the Eighteenth; Fort Riley, Kan., two batteries, Nineteenth and Twentieth; Fort Sheridan, Ill., one battery, the Twenty-first; Fort Hancock, N. J., one company, Ninety-fifth; Fort Warren, Mass., one company, Ninety-sixth; Fort Adams, R. I., one company, Ninety-seventh.

These additional batteries and companies will be organized by transfers from the following existing organizations: Second, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Ninth batteries and the Forty-eighth, Seventy-seventh and Seventy-eighth companies. Two additional artillery bands are also authorized, to be known as the Ninth and Tenth bands, artillery corps. One of the bands will be stationed at Fort Riley, Kan., and the other at Fort Warren, Mass.

The war department has approved a badge for the artillery corps. It is two muzzle-loading cannon crossed, in the center of which are the letters "U. S." For the coast artillery the letters will be gold and for the field artillery, silver.

In order to establish civil government in the Philippines and keep up the fiction of a military government, considered necessary to prevent collision with the decisions of the supreme court, the suggestion has been made that William H. Taft, chairman of the Philippine commission, be given a commission in the regular army.

The suggestion was advanced at the meeting of the cabinet held last week, when the question of the establishment of civil government was thoroughly discussed. If Judge Taft should be given a commission in the army, it would be that of a junior officer, and in this case he would be ranked by many officers, but, it is stated, as he is in control he would in his civil capacity as governor receive all proper recognition.

The question to which special attention was given by the cabinet was: How far can the president go in establishing civil government, taking into consideration the supreme court decisions and existing conditions? In some parts of the archipelago military rule is absolutely essential for the protection of persons friendly to American sovereignty. In others peace prevails and it would be unjust to keep these districts under military administration. It is the desire of the president to give to the Filipinos the largest measure of self-government consistent with their capabilities and the situation.

Maj. Gen. MacArthur, it was again announced last week, is to be detached from duty as governor-general of the Philippines on July 1 and ordered home. As official statements heretofore made have indicated that Gen. MacArthur would only be withdrawn when civil government was established, the impression prevailed at the war department that civil government under Secretary Root would be formally established on that date.

Secretary Herman Badenhoop, of the Maryland bureau of immigration, reports that the German colony, Becksville, which was started December last by the bureau, near Governor's Bridge, on the Patuxent river, is flourishing. E. Heck, the first settler in the colony, visited Baltimore recently and stated that all his crops are growing wonderfuly. Others are also doing well. Michael Siegert, a Bavarian, bought a small farm, and a German is negotiating for a tract of 200 acres near Becksville. Two families, friends of Mr. Beck, are on their way from Hungary, with a view to buying farms in Maryland and probably will settle in the same neighborhood.

Adolph Salamo, a farmer from South Dakota, left a short time ago for the West, after having a pleasant stay in the "Old Line state" for over a week. He proposes to sell out in Dakota and come to Maryland with his family. Mr. Badenhoop expects within the near future a gentleman from Massachusetts who contemplates, if he finds a suitable locality, raising poultry on a large scale. John Meyer, of Muskoka, Canada, writes that he will make an investigation of Maryland as the representative of four families who do not like the long and severe winters in their present surroundings.

Miss Etta Haynie Maddox, whose graduation from the Baltimore law school gave especial interest to the commencement exercises of that school held recently, said that she would make every possible effort to secure the right to practice law in Baltimore. She would ask first of all, she said, to be granted the privilege of taking the examinations next fall for admission to the bar. Her next step would be to petition the state legislature to strike out the word "male" from the statute concerning the right to practice law.

Miss Maddox does not anticipate a great deal of opposition to the change she hopes to have made in the law. "I don't think," she said, "there is actual antagonism to having women practice law in Maryland. I think the statute has retained its present form, not because our legislators have wished to exclude women from the legal profession, but simply because the men have not given any thought to the opening of that field to women. A great many of the men here do not realize that women have been admitted to the bar in so many states. When I told a lawyer in town not long ago that women were allowed to practice law in New York, in Pennsylvania, and in many of the other Eastern states, he said: 'Why, I thought they were only allowed to do it out on the prairies.'

"I have been asked," she continued, "why I should make any effort to be admitted to the bar here when I could be admitted without difficulty to the bar in any of the other states—there are thirty-seven, I think—in which women are allowed to practice law. But I have no desire to leave Maryland. Besides there is as good a field here as elsewhere for a woman to practice law if she can only be admitted to the bar. And I am willing to make the effort, not only for myself, but for other women who may wish to take up the same profession. I hope to get what I want without encountering any serious opposition, but I am prepared for discouragements. If I am refused the privilege of taking the examination for admission to the bar, I will keep on asking until I get permission to take it. If the next legislature refuses to strike out the word 'male'—well, I'll petition again, that all."

MAY BE DEATH TRAPS.

Smokeless Powder May Hold Peril For Warships.

Washington, June 12.—It is believed the recent fire at the powder magazine at the Mare Island navy yard, by which a large amount of property was destroyed, will be a serious thing for the navy and army. Ordnance officers of both services will await with anxiety the result of the investigation to ascertain the causes of the fire which, while it did not amount to an explosion, had the effect of destroying the powder in the fierce blaze which lifted the roof and practically destroyed the building.

This casts a doubt on what is known as nitro-cellulose powder, to which class belongs the smokeless powder used in the army and navy. The navy has 5,000,000 pounds of this powder and the army 2,000,000 pounds. The material in the naval service is stored in ships of war, and if it is possible for the composition to become ignited through chemical action the situation of those on board warships is anything but pleasant, for, of course, such a fire as that at Mare Island on board any vessel at sea would destroy it.

It practically is impossible to extinguish a fire caused by smokeless powder, which burns comparatively slowly but with a flaring blaze.

This is by no means the first mysterious fire at a naval magazine, and the army has had similar explosions, so the apprehensions of the ordnance officers of both services are entirely justified.

It is doubtful whether the investigation by the naval board to be detailed for that purpose will produce much information of a definite quality. It may not be possible to show that the fire was not of outside origin, and that would not necessarily indicate that this fire was due to chemical action. If the latter cause were demonstrated the results would be serious for the army and navy, and would be disappointing to those who have believed that smokeless powder was a safe composition.

"Of all the toilet preparations I ever used, Satin-Skin Powder and Cream are the best." So many people keep writing this, it must be true. 25c.

International Convention Is In Full Swing at Boston.

Progress of Work For Fifty Years the Feature of Day.

Boston, June 12.—Work of the international jubilee convention of the Young Mens' Christian association, which began yesterday, was in full swing in all its branches today, although during the early hours the delegates were somewhat tardy in appearing at Mechanics' building. Presentation of Young Mens' Christian association problems and of subjects bearing on the progress of the work of fifty years was the main feature of today's program. The day opened with a praise service.

Bruno Hobbs, of Cripple Creek, was unanimously chosen secretary of the convention. The first address of the day was given by Judge Selden P. Spencer, of St. Louis, who spoke on the subject, "The Lessons of Fifty Years Y. M. C. A. Work." He pointed out the fact that wherever men are and can be reached as a class, there is the place for association work.

Judge Spencer was followed by Herbert B. Ames, of Montreal, who spoke on the contribution of the Y. M. C. A. towards the solution of the city problems.

"The solution of the city problem," he said, "lies in successful effort on behalf of those whose lives are capable of development, for those at least for whom the idea of expansion is yet conceivable. To fortify individual character so that he who is yet not overborne, may feel within him an expanding, uplifting force, a power of resistence sufficient to enable him to develop despite oppressive conditions, to weaken by every legitimate means, the power of evil to attract and the forces of adverse environment to injure; to convert the very circumstances of associated human life into an uplifting agency, these are the lines along which we may most hopefully employ our forces to attack the city problem."

Mr. Ames also said that the phase of the question which lay nearest his own personal experience was the contribution which the Y. M. C. A. might render by assisting the movement for the betterment of civic conditions.

The report of the international committee opens with a summary which shows among other things, that up to 1901, there were 1476 associations of which 1435 reported an aggregate membership of 258,477. The total net property consisting of buildings, real estate and miscellaneous property was $21,716,702. The report continues:

In strong contrast with city association in an apparently opposite tendency to decline and loss is noted in some of the smaller cities of 5000 population and less, and in the country neighborhoods generally.

In counteraction of this tendency to decline, two growing forces are actively at work. Several state committees have established experimental organizations in villages and country places under other titles, such as "sections," or "bands." County organizations have also been formed in several states, under international and state leadership and are slowly assuming a definite, permanent form, promoting and perpetuating work for young men in villages and rural districts in a very invigorating way. The army and navy work has developed into a permanent department. The department of railroad work alone has furnished over 50 per cent of the growth during the past two years in the total number of associations of all kinds in North America and over 24 per cent of the total increase in membership. During the last [illegible] the force of foreign secretaries has been increased from eleven to twenty. The new men going to Japan, China and India and South America. There has been a marked growth of missionary work in the home associations. Upon the foreign field general and student development in membership, in religious work and all other departments compares favorably with developments upon the American home field.

Expense of the home work for 1899 was $129,620 and for 1900 $136,761. The army and navy work for 1900 cost $22,288 and its budget for the present year is slightly larger than this amount. The expense was largely covered by contributions for this specific work. The total budget for the home department for the year 1901 calls for something over $160,000. Pledges received for the balance of the year are $21,700. This leaves $50,000 still to be obtained to meet the expenses of 1901.

An analysis of the receipts of 1900 shows that receipts from associations were $16,433 while the balance of $120,405 was made up from over 4500 individuals.

The treasurer's report for 1900 shows: Receipts, $136,826; expenditures, $136,761. Receipts of the publication account, $31,832; the expenses of this account were the same as the receipts. For the work in foreign lands the receipts were $39,321; expenditures, $39,076.

The jubilee fund of $1,000,000 authorized by the last convention has been a little more than half subscribed, conditioned for the most part upon the total amount being raised during this jubilee year.

AT WEST DULUTH

The people of West Duluth will be disappointed in the definite announcement of one of the street railway officials that there is to be no extension of the West Third street line this year. One reason given is that material is very hard to secure, in fact the company experienced much difficulty in getting the rails and other steel needed for the improvement already under way. It is certain that no promise has been given as to when the line is to be extended or improved. This news will be received with regret here.

The aldermen and other citizens interested in the hoped for extension and improvement will not meet Thomas Lowry today as he left for Minneapolis last night. W. J. Holmes and others met Mr. Lowry last Monday and were then assured that if it were possible during his limited stay here, he would again confer with West Duluth's representatives.

The extension from Fortieth avenue west to Seventy-first avenue, a distance of twenty-seven blocks, was the most desired improvement. It is pointed out that there is a population of 3000 tributary to such a line and the citizens are positive it would be a profitable route.

BRADY-FITZPATRICK.

Miss Alice Brady, of Cody street, and Christopher Fitzpatrick, of Delmar, Nevada, were united in marriage at St. James' church, at 8:30 o'clock this morning, by Rev. Father Feeheley. Miss Margaret Hunt, a cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and James Brady, a brother, as best man. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of relatives and near friends. At the conclusion of the church services a wedding breakfast was served at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Brady, on Cody street. Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick left this afternoon for St. Paul, where they will remain for a few days and from thence they journey to their future home at Delmar, Nevada.

The park commissioners, who have been strenuously endeavoring to secure county prisoners' labor to improve the new park and do other work in this end of the city, have been unsuccessful as the county board frowned upon their efforts and refused to lend their aid to the park board.

A property owners' meeting will be held at Republican club headquarters this evening. Those interested in the new paving proposal are asked to attend.

So far only two materials have been spoken of, cedar block and macadam.

Charles Fay, of St. Peter, Minn., is in town on his annual visit. Mr. Fay, is one of the largest property owners in this section of the city and he is optimistic in regard to the future. He thinks the outlook for substantial improvement was never better and reinforces his stated opinion by spending money here every year. He will attend the property owners' meeting tonight. Mr. Fay says the crop outlook in Southern Minnesota was never more promising.

William Barney, who was arrested last Saturday on a charge of cruelty to animals, has paid the imposed mulct and settled damages of the liverymen, Ausgard & Morgan.

W. J. Smart, of 328 Central avenue, has sold out his confectionery business to Mrs. Adeline Mayhew.

P. O. Riley has gone to Stillwater to enjoy a short visit with his family.

The guards of Pearl Hive, No. 4, give the L. O. T. M. drill at Great Eastern hall Friday evening at 10 o'clock, for the entertainment of the visiting spectators. After the drill the evening will be passed in dancing.

In West Duluth the anglers never tell fish stories of such dimensions that the game warden looks them up. A good tale of sport with rod and reel was told by a fisherman today. Three gentlemen were fishing Tuesday at Three Rivers and caught three trout.

Ed Dormedy is attending the C. O. F. convention at St. Paul.

Rev. Father Feeheley left for St. Paul this afternoon and will remain until Friday at the C. O. F. convention.

Since Monday the butchers have been closing their markets at 7 o'clock p. m., and the innovation is proving satisfactory.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Crothers, Miss Newman and Miss Lottie Robinson spent Sunday in Proctorknott.

Miss Edith Milligan is spending a few days with Mrs. B. Kiltin, of the Munger flats.

BLOOD POISON

MASTER SPECIALIST.

On account of its frightful hideousness, Contagious Blood Poison is commonly called the king of all venereal diseases. It may be hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself in the form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruptions or copper-colored spots on the face or body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen tonsils, falling out of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprous-like decay of the flesh and bones. If you have any of these or similar symptoms, you are cordially invited to call at our offices immediately. If your fears are unfounded the burden will quickly be removed from your mind, but if your constitution is affected, you will be told so frankly and shown how to get rid of it. My special treatment for Blood Poison is practically the result of my life work, and is endorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign and symptom disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health, and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

And all associate diseases and weaknesses of men. We charge nothing for private counsel and give to each patient a legal contract to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men? If you cannot call at our office, write your symptoms fully.

SENATOR DEPEW DENIES.

Says He Is Not Engaged to Marry.

New York, June 12.—Senator Chauncey M. Depew says he is not engaged to be married. And as for his intending to marry some widow now abroad, as the rumor went, he says that he knows a dozen widows who are abroad and that he would like to marry any one of them. "I haven't met the lady yet," said Mr. Depew when seen today. "Nice newspaper story, but I am sorry to say we haven't been introduced." "Then it's not true?" was asked.

"Only in the abstract. My old friend and classmate, Brewer, has just gone and done it, and that sort of set me thinking. But that's as far as I've got yet. You see, when the men who were in college with him learn that he's settling down, they think, 'there's that fellow Brewer, pretty level-headed chap; wonder why he's marrying—must have some good reason.' And then we all start to thinking."

"Do you know how the report got started?" was asked.

"Well, when any young fellow like myself goes into society a lot of friends begin to say they've heard he is about to get married. I've been asked that dozens of times. Somebody has probably misconstructed some of my replies, which I fancy if taken in the composite would resemble the supreme court decision on the Porto Rican question. No, I'm not engaged today, thank you."

SOUVENIRS OF BEAUTY

Washington, June 12.—Souvenirs of great value and beauty, which were ordered by Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, wife of the Colorado millionaire, to be presented to the president and Mrs. McKinley and the ladies of the cabinet, on the occasion of the breakfast to have been tendered them by Mr. and Mrs. Walsh at Colorado Springs, have reached the White House. They are all exquisite works of art and were designed especially and made for the purpose.

The president's favor is a large book of steel engravings of all the interesting places through which the party would have passed but for the interruption caused by Mrs. McKinley's illness. The binding is of heavy Russia leather, and has superbly wrought clasps and corner pieces of gold, while a heavy gold plate graces the center of the cover, engraved with the president's name and the date of the breakfast.

The souvenir for Mrs. McKinley is a solid gold card case of rare workmanship, her initials engraved upon one side, and a Rocky mountain scene upon the other. Card cases were also the favors for the ladies of the cabinet, less ornamental and rich than that for Mrs. McKinley, but each a small masterpiece.

While Mrs. Walsh deplored the interruption of her cherished plans, she still more regretted the cause for it, and since receiving the news of Mrs. McKinley's illness and the cancellation of the engagement, has sent a telegram of inquiry each day. On Saturday, Mrs. McKinley's birthday, she sent, through the medium of Miss Wilson, a basket of the rarest white orchids as a token of regard and remembrance.

IN MICHIGAN.

A Quintette of Lunatics In the Houghton Jail.

Houghton—Two more Insane patients were taken to the county jail, making five now confined there. The two are John Kneebone of Hancock, who was released from the Newberry asylum about a month ago, and George Mathier, of the Ripley, who went insane about two weeks ago. The three others are Frank Polinski, Albert Hansen and Isar Lahama. Two of the unfortunates will be taken to Newberry by the sheriff.

Hancock—Hancock is going to have one of the best Independence day celebrations in the history of copperdom. Instead of the eagle screaming for one day, it will be three, for it has been decided to celebrate on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 4, 5 and 6. The celebration is to take the form of a carnival and street fair with imported attractions.

Ishpeming—Elizabeth Renning, better known as "Crazy Kate," an Ishpeming character, has returned from Ohio, where she has been living since last fall after her release from Newberry insane asylum. For years "Crazy Kate" went from door to door begging for what she could get. The woman, who is about 60 years of age, was finally sent to the insane asylum, where a search of her wearing apparel showed her to be the possessor of over $7,000 in cash and government bonds.

E. E. Osborn, for many years a resident of Ishpeming, and for two terms mayor of the city, has taken his new position as vice president and secretary of the Northwestern road, with headquarters in New York. Mr. Osborn was elected to his office at the annual meeting of the company held Thursday, in Chicago. He has been general attorney for the Northwestern.

Marquette—Plans are being drawn for the science building for the northern State Normal school at Marquette, which is soon to be erected at a cost of $30,000. The structure which will be completed by Oct. 1, will afford splendid facilities for work in botany, zoology, geology, physics and chemistry. The grounds of the normal will be extensively improved during the coming summer.

Marquette's assessed valuation will be the highest in its history this year. Mindful of last fall's experience with the review of the state tax commission and of admonishings from the present commissioner, City Controller Bay has proceeded to give the city a "cash value" assessment roll, or at least to come as near accomplishing this desired end as care and pains taking work will permit, and by the same token, the Mining Journal expects a big howl from the taxpayers.

Heart Disease

Some Facts Regarding the Rapid Increase of Heart Trouble.

Heart trouble, at least among the Americans, is certainly increasing and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real organic disease is incurable; but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric.

In another way, also, the heart is affected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food. There is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores, and which contains valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the Stomach.

Full sized package of these tablets sold by druggists for 50 cents. Little book on stomach troubles mailed free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

JONES IS SINKING

Self-Confessed Murderer of Millionaire Rice Is Dying.

Desperate Efforts of the Authorities to Prolong His Life.

His Death May Mean Life and Liberty For Patrick.

New York, June 12.—Haunted by the dying laugh of his victim, Valet Jones hovers on the brink of eternity. The doctors believe his death is a matter of a few days. On the witness stand he confessed to having murdered his benefactor and employer, William Marsh Rice, the multimillionaire from Texas. To the experts who questioned him he said:

"To my dying day I will have that awful laugh of my victim ringing in my ears."

His words have come true. Wasting away from catarrh of the stomach, he lies tossing on his bed, a prey to all the scenes of the day when, he says, he ended the millionaire's life with chloroform. The laugh and the death rattle ring in his ears. He wakes in the night at the sound of them and raves. Again he goes over the scene of the murder and tragically waits for the breath of life to leave the body of the man he killed.

Despite all the efforts the district attorney's office has made to prolong the valet's life, his strength is fast ebbing away. It was the love of life and liberty, untold wealth, for Albert T. Patrick, Valet Jones says he killed Rice at Patrick's orders.

The commonwealth alleges that Patrick formed the conspiracy to take the rich Texan's life and secure his money. There is a will which gives Patrick the bulk of the estate, that is valued at $5,000,000.

If Valet Jones dies the bulwark of the state's case is lost. Realizing this, Assistant District Attorney Osborne allowed Jones to practically have the freedom of the city, but under the guidance of detectives. He was taken to the exciting scenes of the tenderloin to make him forget his remorse.

He was not confined in a prison, but was sent to a private house, where the city has been paying for three detectives, who watch Jones day and night. They take eight-hour shifts. His guards say the wretched man lies awake or has fitful slumbers, only to awake shrieking because the scenes of his crime haunt him. All he can eat is beef tea, oatmeal, eggs and a wafer now and then.

Nothing known to science is being spared in the hope of prolonging his life. It is even intended to take him to a home in the country if he is strong enough to stand the trip, in the hope that the fresh air will improve his condition.

In spite of all efforts he sinks lower and lower, always haunted and pursued by the dying laugh.

Tom Reed cigar is proving a winner for us and will prove a winner for you if you will give it a chance.

PROSPEROUS.

New York, June 12.—In an article in the current issue of Leslie's Weekly Gen. Frederick D. Grant will say that the value of the Philippines to the United States cannot be overestimated.

"It will," Gen. Grant says, "increase with the development of the islands and the growth of our trade with Asia. It is greatest, therefore, from a commercial standpoint, but is remarkable also as a strategic basis in time of war. We have added a vast area to the United States of incomparable richness, natural resources and fertility. The climate is salubrious, and the Anglo Saxon can live in any part of the country with comfort and little expense comparatively because of the warm weather.

"A man with a small income can build up a competence there more rabidly than in this country, and the field is full of opportunity for the industrious and thrifty. The soil is capable of supporting three times the present number of inhabitants and of doing it much better than they are now supported, when there are better facilities of transportation.

"Food and clothing is inexpensive, because the need is not great. A man could do well there with a small capital, providing he had energy and good judgment. If he should not have these qualities the result would be the same as here; he would be apt to lose his money, or exchange it, rather, for experience. We shall obtain a large market for our manufactures in the islands, and the whole trade of the archipelago will come under our exclusive control in a few years; that is as soon as the clause of the treaty of peace by which we agreed to give Spain equal trade privileges in the islands with ourselves expires."

Dyspeptics cannot be long lived because to live requires nourishment. Food is not nourishing until it is digested. A disordered stomach cannot digest food. It must have assistance. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests all kinds of food without aid from the stomach, allowing it to rest and regain its natural functions. Its elements are exactly the same as the natural digestive fluids and it simply can't help but do you good. Max Wirth.

ECZEMA

Eczema sets the skin on fire. The acid poisons in the blood are forced out through the pores of the skin, causing intense redness, burning and itching. So terrible is the itching at times, especially when the body is overheated, that the almost distracted sufferer feels that he could tear the skin to pieces, and that he must scratch or go crazy. He knows from experience that this only makes matters worse, but, made desperate by the terrible burning and itching, he is for the time being indifferent to after effects. There are several forms of Eczema, the moist, or weeping kind, that comes in little pustules which discharge a watery, sticky fluid, which dries and peels off in bran-like scales. So profuse is the discharge at times that large scabs or crusts form, which are both painful and troublesome, and not easily removed. Red, disfiguring bumps and sores are symptoms of Eczema. The dry form usually attacks the head, hands and feet; the skin, becoming hard and rough, often cracking open and bleeding, and attended with much itching. Eczema depends upon a poisoned condition of the blood, and local applications, while soothing and cooling, and may to some extent relieve the inflammation and itching, cannot be considered cures, because external remedies do not reach constitutional or blood diseases. Salves, ointments, powders, lotions and soaps do more harm than good, by smearing over and sealing up the pores of the skin, thus forcing the poison back into the blood. S. S. S. antidotes and neutralizes the acid poisons and drives out of the circulation all impurities and humors, and the pure, rich blood that is carried to the diseased skin quickly allays the inflammation, opens the clogged up pores, and the skin becomes soft, smooth and ready to perform its proper functions. To be rid of Eczema you must first purify and build up the blood, and nothing so surely and effectually does this as S. S. S., the only guaranteed purely vegetable blood purifier. Send for our book on blood and skin diseases, and write our physicians for any information or advice you may desire. Medical advice and book free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Mr. L. Marno, Escondido, San Diego County, Cal., writes: "My body broke out with a rash or eruption which in spite of all efforts to cure continued to get worse. The itching, especially at night, was simply terrible; it would almost disappear at times, only to return worse than ever. I had tried many highly recommended preparations without benefit, and hearing of S. S. S. determined to give it a fair trial, and was inexpressibly delighted when a few bottles cured me entirely, removing every blemish and pimple from my body. I shall not fail to recommend S. S. S. whenever an opportunity occurs.

SOLDIERS RETURNING

Army In Philippines to Be Cut to Forty Thousand.

Last of Volunteers Will Reach San Francisco July 1.

Pan-American Congress Is Likely to Be a Failure.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Through war department officials it is stated that our standing army in the Philippines will be reduced from 76,000 to 40,000 men and officers. In the event that these officials are correct in their views, it indicates that the McKinley administration believes that the Filipinos can be ruled practically by civil authority, backed up with 40,000 regulars.

Changes made in regiments through reliefs and detachments have resulted in perhaps twice as many individual soldiers as has been in the Philippines during the past winter, 76,000 having at some time been on duty under the general commanding that military department.

There is no longer reasonable question that the last of the volunteers will reach San Francisco by July 1, where they must be discharged from the army with the expiration of the volunteer service on that date. The last steamer bearing men from Manila for home sailed a few days ago and, as she is a fleet vessel, is due at San Francisco a few days before the end of the month. Advices were received at the war department from Gen. MacArthur stating that the Kilpatrick had sailed with 33 officers and 1013 men of the Forty-third volunteer regiment, with instructions to proceed direct to San Francisco without making the usual stop at Nagasaki for supplies. The voyage should be accomplished within the time intervening between now and July 1.

Forty-nine thousand troops are left in the islands, and of these it is proposed to bring home 9000 in order to reduce the total force in the Philippines to 40,000, the strength estimated by the war department officials as ample for the present.

Advices have come from the war department of the arrival, at Nagasaki, on the 7th inst., of the transport Grant, homeward bound with volunteers. Other transports now on the seas are expected to arrive during the month, with the possible exception of the Kintuck, which has been detained in quarantine at Nagasaki on account of an alleged case of the plague. She may be released in time to cover the distance within the limit.

* * *

Undeterred by the determination of the United States and other republics to hold the Pan-American congress even if they decline to participate, Peru and Argentine have formally announced that they will not take part unless unrestricted arbitration be included as a part of the program.

In this attitude they have the support, it is said, of Brazil, Bolivia, Uruguay and Paraguay. It has become apparent to the authorities that if the congress is held there will be but a small representation, and it will not be Pan-American, as desired. Chile's victory is, therefore, barren, and if the congress is not held she will be responsible for its failure.

These facts were developed as a result of calls made upon Secretary Hay by Representatives of the Pan-American republics, including the Peruvian and Chilean ministers and the Argentinian charge d'affaires.

The placing of restrictions upon the discussions of the congress is not relished by any of the South American republics, except Chile, and it is the general feeling that the discussion should be broad and liberal, not only with respect to arbitration, but with regard to all the questions to be considered.

Consul General Turner reports from Ottawa that parliament has ordered a bounty on pig lead manufactured in Canada: $5 to be paid per ton for the first year, $4 for the second year, $3 for the third year, and thereafter $2 per ton for fifteen years, the amount of bounty not to exceed $100,000 for any one year.

The state department has recently received the following from Brainard H. Warner, Jr., our consul at Leipzig:

"The Leipzig spring wholesale fair, or, as it is better known, the Leipzig oster vormesse, is assuming such large proportions and becoming such an international factor in so many different industries that a report upon it will perhaps be of interest to American merchants and manufacturers.

"The wholesale messe up to 1896 was combined with the Easter messe, or retail fair, during the first ten days or two weeks of which orders were taken for future delivery of goods. The trade has increased very materially since the vormesse has been separated from the Easter messe, the former opening annually on the third Sunday before Easter and lasting eight days, and the latter opening eight days after Easter and running three weeks. It is impossible to ascertain, or even to estimate, the value of the goods which changes hands at the messe, but it is safe to say that it runs up into the millions. In 1896 the merchants of Berlin attempted to start a wholesale messe, which it was intended would in time practically kill the business done at the Leipzig messe, but the project proved unsuccessful.

"The vormesse is of great benefit to buyers and sellers alike; the latter are given an opportunity of observing, at close range and with but little expense, just what their competitors are doing in the way of producing novelties, thus obtaining new ideas and notions from one another; the former, of comparing the articles and prices of a large number of firms before placing their orders. It is not necessary for them to travel from place to place, as is often done, in order to examine samples, arrange prices and buy goods.

"The principal articles bought and sold are ceramics, glassware, leather and textile goods, toys, hardware, cheap jewelry, furs and fancy articles. The vormesse is under the control of the city authorities and the chamber of commerce. The exhibitors are not allowed to do any retail business, but must confine their trade to taking orders from samples for the future delivery of goods.

"The chamber of commerce issues a directory, which gives the address of every firm, as far as possible, exhibiting at the messe, and just how to find it. The directory gives the number of hands employed at the factories of many of the different firms represented. A buyers' directory is also published by private parties. It gives the names and places where the buyers are stopping in Leipzig, but this book is considered by many to be inaccurate and unreliable.

"The quantity of goods sold this year at the Messe was perhaps no larger than it was either in 1899 or in 1900, in spite of the large increase in the attendance of buyers and sellers. There seemed to be a certain dullness in some branches, resulting from the uncertainty of the commercial and political outlook, which was very evident throughout the week. The export class was more numerous than usual, and the messe's best customers—England and America, or their representatives—were on hand in full force. The number of French buyers was much larger than usual; some attribute this to the favorable impression which the German exhibits made at the Paris exposition last year."

HE DROPPED DEAD.

At the Bedside of His Dying Wife.

Kokomo, Ind., June 12.—On Sunday J. E. Cage, a well-known Kokomo broker, was called to the bedside of his wife, who was thought to be dying of consumption. On reaching the bed Mr. Cage dropped to the floor a corpse of paralysis of the brain. Mrs. Cage, who had called her husband to see her die, was herself a witness of his death.

HE FAINTED.

When Told He Had Inherited a Fortune.

Toledo, Ohio, June 12.—Dennis Tiernan, a laborer residing in East Toledo, has received word from Ireland that he has fallen heir to a fortune of $75,000 through the death of an uncle. Tiernan was so overjoyed when he received the news of his good fortune that he collapsed, and it took hard work to resuscitate him.

A Good Cough Medicine.

It speaks well for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy when druggists use it in their own families in preference to any other. "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the past five years with complete satisfaction to myself and customers," says Druggist J. Goldsmith, Van Etten, N. Y. "I have always used it in my own family both for ordinary coughs and colds and for the cough following la grippe, and find it very efficacious." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

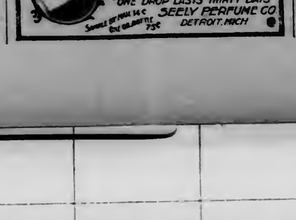
Unset rubies to the value of 19,00 francs were seized by custom house inspectors Tuesday in a room in the Grand Union hotel, New York, occupied by two young Belgians. The jewels were brought to this country by the young men who were passengers on the steamer Zeeland, which arrived here May 27 last from Antwerp.

The head of the woman whose mutilated body was found in Chelmsford woods on Saturday was found Tuesday afternoon by private detectives under a bridge over a brook near where the original discovery was made. The body has not yet been identified.

A terrific electrical storm accompanied by a high wind and heavy rain passed over Pittsburg Tuesday evening doing much damage to property and caused at least one death, that of Francis Morris, aged 17 years, killed by lightning at Homestead. At McKeesport the Baptist mission was blown from its foundation. A great deal of minor damage was done.

E. H. Conger, minister to China, passed through Chicago Tuesday night on his way to Washington, where he will call on President McKinley and receive his final instructions as to what is the policy of the administration and what course he shall take in China. Mr. Conger sails from San Francisco June 17.

A small tornado in Lyon county, north of Sioux City, demolished a number of houses. The 3-year-old son of J. N. Armstrong was killed. Armstrong and his wife were badly hurt and probably will die.



SESSION ENDED

State Federation of Labor Concludes Business at Mankato.

M. E. Neary Elected President, W. E. McEwen Secretary-Treasurer.

The Next Meeting Will Be Held at Rochester.

Mankato, Minn., June 12.—M. E. Neary was re-elected as president of the State Federation of Labor yesterday, and W. E. McEwen, of Duluth, was returned as secretary-treasurer. The other candidates for president were Louis Hanson and W. J. Oker, both of Minneapolis. The first ballot resulted as follows:

Neary, 78; Hanson, 28; Oker, 13; and a few scattering votes. Mr. Neary was declared elected and it was made unanimous. Other officers were elected as follows: First vice president, Henry Groetzinger, St. Paul; second vice president, John Spuler, Winona.

Rochester was unanimously chosen as the place for holding the next meeting and the convention adjourned after adopting complimentary resolutions.

As a result of the convention being held in Mankato the tailors have organized a local union and other trades and labors are expected to follow. The movement has heretofore made no progress in the city.

At yesterday's session a resolution, introduced by Delegate Mullane, of Minneapolis, requesting that at all future conventions of the federation the representatives of the Minneapolis Retail Liquor Dealers' association be admitted as fraternal delegates was voted down by a big vote.

The report of the committee on resolutions was again proceeded with this afternoon. A resolution was adopted pledging moral aid and assistance in the organization of a women's label league, as women do nine-tenths of the purchasing. The object is that only union labeled goods shall be bought.

A resolution urging all laboring men to study economic questions, and commending the Democratic party for its support of the organized labor movement was laid on the table by a vote of 76 to 21.

Union men were earnestly requested to call for union cards in barber shops.

President Neary said that organized labor had been recognized in the appointment of John O'Donnell as labor commissioner. Mr. O'Donnell presented a report, in which he said that the bureau of labor would ascertain a number of things relating to labor and would place them before the people of the state to show the condition of the workingman. A statement would be presented and he urged the unions to furnish information asked for.

A report by the committee on laws and legislation changing the federation of officers was rejected.

The salary of the secretary-treasurer was raised from $2 a quarter to $25 per month.

The following resolution offered by Secretary McEwen was adopted:

"Resolved, That the secretary of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor and the trades assemblies of the cities be requested to communicate with the clergymen of the various cities with a view to preaching a sermon on labor on the Sunday before Labor day."

The committee on finance reported a balance on hand a year ago of $459.61; receipts during the year, $92.33; expenditures, $75.30; balance on hand, $626.24. The report was adopted.

CABLE FLASHES.

A Reuter dispatch from St. Petersburg says M. De Witte, the Russian minister of finance, has issued an order directing that henceforth the securities of commercial and industrial companies, promoted or managed by German subjects, shall not be admitted to quotation on Russian bourses, except by his special sanction.

"Cardinal Gibbons explained to the pope," says the Rome correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle, "how impossible it would be for the United States government to accredit a representative to the vatican, because the republic recognized no state religion, and did not recognize the diversity of Christian confessions."

Mr. Kruger has issued a statement to the effect that he knows nothing of the peace negotiations alleged to be proceeding with the Boer leaders. He said that if there are any negotiations on foot it is not through any action of his.

The Liberte of Paris says that in consequence of the revenue shortage the government is considering a proposal to reduce the sugar bounties.

Lord Cranborne, the under foreign secretary, replying to a question in the house of commons as to whether Germany meant to maintain a large military force at Shanghai, said the government understood Germany intended to continue keeping a garrison there. No explanation had been given by Germany as to why she had concluded to follow this policy.

GOVERNOR DEAD.

Chief Executive of Alabama Died at Tuskaloosa.

Montgomery, Ala., June 12.—William J. Sanford, governor of Alabama, died last night at Tuskaloosa, Ala., where he has been ill for some time. Disease of the heart was the cause of death.

Governor Sanford has been in Tuskaloosa several weeks, having gone there to attend a meeting of the trustees of the state university. He had been ill since his inauguration as governor, but it was believed that immediate danger of death was passed. While in Tuskaloosa, however, his illness returned with renewed violence and he became so dangerously sick that the physicians feared to remove him to Montgomery. Monday Governor Sanford was thought to be improving, but grew worse and succumbed at 10:15 o'clock. He was 56 years of age and a native of Alabama. He had served in the state senate and in congress and held other important public offices. He was elected governor in August of last year and was inaugurated Dec. 1 last. Henry W. Jelks, president of the state senate, will succeed him as governor.

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis.—ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, May 24th, 1901.

On receiving and filing the petition of Eugenie Clement, of the county of St. Louis, representing, among other things, that Alfred Clement, late of the county of St. Louis, in the state of Minnesota, on the 15th day of May, A. D. 1901, at the county of St. Louis, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods chattels and estate within this county and that the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to said Eugenie Clement, granted.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court on the 25th day of June, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock a. m., at the probate office, in the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of four hundred and one and 50-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John O. Hole, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to H. Nordstrom, mortgagee, bearing date the eighth day of July, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Saint Louis and state of Minnesota, on the tenth day of July, 1890, at 4 o'clock p. m., in Book 43 of mortgages, on page 595.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said H. Nordstrom, mortgagee, to Wirt H. Cook, by written assignment dated the twentieth day of April, 1901, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds, on the sixth day of May, 1901, at 9 o'clock a. m., in Book 158 of mortgages, on page 12, said Wirt H. Cook being now the owner and owner of record thereof, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots one (1), two (2) and three (3), and northwest quarter of the northeast quarter (nw¼ of ne¼) of section eight (8), in township sixty-three (63) north of range seventeen (17) west, containing one hundred sixty-six and 55-100 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof, in Saint Louis County and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Saint Louis County, at the front door of the county court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the twenty-second day of June, 1901, at ten o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of four hundred one and 50-100 dollars, and interest and the taxes, if any, on said premises and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated May 8, A. D. 1901.

WEAKNESS OF JULY

That Was the Feature of the Wheat Market.

September Gained About One Cent on Nearby Option.

Slight Advance at Opening But Strength Was Temporary.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 12.—The wheat market started out with a fair degree of strength and at slightly advanced prices, owing to wheat at Liverpool being steady and ¼d higher, but it declined as soon as the slight demand was satisfied. The feature of all markets was the weakness of July as compared with September, the latter option gaining about 1c on the former. Primary receipts were 562,346 bus, last year 649,000. Shipments 288,000 bus, last year 167,000. Clearances of wheat and flour were 381,000 bus.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 287 cars, against 420 last week and 484 last year. Chicago receipts, 72 cars, none of contract grade.

Trading in futures was active on the Duluth board. July wheat opened ⅝c higher at 71⅛c, sold at 70c at 9:54, declined steadily to 69c at 10:20, advanced again to 70c at 12:15, sold down to 69⅝c at 12:35 and closed at 70c, a decline of ¾c. September advanced ¼c. In Chicago July declined ⅝-¾c and September advanced ⅜c. In Minneapolis July declined ½-⅝c and September was practically unchanged.

Corn was weak today in Chicago. There is no demand for corn in the Duluth market now and the price is not quoted. Primary receipts were 557,000 bus, last year 864,000. Shipments were 534,000 bus, last year 638,000. Clearances of corn were 291,000 bus. Flax was rather active again today and the new crop options were stronger. September advancing 1¼c and October 2c. Rye was off 1½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 72¾c; to arrive, 73c; July, 73c; September, 69½c. No. 1 northern, cash, 69¾c; to arrive, 70c; July, 70c; September, 68¼c. No. 2 northern, 64¾c. No. 3 spring, 60¾c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Steady Liverpool Cables Helped Wheat Somewhat.

Chicago, June 12.—Steady Liverpool cables helped wheat at the opening today. The demand was quickly satisfied, however, and the market rapidly declined. July opened ⅜@¾c higher at 71¾@71¾c, declined to 71c, rallied to 71¾c and then fell to 70¾c. At this price a disposition to take profits was manifested on the part of shorts and July rallied to 70⅝@70¾c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 287 cars, against 420 last week and 484 a year ago. Local receipts were 72 cars, none of contract grade.

July touched 70⅜@70¾, reacted to 70⅝ and closed weak ⅝@¾c lower at 70¼@70⅝.

Corn was dull, but steady. July opened a shade lower on favorable weather at 42⅝@42¾c, advanced to 43@43⅛c and reacted to the opening figure. Local receipts were 219 cars, 3 of contract grade.

July weakened finally on lack of demand to 42½. The close was easy, ½ lower at 42⅜.

Oats were moderately active and fairly steady. July opened ¼c higher to 27⅞c and declined to 27⅝@27¾c. Local receipts were 108 cars.

Better prices for hogs induced an improvement in provisions. July pork opened 12½c up at $14.50 and declined to $14.85. July lard opened 5c higher at $8.60. July ribs were not quoted.

Close, wheat, June 70c; July, 70¼@70⅝c; September, 69@69¼c. Corn, June, 41¾c; July, 42⅜c; September, 43½@43⅝. Oats, July, 27¼c; September, 25¾. Pork, June, $14.85; July, $14.85; September, $15.02½. Lard, July, $8.52½@8.55; September, $8.60@8.62½; October, $8.62½; November, $8.50; December, $8.50; January, $8.30. Ribs, June, $8.07½; July, $8.07½; September, $8.10@8.12½. MARKET GOSSIP.

Chicago, June 12.—Wheat—Liverpool ⅛@¼c higher. This market has been weak for July under continued liquidation by holders. There has been liberal covering of shorts, however, in September, induced by steadiness of cables. The weather continues favorable for the crops, being cool and moist in the Northwest and clear elsewhere. Foreigners are said to be good buyers of wheat, but mainly for September shipment. With liberal immediate supplies they are taking advantage of the discount on the futures, and this is likely to diminish the cash demand. We see no reason to change our recent views on the market. So long as crop prospects maintain their present promise, we see very little to maintain a bull market and think wheat should be sold on rallies. Estimated cars 55.

Corn—The market tone is heavy and price dragging. The weather continues favorable for the crop and the demand is poor. We see no indication of strong buying of concentrate holdings. A continued favorable weather we look for lower prices. Estimated cars 20.

Oats—The market is quiet and the tendency is easy. Nearly all the reports concerning the growing crops are to the effect that recent rains have much benefited the outlook. Speculative operations are featureless. We think the price will drag still lower.

Provisions— Steady to shade firmer. There was considerable outside speculation in buying early but the demand was met by profit-taking. Receipts of hogs 63,000, against 96,000.

NORTH DAKOTA CROPS.

Frost Damages Vegetables But Not Grain.

The following is the crop report for the North Dakota section of the climate and crop service for the week ending Monday last:

"At the close of the preceding week, heavy well distributed showers set in over the entire state, and continued at intervals during the past week; about two inches of rain on an average falling during that time, which revived all vegetation, that had been suffering more or less severely for the previous month, and gave the ground a thorough soaking. In the northern, and in fact, in most of the central portions of the state, there was quite a fall of snow, which soon melted and went into the ground. The rains and snow were followed on the 7th by a killing frost in nearly all parts of the state, so severe that it froze most of the corn, potatoes and gardens down, but did little or no damage to grain, except some early sown flax which was up.

"All grain, as a rule, looks very good, and is now growing rapidly. The rains were followed by cool weather, with light winds, and the most of the moisture that fell was absorbed by the ground. Wheat is stooling very well, and in several parts of the state where it was being crowded out by weeds, and especially the Russian thistle, they having been killed by frost, a clear field for grain remains.

"Cut worms are doing some damage in the northwesterin part of the state, and grasshoppers are also making their appearance in the Red and Missouri river valleys.

"Wheat, flax and other late grain had not been sown, but are waiting for rain, which is now needed in the ground as rapidly as possible, the condition of which for early germination of seed could not be better."

EIGHTEEN.

Fatalities In Mine Disaster Have Reached That Number.

West Newton, Pa., June 12.—The death of Harvey Beveridge, at the McKeesport hospital last night, brought the total number of fatalities of the Port Royal mine disaster up to eighteen. The last rescuing party entered the ill-fated mine shortly before midnight and explored it for a distance of 3000 feet. The body of David James was found. Another party will enter the mine.

Five bodies have been recovered since the first explosion. There are still thirteen bodies in the mine.

There is some talk of flooding the mine today. In that case the bodies will not be taken out for eighteen months or two years. The mine is rapidly filling with gas and the muffled reports of explosions can be heard every few minutes. Ropes were stretched to keep the crowds back, and warnings have been sent out notifying people residing in the vicinity that a heavy explosion, like an earthquake, may occur at any time and the hoist may be blown away. All property belonging to the company has been removed from the pit mouth.

BODY IDENTIFIED.

Headless Woman Was Mrs. Blondin of Boston.

Lowell, Mass., June 12.—The woman whose headless body was found in Chelmaford woods last Sunday, and whose head was found yesterday, was identified today as Mrs. Margaret Blondin, of Boston. The identification was made by Mrs. Margaret Casey, of Laurence, sister of Mrs. Blondin. The dead woman married Mr. Blondin, a French-Canadian mill operative last February. It is not known where the man is at present.

Mrs. Blondin had been missing since April. About two months ago she visited her sister at Lawrence. It was said she and her husband had separated because Blondin wanted her to accompany him on a trip to Canada and she declined to go.

After remaining with her sister a few days in April she came here. She was last seen in April. The next day Blondin said she had gone to Canada. He disappeared shortly after.

ANOTHER RASCAL.

Manila, June 12.—Lieut. Henry T. Mitchell of the 41st regiment, has been arrested and tried by court martial on the charge of embezzlement; at Bacolor $277 of public fund.

Remember O-at-ka dance this evening.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Higher Prices at Opening But a Decline Came Later.

Sharp Relapses In United States Steel and Other Stocks.

Business Semi-Stagnant and Close Very Dull and Heavy.

New York, June 12.—Rumors of peace in South Africa again caused higher prices in London today and was an influence here at the opening. Missouri Pacific and Pennsylvania were features, 5000 shares of the former selling at 122½ to 123, compared with 121 last night, and 3000 shares of the latter selling at 151¾ to 151¾, compared with 151 last night. Amalgamated Copper, St. Paul, Sugar, St. Louis Southwestern preferred and Denver & Rio Grande preferred were up about a point.

Spasmodic advances in various parts of the list did not enliven the general trading, business contracting greatly. Missouri Pacific fell to 122 but rallied to 123½. Denver & Rio Grande rose 1½ for common and 1⅜ for the preferred. Sugar broke o ⅞c under yesterday's close, got back to above parity and took the down grade again. American Car common rose ⅞, preferred 1¾. Rock Island 2½. Pacific Coast second preferred 2. Colorado Fuel 1⅜ and Baltimore & Ohio a point. On the other hand Tennessee Coal and the Linseed issues were 1@2 points off. Pennsylvania continued upward, touching a level 1½ above last night and Reading first made gains. Lead advanced 1¼ and preferred 4, while Amalgamated Copper lost about 2. At 11 o'clock speculation was feverish and prices were moving irregularly.

Pennsylvania assumed the leadership of the market and on the absorption of thousands of shares the stock worked up to 153½. The buoyancy of this property was without a beneficial effect on other active stocks, moderate offerings causing sharp relapses in Atchison, Louisville, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, United States Steel. There were substantial gains in some minor railroads and specialties and the general market felt more acutely than of late, the absence of inside support. The traction stocks moved up a point or more before noon, and American Cotton Oil suddenly jumped 2¾. Denver & Rio Grande preferred gained 2½ and Colorado Fuel 3½ altogether. Bonds were dull and irregular.

Colorado Fuel touched 115 at the last hour and fell back to 106¾. The drop of prices elsewhere was seemingly from inanition as there was no urgent pressure to sell and business was in a semi-stagnant condition. American Sugar fell 3 below the last sale and there were sharp gains in some obscure industrials. Minneapolis & St. Louis dropped 2, due to disappointment over the unchanged dividend. The closing was intensely dull and heavy.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 12.—Cotton opened quiet, unchanged to 2 points lower, but rallied on a scare of immediately turned stop and brisk demand for near month shorts and prices rose to 8.28, the highest outside account. July rose to 8.28, the highest in weeks. August advanced to 7.68 While steady the new crop months advanced but little, the trade being bearish owing to unfavorable weather news and continued improvement in the tenor of crop accounts. SMART GOWNS OF LINEN AND DUCK

New York, June 11.—Gowns of linen and duck that can be satisfactorily laundered are the only ones favored by sensible women, for no process of dry cleaning and no amount of treatment with gasoline will ever prove desirable substitutes for the regulation laundering. When a summer costume is designed and trimmed in such a fashion that it cannot withstand the effects of a bath of soap and water then some other material than these favorite fabrics should be selected. The charm and the comfort of a duck gown or a linen suit lies mainly in the fact that it can be practically made equal to new and come forth fresh and dainty again after a visit to the laundry. For this reason the attempt at trimming costumes of this kind with bands of silk does not meet with the approval of women of taste. The end that is aimed for by exclusive people is elegance as found in tasteful designs and fine work. The handsomest linen costumes made this season show embroidery worked with the fabric, and are made on exceedingly simple lines. Polka dots are favorites and are freely used. A charming costume, tailor made, is of white duck with dots in old blue embroidery cotton, worked on the collar and cuffs and forming a band for the skirt. Others in blue, gray and tan, are similarly treated with white and in some instances the design of the needlework becomes more elaborate. Less costly models show embroidery applied in bands and the handsome Russian and Arab laces en applique, but not a hint of any permanent adjunct that cannot be laundered with certain success. Graceful silk scarfs are used for closing many of the Etons, but this is a mater of individual taste and the scarfs are easily removed.

Natural colored linen is very fashionable and white duck, both plain and mercerized, is much liked. Mercerized linen is also a favorite and duck is to be found in tans, blues, grays and exceedingly handsome mixtures, while mercerized colored ducks are very smart. One of the newest linens is less gray than yellowish in tone and is woven in a tiny cord that suggests poplin. Linen canvas with its open mesh, finds many admirers among well-dressed women. The Eton is a favorite jacket, both fitted and in the jaunty box form, but numberless costumes are made with bodies cut in blouse or shirt waist style, with bishop sleeves, and by many are preferred to the jacket. Skirt suits take a multitude of forms, but uniformly flare with all possible freedom about the feet and fit with absolute snugness at the upper portion. The objectionable habit back, which was threatened earlier in the season, has met with little success, but inverted plaits are pressed flat and gores are fitted with precision. A few skirts with the absolutely plain upper portion have appeared, but women of good taste prefer the flat plaits that fit smoothly yet allow freedom of movement and provide graceful folds below.

A LAVENDER LOUISINE MODEL.

A Dainty Waist In the New Louisine Silk With Embroidery and Lace.

This dainty waist of the new soft louisine silk is elaborately tucked and embroidered in black. The neckpiece is of the same with chiffon and lace edge.

Flounces of all sorts are a feature. Those for heavier goods are of the circular sort, which means flare without fullness above. While it cannot truthfully be said that flounces are universal they finish the greater number of gowns. Plain skirts, no matter how carefully cut, can give no such sweep and folds about the feet, and these are the requirements of the hour. Those women who must needs gain every possible inch in height looks askance at flounces and cling to the plain gores with their unbroken lines, but their tall sisters revel in flounces. Whether the upper portion shall be three, five or sevengored or circular depends entirely upon individual taste. A leading designer remarked a day or two ago: "Every cut seems to me to be in style, the question is how to be select and to find something novel." The day when one skirt and one alone was worn belongs to the remote past. Women now require too many sorts of costumes and have grown to completely accustomed to variety to consent to being hampered in any such way. While certain tendencies are fixed, every latitude possible is allowed within these lines. There are no marked departures from prevailing styles, but a narrow limit has assuredly been outgrown. The newest Etons take the box form. Many wearers claim that this style is the best for all washable fabrics, as it is less likely to lose it shape.

An exceedingly handsome and really chic blouse or shirt waist suit is of natural linen, woven with the poplin cord. The skirt is five-gored, with a graduated circular flounce, above which is a band embroidered with white polka dots. The bodice is a shirt waist, with a shield and sailor collar, made with bishop sleeves. Collar and cuffs are all embroidered, while the shield and stock are of tucked white batiste. With it are worn various belts and ties, but soft white taffeta, held by a clasp at the waist and making a broad tie knotted, or four-in-hand fashion with flowing ends, where the sailor collar mets is most appropriate and effective. A still simpler model is made with two circular frills on the skirt, and a plain waist or blouse. In this instance the color is old blue, and the trimming stitched bands of white which edge and head the frills, make the cuffs, stock collar and belt. An exceedingly handsome mixture has a tan ground with lines of red and dull, soft blue. The skirt is cut in five gores, with only the slightly full flounce known as the band, while the bodice is a box Eton, and beneath it are worn white waists of various sorts. The jacket is a tiny, jaunty affair that is short enough to reveal a generous bit of the waist. The back is plain, but the front falls in plaits and the neck is finished with a sailor collar. The line of red in the linen has supplied the motive for the trimming. Pipings of red finish every edge, and beneath the collar is a scarf of red taffeta that is knotted and holds the jacket in place. A pale blue rival is made with blouse and flounced skirt and shows trimming of white bands embroidered with delicate half-faded colors in a charming floral design. The bands are exquisite, and, whileth e work is not executed in the fabric of the gown, the effect is quite charming enough to satisfy the most exacting taste. The more costly embroidery must of necessity be rare and while it is seldom done by hand it must be made specially for each gown, as the workers who make a specialty of this kind of embroidery refuse to accept an order for less than nine yards. This means considerable outlay. Hand work would, of course, be still more costly, but that is seldom seen, except when sents little actual outlay in cash. Its owner is an expert needlewoman and found greater pleasure in beautifying her gown than in the regulation fancy work, but were her labor to be estimated at market rates the figures would prove somewhat astonding. The bodice is a shirt waist arranged in groups of tucks between each of which is a pointed strip of embroidery. The skirt is made with a flounce, the edge of which is worked and headed by an embroidered band. In common with all gowns made on similar lines it has the merit of being complete without the jacket, which is a requisite of the Eton suits, but many women prefer the jackets, nevertheless, as they give one a comfortable sense of wearing a wrap out of doors, while, in reality, they are scarcely warmer over the thin waists than are the closed blouses of the heavier material.

Needlework is an undoubted feature of the summer gowns both here and abroad. Latest advices from Paris state that such trimming is seen upon all the handsomest gowns. For the washable sort French cotton is the medium preferred when the work is done for or on the gown, and bands that can be purchased by the yard are best when the work is done with this same thread, as it endures laundering far better than any other sort, except the Oriental, but are shown in various materials. Oriental embroideries are always durable and are exceedingly well adapted to these linen gowns for the reason that they are obtainable on linen fabrics. Bulgarian bands are beautiful on the background of natural linen and can be relied upon to outlast the gown, as the material and colors are such as will endure. Linen canvas with bands of Oriental embroidery and trimming of Arabian lace produces an uncommonly harmonious effect.

Plain suits, those designed for hard usage and morning occasions are many. They are quite plain, trimmed only with stitched bands of the material. A stylish model in brown holland is made with a deep circular flounce and a blouse with a big sailor collar. The flounce is headed by a band, while graduated pointed bands run down from the bands, over the flounce, at intervals, entirely round the skirt. The collar is edged with a stitched band. There are bands for the cuffs, and the shield is linen stitched in horizontal lines. A soft tie and belt of black accompanies this costume.

Silk finished linen is exceedingly handsome, as is duck treated in the same way. In fact, all linen and cotton fabrics have been improved until their beauty is beyond question. Silk is no longer considered the only possible fabric for formal occasions in warm weather. These linen, duck and pique suits fill a need on torrid days that nothing else quite supplies. Fine, dainty cottons are held far more chic for summer than silk of any sort, although the lovely Oriental sorts and the beautiful foulards are not entirely displaced. As a consequence of our backward and unpleasant spring, the weather prophets predict an intensely hot summer. If this prediction be fulfilled, these gowns of linen and cotton stuffs that can be relied upon as being both correct and smart, and that can be sent to the laundry, to come forth fresh and dainty once again will, indeed, prove a boon.

Silent Sufferers

West Lebanon, Ind., March 28, 1900.

I have suffered for years with female trouble and have had five of the best doctors in the country, but found no relief until I tried your Wine of Cardui, which has done wonders for me. I will gladly recommend it to any lady. I owe my gratitude to your good medicine. EMMA JOHNSON.

It is astonishing how many apparently healthy women there are who suffer in secret. Even their nearest friends do not know how little life means to them. If you are a silent sufferer Miss Johnson's testimonial should be full of encouragement for you. Her case ran along for years, before she took Wine of Cardui. But she soon secured relief from those terrible dragging pains which were saddening her life. Miss Davis waited ten years before taking which made her "feel like a new woman". Female suffering is playing havoc with women, making them faded and old before their time. It will do that for you if you don't stop the trouble. Why do you suffer another day? Your pain is unnecessary. Delay invites dangerous complications which soon become incurable. Ask your druggist for a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui and secure complete relief by taking it in the privacy of your own home.

Robberson, Ind. Ter., Mar. 23, 1900.

I have been in bad health for about ten years and consulted with doctors but they did me no good. After using two bottles of Wine of Cardui and two packages of Thedford's Black-Draught I feel like a new woman. LAURA DAVIS.

VICE PRESIDENT.

Of the Ladies Aid Society Elopes With a Youth.

Bellefontaine, Ohio, June 12.—Claude S. Southard, a recent high school graduate, and Miss Mae Defress, prominent in local society circles, were secretly married last Saturday night, and departed ostensibly for Columbus, leaving two brief notes to inform their parents of the event. They did not state when they would return. The bride is the Ohio vice president of the Ladies' Aid society of the Sons of Veterans. It is stated that plans for the elopement were made at the alumni reception held here Friday evening, when the groom, who is under age, arranged to secure the license.

Practical Suggestions About What to Eat and How to Prepare Food.

This matter will be found to be entirely different from and superior to the usual run of food articles, in that every item is a nugget of culinary wisdom and eminently practical.

FIRST VOLUME.

Conducted by Lida Ames Willis, Marquette Building, Chicago, to whom all inquiries should be addressed.

All rights reserved by Banning Co., Chicago.

MEATS THAT GROW IN THE SPRING.

Fortunately or unfortunately for us, we are allowed unlimited indulgence in the selection of our foods, and may humor our fickle fancy to the fullest extent, until a final day of reckoning may overtake us for reckless indulgence. There are some few whose tastes do not vary materially and whose appetites do not falter and grow weary of certain kinds of foods. To them a restricted diet is no hardship, and they are satisfied if beef and potatoes constitute the principal features of their sustenance the year round, so long as there is plenty of these foods.

The same element of "divine discontent" that rules the actions of the typical American seems to govern the appetite as well, and there are few who do not desire that the "old order changeth" in the springtime at least.

NEW MEATS.

While nature has not so far yielded to our humor as to produce a new meat, unless we make an exception of Belgian hares, there are certain kinds of meats which custom has adopted as best suited to the spring and early summer. These are lamb, veal and spring chicken. While we may very reasonably question the wholesomeness of very young lamb and veal, the fact remains that both are eaten in considerable quantities. No food in the first and undeveloped stages is fit to be eaten, least of all the animal. Veal should be, of all meat of young animals, well grown and well fed on milk before it is used.

The meat should be of a decidedly bright and clear pinkish color. If too undeveloped it is decidedly indigestible and often causes great distress if eaten by children and debilitated persons.

Added to this danger, we seldom find a cook who realizes that all young meats require very thorough cooking, especially veal. Well-grown lamb may have a faint tinge of pink in the center of the roast, but only when developed into full-grown mutton should it have that stamp of skillfully cooked joint, the "blush" that faintly appears on the carving of each juicy slice.

UNDERDONE VEAL.

Veal, on the other hand, must show not the faintest sign of color and should slice very like the white, well roasted meat of turkey, rather dry and crumbly. This insures that the meat is suitable for digestion and that the cooking has been properly done. As we have so often stated, it is not the use of any substance provided for food of man, but the abuse of these substances that makes them harmful. While some foods are known to disagree with a large majority of people and investigation proves that it were better to eliminate them from our dietary, if facts gathered by authorities will not be generally accepted and many prefer to try Mark Twain's mushroom test in order to satisfy themselves of the truth of the theories as regards themselves, the only alternative is to work on the theory that what is one man's poison is another man's meat, and that toadstools may possibly agree with exceptional individuals if properly cooked.

Therefore, if you will eat veal, select the meat of well-grown calf and cook it thoroughly.

We must acknowledge that veal is to be preferred as a warm weather meat to the flesh of the mature animal. It is more delicate in flavor, odor and more inviting in appearance, and may be prepared in many ways if one finds the meat not unsuited for their digestion.

Veal and lamb are far from being cheap meats, as they contain a very limited amount of nutrition.

SELECTING VEAL.

Good veal is slightly reddish or pink and the fat is clear and white; veal that is too young or not in good condition has very little fat. As the meat in various parts of the same animal differs in composition and digestibility, as well as flavor, it is well to understand which parts are best for roasting and which for cooking by other methods.

The leg, which generally includes part of the flank, is used for cutlets and roasts. The loin for roasts and chops.

The flank separated from the leg is nice made into a roll and baked or stewed. The ribs under the shoulder may be roasted, but are generally used for chops and stews.

The breast is best in stews, pot-pie and for baking. The shoulder is used for roasting or baked dishes. The neck, which is really the most nutritious part of the animal, may be used for broths and stews. The knuckle may be used in a stew, but usually goes into the stock pot when clear white stock is desired, while the feet are used for jelly.

The head is also utilized for soup, scallop and head cheese.

THE SPRING LAMB.

The spring lamb proper, which is from six weeks to three months old, is simply divided into fore and hind quarters by a middle cut, which leaves several ribs attached to the hind quarter. This brings the highest price, as it gives the greatest amount of meat, but the fore quarter of shoulder is superior in flavor. Lamb is not called mutton until it is a year old, and is sold as lamb from spring until late winter.

As the lamb grows older chops are cut from both fore and hind quarter; the former are called rib chops and the latter loin chops or cutlets, as they are taken from the leg.

Small sheep are frequently dressed and served as lamb, but the difference can readily detected by the darker color of the meat, much smaller quantity of fat and white color and hardness of the bones, those of young lamb being reddish and rather transparent. The flesh of prime lamb has a delicate rosy tint and there is an abundance of firm, white back and kidney fat. In the second quality of meat the flesh is darker and less firm, the grain coarser and fat less abundant and not so white.

When the fat is scarce and of yellowish tint and the lean meat soft and flabby, it is poor.

Do not buy spring lamb if you wish to study economy closely, as it does not pay to get a second quality and observing the rule, "the more fat the better the meat," which holds true of mutton as well as lamb, you are paying for considerable waste material. Mutton fat should not be thrown away. It is excellent, however, for many toilet purposes.

ROASTING VEAL.

Remember that no meat requires more careful and thorough cooking than veal. Roast beef and mutton should be served with as little condiment as possible, but veal requires considerable seasoning to make it savory. To cook veal sufficiently to render it perfectly digestible requires a full half hour to each pound. Care must be taken that it does not burn before it is done, and it should be basted often and be a bright rich brown and well glazed when it comes from the oven. A moderate oven is required.

ROASTED SHOULDER OF VEAL STUFFED.

Have your butcher remove bone from shoulder, cut off the knuckle part, which may be used for stock with the bones from the shoulder. Fill the cavity from which the blade bone was taken with plain bread stuffing, seasoned with salt, pepper and herbs, or a good veal forcemeat; fasten well with skewers; dredge it with pepper and flour, lay slices of pork or bits of nice beef suet over it and roast in a moderately hot oven, half an hour to each pound. Serve with plain boiled macaroni and brown sauce, or a brown sauce with fresh mushrooms may be served.

VEAL STUFFING.

Put two cups of coarse bread crumbs into a bowl; add two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley, two tablespoonfuls of powdered thyme and marjoram mixed in equal quantities, a very little grated lemon peel and juice of half a lemon, a teaspoonful of salt, sixth of a teaspoonful of pepper, and quarter of a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. Moisten with melted butter or add quarter of a pound of finely minced suet.

If suet is used, bind the dressing together with the yolks of two eggs.

ROAST LAMB.

Lamb requires to be very thoroughly cooked. A leg weighing four or five pounds will bake an hour and a half. When covered with the skin it may be rubbed thoroughly with salt, as the juices cannot draw out. Baste frequently, and half an hour before done remove the skin and dredge the meat with flour, sprinkle with a little salt and brown nicely. Serve with mint sauce.

INQUIRIES ANSWERED.

(No attention paid to inquiries not giving name and address of writer plainly written).

Mrs. R. C., writes: Will you kindly publish the recipe for making English raised pork pie?

ENGLISH RAISED PORK PIES.

The following recipe is the famous Mrs. Beeton's little raised pork pies. The same may be used for large pie. Take two pounds of flour, half a pound of butter, half a pound of mutton suet, salt and pepper to taste, four pounds of the neck of pork and a dessert spoon of powdered sage. Well dry the flour, mince the suet, add a little salt and put these into a saucepan to be made hot, mix, and when melted, mix up into a stiff paste. Cover and put it before the gre until ready to make up. Cut the pork into small pieces; season well with salt and pepper and the powdered sage. Divide the paste into rather small pieces (if for small pies) and raise in a round oval form, fill in with the meat, having fat and lean in alternate layers, pour in a little water, cover and bake. Unless you have the old-fashioned brick oven in which these pies were always baked, it is advisable to partially cook the meat in as little water as possible before filling the crusts, or the pork will not be done. For the small pies have a quicker heat, so they will not soak; one hour and a half is the time given in brick oven.

BAKED INDIAN MEAL PUDDING.

Mrs. M. A. S., writes: Will you please send me recipe for a baked Indian meal pudding, such as our grandmothers used to make on washing or ironing days? I have several recipes and enjoy them very much, especially the old recipes of our mothers.

Heat a quart of milk to boiling point; add half a teaspoonful of salt and sift in a small cup of Indian meal. Boil ten minutes and then remove from the fire and add another quart of milk; let cool and when lukewarm add two eggs well beaten, a large cup of sugar, a cup of seeded raisins and a little grated nutmeg. Pour into heated pudding dish, add a lump of butter and bake in moderately hot oven for three hours; when the top is nicely browned brush with butter and sift with sugar. Serve hot with cream.

DANDELION WINE.

Mrs. M. D. S., writes: Will you kindly send me a recipe for dandelion wine; also recipes for dishes marked in inclosed menus?

Gather two quarts of dandelion blossoms without stems, as these will make the wine bitter. Pour one gallon of boiling water over the blossoms and let stand in a stone crock three days and nights. Then strain from the blossoms and add three pounds of white sugar, two sliced lemons and two oranges. Boil for five minutes. Then cool, when lukewarm add one tablespoonful of good yeast, put into a jug to ferment, filling the jug full so that it can run out as it ferments, filling up with the remainder, if any is left from filling the jug the first time. If not, use sugar and water, as jug must be kept full during fermentation. In about six weeks rack off and put into bottles. Cork tightly and place bottles on their sides in a dark place.

Recipes from menu will be given in later issue, as space will not permit publishing them in this edition.

ONE DOLLAR EACH.

Given By Pastor to Babes He Baptizes.

Reading, Pa., June 12.—Rev. Dr. Richard Harcourt, pastor of the People's Methodist church, had a crowded audience Sunday, as the result of his offer to present a one-dolar gold piece to every child brought to him for baptism. Nine mothers with babes in their arms presented their children who were baptized. Six todlers then walked up and had the ceremony performed. In the palm of each Dr. Harcourt pressed a one-dollar-gold coin for a moment, and then handed it to an officer of the church, who will deposit it in the bank, where it will draw interest and compound interest until the candidate is of age.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

SAFE—As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

It is hereby certified, that at the regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the Olean Land Company, held at the office of said company in the city of Duluth, in the state of Minnesota, on the third day of June, A. D. nineteen hundred and one, at which were present in person, or represented by duly executed proxy, the holders of more than two-thirds of the capital stock of said company, it was duly and unanimously resolved as follows:

"That article third and article seventh of the articles of incorporation of the Olean Land Company, be amended, so as to read as follows, respectively:

Third: The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000), of which amount seventy thousand dollars ($70,000) having been heretofore paid in, the remainder thereof, to-wit: Eighty thousand dollars ($80,000) shall be paid at such time or times and in such manner as the board of directors may require.

Seventh: The number and amount of shares in the capital stock of said corporation shall be fifteen hundred shares of the par value of one hundred dollars each."

It is further certified that at a regular meeting of the directors of said corporation held at the office of said company in the city of Duluth, in the state of Minnesota, on the third day of June A. D. 1901, and subsequent to the aforesaid action of the stockholders of said corporation, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, viz:

"That article third and article seventh of the articles of incorporation of the Olean Land Company be amended, so as to read as follows, respectively:

"Third: The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000), of which amount seventy thousand dollars ($70,000) having been heretofore paid in, the remainder there of to-wit: Eighty thousand dollars ($80,000) shall be paid at such time or times and in such manner as the board of directors may require.

"Seventh: The number and amount of shares in the capital stock of said corporation shall be fifteen hundred shares of the par value of one hundred dollars each."

In witness whereof, the said Olean Land Company has caused these presents to be subscribed and sworn to by its president and its secretary, and has caused its corporate seal to be hereto affixed this 3d day of June, A. D. 1901.

OLEAN LAND COMPANY,
(Corporate Seal.)
By GILES GILBERT,
President.
Attest: FRANK S. SMITH,
Secretary.

In presence of—
C. d'Autremont, Jr.,
James Wanless.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF ST. LOUIS—SS.

Giles Gilbert and Frank S. Smith being each duly sworn, depose, and say: that the said Giles Gilbert is the president, and the said Frank S. Smith is the secretary of the Olean Land Company; that the foregoing certificate by them subscribed contains a true statement of the action of the stockholders of said corporation at the regular annual meeting thereof, as set forth in said certificate, and also of the action of the board of directors of said corporation, as set forth in said certificate, whereby at the times and place therein indicated, it was resolved to amend the articles of association of said corporation as is set forth in said certificate. That the seal attached to said instrument is the corporate seal of the said corporation.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 3d day of June, A. D. 1901.

COURT DEATH

Rescuing Party Enters Burning Mine.

May Be Blown to Pieces at Any Moment.

Port Royal, Pa., June 13.—Another exploring party started into the burning mine at 7:30 a. m., in an effort to recover the bodies of the men who are below. The party was composed of ten men. As the mine is full of gas and more explosions are liable to occur at any time, the rescuers simply are courting death.

At 3:40 a. m. the seventh explosion occurred. It was caused by the gas igniting from the fire below and it is expected other explosions will follow today.

Inspector Dixon, who headed the party this morning, is confident that he will be able to recover some of the bodies. The party went down in two sections and as each cage was lowered, the crowd on the outside of the ropes gave a cheer and many fervent "Godspeeds" were said.

The inquest on the bodies of those taken out Tuesday was resumed today.

DANCERS IN TORNADO

Wind Picks Up Granary In Which Was a Party of Young People and Dashes It Against a Barn.

St. Paul, June 13.—A Lamberton, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: Reports have just been received that during the storm of Tuesday, in Redwood county, the new granary of Fred Schultz, in Waterbury township, in which a large party of young people were enjoying a social dance, was demolished. The storm carried away the granary, with five of the dancers, who had been unable to escape. The granary struck one corner of the barn, wrecking both buildings. John Nolting had a leg broken. John Bittner and Charley Long were knocked unconscious and badly bruised. Ida Bittner was severely bruised, and Christ Nolting had severe injuries to his head by a blow from a timber. None will die, although John Nolting is severely injured. A number of buildings were destroyed by the same storm at Echo, Revere and Sundown, and additional reports of further damage are coming in.

GEN. CAILLES DECLINES

Insurgent Leader Will Not Surrender as He Believes He Can Hold Out Now That Rainy Season Has Begun.

Manila, June 13.—The trial of H. W. Happle, port steward of the commissary department, charged with receiving, in monthly installments, money from a stevedoring company, began today. The defense is that the money received was salary for extra services. The alleged transactions appear on the company's books, and it is claimed that Happle figures under an assumed name.

D. M. Carman, the former Californian, who was arrested in February last on the charge of furnishing supplies to aid the insurgents, but whose prosecution was abandoned last month, is going to the United States shortly and has asked for the return of $10,000 paid as security for his appearance when summoned for trial. Gen. MacArthur has declined to order the return of the money; probably it will be returned after the insurrection is over.

Gen. Sumner has returned here and has reported to Gen. Wade the failure of negotiations for the surrender of Cailles, the insurgent leader in Laguna province. The Filipino apparently believes he can hold out, now that the rainy season has begun.

Disappointment is felt here at the backward conditions in Southern Luzon. Some insurgent camps have been discovered and destroyed. Lieut. Cowan with a detachment of fifty men killed five insurgents near Joselar.

Admiral Kirchoff of the German navy, who is on his way to Australia and China, called on Gen. MacArthur and the United States Philippine commissioners today.

The island of Paragua has been occupied by the Tenth infantry. The Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-second and Thirty-third batteries of coast artillery will probably go home June 20, on the transport Indiana.

SEVERELY CONDEMNED

Report of British Transvaal Concessions Committee Said to Be High Handed and Denying Private Property Rights.

Berlin, June 13.—The report of the British Transvaal concessions committee is severely condemned here by the whole press as being high handed and denying private property rights in war, against the practice and theory of all civilized countries. The correspondent of the Associated Press learns from a reliable source that the German government has instructed the Germany embassy in London to protest against the gross wrong meditated against a large number of German stockholders in the Netherlands-South African railroad whenever it appears certain, or even likely, that the British government will adopt the committee's report. Germany takes the ground that the German stockholders have an undoubted right to full compensation from Great Britain for the shares. Germany recalls her own proceeding after the war of 1870-71, when she purchased at a high price the French Eastern railroad in Alsace-Loraine, although the road aided France in every possible manner during the war. The society formed here for the protection of German stockholders of the Transvaal railroad says steps have already been taken to compel Great Britain to do stockholders justice.

TURBINE BOAT.

The Viper Makes an Excellent Showing.

London, June 13.—The Naval and Military Record, commenting upon the three weeks' trial of the British turbine torpedo boat destroyer Viper, which was conducted under regular service conditions, and during which she developed a speed of 30½ knots, and was pronounced capable of going 31, says her coal consumption was enormous at top speed, which, the paper adds, militates against the plan which the Dover-Calais company is now maturing, to build two turbine channel steamers and reduce the time of crossing between England and France to thirty-five minutes. The Viper trial was pronounced to be completely satisfactory. Although she was handled by an inexperienced crew, she showed a remarkable immunity from breaking down. The Viper was steady in all weathers.

VARIOUS TOPICS.

Discussed at Session of Industrial Convention.

Philadelphia, June 13.—Topics of national interest were discussed at the third day's session of the industrial convention. One of the most important was, "Can the Nicaragua Canal be Built." Many arguments were advanced in favor of the speedy construction of the waterway. "The Mississippi River and Tributaries" and "How Our River and Harbors Should be Provided For," also were discussed.

WOODMEN PARADE

One of Most Beautiful Processions Seen In St. Paul.

Business of Convention Suspended to Allow Members to March.

St. Paul, June 13.—The Modern Woodmen of America held no business session today, all delegates and visiting members joining in the grand parade of this morning. The parade was one of the finest ever seen in this city of conventions and the day was one of the most beautiful Minnesota June days. The showy uniforms of the teams, the floats, carriages and marching men constituted a most pleasing spectacle. The parade formed at Western avenue, in the residence district, and swinging round on Summit headed down that handsome avenue, turning down Sixth street through the business section, past the Ryan hotel where the reviewing stand had been placed, and finally disbanding at Eighth and Broadway.

Governor Van Sant, Mayor Smith, of St. Paul, Mayor Ames, of Minneapolis, and other distinguished guests were with the head men of the Woodmen on the stand. The parade was headed by Capt. G. S. Holmes, chief marshal, followed by Head Consul Northcott, Maj. Hawes, Gen. Mitchell and the encampment staff. Following were the uniformed foresters from Camp Northcott under Gen. Liggett. The camps of the different states were led by their drill teams and bands and followed by state floats. The Kansas girls' band led that delegation. The Whaleback camp from West Superior had a float of a miniature whaleback vessel. The Rock Island camp represented the Woodman head office in miniature. The Royal Neighbors, the sister society of the Woodmen, rode in carriages and on floats, dressed in colors of their order, purple and white.

WOMEN

Are Insured on Exactly the Same Terms as Men.

New York, June 13.—For some time past the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York has been making no distinction between male and female risks. It now insures women whose applications show them to be desirable risks, on exactly the same terms as men. More than that, hereafter the sexes are to stand on an equality in getting employment in all the offices of the company. The Mutual Life has returned more than five hundred and forty millions ($540,478,810.44) to policy holders, and carried the sunlight of comfort to hundreds of thousands of grief darkened homes. No other company has approached this sum. The broad liberality of the management of the Mutual Life is bringing a volume of new business unequalled in its previous history.

WILL AID MACHINISTS.

American Federation of Labor Promises Support.

New York, June 13.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has made this announcement to the Washington correspondent of the Herald:

"The American Federation of Labor will aid the International Association of Machinists in every way within its power in its contest for the nine-hour day."

RESCINDED.

Washington Masons Will Not Recognize Negro Masons.

Tacoma, June 13.—The grand lodge of Masons have rescinded the resolution, adopted two years ago, recognizing negro Masonry. The action of the lodge at that time was severely criticised all over the United States and, as a result, the next session of the grand lodge attempted to return to the old established principles, but the resolution was so artfully drawn that sisters lodges refused to construe it as an honest expression. The lodge has now, in unmistakeable language, made its position known.

M'ARTHUR COMING SOON.

Manila, June 13.—Gov. Gen. MacArthur expects to leave on July 1 for the United States. He will sail on the transport Meade for Nagasaki and after spending two weeks there will embark on the transport Sheridan for San Francisco.

HORSE INJURED.

New York, June 13.—Commando, James R. Keene's great colt, stepped on a stone while galloping Monday and bruised one of his heels so badly that he will not start in the Brooklyn derby today.

IN TERROR

Frightened Negroes Await Their Doom.

Surrounded By Mob Eager to Lynch Them.

Shreveport, La., June 13.—Latest reports from the Foster plantation where John Gray Foster was murdered yesterday, say a dozen or more frightened negroes are still cowering in the Kinnebrew store surrounded by a big mob which threatens every moment to lynch the whole party. Prince Edwards, the negro who is charged with having fired the fatal shot has not been apprehended, however, and it is the desire to get him that has restrained the mob thus far. Bloodhounds are being used on his trail, but so far as known, he has eluded pursuit.

The mob includes nearly every man and boy for miles around. Most of them are armed. Rifles, pistols, shotguns, guns that saw service in the civil war, and even pitchforks, make up the array of weapons.

The negroes imprisoned in the store are frantic with fright. They are "officially" in the hands of the authorities, but they realize that their real captors are the members of the white mob which has guarded every avenue of escape since yesterday.

Foster was a young man, a brother-in-law of Gov. McMillan, of Tennessee, and a member of one of the leading families of Louisiana.

The negroes were placed in the store at 9 o'clock last night, and, although some members of the mob went home during the night, every avenue of escape was still doubly guarded at sunrise today. It is said that several times the mob came near throwing off all restraint and lynching the prisoners. Other counsel, advising delay until Edwards shall be caught prevailed, however. Mrs. Edwards is among those arrested. She had in her possession a shotgun with which her husband is said to have killed Foster. She is quoted as having said:

"Prince told the other men to stand back and he would settle the business. Then he went in front of them and fired and Foster fell."

Foster's plantation is five miles east of this city, on the Vicksburg, Shreveport & Pacific railway. Trouble has been brewing for some time between the negroes and the overseers. Foster, thinking he could suceed where the overseers had failed, started for the negro quarters yesterday. The negroes were gathered in a cabin, and he was some distance away when the shot which killed him was fired. The negroes immediately scattered. All but Edwards were quickly captured.

Shreveport, La., June 13, 10 a. m.—Up to this hour no news has reached this city which would indicate that the mob surrounding more than a dozen negroes in Kinnebrews' store, near the Foster plantation, where John Gray Foster was shot down yesterday by one of his colored employes, has carried out the threats of summary justice.

Early in the day sixty men from Shreveport returned to their homes declaring they did not care to witness the scenes of bloodshed which they considered certain to develop.

It was considered remarkable today that the night passed without a shot having been fired. Armed men were, and still are, in much evidence and the scenes brought to mind the days of reconstruction, when Shreveport was the "head-center" of the White league movement.

"Prophet" Smith, the negro exhorter, is generally believed to have been largely responsible for the murder on the Foster plantation and he is marked for particular vengeance by the members of the mob should they decide upon a plan.

Edwards is still at large. He is supposed to be hiding on a plantation and people are actively searching for him.

Ten colored men and women prisoners have been marched from the Bossier City jail to the Kennebrew store, where they were placed with the other suspects. They were frightened almost out of their wits and made no resistance.

A negro named Washington, who is charged with having assisted Edwards to escape, together with Edwards' wife, will, it is declared, be lynched, no matter what fate may befall the others.

ALLEGED ARMY FRAUDS

Gen. Shafter Thinks the Goods Found In San Francisco Were Sold By Soldiers Passing Through That City.

San Francisco, June 13.—Speaking of the alleged extensive frauds in disposing of military supplies supposed to have been stolen, Gen. Shafter said:

"I am of the opinion that the goods found by the police were purchased from the soldiers passing in and out of this port. More than 60,000 men have passed through this port during the war. If one man in every ten of these soldiers sold to dealers a pair of shoes, 600 pairs would thus be placed in the hands of outsiders. The same rule applies to shirts and blankets.

"Notwithstanding the fact that those having government property wrongfully in their possession can be prosecuted on a charge of felony and given a sentence of from one to five years confinement, there are plenty of men willing to take the chance. The goods are first class and can be purchased from the soldiers at a ridiculously low figure.

"Soldiers can be prevented from selling the stuff. In disposing of it he leaves himself short. The officer who issued to the men inquires as to the quantity of goods he has in his possession. If the officer thinks he is amply supplied and refuses to issue the goods the soldier asks for, in this manner the enlisted man is prevented from drawing more than he needs.

"In my opinion the police and federal authorities are exposing a system of petty thieving. Owing to the large number of men these petty dealers have had opportunity to deal with, their thievery has grown to larger proportions than it otherwise would have.

"The military authorities have now nothing to do with the affair, other than the seizure of government goods found in the possession of civilians, the possession of which cannot be satisfactorily accounted for. The detection and prosecution of these dealers rests with the civil and federal authorities, and I hope they make a success of it.

"So far as crookedness existing among army officers is concerned, candidly, I do not believe there is any.

"The published statement to the effect that a large quantity of army supplies had been found in a certain warehouse, the location of which was not given, is not substantiated by any developments."

MINES MUST PAY HALF

British Government Has Decided to Assess the Transvaal Gold Mines One-Half Cost of the Boer War.

New York, June 13.—A dispatch to the World from London says:

The British government has decided to levy $250,000,000 on the Transvaal gold mines to pay half the cost of the war.

Sir David Barbour, formerly financial minister for India, who was commissioned to report upon the taxable capacity of these mines, advised Colonial Secretary Chamberlain to levy $175,000,000, but Mr. Chamberlain, after consultation with Lord Milner, increased the maximum in the amount stated.

Barbour's report is awaited here with the keenest interest in political and financial circles.

This resolution, when it becomes known here, is certain to cause consternation among the kaffir stockholders, who fancies that the idea of taxing the mines, which are mostly owned in England, had been abandoned. As these very gold mines were the real underlying cause of the war, many have maintained that their British owners should be made to bear a large share, at least, of its heavy burden.

IN A PITIABLE PLIGHT

St. Johns, N. F., June 13.—The schooner Czar, bound to Labrador with fishermen and their families, seventy persons altogether, was driven ashore on Cabot island, on the north coast of New Foundland, in a dense fog and gale Sunday night. Four men were drowned and six others were injured, but the women and children were all landed safely.

The survivors were on the island two days without food or shelter, then another vessel passing towards Labrador, sighted their distress signals, rescued them and landed them on the mainland, whence they will return home on board a mail steamer.

The Czar became a total wreck and those on board of her lost all their belongings. The women and children were in a pitiable plight when they reached the island, being aroused at midnight and being able to secure only a little of their clothing.

IT IS MAJ. EVA NOW

Regiment Making Great Hit With People of Brainerd.

Gov. Van Sant and Adjutant Gen. Libbey Are There.

Brainerd, Minn., June 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a special meeting of the officers of the Third infantry, held last evening, Capt. H. V. Eva, of Company A, was unanimously elected major to succeed Maj. F. H. Bidwell, resigned.

The commandant of Company A is easily one of the most popular company commanders in the regiment and his selection was received with enthusiasm by the men. He is well acquainted with the duties of a battalion commander, having had practical experience in that respect both in field service and in camp. Maj. Eva has received hundreds of congratulations.

The resignation of Maj. Bidwell makes a number of changes in the line of the Third. Maj. E. S. Persons, of Zubrota, will be comander of the First, instead of the Second battalion; Maj. Resche, goes from the Third to the Second, and the new major will be in command of the Third battlaion. Capt. J. R. Delahunt, of Morris, is now the ranking company commander of the regiment.

This is a great day for the Third regiment and for Brainerd. Governor Van Sant, commander-in-chief of the National Guard, and Adjt. Gen. Libbey, and their respective staffs are here. In their honor there will be a special parade and review this evening.

The regiment has made a great hit with the people of Brainerd. The citizens turn out to dress parade every evening in large numbers. The new regimental band continues to sweep everything before it—the best musical organization the regiment has ever had.

Target practice is well under way this morning on the range of Company F, of this city. From the early shooting it looked as if some very good scores would be made. A new feature in range work has been introduced this year. It is skirmish and volley firing by companies.

Company C will present its historical military pageant tonight for the benefit of the Third regiment. This is at the special request of Col. Van Duzee. Great interest is manifested in it and a large attendance is anticipated.

ARRESTS.

Police Will Make Several For Keeping Unlicensed Dogs.

Several prominent people may be arrested for refusing to take out dog licenses. A number of warrants have been sworn out, but up to a late hour today they had not been served.

So far $989 has been received by the city treasurer from dog licenses, which is just about half the money that should have been paid in on May 1. Many people object to paying the dog license, saying that they have already paid a personal property tax on their dogs. The personal property tax goes with the city assessor, but not with the police.

Up to today licenes had been taken out for 874 male dogs and twenty-three females.

The oldest dog in town, so far discovered, belongs to Judge John H. Potter, of 1623 South street. He is a water spaniel and 18 years old. This dog has traveled pretty well over the country, hailing originally from New England.

The oldest native born dog in Duluth is a little rat terrier owned by Dan Donovan, of 1113 West First street. Mr. Donovan has paid a license for this dog every year for the past fifteen years. It is now "sweet sixteen."

GREAT TIME.

Labor Delegates Return From the Mankato Convention.

Several members of the Duluth delegation to the State Federation of Labor convention have returned from Mankato and others will get back tonight and tomorrow. Those returning say they had a great convention and that Mankato entertained the 225 delegates in great style.

Only one delegate had any complaint to make about Mankato. He had once slept in a Bowery lodging house, and in one night he thought that he had become sufficiently acquainted with cimex lectularius insects to know their size.

One particularly hot evening during the convention this delegate visited a brewery. Returning to his hotel he was soon in the land of night mare. His room mate secured a large mud turtle down town, and inviting about half the convention to watch him, he went to the hotel and put the turtle in bed with the Duluth man and waited results. The turtle moved around and so did the sleeper. He awoke with a terrified jump, and muttering things apropos to nothing, hastened from the room. He still thinks he was attacked by an overgrown hemipterious insect.

SHOT THE WELL.

The Blue Grass No. 1 Well Comes In Strong.

Local people interested in the Kentucky oil fields were interested in a message received this morning to the effect that the Blue Grass Oil company's No. 1 well had been shot and had started off at about 200 barrels per day and Field Manager Dunham estimated it would settle to at least fifty barrels per day, which means the original estimate of $50,000 for the well would be nearly correct as settled production is valued at about $1000 barrels per day. The company has 1000 acres of leases and options on 1700 acres, making 2700 in all and have let contracts for more wells.

Duluth people interested in the Mountaineer Oil company, which recently went onto the market, will be pleased to know that oil men agree that the recent remarkable showing on the Blue Grass is favorable to the Mountaineer getting good wells, as both are on the same 45 degree line. Oil seepages on the Montaineer property were more pronounced than on the Blue Grass.

"Kentucky, owing to the recent strikes and gushers which have come in, is now the greatest center of interest for the illuminating oil fields of the United States," said a prominent oil man today, "and a full-sized boom is now on."

OPTION PRACTICALLY GIVEN

Mesaba Iron Company Lands to Be Worked.

Ex-Governor Alexander Ramsey left this afternoon for St. Paul. Before leaving Gov. Ramsey, who is president of the Mesaba Iron company, stated that an option on its holdings was practically given, although the agreement was not yet signed. By the terms of the option the Duluth parties interested will develop the lands with the privilege of purchase in one year. Gov. Ramsey says he expects to visit Duluth again in about one year.

BARNABEE SETTLES.

The Comedian Adjusts His Duluth Liability.

The receiver of the Duluth Dry Goods company, John H. Dight, has arranged a settlement with H. Clay Barnabee, the comedian of the Bostonian Opera company, on his liability as a stockholder of the company. During one of Mr. Barnabee's visits to Duluth he was induced to purchase some stock in the company, and when it failed, and it came to levying an assessment on his stock, his share stood at $5000.

This morning Receiver Dight filed petitions asking the court to permit him to settle the matter for $2000 cash in full of all claims. He states that he believes it to be in the interest of the creditors that this should be done, as it is doubtful if any more could be collected under compulsion, or whether, indeed, that much could be collected. He believes that Mr. Barnabee is not possessed of any great amount of assets, and that if proceedings should be begun against him in New York he would go into bankruptcy and very little could be obtained. He is earning a salary that could not be reached, it is claimed.

The First National bank, which owns or holds all of the claims against the company, joins in the petition, and it will probably be granted.

MEANS MUCH.

Decision In McHarg Case Is Far Reaching One.

The decision of William B. Phelps, as referee in the case of H. N. McHarg against the county auditor, was read with much interest by county officers and others interested in the forfeited tax sale, and if it is upheld by the supreme court it will be of still greater interest, for it will dispose of a large number of the pieces of property in the forfeited tax sale that is to be held this month. Mr. Phelps held that where the county had received the money for the taxes through the 1899 sale, even though that was declared void, there could be no resale without a new judgment. In a vast number of cases the county received in that sale more than enough to pay the taxes, and conditions are the same as in the McHarg case.

The case has already gone to the supreme court, and a decision will be handed down before the sale takes place. If the court upholds Mr. Phelps' decision a lot of advertised property will have to be taken from the sale.

Chisholm-Marshall.

Wednesday morning the marriage of Miss Margaret Chisholm, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Westover, of Lester Park, to William F. Marshall, of Mackinac, Mich., was solemnized at the Catholic cathedral, Rev. Father Hogan officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Carrie Cunningham, of this city, and Patrick McGraw acted as best man. After the service was concluded, the bridal party drove to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Westover, 1924 Sixtieth avenue east, where they and a few intimate friends partook of a dainty wedding breakfast. The house was very prettily decorated with ferns and wild flowers. At 7 o'clock, in the midst of a shower of good wishes and rice from their assembled friends, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall left on the South Shore train for their future home at Mackinac Island, Mich.

Changes Its Name.

The Minnesota K. P. band will be known from now on as the Duluth City, U. R., K. P. band. Members were anxious that the name Duluth should be worked into the band's name, and the opportunity came when Professor Flaaten's organization became the official harmony dispensary of the Third infantry.

The band, under its new name, will add an orchestra, under the directorship of Ira Oard, of Des Moines. Signor Carmme Izze, formerly trombone player of the Banda Rossa, has joined the band, and Walter I. Bissett, a harpist from Minneapolis, has been secured for the orchestra.

AT WEST DULUTH

Commissioner Kauppi is very desirous of having the county chain gang at West Duluth and is using effort to secure the desired permission. The park board has offered to pay street car fare and also to reimburse the expense for overseers. At the last meeting of the county board Mr. Kauppi's proposition was voted down and the prisoners who do free manual labor for St. Louis county were sent to another district. There is some regret over this action, as now is the most opportune time for work on Fairmount Park, because if begun at this time West Duluth's new public plat could be made inviting for visitors in a short time. Commissioner Kauppi feels that the people interested in the development and beautification of Fairmount should support his efforts to bring the chain gang to this end of the city.

REACHED NO AGREEMENT.

It is far from settled that Central avenue will be macadamized. At the property owners' meeting last night there was a good representation of the local holders and there was a general discussion of the paving question, cedar blocks and macadam each having their supporters, but macadam had a large majority of supporters. Nothing definite is possible in the matter until the outside owners—who are by far more numerous than local holders—can be communicated with and their expressions received by the committee. Should the required per cent be found in favor of re-paving, then another meeting will be called and action decided upon. No vote was taken on any question at last night's meeting.

FIVE BOYS ARRESTED.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of five youths—ranging in age from 12 to 16 years on the charge of malicious destruction of property. It is alleged that the five named in the complaint have been "Carrie Nationizing" the windows at the match factory, using stones and other missles instead of hatchets. The bombardment is said to have been carried on from the interior as well as the exterior of the factory and that the boys have given evidence of being the possessors of abnormal bumps of destructiveness.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Old Hickory camp, No. 1555, M. W. A., will observe Woodmen's Memorial day next Sunday, June 16. Committees have been appointed to arrange the exercises which it is expected will be quite elaborate. This camp has accepted an invitation from Proctorknott camp to visit the members there Tuesday night. All who make the trip are expected to be at J. A. Scott's office, 319 Central avenue, early in the evening.

Miss Ina Goneau is home from St. Paul where she had been on a three weeks' visit.

Citizens with an interest in navigation are watching the big sand dredge work, near the foot of Sixty-fifth avenue, with feelings not of a pleasurable nature. It is claimed that the dredge, instead of dumping into the center of the river, is making great deposits along the shore line, which makes an unsightly change in its general appearance and may also cause some obstruction of the navigable channels.

Mr. McDonald and Mr. Vilnell are now residents of the city. They come from Grand Marais, Mich.

Napoleon LaFountain, recently of Sault Ste. Marie, is making his home here.

L. Faulkner and family have moved to South Superior.

Mrs. Henry Hibke is home from Baltimore, where she passed most of an eight months' stay, during which time she visited New York, Washington and other cities.

Invitations are out announcing the approaching marriage of Miss Emily Wright and Edwin Stewart. The event takes place on June 26.

H. R. Patterson left for Hibbing today on a short business trip.

A girl has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strandmark of 4024 Oneota street.

Residents Are Stirred.

Gottleb Krause, proprietor of a saloon located at 619 East Fourth street, was arrested this morning on a complaint sworn out by Mrs. Kate Murtinger, charging him with keeping his saloon open on Sunday.

Residents of Fourth street have complained frequently of the saloons in that part of the city keeping open against the law, but this is the first instance in which the residents have taken the matter of closing in their own hands. Mrs. Murtinger has been annoyed, and she says that she has strong enough evidence to convict the saloonkeeper when the case comes to trial next Monday.

Going to Europe.

C. E. Bassett, of French & Bassett, leaves early next week for the East on a buying trip. About the first of July Mr. Bassett will sail for England, and while abroad his tour will include France, Holland, Belgium and Italy. Mr. Bassett has a three months' itinerary planned, which will bring him home to Duluth in the early autumn. While in Europe Mr. Bassett will secure some art treasures and novelties for this winter's holiday trade.

May Police Report.

The police report for May shows that 69 prisoners arrested paid fines aggregating $1404.98, and that 65, sent to the county jail, are working out sentences which aggregate 929 days of hard labor.

Eighty-eight drunken persons, 13 gamblers, 15 petty thieves and 13 vags were among those present in police court during the month. Two hundred and twenty-three lodgers were accommodated over night, and the patrol wagon traveled 153 miles in responding to calls.

He Likes the Place.

Peter Leiopia came down from the range some time ago to spend thirty days in the county jail for drunkenness. It is a strong compliment to the excellence of Sheriff Sargent's boarding house that Mr. Leiopia has been unable to stay away. When his thirty days were up he wandered about town and was arrested for vagrancy. He go thirty days for that, and yesterday his second thirty days was up. He went down town, got drunk and this morning he was returned to the jail for a third term, this time for ten days for drunkenness.

BLOCKADE ALLOWED

The Removal of Lerch Stable Is Severely Criticized.

No Other City Would Allow Such Occupancy of Streets.

Duluth is not a country village. This may be stated emphatically right here for the benefit of strangers in the city who may have judged otherwise from the fact that such a thing as the removal of the Lerch livery stable through a principal street is permitted. Such a conclusion would be warranted, and a stranger would be entirely excusable for having drawn it.

The officers of the city who permitted it, however, are hardly so easily excusable. Not only is it a great nuisance to everybody in whose territory it comes, but it is a constant menace to property on every side. The front and larger section of the barn has stood since yesterday morning on First street, between the Board of Trade building and French & Bassett's, and it has not been moved a foot. It has stood there filling up the entire street, blocking traffic, forming an effective barrier to fire apparatus if any should be needed in that vicinity, and creating a strong liability of great damage to surrounding buildings.

It is easy to guess that if anybody dropped a lighted match or a cigar anywhere about the building it would go up like a puff of powder, and in that event great damage to the Board of Trade and other surrounding buildings would surely result. To move the building through the street necessitates everybody along the line of march taking down wires and keeping off the street, and for the sake of one small interest—that of the owner of the building—everybody in several blocks is put at great inconvenience and considerable danger of loss.

It is very doubtful if there is another city deserving the name where such a thing would be allowed, and it is passing strange that it should have been allowed here. Property owners and business men along the pathway of the building have expressed themselves in unmeasured terms on the matter, and they have no hesitation in declaring it an outrage.

A prominent contractor says that it was entirely unnecessary to move the building in this manner. He says that if it was necessary to move it at all it could have been taken apart and moved in sections and then rebuilt cheaper than it could be moved on rollers in the fashion that is being used now.

The responsibility for this nothing less than outrage lies with the board of public works and Building Inspector Robinson. The latter gave the authority to move the building and the board gave permission to use the streets of the city for that purpose.

CITY BRIEFS.

Tibbetts, undertaker, 31 East Sup. St.

A party of twenty-five excursionists from Caledonia, Minn., will arrive in the city this afternoon. They leave tonight on the Anchor line steamer China for Buffalo.

The State Firemen's association now holding a convention at Crookston honored Chief John T. Black, of this city yesterday afternoon, by electing him an honorary member of the association for life. The secretary of the convention notified the chief of his election by wire last evening.

Harry Holland, a West End boy, was given a hearing in the municipal court this afternoon on a charge of incorrigibility. He was found guilty and sentenced to the industrial school at Red Wing.

"Whew! Something is burning!" Your wife will never say that, if you smoke the Tom Reed cigar.

The charter list for the new tribe of Red Men which is to be instituted at Twentieth avenue west on June 24th, now numbers forty. A preliminary meeting was held last night.

Marriage licenses have been issued to Edward Baumann and Elizabeth Murges, Erik G. Ek and Amanda H. Eklund, and to J. Pendergast and Annie Lyons.

John M. Johnson has been granted citizenship papers by the district court.

A son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dworschak, of 725 East Second street.

M. Laughtney, formerly a barber of this city, was arrested in St. Paul last evening on a very serious charge preferred by Miss Agnes Gullickson, of West Duluth.

It nearly caused a divorce—the delicious aroma of a passing Tom Reed cigar attracted her, their eyes met—and she inquired the name of the brand, for her husband.

THE MAY TERM.

Practically Closed But Still Held Open.

Practically the May term of district court is over, but really it is still going, and it will be kept up so far as it can be without any business until the opening of the September term. There are four cases remaining on the calendar that have been held up for the convenience of the attorneys. It is not known whether any of these four cases will be tried, and if they are it will create no great ripple of excitement anywhere, for the cases are none of them of any particular interest or importance, except to the parties themselves.

Aside from these four cases there will be only the special terms to be heard, and they will be interrupted for four weeks during the last of July and the first of August.

FIRST OF THE YEAR

Big Excursion From Morris Is Coming Tomorrow Afternoon.

Agents Report That One Thousand People Will Come.

Tickets Are Good For Return Until Next Sunday.

The wave of torridity which stuck Duluth this morning is nothing compared with what will strike here tomorrow afternoon, about 3 o'clock. The Northern Pacific road will bring in an excursion from Morris and intermediate points that will be a scorcher.

It is the first excursion of the season—in fact the initial excursion of a season that promises to break all excursion records. Agents along the line of the Northern Pacific this morning reported that at least 1000 people would come in, but those who ought to know say that this is an exceedingly conservative estimate. Secretary Hill of the Duluth Improvement association, under the auspices of which this excursion was arranged, says that it would not surprise him if many more would come in.

In making the rates for this excursion the Northern Pacific road shattered all records for low rates. Morris is 206 miles from Duluth, and the regular fare is $13.50 a round trip. The Northern Pacific has made a rate of $2.50 for the round trip.

The excursion will bring people from Morris, Glenwood, Little Falls, Brainerd, Aitkin, Carlton and Cloquet.

The excursionists will have a long, hot trip, but Duluth hotel and restaurant men will make special preparations to handle the hungry crowd at its late lunch hour. The people on the train will not be able to get a good meal till they reach here about 3 o'clock, and it is expected that that will be their first object.

The excursion tickets are good till the train returning Sunday afternoon. The local hotels are in excellent shape to handle the crowd, but should there be an overflow the Duluth Improvement association has private arrangements by which board and lodging can be obtained in private families and at exceptionally low rates.

A week from tomorrow the Northern Pacific road will bring in its second excursion, and this may be even larger than that tomorrow. This trip will be from Wahpeton, Breckenridge, Fergus Falls, Wadena, Staples, Brainerd, Aitkin Carlton and Cloquet. It is understood that the rates will be as low as for tomorrow's excursion.

GREAT LAND.

Argentine Visitors Talk of the South American Country.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Ripley, of Minneapolis, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Atterbury, of Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, are enjoying this ideal summer day in Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. Atterbury have but recently arrived in the United States from South America. Mr. Atterbury has been stationed at Buenos Ayres the past two years as representative for the International Paper company of New York. He states that business conditions in the Argentine Republic were never better, notwithstanding the misrepresentations of returned travelers who have met with failure or disappointment south of the equator. In his opinion there is little probability of a war between Argentine and Chili although alarmist reports are of almost daily occurrence in the American press. Chili depends almost entirely on the duties from nitrate and guano to provide revenue for the maintenance of her government, in fact there is scarcely any revenue except from exports. Vast combinations in New York and London pay nearly all the export duties, as they control the mines and fields where these products are deposited. Argentine possesses an immense advantage in being a producing and agricultural country like the United States, only on a lesser scale. In case of war Argentine's fleet could most effectually block Chili's ports and stop their source of revenue. Neither country is looking for trouble, according to Mr. Atterbury, and there is no danger of the countries being converted into armed camps.

Mr. Atterbury is enthusiastic in speaking of Buenos Ayres. He says it is a wonderful city with 800,000 inhabitants. After visiting most of the great cities on two continents, Mr. Atterbury declares that Buenos Ayres is the cleanest city of them all, barring neither St. Petersburg, Paris or Berlin. It is the clearing house of the Argentine Republic and 94 per cent of the commerce of the entire nation was transacted in that city in 1900. The city will reach the 1,000,000 mark very shortly and in modern improvements it is keeping pace with the increase in population. The prospect for American business men are considered excellent by Mr. Atterbury. He thinks that Americans generally are too unfamiliar with the opportunities presented.

The Anglo-Saxon colony is comparatively small, but the English greatly outnumber the Americans. The hustling Teuton is very much in evidence. The Germans have established banks and immense mercantile houses, and are stronger financially and numerically than any other foreign people. Americans in business there are hampered in many ways. All banking and exchange must be done through London. There is not a steamship line running into Buenos Ayres whose vessels fly the Stars and Stripes. The vessels plying between New York and Buenos Ayres generally flaunt the emblem of England.

Mr. Atterbury came here to investigate the lumbering business. This is an industry practically undeveloped in Argentine, where vast forests of hard wood have never been viewed by the cruiser.

The visitors were immensely impressed with Duluth. This morning they received some inspiration from the boulevard drive which they declare unequalled on this sphere. Mr. Attrebury says of the Zenith City:

"Duluth is a city of more than a future; it is a city of the present."

Mr. and Mrs. Atterbury leave shortly for New York from whence they embark for Europe. They intend to extend their tour until the hot season is finished in Buenos Ayres, to which point they will take passage this fall from Europe.

Mr. Cokefair Returns.

C. C. Cokefair returned today from the East, where he has been for several weeks. Matters have not shaped themselves so that he has any new developments to announce to Duluth people as yet, but the plans of the company are nearer a satisfactory climax than ever. Mr. Cokefair was handicapped somewhat by the illness of one of the men who has been associated with him, but he hopes to soon be able to give the people of Duluth some information that will be pleasing to them.

To Buy New Machinery.

Judge Lochren has approved three contracts made by the receivers of the Commercial Light and Power company. They aggregate $25,500. The receivers explain in their petition that the new contract made with the city of Duluth, and other new business, necessitate improvements and machinery that will more economically carry on the business has been arranged for. It explains, too, in the petition, that most of the old machinery will be traded in and that the expense of installing the new will not be anything like the full amount indicated by the contracts.

Boak-Black Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Jane Boak, of St. Paul, to Isaac Black of this city, will take place in St. Paul on June 26. Miss Boak is quite well known in Duluth, having visited here frequently. Mr. Black is connected with the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Black.

SAW MANY PEOPLE.

President Now Gives More Time to Business.

Washington, June 13.—After the usual morning consultation of Mrs. McKinley's physicians, the following bulletin was issued:

"Mrs. McKinley's physicians report that her condition continues to improve."

Improvement in Mrs. McKinley's condition enables the president to spend more time in his office transacting public business. Today he saw quite a number of people.

STERN WAS SHY.

He Owed Money to Many American Clients.

Berlin, June 13.—Further reliable news about the death of Luis Stern, the former United States commercial agent at Bamberg, Bavaria, who committed suicide June 10, by shooting himself, shows he had not made any returns to the state department during the last eighteen months, but if he owes money to the United States, it is only a small amount. On the other hand, a number of people in the United States for whom Stern had collected estates in this country, have entered complaints that he had not remitted the amounts collected. Judgment for 2000 marks against Stern was recently rendered by the Bamberg court, and the deceased committed suicide the very day the 2000 marks were due.

Stern had accepted a fine commercial position at Bamberg, but the firm nullified the arrangement when it learned of the judgment.

Boston, June 13.—Enthusiasm, created during yesterday's meeting in connection with the Y. M. C. A. international convention, was at a high pitch for today's sessions, which were to make up the events of "Jubilee day." In order to emphasize the event four special meetings had been arranged, including the usual morning devotional and praise service in Association hall; an interesting service in the historic old South meeting house in commemoration of the adoption of the Y. M. C. A. constitution by the Boston association; a service of equal interest in Faneuil hall and, finally, a meeting for the railroad branch in Association hall in the evening.

Between the first and second meetings an opportunity was afforded the delegates to attend a reception by Governor Crane at the state house at 1:30 p. m.

The customary praise service in Mechanics hall was held in the early morning with Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., of New York, conducting. At the regular session of the convention which followed, James Stokes, of New York, presided. The first speaker was Cephas Brainerd, of New York, whose topic was "The Fundamental Principles of the Y. M. C. A." Mr. Brainerd dealt almost exclusively in statistics and a review of the growth of the organization. A business meeting followed.

Among the pleasant features of the convention has been the receipt of a message from the German embassador at Washington, transmitting a telegram from Emperor William. The emperor says:

'I ask you to transmit to the brotherhood of Young Men's Christian association of America, assembled for the jubilee convention, my hearty congratulation. With pride the brotherhood may look back on its past life, which promises further to flourish and increase. May this expectation be fulfilled in a rich measure. With satisfaction I see that German associations, active in the same endeavor, take part fraternally in this solemn gathering. May the American associations also in the future train for their great fatherland citizens who are sound in body and soul, and of earnest convictions of life, standing on the only unmovable foundation name of Christ, whose name is above every name.

"WILHELM, I. R."

The convention in reply sent a message to the emperor expressing thanks and saying that the delegates were deeply touched by the reference to the fraternal relations existing between the young men of the German fatherland and America.

"May our alliance, founded on Christ, forever bind the kindly sentiments which now exist between the two lands," was the concluding sentiment of the convention message.

Boston, June 13.—"The Relations of the Y. M. C. A. to the Churches," was the theme of the address by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., president of the United Societies of Christian Endeavor. In substance he said:

"The church in all ages has been inclined to limit the family of God, and especially to believe that no new child could be born into it. Narrow-minded members of every sect have been inclined to consign all besides themselves to the uncovenated mercies of God They have often prided themselves on their hoariness and antiquity and they have looked askance upon a new organization as an interloper that had no right to gather round the family table. It was so with Sunday school. It was so especially with the Young Men's Christian association, but by fifty years of faithful work in thousands of communities, it has proved its divine origin, and its right to a place in the family of God. The Y. M. C. A. is the church at work for young men, not this church or that."

ONLY FOUR PER CENT.

Baltimore & Ohio Preferred Stockholders Are Defeated.

Annapolis, Md., June 13.—The Maryland court of appeals today handed down an opinion in a suit brought to decide the status of the preferred stock of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, in which it held that the holders of such stock are entitled to receive no more than the 4 per cent guaranteed by the company. It was contended by the plaintiffs in the action that after being paid 4 per cent the preferred stockholders were entitled to a further share in the earnings of the company on the same basis as holders of common stock.

KNIGHTS OF HONOR.

Supreme Lodge Elects Officers For Ensuing Term.

Milwaukee, June 13.—After spending a half hour of this morning's session in consideration of reports from the committee on laws, the supreme lodge Knights of Honor, at 10 o'clock, took up the election of officers, and the following were chosen up to the time of the noon recess:

Supreme dictator, D. S. Biggs, Boston; supreme vice dictator, ex-Governor C. Sheppard, Edgefield, S. C.; supreme assitant dictator, Clark H. Johnson, Providence, R. I.; supreme reporter, Noah M. Biggs, Harrisonville, Mo.; supreme treasurer, Joseph W. Branch, St. Louis; supreme chaplin, Rev. Herbert M. Hope, Richmond, Va.; supreme guide, John H. Hancock, Louisville; supreme guardian, William Grover, Indianapolis; supreme sentinel, H. H. Collier, Memphis.

WORKING FOR JURY.

Eldorado, Kan., June 13.—Efforts were continued today with little success to secure a jury for the second trial of Jessie Morrison, daughter of former Probate Judge Morrison, on the charge of killing Mrs. Clara Wiley Castle, wife of her former sweetheart. It is generally believed that no jury can be secured in this county.

WANTS A DIVORCE.

Chicago, June 13.—Mrs. Lynn Pullman today filed suit in the Cook county circuit court for divorce from George M. Pullman, on the ground of desertion.

CHARRED BODY FOUND.

Oskaloosa, Iowa, June 13.—A charred body was found today in the ruins of the Fremont elevator, which was burned last night. It was recognized as that of Frank Gunn.

Canada's Census Disappointing.

Dispatches from the Dominion intimate that Canada is likely to be disappointed in the results that the census, just taken, will show the government estimated when the enumeration began that it would show a total population of at least 6,000,000. It is now said that most people will be surprised. The census of 1891 gave Canada a population of 4,833,239, an increase of about 500,000 for the decade. Should this census reveal 5,500,000 it would show an excellent growth for that country. The Canadians have placed their expectations too high. Constant emigration to the United States has kept Canada's population down. Thousands of people come from the Maritime provinces and settle in New England and many from Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba seek homes in the Western states. Ontario is reported to be particularly disappointed in the census showing thus far, and doubtless immigration to the United States accounts for the slow growth of its population. Canada is the more startled because these are prosperous times in the Dominion. They are equally prosperous in the United States and as the advantages offered to young men here are far greater it is no wonder they come across the line.

Trying to Evade Customs Duties.

The fact that the treasury department was obliged to make a radical change in the system of inspecting baggage at New York custom houses will not be taken as an endorsement of the honesty of travelers returning from Europe. The sworn statements of travelers in declaring dutiable goods were found to be such cheerful prevarications that some change was absolutely necessary. A great many people try to cheat Uncle Sam, who would scorn to steal or act dishonestly with their fellow men. There is something about smuggling a few goods into the country so fascinating, that but few can resist it. The change in the system at New York has been exceedingly profitable to the government as will be seen by the statement of one of the treasury officials who says: "When we first decided to change the system of having goods declared and collecting duties on them, there was a tremendous outcry from certain quarters and we were charged with inflicting brutal and inhuman regulations. These protests were limited in number but very vociferous, and the public can draw its own conclusion as to what occasioned them. The very first large ship that arrived in port after the abolishment of the old methods netted $29,000 in customs duties from the goods declared by the tourists, which was sufficient to pay for an entire year the salaries of the extra men that we employed in order to carry out the new system of inspection. We have very heavy collections on large importations of dressmaking and millinery supplies that were being brought over in travelers' trunks. During the month of May we received from this source $40,000 as against $4000 for the month of May, 1900. As a general proposition it is safe to say that we now get four dollars for one under the plan as in force prior to March 1. There is no doubt that large establishments in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and other cities regularly send agents to Europe to buy materials. These were brought back in trunks and were not declared, thus escaping the lawful duties. As soon as we adopted a new method of inspecting baggage and put a new force of men at this work, we discovered that the government had been losing tremendous revenue for an indefinite period in the past. Only last month a woman tourist arriving at New York in her declaration reported a nominal amount of money due in the way of duties from her baggage. When her trunks were overhauled our men found great quantities of valuable good and collected $2400 in duties. That is a fair sample of what we are now encountering and shows that the sworn statements of travelers cannot be relied upon."

FLAG DAY.

There is an organization called the "American Flag Association," with headquarters in New York, which has issued a circular containing the following interesting facts:

"The 14th of June has come to be considered by the patriotic citizens of this country as 'Flag Day,' because on that day in 1777, congress enacted: 'That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation.' The number of stripes having been increased by the admission of new states, our sure to be expanded future dawned upon our fathers, and the original thirteen stripes were unchangably restored on April 4, 1818, when it was enacted by congress: 'That from and after the 4th day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be twenty stars, white in a blue field, and that on the admission of a new state into the Union one star be added to the Union of the flag; and that such addition take effect on the 4th day of July next succeeding such admission.' Since 1818 twenty-five stars or sovereign states have been added to the Union, making forty-five in all. The civil war of 1861-65 gave new meaning to our flag. It, before, had reverence for the sake of revolutionary memories. Since that struggle, it has become the symbol of a mighty nation. Later yet, the Spanish-American war has carried it to the uttermost parts of the earth, the herald of a civilization not belonging to the dark ages, or to centuries that tolerated cruelty and oppression, but carrying liberty, or the hope of liberty, wherever it has been thrown to the breeze. Americans cannot fail of a feeling of pride and satisfaction, nor restrain the swelling of patriotism in the breast, when we think of the contrast of circumstances, and of promises made manifest, in far distant lands in which ours and other flags have been displayed together."

Some people have suggested that "Flag Day" should be made a legal holiday, but this does not seem to be desired in view of its close proximity to both Memorial Day and "the glorious Fourth," but there is no harm in observing it to some extent, and The Herald trusts that the people of Duluth will remember tomorrow to recognize it in an appropriate manner. This can be done by displaying the glorious Stars and Stripes everywhere; on the school houses particularly; on the public buildings and the business houses and in front of dwellings. Let the Stars and Stripes be unfurled from every flagpole in the city tomorrow.

WANTED—A CANDIDATE.

For the time being the president has laid the ghost of third-ternism. The skeptical will doubt the sincerity of the president's protest. For one, The Herald believes that Mr. McKinley was entirely sincere. What with the burden of the new national policy, and the questions of law arising therefrom, together with his domestic trials, he must be ready to cry quits when the end of his term comes along. Indeed, he may pray for the end with a fervor which few of us can appreciate.

With these well known conditions in full view, the question arises, why did Senator Depew and Congressman Grosvenor force the president to make this open renunciation of a prospective honor? What is at the bottom of this third term talk? Is it love for the man McKinley? Is it a desire on the part of the politicians to thus secure their future and make themselves solid with the administration for the next three years? There may be something of this underlying the action taken by Depew, but Grosvenor was supposed to be the Ohio mouthpiece of the administration in the lower house. The real reason probably was a desire to get a candidate and avoid the necessity of obtaining an issue.

The Republican party is in a deplorable condition at the present time. The trusts have so multiplied under the pet tariff of Dingleyism that the country has become alarmed. The action of the senate of the Fifty-sixth congress in turning down all of the reciprocity treaties was the prime cause of the threatened European tariff war upon American products. The party is hopelessly split on the subject of tariff revision, a majority of the Republican papers of both the East and Middle West openly demanding action at the next session of congress. The decision of the supreme court has brought the administration face to face with the consequences of expansion. When the Democrats last fall pointed out the fact that the hordes of Orientals from the Philippines must be admitted as American citizens if we are to devote ourselves to expansion, or the constitution must be overriden, the idea was scouted by the Republican speakers and howled down. Now the supreme court clearly points out that such is the case, but takes the position that congress may override the constitution in the matter of taxation. A few more victories like the one the Republican party won in the supreme court will be its undoing. This cut-and-fit decision, carried by a majority of only one, has transferred the whole question of expansion and imperialism from the court to the people. It is left to congress to say whether the constitution shall be set aside, or whether it shall extend over all acquired territory.

On all these questions as they now stand the Republican party is divided. The issue on the tariff will come upon the organization of the house. The issue of imperialism will be forced in the next congress, after the supreme court hands down it decisions in the remaining insular cases. The Democratic party is split, but it is split on personal lines. There are jealousies, but the bone of contention in the party, the silver issue, is no more. It has passed with the times, as do many other issues. The questions that will mark the line between the two great parties are the tariff and imperialism. On both of these the Democrats can sand pat on their platform of 1900. On both of these the Republicans will have to go back on their past or go to the wall in a contest before the people.

It was a realization of this condition that induced the leaders of the party to desire McKinley to stand for a third term. They do not dare to face these issues with their divided forces. If a candidate could be found with a personality which would allow them to ignore issues and conduct another full-dinner-pail campaign, they would hail him as a Moses.

Never had a party a better opportunity to retain the control of the lines of government than did the Republican party under McKinley. The very fates seemed to court them. War, with all its circumstance, a united people, prosperity, not the result of their action, an honorable peace and an expanding commerce were all theirs. These they have thrown away that a few men might serve their personal ambitions. Unless there be a marked change in the diplomatic councils of the Republican party it will find difficulty in carrying more than five states in 1904. The Democrats may need a candidate who can unite the divergent elements of the faith, but the Republicans need a candidate who can conduct a campaign without any faith—the party has none and the people have none in the party.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

The suggestion made by M. S. Burrows, in an interview published in Tuesday's Herald, that the time of the arrival and departure of passenger trains between Duluth and the iron range towns be changed, should receive consideration by the managers of the railroads affected.

For instance, the train on the Duluth & Iron Range road, from Ely and Tower, reaches here at noon and leaves on its return at 3 p. m., which gives less than three hours to the people who desire to transact business here and return on the same day. Why not change the time card, so that the train would reach here at 11 a. m. and start on the return at 5 p. m.? This would give the people along the road who come to Duluth on business ample time in which to transact their business. The trains could be run faster without any difficulty, so that the hours of departure and arrival at the range towns would not be inconveniently early and late.

Similar changes could easily be made in the time card of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road.

The Herald believes that if the business men of Duluth will use their influence with the managers of the roads, these desirable changes can be effected.

When the Declaration of Independence is publicly read in Duluth on the Fourth of July, these words of Abraham Lincoln should be read at the same time: "The authors of the Declaration of Independence meant it to be—as, thank God, it is now proving itself—a stumbling block to those who in after times might seek to turn a free people back into the hateful paths of despotism. They knew the proneness of prosperity to breed tyrants, and they meant when such should reappear in this fair land and commence their vocation they should find left at least one hard nut to crack."

Says Jacob A. Riis in the Outlook: "It was about this time I made up my mind to go into the newspaper business. It seemed to me that a reporter's was the highest and noblest of all callings; no one could sift wrong from right as he, and punish the wrong. In that I was right. I have not changed my opinion on that point one whit, and I would rather die a good reporter than a millionaire. The power of fact is the mightiest lever of this or of any day. The reporter has his hand upon it, and it is his grievous fault if he does not use it well."

Tennessee takes the lead among Southern states in prohibiting child labor, a law excluding persons under 14 years from employment in factories, mines and shops having just gone into effect. Many of the mill men condemn the act, but declare that they can stand it a good deal better than the parents who have been relying upon the labor of the children for partial support. The fact is that nowhere is state interference with industry more justified than right at this point.

Senaor Hoar says that the government of the colonies under George III was the best government then existing on earth, and the Washington Post declares that Great Britain had full legal right to impose a tax on them, though they were denied representation. Thus it will be seen that we made a great mistake in rebelling against our king and setting a bad example to the Filipinos!

William Jones, superintendent of public instruction of Indiana, disapproves of the writings of one William Shakespeare, deceased, and desires said writings banished from the normal schools of that state. Mr. Shakespeare was rather rude occasionally in his remarks, but has Mr. Jones written anything that equals the other William's compositions?

Police Commissioner Murphy, of New York, has simple paralyzed the civil service board by appointing to be policemen the 200 men whose names led the eligible lists submitted by the board. Police appointments in New York strictly according to merit have been an unheard of thing heretofore.

The report that large cracks are appearing in the ground on which Butte, Mont., stands, is not surprising. Butte always was "a wide-open town."

It is said that the governor of the Philippine islands is to receive $55,000 a year—$5000 more than is paid to the president of the United States. A man who is obliged to live in that tropical climate deserves a big salary.

The Cuban convention has weakened and accepted the Platt amendment unconditionally. This is wise, even if the United States government is not adhering strictly to the terms of its pledge to the Cubans.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson does not believe that artillery can protect fruit from hailstorms and frost, and he recommends insurance as a substitute for artificial thunder.

Now that President McKinley has announced that he will not seek a third term, perhaps old man Grosvenor will try for the nomination. His nerve is all right.

It is announced that Secretary Gage's bond purchases during the last two months aggregate $13,000,000. This about equals the revenue surplus for the period.

Oxford university is going to make Professor Charles A. Briggs an LL.D., even though he is a heretic.

LINED UP FOR LAUGHTER.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: A Kentucky feud, which has been lasting thirty-five years, grew from the fact that one boy made fun of the patch on the trousers' seat of another boy.

It was easy in this case to locate the seat of war.

Detroit Free Press: "So you are the ossified man, are you?"

"Yes, sir."

"What is your name?"

"Ponypart, sir."

Harlem Life: Brobson—I hear that you have broken off with Miss Brooks. Weren't your relations pleasant?

Crak—Oh, yes, to be sure; it was her's that did the kicking.

Chicago Post: "My heart," he repeated softly, moving a little closer to her; "alas! I have no heart. I lost it that day on the lake; I—"

"Do you think," she interrupted, demurely, as she noted what he was doing, "that it got caught in my belt?"

Philadelphia Press: Tom—I always hate to pass an ice cream saloon when I'm walking with my girl.

Dick—I don't manage it; she does. She always insists upon going in.

"What! Not in evening attire?"

"Stupid! The horse's back, not her own!" exclaimed my wife, regarding me disdainfully.

I laughed at myself a little, for I was not as yet thoroughly under this woman's domination.

Farmer Hardhead (the skeptic)—Humph! He knowed the right time tew pray, didn't he?

Washington Star: "It is strange how often the undeserving seem to prosper," remarked the thoughtful man.

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "I have noted such a tendency in affairs with growing apprehension. Every once in a while some one without any money or influence worth mentioning gets an office."

JUNE'S BRIDAL PROCESSION

'Tis in June, the month of roses,
That the happy brides abound,
With their sprays of orange blossoms,
And in dainty fabrics gowned.
They're the centers of attraction
When sweet matrimony booms,
For there's little notice taken
Of the crowd of bashful grooms.

Brides of every style of beauty,
From brunette to lightest blonde,
Are monopolizing plaudits
And the admiration fond.
Every one of them is handsome,
So the papers always say;
Every one of them is charming
In attire and manners gay.

There's profound consideration
Everywhere the bride is seen,
And she reigns o'er friends and strangers
Just as though she were a queen.
There is eagerness to see her
Every time that there's a chance,
But her hubby isn't in it,
For at him they barely glance.

But though all the admiration
Is thus showered on the bride
From the groom there's no objection,
For still greater grows his pride.
Yet he plays a role important,
For by him the parson's paid,
And he buys off noisy urchins
When they come to serenade.

All the brides we're complimenting
Just as warmly as the rest,
And to them go out our wishes
That their joys be of the best.
And we cheer the great procession
As the brides go passing by
And we're hoping this June's record
Will knock all the rest sky high.

IN MICHIGAN.

Young Dentist Accidentally Shot Himself Near Iron River.

Iron River—Dr. Fred J. R. Hemple, of the firm of Hemple & Youngs, dentists of Marinette, Wis., accidentally shot homself while hunting near Iron River. Mr. Hemple was visiting friends at Iron River and took a rifle and went out hunting. He did not return and his friends, becoming alarmed, organized a searching party finding his body about one and a half miles from the village in an open piece of ground where he had fallen and died from loss of blood. It is not known just how the accident happened as he was alone and had walked some distance before he became exhausted and fell. The deceased was a single man. His parents reside at Grand Rapids, where his father is superintendent of the Harrison wagon works. The remains were shipped to Grand Rapids for interment.

Menominee—Three thugs, who probably follow Pawnee Bill's circus, held up and robbed Frank Lindquist near the Northwestern tracks in Flintown, Menominee, about midnight Sunday night, toning him and brutally assaulting him. Young Lindquist was returning from Marinette when a burly negro and two white men, who were standing on the tracks, ordered him to stop and throw up his hands. He did so reluctantly, but not until he has been struck several times. The thugs failed to secure any money from their victim, but they stole his hat. The police were promptly notified. Monday morning the negro, who gives his name as Afirry Seymour, was arrested while trying to sell the hat.

Newberry—The board of trustees of the upper peninsula hospital for the insane at Newberry, held a meeting and decided to erect one new cottage and an infirmary and an addition to the dining hall, besides making several other minor improvements at the institution this summer. Charlton, Gilbert & Demar made the plans of the new building.

At a recent meeting of the village council at Newberry a resolution was passed abolishing the office of marshal. It has since developed, however, that it requires a two-third vote to abolish an office and as there were only five trustees present and two of these refused to vote, the resolution was passed by a bare majority. Marshal McDonald refuses to consider himself fired and is still going through the motions of earning his salary.

DAILY STORY.

Mr. Paulding's Troubles.

BY JOSEPH BAUGHER.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller.)

"Tom" Paulding was a man of convival habits, and Mrs. Paulding—well, to say the least, was not of an angelic disposition. Whether his bibacious propensities were the cause of her unfortunate disposition, or, as "Tommie" said, her nagging and henpecking drove him to the bottle, no one knew. Both told their own stories and had their own champions.

Paulding was a retired contractor. The income from the little fortune he had saved was more than enough for his family's daily needs and his nightly carousals. He had not heeded the Shakespearean injunction as to letting his love be younger than himself, for his wife was fifteen years his senior.

In lieu of children, Mrs. Paulding cherished a cat, and "Tom" had adopted a dog. The inevitable result followed.

One day Mrs. Paulding felt ill, quite ill; and, having no faith in her husband as a nurse, she commanded that she should be sent to a hospital, an injunction her husband only too willingly obeyed.

She had not been gone many hours before the cat disappeared, and, although "Tom" loudly denied being the cause of its absence, there was a suspicious working around the corners of his mouth, and a guilty lowering of the dog's tail whenever the subject was broached.

Then Mr. Paulding began to give full rein to his inordinate thirst. One morning, after having "made a night of it," he thought he would call at the hospital, as he had not seen Mrs. Paulding for three days.

When an attendant whom he had not happened to see on his former visits answered the bell he told him, with thickened speech and twisting tongue, that he wanted to see Mrs. Paulding. He had just managed to get the name out.

"Oh! you do, eh?" said the attendant, eyeing him suspiciously.

"Yesh," said Paulding, steadying himself.

"Do you see that?" the attendant said. "That" was a hearse standing in the street, and the attendant pointed it out to Paulding's attention.

"Holy shmoke!" cried Paulding, sobering up a little. "She's my wife! Tell 'em—tell 'em to wait till I get a hack!"

In fifteen minutes he was back in a carriage with a large wreath. He pulled down the blinds as the cortege started, put his feet on the seat opposite, and—hard though it may be to credit it—he lighted a cigar. His muddled brain did not attempt to grasp the idea as to where he was going—he only knew that his wife was dead and he was at her funeral.

At the burial he wept, which, in his condition, was not a very hard thing to do. After placing the wreath on the mound he drove to the city, called on his friends, and, having told them of his loss, he invited them to his house that night to comfort and console him.

They went; the parlor, Mrs. "Tom's" especial pride, was the place of the mournful festivities. They talked long over the virtues of the late lamented and many toasts were drunk to her memory. As the hours sped Mr. Paulding grew rapturously wretched, and finally being overcome by grief and frequent potations, his friends laid him on a sofa and left him, surrounded by empty bottles, glasses, pipes and fragments of tobacco; and the half-smoked cigars strewn over the carpet were enough to make Mrs. Paulding "turn in her grave."

It was almost noon when he felt himself roughly shaken.

"Itsh all right," he muttered, thinking his friends were still with him. "I saw the old girl planted."

"Yesh all right," he continued, after a pause. "Mrsh. Pauldingsh goin' to have the biggest monument ever seen. 'Peacesh and Lashh' on it, too. Thash whatsh the matter with me. Peacesh at lashi, all right."

"Villain! Beast! Sot! Where is that cat?"

He gave a maniacal yell, and rushed into the street. On he ran, with men, children and dogs in his wake, until he reached the hospital.

The same attendant he had just seen answered the bell, and by the time he did so the police and the crowd arrived.

"Why did you tell me Mrs. Paulding was dead?" he gasped, sobered somewhat by now.

"Well, if she ain't dead," the attendant answered, "you played a mighty mean trick on her yesterday when you buried her!"

"Is your name Spaulding?" asked the attendant.

"No. My name is Thomas Paulding. Why?"

"Only this. You are just out so much for the hack hire and those flowers, for Spaulding was the name of the party you buried yesterday. Mrs. Thomas Paulding left the hospital this morning, better and stronger than ever."

"I believe you," said Paulding, ruefully feeling the welts on his neck. Then a thought seemed to strike him, and he grew weak in the knees.

"Say," he tremplingly whispered to the policeman, "if you put a cat in an empty outbound coal car, do you think the cat would come back?"

"No," replied the officer, wondering if he should not arrest him as an escaped lunatic.

"Good-bye, then. I'm off," he cried running down the hospital steps.

"I'm going to take the first train for the Connellsville coal region, and hunt for that cat!"

GONE WRONG.

Girl Student In Nebraska University Caught In Thieving.

Lincoln, Neb., June 13.—Miss Dora Munroe, of Cedar Rapids, Neb., a student at the university of Nebraska, in her freshman year, has just been convicted by the university authorities of wholesale thievery from fellow students, and taken to her home, humiliated and disgraced.

Frequent thefts have been reported to Chancellor Andrews throughout the school year and the Monroe girl has been seen peering into the pockets of garments in the cloak rooms simultaneously with thefts.

Proof, however, was not forthcoming until this week. A book was presented to one of the professors by Miss Monroe, which she wished to sell.

The instructor, in examining its contents found the name of another student, who had previously reported the loss of such a book, written on an inside page, where it had escaped the notice of the thief.

A detective was given charge of the case and his investigation, which served to confirm the suspicions against her, led to the issuance of a search warrant.

In Miss Monroe's room was found a trunk almost full of articles stolen from students at intervals throughout the year. The trunk was packed and the owner preparing to leave for home.

Miss Monroe's father was summoned at once, but not until his arrival would the girl admit her guilt, when she weakened and tearfully confessed.

Physicians pronounced her to be a kleptomaniac and the father was permitted to take the girl to his home, the authorities at the university charitably refusing to prosecute.

An inventory of stolen property found in the trunk showed one parasol, one fur collar, one lady's mackintosh, twenty-four pairs of ladies' kid gloves, four pairs of ladies' mittens, twenty-five handkerchiefs, ten veils, three pocketbooks with owners' names yet on them, four pocketbooks without names or marks of identification, five gold pens and thirteen books. Of the latter, in two or three instances, she had three or four volumes of the same book. Many other articles were found, such as feathers from hats and small articles of wearing apparel and jewelry ornaments.

A SPLENDID CATARRHAL TONIC.

Is Pe-ru-na, Says Congressman Fitzpatrick.

Congressman F. Y. Fitzpatrick.

Hon. F. Y. Fitzpatrick, Congressman from Kentucky, writes from the National Hotel, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"At the solicitation of a friend I used your Peruna and can cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone suffering with catarrh or who needs a good tonic."—F. Y. Fitzpatrick.

Mr. Mathias Leif, Secretary Uniform Rank, Catholic Knights of America, writes from 3327 North Clark street, Chicago, Ill., as follows:

"I have now used Peruna off and on for over three years as a strengthening tonic and find it of inestimable value. My system gets run down and worn out at times, and I do not know what I should do without Peruna to build it up again."—Mathias Leif.

A Summer Tonic.

Pe-ru-na is a natural and efficient nerve tonic. It strengthens and restores the activity of every nerve in the body.

Through the use of Pe-ru-na the weakened or overworked nerves resume their natural strength and the blood vessels begin at once to regulate the flow of blood according to nature's laws. Congestions immediately disappear.

Summer Catarrh.

All phases of summer catarrh, acute or chronic, are promptly and permanently cured. It is through its operation upon the nervous system that Pe-ru-na has attained such a world-wide reputation as a sure cure and reliable remedy for all phases of catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

THE DAKOTAS

Prisoner Released Who Has Spent Years Behind Bars.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Moses Robine, who was discharged from the Sioux Falls penitentiary this week, is one of the most remarkable characters ever incarcerated in that famous prison. He is 78 years of age, and has spent over forty years of his life behind prison bars. But he has reformed, now that he has one foot in the grave, and announced prior to his departure for Omaha that he had completed his criminal career and would henceforth live an honorable and upright life. He was sent up from Omaha for counterfeiting, under a sentence of three years, which expired this week. He is known as one of the most expert counterfeiters in the United States. He is also one of the oldest specialists in that line, having, according to his own admissions, gone into the business nearly sixty years ago.

After a respite for a few months the now celebrated McClellan case, involving possession of the property left by a wealthy pioneer, John McClellan, is again occupying the attention of the circuit court. Judge Campbell of the Aberdeen circuit is presiding, Judge Jones, who presided at the former trial, having asked to be excused. The granting of a new trial was based largely if not wholly upon new testimony secured in England and Ireland as to McClellan's record in the British army. The purpose of the new testimony is to break down the case o wfhat are known as the Vine claimants, who won out in the former trial, by disputing important dates testified to by them. An objection to the introduction of this new testimony was overruled. Ten days or more will be required to secure the testimony of all the claimants.

Mitchell—At the meeting of the board of education the teachers for the ensuing year were elected. Prof. E. J. Quigley was re-elected superintendent, with Prof. F. C. Popham, of Lowden, Iowa, principal; Miss Gold Corwin, first assistant, and Urof. F. A. Fry, of Kimball, second assistant. The other teachers are as follows: Misses Cora Miner, Blanche Vande Bogart, Alice Saul, Sara Scallin, Julia Rogers, Anna Hannabuth, Bessie Thompson, Hannah Foley, Clara Nobis and Patterson.

Opera house plans, which have been in the air for some time, have commenced to bear fruit. Stock is being solicited among business men and they are taking hold in a way that practically insures a structure in time for the fall season.

Aberdeen—Judge L. W. Crofoot, special master in chancery, has filed with Judge Garland, of the United States court, his findings of fact in the rare case in which the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway sought to enjoin the South Dakota railroad commissioners from enforcing the reduction of rates of freight and fare. The case was heard in the federal court, after a hearing in which Judge Crofoot acted as special examiner, taking about 1000 pages of testimony, and Judge Garland decided in favor of the commissioners. The company appealed to the United States supreme court, which sent the case back with instructions that a special master in chancery be appointed to make a finding of facts on the voluminous evidence already taken. Judge Crofoot was again appointed, and has just completed the work, and the case can now go back to the court. He finds that the total values of the company's lines, appurtenances and equipment in the state amount to $15,00,000, and that the company pays an average of 5.69 per cent interest or $1,101,749.93 annually on $19,365,247.10 of bonded indebtedness on the property. That the net earnings amounted to $246,914.20 for 1897, the year in question, and that the enforcement of the reduction would cut this down to $180,389.02, or 17.44 per cent on freight and 25 per cent on passenger receipts.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—The monthly report of Dr. Dugran, superintendent of the county board of health, shows a total of 102 cases of smallpox in Grand Forks county during May. All but a few of these have been mild cases, but notwithstanding Dr. Duggan has enforced a strict quarantine. The disease has made its appearance in ten different townships of the county, and Grand Forks, the largest city in the county, has had but two patients and they were both transients. The quarantine on eleven of the families has been raised, there having been nineteen families quarantined in adition to ten transients.

Fargo—The correspondents who sent out the report of the judgment in the United tSates district court here against Richard Sykes, made their messages misleading as far as they relate to Mr. Sykes. William Dwyer secured a judgment of $8000 against Mr. Sykes for alleged commissions on a sale of 200,000 acres of land to A. G. Whitney, of St. Cloud. The negotiations progressed for some months, but fell through on account of a disagreement as to price. Mr. Whitney instituted suit against Mr. Sykes in the United States court for $160,000. The action dragged along for two years until last week, when it was stricken from the calendar on motion of Mr. Whitney's own attorneys, who admitted they had no case and would be unable to secure a judgment. The judgment for commissions will be appealed from, as Mr. Sykes' attorneys will allege prejudice on the part of the jury because Mr. Sykes is an Englishman.

In the land contest between Nick Breyer, of Fargo, and Gus Anderson over a quarter section of land ten miles from Forman, in Sargent county, the register and the receiver of the local land office, have been informed by the department that the entry is held for cancellation. Breyer is a tailor in Fargo and learned that Anderson had neglected to comply with the law.

ARGUE AGAINST SPANISH.

Manila, June 13.—The United States Philippine commission today began the consideration of the code of civil procedure. The American lawyers argued against the provision makng Spanish the court language.

CLASS DAY

Graduates of 1901 Have Their Exercises.

Program of Much Interest and Merit.

The high school senior class of 1901, the first class of the century, took the first step in its final exercises incidental to leaving the high school, in the Assembly hall last night before an immense audience. According to custom, the class day exercises were held, and it was a very bright and clever entertainment indeed, quite up to the examples set by preceding classes, and surpassing them in many respects. The class songs, of A. F. M. Custance's brilliant arrangement, were sung, the class president made his address, the class historian related the tale of the class that is soon to pass out of the school, the class orator spoke, the class seer gave the usual prophecy, and the class attorney read the last will and testament. All of these features were brimful and overflowing with clever and witty sallies, making up a very delightful evening.

JESSE BRADLEY,

The class, sixty-nine strong, filled the stage of the Assembly hall as comfortably as the audience filled the hall itself. The young women of the class were arranged in the front rows, their faces fairer than the glorious blossoms that filled their arms. Above the stage were draped the class colors, red and blue, and over the proscenium stood the class motto, "Vestigia Nulla Retrosum."

After the class song and a selection by the orchestra, Jesse Bradley gave the president's address. He spoke of the four happy, busy years that the class had spent in the beautiful high school building, of whose beauty they had been reminded by every visitor that addressed the school. He hoped they had all gained much from these years, and spoke of the various features of the training they had received aside from the book training that was the body of their education. They had had some social schooling as well, and they had learned to adapt themselves to the machinery of an organization, which inculcates self-control, the prime object of education. There has been a strong class spirit, and a strong school spirit as well. Incidentally President Bradley thanked the board of education for its action in engaging Principal Charles Alden Smith for three years more. Speaking to the lower grades, he said that he would offer no advice to the freshmen and sophomores—not that they did not need it, but that he would leave that to wiser tongues. The juniors he thanked for having made the seniors think more of themselves.

MISS KATE ALLEN,

In the place on the program where the orchestra was down for a number, a surprise was sprung in the shape of a rendition of a new version of the song, "Out, Out in the Wide Wide World," wherein two juniors, assisted by the junior class, sang several happy hits at the senior class and some of its members.

Kate Allen gave a very bright class history, with a new and clever setting. Electrical effects by Arthur Herrell, a member of the class, produced the effect indicated by the speaker, that the class was gathering about the flickering embers of a fireplace while the history of the class, with its many tender memories, was related in a very charming manner, full of witty allusions.

The song "Alma Mater," the work of Mr. Custance, was sung by the class, after which Edward Duggan Payne gave the class oration. His thesis was the condition of the country and the dominancy of the commercial spirit, and he handled it with strong thought and introduced a number of excellent ideas well worded and well delivered. He spoke of the wealth of the United States today as the result of tremendous advances in recent years, showed that great prosperity is being ejoyed and that there is strong hope of its continuance. There is a darker side of the picture. It has been said that this country is democratic only in name; that it is really a monarchy, with the dollar as its monarch. The greed for gain dominates, and in the mad race for wealth great havoc is wrought that is shown in the hospitals, jails and asylums. The commercial instinct is so strong that sometimes it overcomes morality and justice. This is shown by the sentiment that exists in favor of failing in our pledge to free Cuba and taking her for our own possession. Dollars and cents in too many minds weigh greater than national honor. Yet the danger is not so great but that this country, with its marvelous elasticity, cannot overcome it.

Miss Rena V. Smith sang Bischoff's "Bobolink," and the selection was marvelously well suited to her voice, which flows freely, naturally and gracefully, pouring out the most charming melody in an effortless manner that is truly bird-like. Add to that the fact that the quality is soft and sweet, and yet of sufficient volume, and an idea of the effect may be gained. She was warmly applauded and responded to an enthusiastic encore with "Sally in Our Alley."

The next number on the program was the most delightful o the evening. It was the class prophecy, delivered by Miss Mary Morris, and even though many of the hits were clouded in mystery to outsiders, being understood more fully by the members of the class, everybody in the hall enjoyed it. What she called a "telephonograph," a large box draped with black and with a telephone on top, was used occasionally to heighten the effect. When it was appealed to it responded in a voice that sounded remarkably like that of a freshman, but that might have been imagination. Miss Morris is possessed of a voice well suited to public speaking, and a manner that is charming and unaffected. She began by simulating the introduction of a visiting personage to the school, in which she was both the introducer and the introduced. As is the custom with visitors, she "hoped the pupils were proud and grateful because of the advantage they had of being educated in this magnificent high school building." This was done with a charming mimicry that brought down the house. The class prophecy introduced all of the members of the class, and a multitude of happy hits upon them were made.

EDWARD PAYNE,

After the class had sung "D. H. S.," another work of Mr. Custance, Miss Alice Scott read the last will and testament of the class. It was a very witty and original paper, in which she handed down to the succeeding classes and the faculty the relics, real and imaginary, of the class of 1901. As in the other features, many clever allusions to high school teachers and pupils were made,

MISS MARY MORRIS,

The school song, "Triumphales," was then sung, all of the classes taking part, and then, as the audience was slowly passing out of the building, the various class yells rang in the ears with deafening effect.

Tonight the graduating exercises of the eighth grades will be held in the High School Assembly hall, and tomorrow night the commencement exercises of the senior class of the high school will be held in the same place. The program for tomorrow night follows:

Baseball Game.

The Duluth and high school baseball teams will play a practice game at Oneota park on Saturday afternoon. On Sunday afternoon, at West Superior, the Duluth and Superior teams will play the deciding game of the series. Each team has won three games so far.

A week from Saturday and Sunday the Ashland team will be here for a series. This team will be made up largely of Chicago university players and should prove an excellent drawing card.

Talk of Foul Play.

At the inquest over the body of Wallace Honeycombe, the Superior man who was found dead, Tuesday, his body being badly mutilated, the coroner's jury was unable to reach a verdict and adjourned to meet again today. The jury heard testimony to the effect that Honeycombe and his wife were intoxicated during the afternoon and evening of the man's death.

"DOES MOTHER WANT ME?"

The little fellow has blown with all his strength, and the downy tufts still cling to the dandelion stem. According to the oracle of childhood mother does not want him. But mother would tell a different story. She has noticed the weakness of the lungs, and if she saw him now, flushed with his unusual effort and struggling to stifle the cough which followed it, she'd feel how much she wanted him, and wanted those "weak" lungs made strong, that she might not lose him.

For "weak" lungs, obstinate cough, hemorrhage, weakness and emaciation there is no medicine so healing and so strengthening as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is especially valuable for children, building up weak bodies with sound, healthy flesh. It is entirely free from alcohol and narcotics.

"Winter before this, my oldest boy (who is now nearly five years old), had a terrible cough; he had it the whole winter and all summer," writes J. M. Farr, Esq., of Cameron, Screven Co., Ga. "Physicians did him no good and nothing my wife and I could do did him any good. After your 'Discovery' had cured my cough so quickly, when everything else failed, I wrote my wife to bring him back from the country, she having carried him there to see if the change would do him good. We were living in Savannah, Ga., at the time. She brought him back and after giving him your great 'Golden Medical Discovery' for a time, he entirely recovered."

CONVENTION.

Swedish Evangelical Mission Gathering--- A National Meeting.

The Swedish Evangelical Mission Covenant of America will hold its seventeenth annual convention in this city, in the Swedish Mission church, corner of Second street and Twenty-first avenue west from June 19 to 24. The conference will open Wednesday morning with reports of the various officers and committees. There will be services at the Mission church at 7:30 p. m. Business sessions will be held at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. Monday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

At the Norwegian M. E. church, corner of First street and Twenty-first avenue west, public services will be held at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. on Thursday and Friday and at 11 a. m. on Saturday. Each evening at 7:30 there will be meetings in the Mission church. The Sunday services at 10 a. m., 3 p. m. and 7 p. m. will be especially in the interest of missions.

On Monday, June 24, the members of the church will give a picnic at Zenith park, to which the ministers, delegates and the general public is invited. The fine new excursion steamer, the Bloomer Girl, will leave the Twenty-first avenue west dock at 9 a. m. and at 1 p. m. During the afternoon picnic boats will leave West Duluth for the park every half hour. An interesting program will be given at 2:30 p. m., in which the most prominent speakers and singers will take part. The return trip will be made at 5:30 p. m.

Each day during the convention dinner and supper will be served free to ministers and delegates in the basement of the church.

Ministers from all parts of the United States will attend this conference and the meetings will be of special interest, especially to the Scandinavian population of Duluth.

CAMPBELL-HOWARD.

Two Young People Wedded at Superior.

The wedding of Miss Mary Ellen Campbell, of Superior, and Clifford Giles Howard, of Duluth, was solemnized at 4 o'clock p. m. yesterday, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. C. B. Campbell, 1402 Belknap street, West Superior. Rev. A. B. Nicholls, of the Hammond Avenue Presbyterian church, officiated. The residence was elaborately decorated and the bridal couple took position in a floral alcove for the ceremony. They were preceded in the march by Miss Margaret Campbell, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, and Harry W. Howard, brother of the groom, as best man. Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was played on the piano during the march and soft music throughout the ceremony by Mrs. M. M. Turnbull.

After the ceremony a reception was held and a collation served. At 7:15 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Howard left on a tour, which will extend to Buffalo. Early next week they will be at home in Duluth. Mr. Howard is of the repertorial staff of The Herald.

Farewell Party.

A farewell party was tendered Miss Nellie Clark last evening at her home at Hunter's Park on the eve of her departure for a trip to Scotland and England. There was dancing and refreshments, and everybody was happily entertained. Those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chalmers, Mr. and Mrs. E. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Chalmers, Mrs J. D. McGhie, Mrs. A. M. Lewis, Mrs. George McCauley, Miss Ethel Quigley, Miss Mabel DeVore, Miss Jessie Clark, Miss Winnie Quigley, Miss Rose Lewis, Messrs. H. Morrison, Charles Brotheridge, R. McFarlane, A. McKenzie, R. Quigley, Thomas Clark, M. Gibson and Master William Clark.

An Aldermanic Scrap.

President Newburg of the common council of Superior and Alderman Barry of the Tenth ward, are said to have held an acrimonious session in a buffet at Old Town early yesteray morning. They had not reached their homes after the meeting of the council on the night previous. Both of these representatives of the city government are men of splendid physique and take pride in their athletic achievements. They agreed to wrestle for the ice water, best two in three falls. Alderman Barry was given the first fall by the referee after three minutes of aggressive work. Alderman Newburg appealed for a draw on the first fall, but getting no satisfaction, he wanted to settle the question with bare knuckles. Friends kept the enraged principals apart. Alderman Newburg was ejected through the front door and Alderman Barry made his exit through the rear entrance. At last accounts an armistice had been arranged.

SOUTH DAKOTA CROPS.

Grain In That State Doing Well.

The crop report for South Dakota for the week ending Monday last shows a fine condition of grain, but much injury to small vegetables by heavy frost. The report is as follows:

"The temperature during the week averaged somewhat below the normal, with generally cool nights and only moderately warm days. Heavy to killing frost occurred the morning of the 7th over most of the Eastern portion of the state, being most severe over the middle and Northern counties. Many fields of corn, potatoes and early millet were seriously damaged, some, it is thought, irreparably. Some fruit and early flax were also damaged, and tender, unprotected vegetables were killed. The frost effect was not general, as many fields, and parts of fields, escaped material injury. A great many correspondents think that, with favorable weather, corn and potatoes will generally recover. It is too early, however, to definitely determine the permanent damage. Where not frost injured, corn and potatoes made fairly good growth.

"There was considerable cloudy weather with fairly frequent rains over most of the state, and in the aggregate generous amounts occurred over nearly all counties.

"Wheat, oats, barley, rye and grass were generally much improved by the rains; and the drought before prevailing over the middle and upper Missouri valley counties was well broken, but not before serious injury had been sustained by a number of fields in the upper counties.

"Except that there is considerable weeds in some Northern and middle-eastern counties, wheat is generally in a thrifty condition, mostly jointing, shades the ground well, and is promising.

"Except where injured by frost, flax has done well. There is considerable flax and millet yet to be sown, because seeding was retarded by the dry weather preceding the rains, but the work has been resumed generally, with excellent prospect of prompt germination.

"Winter rye is in blossom and filling, and promises well. There is also some barley and early spring rye ready to head in Southern counties.

"The hay prospect is much improved; there is some new hay on the market, and pasturage is generally good."

The Army Canteen.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Like Mr. Powell, I am very much interested in the discussion of the canteen. While many of the stories of drunkenness and insubordination are undoubtedly untrue and others are exaggerated, yet it seems to be a pretty well established fact that much drinking and drunkenness exists, that too many of our soldiers are just common drunkards. The question arises, have they become such since February last or has the canteen had anything to do with making them such?

"A Blessing to all Women"

"It was my friend indeed."

Great joy and comfort comes into every household when the virtue of "Mother's Friend" is known. No more gloomy forebodings or nervousness by expectant mothers, as all pain is prevented by the external use of "Mother's Friend," the marvelous liniment. There is nothing like it.

B. F. BROWN, of Waddill, La., writes: "Many of my wife's friends have used 'Mother's Friend' before confinement, and say they would not pass through the ordeal again without having it, even if it cost $25 per bottle."

Wheat Market Starts Weak But Closes With Advance.

Cables Were Lower and the Weather Conditions Favorable.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 13.—The wheat market started out lower this morning and made a further decline during the early part of the session, with liquidation of the July option the chief feature. The news was bearish, the weather conditions being all favorable for the growing crop and the cables being lower. Liverpool showing a decline of 1/2@5d. Later on in the morning the market rallied on reported damage to wheat in Southern Illinois, liberal cash sales and reported heavy sales of flour for export. The Price Current says that the condition of all crops is being maintained or improved. There are no scattering complaints of fly damage and reports of damage by drouth have ceased. The short interest which was very large covered extensively this morning. Primary receipts of wheat were 492,300 bus, last year 697,939 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour equalled 730,000 bus.

Trading in futures was fairly active on the Duluth board. July opened unchanged at 70c, sold down to 69c at 10:24; recovered to 69¾c at 10:30, fell off to 69c at 10:44, reacted to 69¾c at 11:25 and 69⅝c at 12:39 and closed at 70c which was yesterday's close. September in Duluth closed at an advance of ½c. In Minneapolis July advanced ½c and in Chicago the same amount.

Cash sales were 25,000 bus at July price for wheat to arrive and ½c under for wheat in store.

Flax was strong today and September closed at an advance of 1½c and October 1c up. Oats declined ½c and rye 1c.

Following are the losing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 73c; to arrive, 73c; July, 73c; September, 70c. No. 1 northern, cash, 70c; to arrive, 70c; July, 70c; September, 69c. No. 2 northern, 66c. No. 3 spring, 66c. Oats, 27¼@27c. Rye, 47½c. Flax, cash, $1.67; to arrive, $1.67; September, $1.50; September, Northwestern, $1.31; October, $1.28.

Car inspection—Wheat, 93; corn, 13; oats, 10; rye, 2; flax, 3. Receipts—Wheat, 49,218 bus; corn, 10,808 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 67,342 bus; corn, 38,000 bus; rye, 21 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Liquidation of July Wheat Feature of Day.

Chicago, June 13.—Liquidation of July wheat was the feature of the grain market today. July opened a shade to 1/16@⅛ lower at 70¼ to 70⅜ and sold down to 69⅝. Liverpool cables were lower and weather conditions continued favorable. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 330 cars against 311 last week and 328 a year ago. Local receipts were 86 cars, 24 of contract grade.

On reports of damage by Hessian fly and large sales for export, July reacted. Closed steady ½c higher at 71@⅞c.

Corn was weak with large offerings and little demand save from the shorts. July opened unchanged to ⅜ lower at 42 to 42⅝ and fell to 41½. Local receipts were 233 cars, 18 of contract grade.

Corn, under covering, July rallied to 42c and closed steady, ⅜@½c lower at 41⅝@42c.

Oats were extremely weak. July opened ⅜ to ⅝ lower at 27½ to 27⅜ and declined to 26⅝@¾. Local receipts were 120 cars.

Provisions were easier in sympathy with grain and lower hogs. Trade was light. July pork opened 7½ lower at $14.77½ and declined to $14.75. July lard opened 10@12½c down at $8.45 and rallied to $8.50. July ribs opened 2½c lower at $8.05.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Chicago, June 13.—The trade in wheat has been of fair volume with a better tone. Thus was caused partly by the fact that a rally was due after so long and severe a decline and also by fly reports which were especially bad from the East, some claiming that in sections the fields would not produce seed. Liquidation has been thorough in this cereal and we are inclined to think better prices can be anticipated in the near future. Later along the crop condition in the spring wheat territory will be the main factor. Minneapolis reports flour demand fair with trade somewhat larger, most mills selling their outputs.

Corn was lower although some reaction has occurred from inside figures. Cash corn bids are said to be cheaper and that on the break, but the demand is still poor. We see nothing in the present condition to warrant better prices for this cereal and think it is likely to drag lower, especially for the near future. Some complaints about the corn now in store here, but we think the elevators will take care of the property and that no corn will be posted as out of condition. What is wanted at the moment is a better consumptive demand; estimated cars 225.

Oats were dull and lower with corn. Light trade. News from fields continue to show improvement.

Provisions were steady to a shade lower. Speculative trade light. Hogs receipts 32,000, against 17,500. Shipments cut meats 1,341,000, against 1,711,000. Lard 905,000, against 1,141,000.

TO RESTRAIN.

Additional Suits to Prevent Proposed Copper Consolidation.

New York, June 13.—The case of Calvin O. Geer against the Amalgamated Copper company was re-called before Vice Chancellor Stevens in Newark today. George Alfred Lamb and Robert Carey presented petition on the part of Mrs. Silas E. Smith, to be allowed to intervene in the action. Mrs. Smith is the owner of stock in the Amalgamated company which she has held as an investment since the organization of the company. There was no opposition to her intervening in the case.

The suit was brought by the C. H. Venner Company of Boston and Calvin O. Geer to restrain the Amalgamated Copper company from acquiring the Boston & Montana and Butte & Boston companies.

R. V. Lindabury, attorney for the Amalgamated company, at the opening of the hearing, presented the company's answer to the charges of the complainants. He denied that the directors of the Amalgamated company owned 173,000 shares of the Butte & Boston stock now or that they had owned it at any time. He also denied that they were interested in the Butte & Montantaoi interested in the Boston & Montana company, with the exception of Henry H. Rogers and William G. Rockefeller, each of whom, he said, owned 250 shares of stock of the company and had owned them for a long time.

Mr. Lindabury further claimed that the assets of these companies as stated by the complainants were not properly itemized and that there were additional assets that would bring the total up to $20,000,000. Counsel denied, further, that it was the intention of defendant directors to unload their holdings at exorbitant prices.

A SET BACK.

Evidence For Defense Ruled Out In the Kennedy Trial.

Kansas City, June 13.—Another setback was given the defense in the Kennedy trial today, when the court ruled out the testimony of Arthur H. Kuhn, an intimate friend of Philip H. Kennedy. His story was expected to be on similar lines as that of E. W. Lewis, which the court yesterday kept back from the jury, but permitted to be dictated to a court stenographer. Kuhn was also permitted to dictate his story.

Mrs. Kennedy, the defendant, appeared much depressed when she entered the court room today. During the night it was found necessary to call a physician to her cell to administer a sleep potion.

Kuhn's statement was to the effect that he had berated Kennedy for the latter's alleged ill-treatment of his wife, etc., that Kennedy did not deny the charges, and merely shook his head.

Bert Prince, a musician and favorite brother of the prisoner, who is also accused of partaking in the conspiracy, was the next witness. Prince said he went to his father's place of business late in the afternoon, that his father told him of the shooting, after it had occurred and they both went to the scene.

Dr. Funtion then testified from the point of an insanity expert. He said it was possible the defendant had inherited a trace of insanity from her grandfather, who had been confined in an asylum.

Counsel for the defense then announced their side closed, and the state began the introduction of evidence in rebuttal.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Resiliency of Union Pacific Kept the Undertone Firm.

Large Demand For a Few Stocks at the Opening.

Reactions Were Frequent But Close Was Active and Firm.

New York, June 13.—There was a large demand for a few stocks at the opening but the general list showed a straggling change mixed between gains and losses, the purchase of 4,000 shares of Pennsylvania carried that stock up half and of 3,000 shares of American car made the rise 1¾. Colorado Fuel was lifted 2¾ points and St. Louis & San Francisco, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, Amalgamated Copper and Illinois Central about a point each.

There were advances of 2 points in St. Paul, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, Pacific Coast second preferred, Manhattan and Pacific stocks were in good demand. Union Pacific reached 106. Material advances were also recorded in Brooklyn Transit, Metropolitan Street Railway, Cotton Oil, St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred, Denver & Rio Grande and Louisville. The iron and steel properties moved unevenly, Colorado Fuel reacting feverishly 3¾. U. S. Steel was distinctly heavy. Trading was less active in the Southwestern and Texas & Pacific yielded to pressure. Among inconspicuous stocks, American Snuff preferred lost 4, Minneapolis & St. Louis 1 and Northwest 7 from the last sale, while Virginia, Carolina Chemical preferred gained 4 points and the American Agricultural Chemical stocks, General Electric, Smelting, North American and U. S. Rubber 1 to 1½. Prices yielded generally before the end of the hour.

Buying on a large scale of St. Paul and Union Pacific was renewed, carrying the former to 165¾ and the latter to 111¼. North American rose 6¼ and American Car 2½. There were gains of 1½ in Atchison, Southern Railway, Wheeling & Lake Erie, Sugar, Consolidated Gas, the International Paper stocks, Schloss-Scheffield and International Power. Realizing held back recent favorites. There were recessions in the strong stocks but a rise in B. & O. to 112¾ stiffened them again. Bonds showed slight changes in prices except some of the convertible issues which were strong in sympathy with their stocks.

There was another buoyant outburst in Union Pacific and St. Paul which sent them up to extreme 4¾ and 5%. Northwestern preferred rose 3 and Rock Island 2¾ and Northwestern rallied 2. Chicago Great Western preferred B and preferred A, advanced 1¾ and 1¼ respectively. Minneapolis & St. Louis recovered 5 from the low point. Realizing caused reactions running to a point, but the resiliency of Union Pacific kept the undertone firm. That stock rose again to 113½ and some other prices got back to the top. The closing was active and firm.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.—Brokers say it was another day of professional trading in the stock market. The professional interests are permitting the room traders to raid or bid up stocks within a narrow range finds very general belief. Morgan's returning the latter part of this month is talked of as an event which may mark the turning point in the dullness. In well informed quarters it is expected that Morgan-Harriman-Hyde-Rockefeller-Gould interest will then get together and definitely settle their differences for so much is at stake that they cannot afford to fight. With peace and good crops assured there will be the foundation for renewed strength in securities and it is felt that in the meantime good stocks will be a purchase on soft spots. In the judgment of leading financiers conditions are as sound as they were two months ago for since the crop of winter wheat has become practically an accomplished fact earnings have increased steadily in general business has been maintained. There is a report that all is not in harmony in the Tobacco camp. It seems that the deal for the absorption of the American and Continental Tobacco by the Consolidated company has bread dissension among insiders. Duke, the head of the American Tobacco company, is reported to be opposed to this deal on the grounds that the terms to the Continental Tobacco are much too liberal.

New York up town gossip to Jones & Co.—Yesterday's market was professional and spotty. There was evidence that the purely public interest in the market was very small. On the other hand powerful interests absorbed stocks on any recessions and they also appeared equally willing to market securities on any important advance. There was a great deal of discrimination in their methods as they did not sell Colorado Fuel and Iron until it reached a sensational point. The advance in Colorado Fuel was an undoubtedly a Gates move. Company has contracted for additional mills. Its earnings are excellent and prospects good. The Gates crowd predicts 125 for the stock. Missouri Pacific is expected to pay 5 per cent and its friends assert it is earning at the rate of 12 per cent dividends. As a 5 per cent dividend payer the current prices are high enough but friends of the Golds are confident that there are to be some very valuable rights to come. There is a strong probability of early dividend declaration by Brooklyn Rapid Transit. This will help all of the tractions.

New York to Baker—Pennsylvania is loaning flat. Goodhart and other banking houses borrowing largely as we understand it. They have sold the stock and bought rights for the small differences, arbitraging it in other words. The stock goes up faster than the rights. They will begin to lose fast and cover stock. The same is true in Union Pacific; these arbitragurs are selling the stock and buying the convertible bonds. The stock is closely held and if big people put up the game they can hold back the issue of the convertible bonds as long as they like and give the shorts in Union Pacific quite a run. The rumor is that Colorado Fuel and Iron will be taken into the steel trust, holders of 100 Colorado Fuel and Iron getting 100 United States Steel common and 100 preferred for it. That is what put the stock up yesterday. Clark, Dodge & Co. say Missouri Pacific will sell at 150.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 13.—Cotton opened steady, 6@9 points lower on near months and 3 points lower to 1 point higher on far months, an indifferent response to weakness abroad. Immediately following the call the market was higher on a broadening of the buying movement which was started by the opening decline. From 8.18 July advanced to 8.22, August from 7.64 to 7.66, and January from 7.22 to 7.23. Toward the middle of the hour the market showed decided weakness in near months and selling for outside account and a stubborn bear raid.

Cotton futures closed steady. June 8.17; July 8.21; Aug., 7.5; Sept., 7.27; Oct., 7.19; Nov., 7.16; Dec., 7.18; Jan., 7.22; Feb., 7.22; March, 7.25.

DEAD EASY.

Aristocracy Will Jump at the American's Offer.

London, June 13.—An American, who, through the advertisement in the London Times offers £5000 for introduction of his daughter into British society, will find little difficulty in getting his money accepted. The advertisement follows:

"An American gentleman desires the services of an English lady of title as chaperon for his only daughter, who will shortly arrive in England, for a three months' stay. Honorarium, 5000."

ROBBED.

Governor Tilly of Samoa Assaulted By San Francisco Thugs.

San Francisco, June 13.—Lieut. Com. B. F. Tilly, U. S. N., governor of the American portion of the Samoan islands, was assaulted and robbed by two unknown men as he was strolling along the water front. When in an unfamiliar part of the city Commander Tilly says he was passed by two men who turned suddenly and seized him from behind. One grabbed his gold watch chain, while the other held him by the throat. A struggle ensued, during which he was either struck over the head and across the mouth, or thrown down with violence, rendering him unconscious and inflicting two ugly bruises. When he recovered consciousness he secured a cab and returned to his hotel. His assailants, who made good their escape, relieved him of a gold watch and about $25.

Fatal Accident on Union Pacific Locomotive.

Engineer Charles Fulmer of Council Bluffs, and Fireman David Jenkins of Omaha were killed. Brakeman William Fleming of Omaha was fatally hurt.

MARINE NEWS.

A Much Better Demand For Grain Boats at Chicago.

Chicago, June 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a better demand for boats in the grain trade today and some tonnage could have been placed at 1½ cents on corn to Lake Erie. From indications in the early part of the session it seemed as if little tonnage was on the market, most of the vessels unloading coal at this end of Lake Michigan having been sent for iron ore.

FREIGHTERS WILL HAVE SPEED.

The Western liner now in course of construction at Buffalo is designed to be the speediest freighter on the lakes. It is expected that she will be able to make fifteen miles per hour loaded and seventeen miles per hour light.

SHIPBUILDING MATTERS.

Detroit, Mich., June 13.—It is probable that within a short time contracts will be let with the Detroit Shipbuilding company for the construction of two or more ocean tramp steamers to be built at Wyandotte. Nothing has as yet been given out as to who the contractors are, but it is believed they are intended for the coasting trade on the Atlantic.

The steamers Colonel and Yosemite, the two steel freighters now in course of construction at the Wyandotte yards, will be launched next month. They are duplicates, each 376 feet long over all and 50 feet beam, with a capacity of 5000 tons. They are for Detroit parties.

GEN. DUMONT APPEALED TO.

An effort is being made by the Lake Carriers' association to have the ruling of load line revoked. Secretary Keep is in local steamboat inspectors regarding the matter, and James A. Dumont regarding the matter, and it is believed that the decision of the department will be favorable to the vesselmen, as it is claimed the law is not applicable to lake vessels, but only refers to seagoing vessel.

DANGEROUS ROCK TO BE MARKED.

The Canadian marine department gives notice that a spar buoy will be placed over the rock upon which the steamer Arthur Orr recently struck. The rock, which is a pinnacle, has fifteen feet of water over it, with ten fathoms all around on all sides. It is located opposite Black rock, in the entrance to Parry Sound, at the north shore of Georgian bay. The danger is practically on the alignment of the Jones island range lights.

SMITH IS NOT DEAD

Evidence Is Good For He Denies It In Person.

F. W. Ross Was Mistaken In His Identification.

Dead in print, but otherwise alive, Thomas Smith, formerly a traveling man of Winnipeg, moved in concentric circles up Superior street last night, denying that he had ever seen the interior of a morgue.

After reading his obituary, and details of how he was found lifeless in the card room of the Vega saloon, and how he had later been identified in the morgue, Smith's past life flashed before him, and he had visions of angels in polka dot jumpers swimming around on painted skies.

He had been painting signs quite late in the evening and when he read of his death he was still wondering why acquaintances stopped and looked astonished when they saw him at work. As the events of his life paraded through his memory, the reason for their singular facial expressions brought up the rear of the procession.

It was then that Mr. Smith decided he would have to correct the impression. On his way down Superior street, he stopped at The Herald office and said that he never felt healthier or more like living in his life.

The dead man was identified yesterday by F. W. Ross, who said that Smith stopped him on the street a few days ago and introduced himself. Mr. Ross then remembering that he had known him in Winnipeg fifteen or more years ago. He told Mr. Ross that he was a painter and it turns out that the man who died was a painter, too. The confusion probably came about by reason of the similarity of occupations and the fact that Mr. Ross having not seen him for so long was not very familiar with his appearance. There is a similarity in the appearance of the two men.

Mr. Smith regretted that the mistake had been made on account of the sorrow it would cause his friends and relatives in Winnipeg and suggests that he would rather walk home than to have them send on money for his funeral expenses.

Mr. Smith says that the dead man must be William Woods, formerly of Minneapolis.

SKUSE-CHRISTENSON.

Marriage at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

The marriage of Miss Lillian Alice Skuse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Skuse, and Hans Christenson, took place last evening at St. Paul's Episcopal church. It was a very handsome wedding, simple for a church wedding, but beautiful and impressive. The hour was 8 o'clock and the church was filled with friends. The church had been tastefully decorated with palms, smilax, lilacs and potted plants. Mrs. James McKindley was at the organ and played a number of selections before the arrival of the bridal party. Miss McKay sang "To the Angels," by Liddel, and Mrs. James McAuliffe sang "Calm As the Night," by Bohm.

The "Lohengrin" wedding march was played as the bridal party entered. The ushers were W. L. McLennan, Harper W. Skuse, Maurice T. Bywater and George W. Welles. Miss Jennie McLennan was maid of honor and was gowned in white over yellow silk and carried American Beauty roses. The bride was also attended by Miss Kate Boyce and Miss Mildred Cleland, who also were white over yellow and carried Sunset roses. The bride was with her father and wore a handsome gown of point l'esprit over liberty silk and carried a shower bouquet of lillies of the valley.

The service was read by Rev. A. W. Ryan, and consisted of the usual betrothal ceremony followed by the marriage ceremony. During this the organ played softly. The bridal party left the church to the strains of the Mendelssohn march.

An informal reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Skuse in the St. Elmo flats. A large number of relatives and friends were present and extended their congratulations. The house was handsomely decorated with lilacs, roses and smilax.

Mr. and Mrs. Christenson left for the East on the night train.

A Long Trip.

Martin Pattison, of Superior, and party left this afternoon for an extensive exploration trip. There are six white people in the party, with several Indians from the Minnesota iron region to help in the canoe trip. The party includes Mr. Pattison and his son, Byron, a student at the Michigan college of mines, and Messrs. Holmes and McCrossley, who are connected with the same school. From Superior, besides Mr. Pattison and his son, are Burt Giffin and George Anderson.

The start will be made from Ely, Minn., where Mr. Pattison is at present interested in iron properties. At this point the party will start the canoe trip and will point for Hunter's lake. It will go to Shebandanwon lake and from

WILL START.

Superior Grass Twine Plant to Operate Coming Fall.

Superior is rejoicing over the fact that its grass twine plant is to start up the coming fall. It is good news to the people over there for it will employ a large number of people. The Duluth people will be glad to see this new industry added to those in operation at the head of the lakes.

The Superior papers announce that all of the machinery for the plant has been purchased by the company and it will be placed in the plant at once. This will be ready for the starting of the institution in the early fall and at this time all of the three grass twine plants of the company, which have been idle for some time, will be placed in operation. The only reason the Superior plant has never started before was because of the impossibility of securing grass and the other plants of the company were forced to close down for the same reason.

Kenneth M. Clark, of St. Paul, and a director in the company, is in the city and says that there is a great demand for the product of the company and especially in the line of mattings. A wholesale firm in the East offered to buy up the entire product of the three plants of the company.

The grass for manufacturing the product can be secured only in the northern part of this state and Minnesota and to secure a great quantity for the work this year the company has recently purchased 8000 acres of land along the line of the St. Paul & Duluth branch of the Northern Pacific and up along the Fosston line of the Great Northern. This grass will be harvested by the company's own men ,but the people that have in the past sold grass to the concern will still have ample demand for their product, as a vast amount of grass is needed.

The industry, which is of recent birth, is a progressive one and it is expected that the demand for the product of the company's plants which are the only ones in the country, will continue. There will be between 200 and 300 men employed at the Superior plant at the start.

America Advancing.

American locomotives are hauling English trains, and the English trains and Englishmen are rolling over American steel rails. Our machinery is sold all over the world. A great American remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is gradually working its way to all parts of the globe where dyspepsia and indigestion thrive. Like all American products, it is honest, and does just what it claims to do. The most stubborn cases of constipation, biliousness, nervousness, liver and kidney troubles must yield to it. It is the most perfect remedy ever devised for weak stomachs. For fifty years it has been famous for its astonishing efficacy. It is a perfectly natural remedy, and there is nothing to equal it. See that a Private Revenue Stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

Shredded Wheat Banquet.

This evening the National Food company, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., will give a shredded wheat banquet at the Lester Park pavilion. It is given to the retail grocers at the head of the lakes, and supper will be served at 9 o'clock. National President Peter G. Hanson of Minneapolis, State Secretary Fred Mason of St. Paul, State Organizer J. S. Taylor of Minneapolis and C. M. Griffin, president of the Wisconsin association, are to be present and respond to toasts. Mayor Hugo will be toastmaster.

CUBANS ACCEPT

The Platt Amendment Adopted By Constitutional Convention.

Resolution Carried Without Discussion By Vote of 16 to 11.

Havana, June 13.—The Cuban constitutional convention yesterday accepted the Platt amendment by a vote of 16 to 11. The resolution to accept was carried without discussion. Immediately after the opening of the sessions, Senores Tamayo, Villuendas and Quesada, constituting a majority of the committee on relations, submitted as a substitute for the committee's former report the Platt amendment, as passed by congress, recommending that it be accepted and made an appendix of the constitution.

In the vote on the resolution the twenty-seven delegates present divided as follows:

In favor of acceptance: Senores Capote, Villuenda, Jose M. Gomez, Tamayo, Monteaguedo, Delgado, Betancourt, Giberga, Llorente, Quesada, Sanguilly, Nunez, Rodriguez, Berriel, Quilez and Ferrer.

Opposed to acceptance: Senores Zayas, Aleman, Eudaldo Tamayo, Juan Gualberto Gomez, Cisneros, Silvala, Fortun, Lacret, Portuondo Castro and Mandeley.

Senores Rivera, Gorreoso, Gener and Robau were absent.

The latter two voted against acceptance in the previous division. Senor Ferrer voted with the Conservatives, explaining his change of attitude by asserting that he believed acceptance would be the best solution of the problem.

The convention will now appoint a committee to draw up the electoral law.

Washington, June 13.—The news of the adoption of the Platt amendment by the Cuban constitutional convention was received with genuine gratification here. The administration officials along have felt confident that its ratification would be accepted when the Cubans realized that this government was firm in its attitude regarding the amendment, and that its acceptance would be necessary before the United States would consent to withdraw its supervision from the island. Now that the Cubans have demonstrated their good faith in the United States, it is expected that a fairly speedy evacuation of the island will follow, contingent only upon the establishment of a stable government in the island. As to what extent the United States will require practical evidence of this fact is not definitely known, but the officials here think that such steps should be taken by the Cubans as will demonstrate their ability to maintain order and peace so that the interests of all the people, native and foreign, shall be adequately protected.

An effective police force and other measures necessary to the preservation of good order and sanitation are deemed as essential prerequisites in the formation of the new government. The mere physical question of the withdrawal of the American military from the island can be done and can be accomplished without much delay. One cabinet officer expressed the opinion that if the other requirements are met our withdrawal might be accomplished during the summer, and that Cuban independence might be a reality by next autumn.

Gen. Wood tonight communicated to the war department officially the fact that the amendment had been adopted.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The battleship Oregon arrived at San Francisco Wednesday afternoon from the Orient. Preparations had been made to make the homecoming of the famous vessel a memorable one, but they were anticipated by the arrival of the vessel twenty-four hours earlier than she was expected.

Investigation by the coroner's jury brought out the fact that Louis Hartman, who shot and killed Rose Lefere and then committed suicide Monday night, at Chicago, had suffered from an affection of the brain for several years.

Butchers to the number of 1100 struck at San Francisco Wednesday, because shops in which they were employed refused to display the union label. Between 100 and 150 shops out of a total of 350 have retained the union card. The non-union shops display signs informing their patrons that there is no danger of a meat famine.

At Wednesday's session of the supreme lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, the report of the finance committee was read. It showed receipts for the year ending May 31, 1901, as $91,481, and disbursements $77,471. The total surplus of assets over liabilities was shown to be $197,297.

CABLE FLASHES.

The German foreign office does not desire to express an opinion upon the bitter tone in which the London papers comment upon the fact that Germany will leave 800 men to garrison Shanghai; but the German press today unanimously disapproves of the British criticisms.

The London Daily Mail publishes an interview with Lord Pauncefote, who declared he knew nothing of any rumor that he would not return to Dasnington. When asked concerning the prospects of a ratification by congress of the proposed Hay-Pauncefote treaty he replied: "Negotiations regarding the treaty have barely begun to be considered yet. I have great hopes of its ultimate passage."

The Royal Ulster Yacht club proposes a race in Irish waters between the annual race meeting on the Clyde. They suggest they should take place on June 18, 19 or 20, and offers two prizes of £100 each for a contest between Shamrock II, Sybarita, Meteor and Kamara, one prize to go to the first boat home and the other to the winner on time allowance.

YOU Need a Good Spring Tonic

THE ONLY REMEDY OF ITS KIND KNOWN.

A FRUIT TONIC

that wonderful reconstructor of the human system.

The real worth of Mull's Grape Tonic as a spring medicine is unequaled. Being a Crushed Fruit Laxative it acts pleasantly on the system. Mull's Grape Tonic revives the depression and languor felt by everyone at this time of the year. It does it because it cleanses the system gently, at the same time tones it up. The so-called Spring Tonics are constipating and you are warned to take some kind of pills, which as a rule are severe and debilitating in action, and do more harm than good. Mull's Grape Tonic is a Tonic and laxative combined, the only remedy of its kind known. We recommend this remedy to our patrons as a valuable article. A large bottle for 50 cents, most as large as you pay $1 for of other kinds. Every dose is worth $1 to health. We ask you to test it on our recommendation and guarantee. One bottle is sufficient to convince you. Seek its aid at once. Yours truly, YOUR DRUGGIST.

Mull's Lightning Pain Killer promptly kills all bodily aches and pains. Rub it on or drink it. 25c.

IS A WONDER.

Boston, June 13.—With the proud distinction of being the fastest battleship in America and the speediest of her class in the world, the sea fighter Illinois lies at anchor in Presidents Roads after a most successful trial. Over the government course from Cape Ann to Cape Porpoise and return, a distance of sixty-six nautical miles she raced today under the watchful eyes of the United States naval representatives and established a new record by maintaining an average speed of 17.31 knots for four consecutive hours. Not only did she demonstrate that she was faster than any war ship of her size afloat, but she proved her ability to turn upon an enemy with extraordinary quickness by describing a complete circle within 300 yards, or a little more than twice her length, in three minutes and ten seconds, while ploughing through the sea at full speed.

Steadiness and reserve power characterized the performance of the ship throughout the severe test. The work of her engines was smooth and even, and the records of the day showed but one-tenth of a knot difference in speed between the northern run and the return. The machinery easily met every requirement, and not an accident of any kind marred the success of the day.

Rear Admiral Sampson, who was aboard unofficially, and Rear Admiral Evans, who acted as president of the trial board, as well as the other naval officers who participated in the trial, were thoroughly pleased with the new champion, and as she steamed back to her anchorage with a new broom at her masthead, the officials of the Newport News Shipbuilding company, whose three years of labor had reached such a happy climax, were enthusiastically congratulated.

SENT TO HOSPITAL.

Chicago, June 13.—Leonard Kranz and a young woman from Michigan were married here last Sunday while the bridegroom was suffering from a highly developed case of smallpox. Neither of the pair knew it, however, until yesterday, when the health authorities separated them and the groom was sent to the isolation hospital.

Kranz, the health department officials say, has been in a highly contagious state for six days, or since last Thursday, when he stood up with his bride before the priest, the germs of the disease had possession of him and were threatening with smallpox any one who came into personal contact with him or his belongings. The victim is a sailor, hailing from Marine City, Mich. Mrs. Kranz was recently vaccinated. The doctors say that she has good prospects of escaping the disease.

Mr. Homer B. Thompson, of 2217 Third street west, employed as filer at the Scott & Holston Lumber company's mills, says: "We have used Doan's Kidney Pills in our family for years, sending to the Eastern states for them as they were not at first on sale here. They never failed to give prompt relief whenever the kidneys became inactive or backache threatened. Both myself and Mrs. Thompson had been for years subject to kidney complaint and nothing we were able to get was successful to remove the trouble. I cannot speak too highly of Doan's Kidney Pills and never fail to advise others suffering from their kidneys to go to W. A. Abbett's Drug store and get a box. They have invariably given satisfaction in every case where we have recommended their use.

RECORDS BROKEN

Output of Blast Furnaces For May Largest Yet Recorded.

Account of Stocks Show Consumption Is Still Enormous.

The Labor Situation Is Still Causing Some Uneasiness.

New York, June 13.—The Iron Age today says: Our blast furnace returns show that during May the production increased from 301,125 tons per week to 314,505 tons per week, carrying it far beyond any previous record. Stocks of coke and anthracite iron have declined further from 363,251 tons on May 1 to 333,813 tons on June 1, thus proving that consumption is still enormous. The reports that the United States Steel corporation had made heavy purchases are not correct. It is stated, however, that negotiations are still proceeding for round blocks for delivery during the second half.

The new furnaces of the corporation are coming in one by one. One at Mingo has started and a second one will follow. Neville Island is going into operation and the new Newcastle is soon to blow in. Late in the year the two new Carrie stacks are to begin operations, and the two new South Chicago stacks are running along. This means, of course, that the shortage will be lessened gradualy and that the corporation will take smaller and smaller quotations from the open market. So far as foundry pig iron is concerned, the market is really a deadlock. Sellers are not pressing iron simply because it would be of little use while the present temper of the buyers continues. Under the circumstances prices are nominal.

Consumption continues heavy in nearly all sections of the country, except in New England and along the coast, where there is some desire to delay deliveries. Steel is exceedingly scarce, and high prices are paid for what little of it reaches the open market. The new tonnage of finished iron and steel which is being placed is rather small and there is more anxiety to secure what is coming up in some branches. In the plate trade some additional orders for shipbuilding are coming up on the lakes, and the pipe trade has had further demands upon it from the Texas oil country.

The labor situation is causing some uneasiness. The machinists have driven the manufacturers into a much more closely knit organization, but there are mutterings among the molders, and it is possible that the demands for an advance on the part of the amalgamated association may cause some trouble. In the heavy lines the export tarde is practically suspended, and this, of course, with our rapidly increasing productive capacity, will push additional quantities of material upon the domestic market during the second half. The prospect of good crops may stimulate further heavy consumption of iron and steel .

Schlitz is Old Beer

The beer that causes biliousness is "green beer"—insufficiently aged. It is hurried from the brewery to the market before it is half fermented. Drink it and it ferments in your stomach, and the result is biliousness and headache.

Fermentation is expensive. It requires immense refrigerating rooms (ours hold 265,000 barrels) and an even temperature of 34 degrees. Fermentation is a process of months.

No green beer ever leaves the Schlitz brewery. If you wish to be certain of an aged beer, get Schlitz, the beer that made Milwaukee famous.

What Does the Above Telegram Mean?

It means the people at the Head of the Great Lakes will have a wonderful opportunity of selecting the Finest and Best Men's Clothing at less than one-half the prices they have been paying.

It means that last week L. Abt & Sons, one of the largest and best clothing houses in the world, sent us samples of their entire stock of Men's Suits and Trousers, representing over $10,000 worth of clothing.

It means that after looking over the line carefully we telegraphed them we would take the entire stock at a cash price of sixty cents on the dollar.

It means that they have accepted our cash offer, that the clothing has arrived, is marked and placed on separate tables, ready for our great manufacturers' sale, commencing tomorrow. To simplify this great manufacturers' sale we have divided the clothing into numbered lots.

LOT 1—Consists of 500 Men's strictly all-wool Suits in fancy Cassimeres, in brown and gray checks and plaids; beautiful Cheviots in plain black and blue—handsome Cheviots in fancy checks and plaids; fancy Worsteds in stripes and checks, fine black Clay Worsted, rich Oxford Serges, fast color blue Serges; all made up in first-class linings and trimmings and all sewed with silk, not a suit in the entire 500 that ever sold for less than $13.00, $15, $16, $18—Our Manufacturers' Sale Price---- $9.85

LOT 2—Consists of 1000 finest tailor-made Suits in the best blue and black Serges, Hockanum fine mixtures, English Clay Worsteds, costly Globe Worsteds, new weaves in unfinished Oxfords, genuine Scotch Cheviots, black and blue Cheviots—one thousand Suits in single and double-breasted Sack Suits and Cutaway Frock Suits—suits that are better trimmed, better lined, better sewed and more style and fit to them than those made to order at $30.00 to $50.00, and retailed elsewhere at $20, $22 and $25—Our Manufacturers' Great Closing Sale Price $14.85

Men's Trousers.

LOT 3—Consists of 200 pairs of Men's All-Wool Trousers in fancy Cassimeres and Cheviots, fancy check and stripe Worsteds, worth $2.50, $3.00 and $3.50. Our Manufacturers' Great Closing Sale Price---- $1.95

LOT 4—Consists of 200 pairs of Men's strictly tailor-made Trousers in beautiful fancy Cheviots, rich Cassimeres, stripe Worsteds, worth $4.00, $4.50 and $5.00. Our Manufacturers' Great Closing Sale Price---- $2.95

LOT 5—Consists of 300 pairs of Men's finest tailor-made Trousers in pure Worsteds; handsome Scotch Cheviots and Cassimeres. Trousers that you'll pay a tailor $8.00, $10.00 and $12.00 for. Our Manufacturers' Great Closing Sale Price---- $3.95

Don' delay—early customers will get best selections. We've provided extra salesmen to wait on you promptly. Whatever your future needs may be, now is the time to buy for now and future wants. Terms—cash down. No suspenders given.

FIVE HANGED

Negro Murderers Launched Into Eternity.

Their Motto Had Been "Death to Whites."

Sylvania, Ga., June 14.—Arnold Augustus, Andrew Davis, Richard Sanders, William Hudson and Samuel Baldwin, all negroes, were executed in the yard of the county jail of Screven county this afternoon. At 12:20 the drop fell. The necks of four were broken by the fall. The fifth died from strangulation.

The negroes bore up well. They sang at the jail and then marched between a squad of soldiers to the scaffold. Here they made a short talk and received spiritual consolation. They then drank lemonade, furnished by the sheriff, and thanked that official for his kindness. None of the negroes denied being guilty.

A local company of militia, which was on duty all night, was augmented at daybreak by fifty deputy sheriffs and extra guards. A cordon was thrown around the jail, keeping the crowd at a distance of 75 feet.

The gallows was erected in an enclosure just outside the jail. It stood high above the fence, and when the condemned men stepped upon the platform they were in plain view of the assembled crowd. Five ropes were thrown over the main beam of the gallows, and the trap upon which the men stood was about eight feet wide.

The negroes were hanged for a murder committed under an alleged criminal conspiracy by an organized band of blacks, known as "Knights of the Archer." The motto of the order, it is said, was "death to the whites." The murder for which the men died was a culmination of a long series of crimes. One night in October, 1899, Milton Mears, a constable of Screven county; Fillmore Herrington and Capt. Jesse Wade started out from Sylvania to serve a warrant for the arrest of Joe Sanders, a young negro, wanted for some trivial offense. No sooner had they reached his house than a fusilade started. From the cracks between the logs of the cabin, and from a thicket of dwarf trees close by, came the flash of rifles and shot guns, and the three men fell desperately wounded. Capt. Wade managed to crawl to his buggy and make his way to Sylvania, where he told of the shooting.

Herrington and eMars were literally shot to pieces. Five men were arrested, convicted and paid the penalty today.

The others, including Alexander McKinney, the alleged leader and the real leaders of the Knights of the Archer, never have ben captured.

Brunswick, Ga., June 14.—Tricey Griffit, colored, was hanged here today for the murder, in October last, of R. Marion Latimer, a passenger conductor on the Southern railroad. The conductor was killed for ordering the negro to come inside the car from the platform while the train was in motion.

GREAT PERIL

Big Hotel Consumed By Fire In the Night.

West Baden, Ind., June 14.—The Mineral Springs hotel was destroyed by fire early today. No person was injured. The fire broke out at 1 a. m. in the bake shop, at the south end of the building. It burned rapidly, and by 3 o'clock the hotel had been completely consumed. The loss is $500,000; insurance, $100,000. Two hundred and twenty-five guests registered at the hotel last night. Most of them lost their effects. The guests were transferred to French Lick, and they all left for their homes on morning trains.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 14.—Telephone messages from Salem and Bedford to the Journal says:

The West Baden Springs hotel, at West Baden, one of Indiana's most famous health and pleasure resorts, burned early this morning. It could not be learned how the fire started, because of the failure of lines of communication with this city at an early hour. Everything in connection with the hotel building was destroyed, and it was rumored there were several lives lost, but this could not be confirmed. Telephone and telegraph communication with Indianapolis was destroyed, while the story of the fire was being told.

The hotel is said to have had several hundred guests, and all of their belongings were destroyed, there having been no time to save anything.

Assistance was asked from the fire departments of nearby towns, but on account of the lack of transportation facilities, no aid could be rendered.

A telephone message from Cincinnati, at 4 a. m., stated that the fire broke out at 1 a. m. On account of the great confusion, it was impossible to tell whether all of the guests and employes escaped.

J. M. Persise, of Salem, Ind., one of the proprietors, said at 4 o'clock this morning, that part of the building was erected twelve years ago and they had been adding to it ever since until the value of the property was about $1,000,000; this included the ground and buildings. There is insurance of $100,000. The other proprietors are L. W. Sinclair, of Salem, who is now at West Baden, and E. B. Rhodes, of West Baden. As nearly as Mr. Persise could say there were 250 guests at the place last night. The hotel, he said, had 700 rooms.

West Baden is a favorite resort for many of the wealthy people of Chicago and Louisville and each summer many excursions are run to the place from those cities and Indiana points.

Cincinnati, June 14.—Later reports from West Baden confirm the statement that no lives were lost and that no one was hurt. The hotel at the springs is a total wreck. The large frame structure burned so rapidly that the guests had difficulty in escaping with their lives. Very few of the 300 in the hotel saved any of their effects and they were in distress in the cold rain of the night. These conditions continue today. People who are wealthy are begging for wraps or anything to wear. Many have nothing except their night attire. Relief is being sent from French Lick, Levisville and Indianapolis.

WAS TO SAVE EXPENSE

Recent Large Reduction of the Foreign Forces Stationed In China Accounted For In Terms of Indemnity.

Washington, June 14.—The recent large reduction of the foreign forces in China caused surprise in official circles, but this reduction is now accounted for by the terms on which the indemnity was made up. When each country put in the amount of its claim it included an estimate of the military expenses running up to July 1 next. This was with the idea that it will take until July 1 to settle the indemnities. With the indemnity settled, each government will pay its own expenses in China after July 1. There is a natural desire, therefore, to reduce the cost of military expenses within the period covered by the indemnity. And this has led to the evacuation now going on. In case the indemnity remains unsettled on July 1, several of the governments will submit additional claims covering their monthly expenses after that time. These amount to $2,000,000 a month, according to the estimates of one of the governments, and in the aggregate they will reach $10,000,000 for each month after July. It is expected that this will have a strong influence on the Chinese in bringing about a complete agreement before the close of this month.

The recent exchanges between the cabinets at Washington and other capitols has not resulted in any agreement on the question of indemnity, and the matter is now committed back to the ministers at Pekin. Diplomatic officials who are taking part in the negotiations believe that July 1 marks the outside of the period in which the settlement will be finally effected. On this account the departure from Washington of some of the foreign representatives, which had been deferred on account of the negotiations, has now been definitely fixed for the end of this month.

BUSY DAY FOR Y. M. C. A.

Many and Varied Were the Attractions Offered at the Jubilee, Covering the Departmental Work of the Association.

Boston, June 14.—With speakers from various sections of the United States and one from Canada introduced at the forenoon session of the Y. M. C. A. jubilee convention and section meetings, introducing addresses on physical and religious work, boys' department and railroad work at the First Baptist church and a reception by the Harvard Y. M. C. A. at Cambridge, in the afternoon, the third day of the meetings here, was well filled.

The meeting for prayer at 8:30 a. m. today was led by Rev. Dr. L. W. Munhall, of Philadelphia. The devotional exercises preceding the regular session were conducted by W. E. Sweet, of Denver, Colo.

James H. Canfield, LL. D., of New York, Professor E. I. Bosworth, of Oberlin college, William Caven, LL. D., of Torfonto, and Rev. Dr. W. W. White, of Montclair, N. J., were the speakers.

Dr. Canfield's subject was "The Contribution of the Association to the Welfare of Boys." The address was confined chiefly to statistics showing the present condition of the association everywhere and of boys' work. Dr. Canfield recommended the selection of secretaries and other officers for the boys' work and the study of child life by those placed in charge of boys.

Dr. Bosworth, of Oberlin theological seminary, spoke on "The Application o fthe Word of God to the Daily Life of Young Men."

Dr. Caven, principal of Knox college, Toronto, spoke of "The Influence of Holy Spirit Indispensable to the Right Understanding of Scripture."

"A Right Life an Essential Factor in Undertanding the Word of God and in Maintaining Faith in It," was the subject of Rev. Dr. White.

"The Bible must be learned," he said, "as one learns to play on the piano, by practice. It required life to produce the book. It must, therefore, be true that only life and the same quality of life can understand the book."

BAD FIRE.

Russian Warships and Many Buildings Were Destroyed.

St. Petersburg, June 14.—A fire at the Galleys island shipyards yesterday consumed the slips, the cruiser Witjas and other vessels, the government and other buildings there and a large stock of timber. The flames also leaped the Neva-Fontanka canal, destroying several military warehouses filled with supplies.

According to the Novoe Vremya, twelve persons lost their lives in the flames.

The damage done amounts to 10,000,000 roubles.

WOMAN ROBBED.

Thieves Also Tried to Burn Her Alive.

Pittsburg, June 14.—Four thieves, who saw Mrs. Sadie Fowler, of Coverdale street, Thirty-fifth ward, draw some money from the Keystone bank yesterday, followed her for five blocks to her home, and at 2 a. m. beat her into insensibility, robbed her and then burned down her home. When she tried to escape from the burning building, the men held the doors, but the arrival of neighbors saved her from being suffocated. The robbers escaped.

TO SHOOT AT DUMMIES

New York, June 14.—The World says: "Wooden dummies, wearing metal chest protectors and representing the crowned despots of Europe are to be set up in Liberty Park, Ridgewood, L. I., next Sunday for anarchists to shoot at. This occasion will be the grand annual love feast of the anarchists of Greater New York. Johann Most will be marshal, chief patron and honored guest. The anarcists a year ago passed resolutions declaring that the war which they had made upon capital and power, had not met with success. So they orgnized themselves into a rifle club, and bought the wooden dummies. Because of their fear of the police, the anarchists refuse to admit that the dummies represent any one. They say they are anonymous dummies, but it is understood that they stand for the czar of Russia, the German emperor, and other agents of power.

"Six hundred anarchists have promised to attend and blaze away at the wooden tyrants. 'Herr Most, it is said, will be one of the sharpshooters.'"

FRIGHTFULLY MANGLED

Major Buckingham and Three Ladies Drove In Front of Train at Flint, Mich., and Were Instantly Killed.

Flint, Mich., June 14.—The Pere Marquette passenger train, due here at 9 o'clock today, struck a double carriage at the Hamilton avenue crossing, in the suburb of Oak Park, and instantly killed four well known people. The dead:

MAJ. GEORGE W. BUCKINGHAM, Flint.

MISS ABBIE BUCKINGHAM, Flint.

MRS. THOMAS APPLEGATE, Adrian.

MRS. WILLIAM HUMPHREY, Adrian.

Several factory buildings adjoin the track at Hamilton avenue and prevent a clear view of the track. Maj. Buckingham drove directly in front of the train, which was traveling at high speed. The bodies of two of the ladies were terribly mangled. Mrs. Applegate and Mrs. Humphrey had been guests of Maj. Buckingham during the state G. A. R. encampment, which ended last night.

HE CALLED ON LOUBET

Speaker Henderson Was Cordially Received By the President of France---A Sincere Admirer of the United States.

Paris, June 14.—D. B. Henderson, speaker of the United States house of representatives, who was received yesterday, with Representative Gillet, by President Loubet, came away with the best impressions of his visit. Mr. Henderson said to the correspondent of the Associated Press:

"The president received us most cordially. We felt as much at home as though calling on President McKinley. We found M. Loubet to be a man of charming manners and of simple democratic tastes. Our conversation, which lasted some time, convinced me that he is a high-minded patriot, devoting his efforts to the best interests of his country.

"His allusions to the United States showed him to be a sincere admirer of our country and institutions, and he is inspired with cordial sympathy for President McKinley.

"I had previously met M. Deschanel, president of the chamber of deputies, who was most courteous and enabled me to be present at a session of the chamber under his auspices. There was nothing striking in the session at which the bill providing for old age pensions was being discussed, but I had an opportunity of seeing the house in a deliberative mood, performing serious work. M. Deschanel tendered me a standing invitation to attend any session of the chamber during my stay and invited myself and wife and Mrs. Gillet and Field to his reception on Saturday.

"I am going to London June 20 and thence to Scotland to revisit my birthplace in Aberdeenshire, which I left when a child. I shall afterward make a tour of the European countries, whose parliamentary institutions I am anxious to study on the spot. I hope to attend a session of one or two parliaments."

SHARP NOSE DEAD.

Was War Leader of the Northern Arapahoes.

Cheyenne, June 14.—Sharp Nose, chief of the Northern Arapahoes of the Wind River reservation is dead. Sharp Nose was the war leader of his tribe and urged going on the warpath at the slightest provocation. He was the leader of the recent rebellion against the Indian agent at Ft. Washakie and his death undoubtedly will have a quieting effect on the Arapahoes.

M. S. BURROWS.

The New Styles of Knox Sailors For Ladies.

Bicycle Suits at $4 and $6. The Greatest Value in Bicycle Suits Ever Offered.

The Burrows' Clothing Stands Peerless.

We don't claim there is no other as good. As good may be had, but at a great deal higher price. For the price, Burrows' clothing is peerless. This stock is worthy of every laudation of praise. It welcomes the poor as well as the rich man. All that taste or comfort or fashion has bidden men to wear will here be found.

Matchless Values—Prices That Cannot Be Equaled in This State.

The $7.50 Suits—very serviceable—large assortments to choose from, in dark and light patterns—materials are Worsteds, Homespuns and Cheviots, well made and trimmed—perfect fitting, such suits other stores would consider cheap at $9.00 and $10. Here for ---------- $7.50

The $10 Suits—All-wool Cheviots and Tweeds in neat checkings, mixtures, stripes and plaid effects, besides blues and black. There's the gauge of the $10 Suits. Adapt yourself to it. The coats are mostly single breasted, with single breasted vests. The linings are Italian cloth, the longest wearing material of its kind loomed. Every degree of height and stoutness may be accommodated. The price ---------- $10

The $12 Suits we turned out last season were the best we ever sold for the money. It's hard to better such precedents as we establish. Yet these we now offer are better. Among them are stripes, checks, mixtures, plaids, plain gray, blue and black Cheviots; Cassimeres, Tweeds, Worsteds, Serges, Homespuns. Mostly single breasted coats with single breasted vests. They're tailored as good as clothes should be. Unsurpassed at $15. The price ---------- $12

The $15 Suits. This class comprehends the sorts you usually seek elsewhere at $20, or in a tailoring shop at $30. The ideas are exceedingly nobby and entirely new.

They're cut with a style and grace such as only the highest artists can give. They're tailored to perfection.

These suits are designed for particularly particular men, who want their clothes with all the new cuts and kinds. We can't be stinting in our praise of such remarkably good suits for such a modest price as ---------- $15

At $18. Here you will find clothing far in advance of anything that ever we have heretofore sold for $20. They match anybody's $25 sorts in quality of material and trimmings, in style, and general get-up.

They are verily examples of the best clothes manufactured, possessing little tricks of elegance foreign to the usual ready-made. Mostly single-breasted sacks. The patterns are the swellest we've ever owned. Mostly worsteds and serge effects in neat and subdued stripes and checks. These suits will please the hardest to please. The price ---------- $18

TO BEGIN MONDAY

City Will Commence the Construction of Sidewalks.

Thirty Days Notice to Owners Will Have Expired.

Cost of New Walks Will Run to $60,000.

Sidewalk building throughout the city, and by the city, will begin on Monday. Fully $60,000 worth of new sidewalks will be put down during the summer.

Hundreds of written and oral "kicks" have been filed by the citizens against the conditions of the sidewalks during the past two months, but owing to a resolution passed by the council, the building of new walks could not begin till after June 15. This was with the view to having the property owners build their own walks. Property owners did not heed the hint to any great extent, and now the city is to go ahead and build the walks wherever condemned.

After this year it is not probable that plank walks will be put down in the more thickly populated and improved parts of the city. Cement and granilythic walks of long life will replace the timber walks of brief existence.

It is estimated that about 4,000 feet of this sidewalk will be put down in the East End during the summer and fully half that amount is now under way. In the past this kind of walk had only been considered serviceable on the streets, the surface having been too slippery for the steep avenues. City Engineer Patton, however, has remedied this fault in the granilythic pavement. On the avenues the engineer has discovered that a rough surface on the cement walk makes footing more secure than on the plank walks.

In the replacing and building of walks every part of the city from Lester Park to West Duluth's western limits will be effected.

The city has a contract with W. H. Kilton, of West Duluth, to put in the new walks. The prices are as follows:

3-foot walks	10
4-foot walks	18
6-foot walks	38
8-foot walks	43
10-foot walks	57
12-foot walks	58

The city, after building the walks, collects the money through the means of a special assessment.

FIRST CAR.

First Lot of California Fruit Arrives In Market.

The first car of California fruit of the season reached Michigan street in good condition yesterday. It contained plums, peaches, cherries and apricots, all of which luscious fruits bore witness to the fact that California raises excellent fruits. From now on the California fruits will be a strong feature on the market in the fruit line, and the outlook is that it will be both plentiful and cheap, two conditions that usually attend each other.

Prices of fruits and vegetables are settling down somewhat, for it is now summer, and the supplies of all sorts are steadying down so the prices are less subject to sudden fluctuations. Strawberries from now on will be mostly from Wisconsin and Michigan, and the market is now full of the Wisconsin berries. The Minnesota berries have not yet made their appearance on the market, but even when they do come they will not be on Michigan street in large quantities, if at all. Usually what few Minnesota berries are sent to Duluth go directly to the retailers. The Wisconsin berry is nearly as good, and it is having a successful sale.

New potatoes are slowly settling down into reach. They are now selling at $1.75 per bushel, and as old potatoes are strong at 90 cents, this is a reasonable price for the season. The new faces in the fruit market are the California products, peaches, apricots, plums and sour cherries.

Meats and poultry are both cheaper. The next new thing on the market will be spring chickens, and there have already been a few of them. They are coming in in scattered lots, and they are selling at 20 to 21 cents per pound when they do come. They will not be coming freely until about July 1, when prices will decrease and stocks increase. Poultry is coming in more freely, which has resulted in lower prices, chickens being quoted at 11 cents per pound. The only changes in meats, in spite of the fears of an advance, are on the downward scale. Mutton, lamb and hogs are off, and other prices are no higher.

WILL IT WIN?

Great Interest In Duluth Woodmen Degree Team.

Will the Imperial camp's crack team win a place in the Woodmen's competitive drills in St. Paul?

There is intense local interest in the competition and the general impression is that the Imperial team is as good as any in the competition. This team has been drilling for many weeks under the command of Maj. F. E. Resche and practically every member is a National Guardsman of long experience. All along the recent practice march of the Third infantry the team has been drilling diligently and for weeks before the companies left for Milaca the Imperial representatives worked hard every night at the Armory.

Against the crack Duluth team will be pitted about forty teams that have been drilled by the best drill masters in the United States. The Rockford, Ill., team yesterday scored as high as 98.9. To beat that the Duluth team must be practically perfect.

The winning team of the competition gets a cash prize of $700 and there are prizes for the first seven teams. The seventh gets $75 in cash.

INDEPENDENT OF TRUST.

Railroad to Make Its Own Steel Rails.

New York, June 14.—The report that the Pennsylvania Railroad company has secured control of the Pennsylvania Steel company caused Wall street to discuss the effect of the change upon the policy of the iron and steel companies both in and out of the steel trust, as well as upon the industry itself. It has been known for some weeks that the Pennsylvania railroad was likely to demonstrate its ability to make what is uses. The company it now controls affords to a large extent the opportunity the road wants. The steel company is a producer; it manufactures and sells in the open market. Its capital is not large, comparatively speaking, but now that the big Pennsylvania railroad is behind it its financial backing is of the highest.

Naturally talk centers upon what the company, with the road's backing, can do independently of the United States steel trust and incidentally in opposition to it. Will other roads follow the Pennsylvania and put themselves in a position to make their own rails? Will this be an intimation to the steel trust that it cannot dictate the prices of its products to the big railroads? Will the Bethlehem company be absorbed by the Pennsylvania? Are the interests of the International Navigation company and the Pennsylvania Railroad company close enough and big enough to make a combination which, with other companies, manufacturing, industrial, maritime, and financial, can make, sell, and bring to the seaboard and ship abroad as cheaply as the United States Steel company? These are the questions heard today, and none seems able to answer them accurately.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company in March, when its latest annual report was issued, owned 3,563 of the 20,000 shares of common stock of the Pennsylvania company and 1,371 of the 15,000 shares of the preferred. The report that it had now gained control of the steel company caused the stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad to advance.

A report of the Berwynd-White Coal company, which, according to reports current in the financial district, will be acquired by the Pennsylvania Railroad company for something like $30,000,000, said: "If there is anything in this story it is news to us. Similar reports have gone out before and have as often been found untrue."

STANDARD OIL IN TEXAS.

Said to Be Backing Guffey and Assistant.

New York, June 14.—The Standard Oil company is backing J. M. Guffey and his assistant, Mr. Galey, in developing the Southeastern Texas oil fields, according to Mr. Guffey's friends in Wall street. It is also asserted that the Standard Oil people are preparing to market Beaumont oil in New York and Philadelphia at an early date. Last week Mr. McDougall, the Standard Oil company's Pittsburg manager, and one of the best informed oil men in the country, was transferred from Pittsburg to Beaumont and Port Arthur. In addition to this it was learned today that the Standard Oil company has already brought tank steamer loads of the Beaumont oil to the Bayonne refineries.

These tank steamers are the only ones, so far, that have taken cargoes from Port Arthur, it is said. Guffey and Galey have organized their company with a capital of $15,000,000, and their expenditures indicate that they are not hampered by lack of means. C. B. Forward, a Cleveland refiner, confirmed the report today that Cleveland and New York capitalists are to build a refinery capable of refining 250 barrels a day at or near tide water in the neighborhood of Port Arthur.

PECK'S REPORT

Of Paris Exposition Will Soon Be Issued.

Washington, June 14.—Commissioner General Pecks' report on the Paris exposition of 1900 has all been put into type at the government printing office, and the first volume is expected to come from the bindery tomorrow. The report makes over 3000 pages, divided into six volumes, and illustrated with 300 plates and fifty maps. The law required the report to be delivered to the president within four months after the close of the exposition. This brought the report to the last session of congress, just before adjournment, and too late to secure a joint session authorizing copies to be printed for general public distribution. As a consequence, there will be only one copy printed at this time for each member of congress, and the usual number for the different departments of the government and the designated depository libraries.

GOLF TOURNEY.

Annual Championship Meet at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Mass., June 14.—The annual championship open tournament of the United States Golf association began today from the links of the Myopia Hunt club. More than fifty of the leading professionals and half a dozen prominent amateurs participated. The links were in excellent condition and the weather was fine.

The first pair, Willie Chisholm, of the Marine and Field club, Brooklyn, and Alexander Patrick left the first tee at 9:30 o'clock. The other pairs followed at five-minute intervals.

TROUBLE FEARED.

Portland, Me., June 14.—A squad of policemen has been sent from the central station here to prevent threatened trouble between the striking trainmen and men brought here to take their places at the Maine Central yards.

INTERESTING GAME.

High School Boys to Meet Duluth.

The High School baseball team, whose career has thus far been one of unmitigated success, will meet the regular Duluth team in a practice game at the driving park on Saturday afternoon. Notwithstanding the informal character of the meet, great interest is evinced in the outcome. Al Cummings, the phenomenal boy pitcher, who proved such an enigma for Superior last week, will be in the box for the high school, while Glenny will, in all probability, pitch for Manager Hansell's men.

The game will be a battle royal between pitchers, and although the support that Glenny will receive should easily outclass that given by the High School aggregation, a very close game is expected.

Municipal Court Jurors.

The following municipal court jurors have been summoned for duty on June 18: Charles A. Heath, H. H. Hanford, Fred T. Little, John Grandy, S. E. Cornish, H. C. Ousterhout, C. A. Peterson, L. Beamer, Amos Daniels, Charles Boerner, S. R. Wentworth, Alex. Shaw, Albert Meldahl, Antine Caisse, Alfred Bowman, W. J. Kayo, Sam Gillespie, John A. Carlson, Christ Frank, P. H. Oswald, J. P. Brown, R. D. McKinley, A. F. Swanstrom and Frank Bobolz.

THEY STRUCK GOLD.

Two Men Made Rich By a Lizard.

Phoenix, Ariz., June 14.—A few days ago a report reached this city of a great find of gold made in the hills near the old Vulture mine by Daniel Johnson and William Edgerton, two New York prospectors.

The particulars of the discovery have just been received. Johnson and Edgerton had been prospecting for nearly a month, had found no trace of gold ore, and were about ready to give up in despair.

One morning last week they sat under the shade of a tree on a hillside and smoked in silence, neither caring to discuss their bad luck.

One of those long, swift lizards of the desert, which move like lightning around the trees, bushes and rocks, dropped from a limb above and alighted on Johnson's back. He awoke from his moody reverie with a start in time to see the lizard dart into a hole nearby.

By Jove, that's a big fellow. I want him," said Johnson, and with his pick began to open up the hole in the ground. In a half dozen blows he made a cavity a foot deep, while his companion looked on. Suddenly Edgerton leaped to his feet.

"Wait a minute," he called, and, with Johnson's pick poised in midair, Edgerton reached into the cavity and drew out a small piece of stone speckled with bits of gold. Another and a dozen large pieces followed, some with small nuggets as large as pin heads, and all of them full of the free gold in beads and wire.

The young men danced for joy.

For three days they worked steadily and uncovered two feet of a vein about twelve inches wide. Yesterday they sent some of the rock to Phoenix, and it assayed nearly $1200 to the ton.

They have already taken out over a ton, and from the lay of the land find it is part of a ledge extending for half a mile down the valley. They have refused $40,000 for their find and have taken up nearly all the mountain in claims.

WELCOME TO DULUTH

First Excursion of the Year Arrived at Three O'Clock.

It Brought Fourteen Coaches Loaded With Happy Visitors.

Welcome to Duluth!

The hospitable citizens of the Zenith City extend greetings to their fellow-citizens of this peerless commonwealth.

The first excursion train of the twentieth century arrived in Duluth at 2:55 p. m. There were fourteen coaches making up the train. It left Morris this morning and the 850 people on the cars came from Morris, Glenwood, Sauk Center, Little Falls, Brainerd and the stations between those points. No passengers were taken up after leaving Brainerd. Although the train was over an hour late, the excursionists were in the best of humor and a happy host left the cars at the Union depot. The cool weather made traveling a pleasure and every mile of the ride was enjoyed.

The special made fast time after leaving Brainerd and no stops were made until South Superior was reached. The Herald took advantage of this stop to distribute 1000 copies of the early afternoon edition and the paper delighted the approaching visitors. The cool lake breeze which was blowing on their arrival here was a mild surprise to some of the passengers, who had their first introduction to an inland sea zephyr.

When West Superior was reached, a few of the tourists having relatives or friends left the train, but, of course, will find their way over to Duluth during the time spent at the head of the lakes.

Three or four hundred Duluthians were at the station to greet the excursionists—many were apparently expecting relatives or friends, and there were many hasty reunions. In a short time the visitors were distributed over the city, some going direct to private homes or public hostelries, while many sought Superior street for a first appreciative look at Duluth's modern thoroughfare. Hotels and rooming houses will not be taxed to accommodate the crowd, all having been arranged in advance to provide for the transients.

The three days which thee xcursionists will spend here will be filled with sight-seeing. The lake and harbor are always of absorbing interest to visitors from inland towns, even though it has come to be a mere matter of outrge to Duluth people. They watch the boats come in and go out with a fascination, and the work of unloading and loading them are operations that to those who have never seen anything of the kind are marvelous.

The boulevard drive will catch a great number, and there are such places as Lester Park and Park Point, where there are pavilions with dancing, etc. A few days in Duluth can always be filled with interest.

LERCH'S BARN

Board Gets Definition of Power---Building Inspector Explains.

Having given permission for the obstruction of streets by the moving of a building, the department of public works is practically without power to take any action as long as any reasonable effort is being made to carry out the original intention of removing the structure. If the department is convinced that a reasonable effort is not being made then it has the power under the city statutes to remove any street obstruction and charge the cost up to the owner of the obstructing building.

Such was the opinion of the city attorney, given the board of public works this morning, and it all pertains to the Lerch barn obstruction on West First street and Third avenue.

The opinion is important in that it will apply to future instances in which the owners of large frame buildings are seeking permission for a removal. The opinion is as follows:

"Under the city charter, in section 132, the board of public works is given the power to keep the streets and alleys in a safe condition, and whenever in their opinion there are unnecessary obstructions on any of the streets of the city, it is made their duty to give notice to the person causing obstruction to place the street in the condition it was before the obstruction was there. The party so notified is then allowed 'a reasonable time' to comply with the requirements of the order. After that reasonable time has elapsed the board has the power to remove the obstruction and charge the expense to the persons responsible therefor.

"Applying this section of the charter to the case in hand, as I understand it, the board has given to Mr. Lerch a permit to obstruct the street by removing this building upon it. The board at the expiration of this permit would have the right to order Mr. Lerch to remove the building from the street; he would then have a reasonable time within which to do this before the board would have any power to take any further action. Of course what would be a reasonable time in removing a barn of this kind might be entirely unreasonable as to the length of time in removing a small obstruction.

"It occurs to me that the board having granted permission to obtruct this street, knowing the place the barn was to be removed to, it would be practically powerless in the premises so long as a reasonable effort is made to carry out the original intention of removing the structure. Of course, if an unreasonable delay is had, or if, for any reason, the moving is abandoned or practically abandoned, then the board, having given the notice, would have the right to remove this building and charge the expense to Mr. Lerch."

Building Inspector Robinson says that he has nothing whatever to do with the removal of the Lerch barn or its obstructing streets. His office ends when he inspects the building before and after the moving to see that it meets with the requirements of law in regard to the general safety of buildings.

The removal of the Lerch building is progressing rapidly today and it is not probable that the city will have occasion to interfere.

NO MORE BULLETINS

Unless Condition of Mrs. McKinley Grows Worse.

Washington, June 14.—Mrs. McKinley's physicians held their usual consultation this forenoon and decided to discontinue the issuance of bulletins. It is said that her condition continues to improve slowly and the doctors consider it useless to give out a bulletin each day, under the favorable progress she is making. Should her condition grow worse the bulletins will be resumed.

TO SECEDE.

New York Will Withdraw From Century Club.

New York, June 14.—The New York state dilsion of the Century Road Club of America, has decided to secede from the national body. The action of the dilsion is said to be the result of the attempt of the club to force the division to accept into membership a cyclist whose application had previously been rejected by the division. The division will continue its offices in this state under the name of the Century Road Club Association of New York.

New Secretary Here.

Phil Bevis, the new secretary of the Young Men's Christian association, arrived in the city this morning to take up the work left by Secretary Shuman, who resigned to go to South America.

Mr. Bevis comes from Lafayette, Indiana, and has had many years of practical experience in Y. M. C. A. work.

He was met at the depot by a number of prominent Y. M. C. A. men and this afternoon members of the association took him around Duluth on a tour of inspection.

Omaha, June 14.—Jas. Callahan was today held for trial in the district court on a charge of perjury alleged to have been committed in one of the Cudahy abduction cases.

AFTER IRON

New Steel Company Getting Mesaba Properties.

Henry C. Frick Is the Man Behind It.

A new interest and an immense one is in the field for iron lands in this section, and is quietly picking up a number of properties that have good prospects. It is evidently out for all the ore it can get, and preparing for active work on the Mesaba range, for as far as known it has not yet decided to try for ore on the Vermilion range.

This company is the Union Steel company, and its home office is Pittsburg. There is under way there now a great steel plant being built for the Union Steel company, and it is to be finished within nine months. This plant will be a large consumer of iron ore, and to that end must have mines, for the ore supply is something that is so well within the control of the United States Steel company that any competitor must be at its mercy if it does not own mines.

Some time ago the Union Iron company opened an office in this city, in the Providence building. Oscar Rohr is in charge. He was at one time in the employ of the Minnesota Iron company, being in its geological department. He has been acquiring leases on a number of lands on the Mesaba. His company has taken the option on the Pennsylvania Iron company's lands. It has also taken an option on three forties in sections 27 and 28, in township 59-14.

A new iron find has just been made in township 57-21, near Hibbing, the owners of the lease to the property being David T. Adams, E. G. Sweeney, W. J. Olcott and George D. Swift. The land adjoins the Mahoning mine, on the west, and it is said that a great body of ore, aggregating from 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 of tons, has been shown up. This body of ore has been leased to this same Union Iron company, and $100,000 is to be paid if the property shows up all right. The royalty is understood to be 25 cents a ton.

Naturally the parties who are interested in making these seven deals have been interested in knowing who is behind the Union Iron company. Financial agencies have brought excellent reports as to the standing of the company, but have thrown little light on the identity of the persons connected with the company. By some it has been known that the Mellens of Pittsburg, heavy bankers of that city, are interested in the company, but beyond this little has been gleaned.

It has been learned, however, and through sources that are accurate, that the Union Steel company is a big corporation that is to give opposition to the United States Steel company in no small way. Behind it is in fact one of the great men who made the Carnegie Steel company, Henry C. Frick. Associated with him are also Henry W. Oliver, former head of the mining company of the Carnegie interests, Mr. Peacock who was first vice president of the Carnegie company and other influential iron men.

Mr. Frick is in the directorate of the United States Steel company, but it is said that he is not in harmony with the course events have taken. It has not been pleasant to him to see Mr. Schwab advanced to the head of the great corporation, and as he is still in the prime of life and active, he has been seeking an opportunity to engage in the business anew. With him are men that not only have the means to form a great company, but they know every turn of the business.

The news that such a company is in the field for iron in this section will be very satisfactory to owners of iron lands for it will mean a stronger demand than there is now.

LEASED AN ISLAND.

Valuable Concession From the Sultan of Jolo.

San Francisco, June 14.—A special to the Call from Manila says: Prince Pontatowski, of San Francisco, has procured from the sulian of Jolo an absolute concession for fifty years, ending with the year 1950, of the island of Paragua. It is reported the prince has formed a $10,000,000 company and is making arrangements for a most thorough exploitation in timber, mining, rubber and pearl industries of the island, and the development of its shipping. The scheme also embodies a plan for the building of roads, and harbor improvements. The representative of the prince here, John Anthony, presented documents to the Philippine commission and asked for an endorsement of the plan. As the question involves the agreement of Gen. Bates with the sultan and also the validity of the sultan's jurisdiction and authority, it probably will be referred to Washington.

TOWN TRANSFERRED.

Louisville, June 14.—It is said here that the town of Grand Rivers, Ky., which was promoted by eastern capitalists, one of whom was Thos. W. Lawson of Boston, has been transferred by a Boston firm to John W. Harrison and Edward Simmons of St. Louis for $200,000. The promoters years ago are said to have invested $2,000,000 in the scheme.

The high school baseball team played a game with a nine of board of trade men this afternoon. The line-up of the high school men will be about the same as it has been all through the season, with Alworth in the box. Tomorrow the high school will meet the regular Duluth team; a fast game is expected with Manager Hansell's team.

The Farmers Trust company has begun suit in district court against Harriet W. Haynes and others to foreclose a mortgage on some acreage in section 22, 50-14, given to secure a note for $[illegible], on which $7057.26 with interest is alleged to be due. Fryberger & Johanson are the attorneys.

Sarah J. Bennett has asked the court for a divorce from Walter E. Bennett on the ground of desertion. She is 40 and he is 44 years of age, according to the complaint, and they were married in Duluth, March 20, 1895. Mrs. Bennett alleges that her husband deserted her without cause August 26, 1899, so she asks for a dissolution of the bonds of matrimony between them. Baldwin & Baldwin are the attorneys.

Articles of incorporation of the Donora Mining company were filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds by William Elder, Arthur Howell and M. C. Mackinnon who are the incorporators. The capital stock is $500,000.

AMATEUR ATHLETICS

Were Attraction at the Pan American Exposition.

Buffalo, June 14.—The heat has moderated and weather conditions for the second day of the great amateur athletics were nearly perfect. The Stadium held a larger crowd this afternoon than that of yesterday. The day was devoted entirely to the junior American championships, and the contestants were all started from scratch in the several events on the card.

100-yards run, first heat, first and second men to compete in final—J. S. Westney, Pennsylvania university, won; F. A. Sharpley, Central Y. M. C. A., Buffalo, second. Time, 10 3-5.

Second heat—Clark M. Lieblee, Detroit A. C., won; F. R. Molton, N. Y. A. C., second. Time, 10 2-5.

880-yard run—H. E. Hastings, N. Y. A. C., won; Irvine Orton, Toronto La Crosse club, second; A. MacKenzie, Pastime A. C., New York, third. Time, 2:03 3-5.

100-yard run, final—Clark M. Lieblee, won; J. S. Westney, second; F. R. Moulton, third. Time, 10 1-5. This is a new record for amateurs.

Putting 16-pound shot—A. B. Gunn, Central Y. M. C. A. Buffalo, won, 39 feet 5 inches; W. R. Knox, Aurelia Canoe club, Toronto, second, 38 feet 10¼ inches; Robert W. Edgren, K. A. C., third, 36 feet 6 inches.

One mile run—R. L. Sanford, K. A. C., won; A. MacKenzie, Pastime A. C., New York, second; H. A. Allison, Central Y. M. C. A., Buffalo, third. Time, 4 minutes 41 seconds.

440-yard run—Howard H. Hays, Detroit A. C., won; D. J. Brennen, Pastime A. C., New York, second; P. A. Sahles, K. A. C., third. Time, 51 2-5 seconds.

Pole vault for height—W. R. Knox, Aurelia Canoe club, Toronto, won, 10 feet 4 inches; Henry J. Pettit, American School of Osteopathy, Kirksville, Mo., second, 10 feet; John lackburn, Pastime A. C., New York, thrid, 10 feet. Pettit and Blackburn jumped off the tie and the former won, jumping 10 feet 4 inches, equalling Knox's jump.

FAMOUS SHEEP CASE:

Supreme Court Affirms Decision of Lower Court.

St. Paul, June 14.—A Bismarck, N. D., special to the Dispatch says: The supreme court has affirmed the decision of the lower court in the famous Gans-Beasley sheep case which has been in the courts for eight years, a dispute over the posession of several thousand sheep being shipped to Rosenbaum Bros., of Chicago. Judge Fisk of the Grand Forks district court gave a decision to Rosenbaum Bros. for $25,000 against Gans which has now been affirmed.

LUTHERANS.

Conference of Augustana Synod of Swedish Church.

Jamestown, N. D., June 14.—This morning's session of the conference of the Augustana synod of the Swedish Lutheran church of America was devoted to the presentation of the president's annual address and the beginning of the annual election of officers. President Norelius, in his address, showed that the synod embraces 120,000 communicants with 452 ministers. The president did not touch upan the matters of vital interest to the church management, saying that he preferred to leave these things to the conference to work out unbiased. The report was referred to a committee of which Rev. V. Setterdahl is the chairman.

The salaries of the conference officers for the ensuing year were made as follows: President, $300; secretary, $100; treasurer, $50; Rev. E. Norelius, of Vasa, Minn., was re-elected president; Rev. S. E. Lindberg, of Rock Island, Ill., vice president; Rev. J. T. Delreen, Scandia, Minn., secretary; C. G. Thulin, Moline, Ill., treasurer.

This afternoon the contest for the election of a president of Augustana college, at Rock Island, Ill., for which there are several candidates, including Professor G. A. Anderson, of Yale; L. G. Abrahamson, D. D., of Chicago, and Rev. L. A. Johnson, D. D., of St. Paul; Official announcement was made that Senator C. J. A. Erickson, of Boone, Iowa, had given to this college coal lands valued at $30,000, this being his second large gift to that institution. In addition to this the college is to receive at once from the Samuelson estate the sum of $18,000. An effort is being made in Sweden to raise $30,000 to endow a chair of natural science in this college.

PAY OF MAYORS.

No organization of municipal reformers has ever addressed itself to the task of seeking to equalize the pay of mayors of American cities, for the rate is usually fixed by act of the legislature, and where not so provided for, by some local commission or board, says the New York Sun. The latter course is usually pursued in the minor cities. The salary of the mayor of New York is $15,000 a year, and Chicoga, which ranks second to New York, in population, pays its mayor $10,000, whereas Philadelphia, which is third upon the list, pays its mayor $12,000.

The salary of the mayor of St. Louis, a city of 555,000 inhabitants, is $5000, whereas Boston, an older and a smaller city, pays its mayor $10,000. Baltimore, Cincinnati and Cleveland, three cities of the same group in population, though Baltimore, an older city, has long the start of its rival, pays $8000, whereas Buffalo pays $5000 and San Francisco, a smaller city, $6000. The salary of the mayor New Orleans is $6000 and the duties of the incumbent are numerous under the complicated condition of administration in force there, but Pittsburg has been paying $7000 and Allegheny City $5000.

The salary of the mayor of Detroit is $1200, of the mayor of Nashville, $3000, and of the mayor of Atlanta, $2500. Golden Rule Jones in Toledo has been receiving $2000 and J. K. McGuire, of Syracuse, $4000, though Toledo is much the larger city. The salary of the mayor of Newark is $5000, the mayor of New Haven, $2500; of Savannah, $2500; of Providence, $5000; of Indianapolis, $4000; Kansas City, $3000; Los Angeles, $3600, and Louisville, $5000.

There is no recognized standard of the pay of mayors of American cities, and in proportion to the responsibilities which devolve upon him, the number of appointments he has to make, hearings to conduct and questions to vote upon as a member of the board of estimate and apportionment and of the sinking fund, the mayor of New York is one of the poorest paid in American cities.

BABCOCK OPPOSED

Voices Are Raised Against His Proposed Tariff Law.

Eastern Congressmen Will Be Arrayed Against the Bill.

Party Leaders May Get Together and Prevent Its Passage.

Minneapolis, June 14.—A Washington special to the Journal says: The men and the interests opposing the Babcock bill are now having their inning. The American Tariff league and the Home Market club composed of the large manufacturers and high protective interests, generally, of New England, have denounced it in sweeping terms. A member of the Pennsylvania Republican delegation in congress, speaking, it is understood, for the others, has been interviewed in opposition to it. Congressman Dalzell, of Pittsburg, member of the house committee on rules, has also spoken against it, and has been followed by Chairman Payne, of the ways and means committee, Representative Taylor, of Ohio, and by other well known Republicans of the Eastern states.

Already it begins to appear that the struggle in congress next winter, which is almost inevitable, will show the Eastern states arrayed as a unit against the bill and the states of the middle West largely in favor of it. If there are any friends of the bill in the East, they have not thus far raised their voices. This division of forces was to have been expected, for the East is the home of the men who think they have most to fear from any seeming departure from the principle of high protection. The bulk of the country's manufacturing is carried on there. In the West, however, where business interests are more diversified, and where high protection has been at times quite stoutly opposed by loyal Republicans, as witness the state of party sentiment when the McKinley bill was an issue, any removal of duties, especially if the trusts are to be injured as a result, will be welcomed with loud acclaim.

It is still possible, as has been said in these dispatches, that the party leaders will get together next winter and prevent the Babcock bill from becoming crystallized into law; but it is hardly possible that anything can be done which will prevent congress from debating the proposition for a considerable portion of the session.

If conditions in the Philippines, Cuba and Porto Rico were settled to the satisfaction of the country, there might be danger that the Babcock idea would precipitate a revolt within the Republican party even more serious than that which accompanied the McKinley bill. But our foreign affairs are in such a nebulous state, and the future is so filled with uncertainty because of that fact, that every bit of cohesive power which the party can develop will be brought strongly to bear, with the probable result that the tariff will have a secondary place in the next campaign. Under certain conditions it may not appear at all, although the high protectionists will hold that a prophesy of this sort is almost too good to be true. Should it appear, however, Republicans in the Western states will be prevented from expressing themselves as they would do under other conditions. Everybody in the party must stand by the president and his foreign policy, and since foreign affairs are likely to engage the attention of the country to the partial exclusion of domestic concern, especially during the continuance of the present good times, the Babcock proposition for the present may not get beyond the talking stage.

Much will depend upon the Western states, especially those of the Mississippi valley. These states, while Republican for several elections last past, are close politically. In a presidential campaign they are necessary to the party that wins. If in these states sentiment for the Babcock bill should continue to develop, and finally reach a stage where party feeling was almost a unit in its favor, the difficulties of congress would be multiplied, and it might be necessary seriously to undertake some form of tariff revision. But the high protectionists are counting on enough opposition to the middle west to neutralize the force of the men who will follow Babcock. In fact, it is already pointed out that certain well known and influential congressmen from that section, one or two of them representing Minnesota, others Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana, are not prepared to accept the Babcock theory. These men, it is said, have very respectable followings at home, and will feel justified in standing out against any tariff legislation.

AT CASS LAKE

The Business Men Form a Commercial Club.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 14.—At a largely attended meeting in Strawbridge hall, an organization was perfected which will hereafter be representative of the business interests of Cass Lake. The new organization, which will be known as the Cass Lake Commercial club, starts out with a membership of thirty, which includes most of the representative business men of the village. The following were elected as officers: A. G. Bernard, editor of the Cass Lake Voice, president; vice presidents, Fred W. Smith, a prominent local attorney and postmaster, and C. H. Ichnson, druggist; secretary, H. E. Reed, cashier of the Bank of Cass Lake; treasurer, J. T. Gardner, proprietor of Gardner's department store. The club propose to rent suitable quaters and establish permanent club rooms, at some central portion of the village. Correspondence will at once be entered into with outside parties with the purpose in view of securing added industries for Cass Lake. The officers of the club are all competent men and "hustlers," and the new organization will undoubtedly be of untold benefit to Cass Lake.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

In the United States district court at San Francisco two suits for $50,000 each were filed against the Pilots' association by relatives of two men who lost their lives in the wreck of the steamer Dio de Janeiro. The complainants are the widows and children of Thomas Brady and Joseph Smith, second assistant engineer and water tender, respectively, on the Rio.

A break occurred in the ranks of the Chicago Machinery Manufacturers whose employes are on strike. Six firms employing 135 men reached a settlement with their striking machinists and the men returned to work Friday under an agreement securing them the 9-hour day and an increase in wages acceptable to the union.

John E. Mitchell, a Milwaukee traveling man, died in terrible agony in the Pere Marquette depot at Benton Harbor. His last words were: "They're after me." Death was caused by poison. Both suicide and murder theories are advanced. The latter is believed to be the more probable. He was an Australian and his parents reside in New Zealand.

At Coyle, twenty miles from Guthrie, Ben Cravens and a companion blew upon the Santa Fe safe with dynamite securing $1500 and escaping. The safe and part of the building was wrecked. Cravens two months ago near Pawnee killed two members of a posse chasing him. Last winter he escaped from the Kansas state penitentiary mine, holding the guard off with a toy pistol.

In a runaway at Anderson, Ind., Miss Bertha Stewart jumped from the buggy and was instantly killed by breaking her neck. Miss Lillie Rich and Mrs. Webb were also injured. Miss Stewart jumped as the frightened horse was approaching a bridge.

CABLE FLASHES.

Foxhall Keene has sent 2240 pounds to the Prince of Wales hospital, the amount being one-half of the Oaks purse, which he won with his filly Cap and Bells last Saturday.

A man named Ende, supposed to be an American who is accused of robbing jewelers to the amount of 50,000 marks, was arrested on entering the place occupied by an alleged receiver of stolen goods. Ende stabbed the policeman who took him into custody.

President Loubet received David B. Henderson, speaker of the United States house of representatives and Representativ Gillett of Massachusetts at Paris Thursday.

At a Spanish cabinet council, the queen regent presiding, it was decided that any claims emanating from American subjects relative to the destruction of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor should be addressed to the government of the United States in conformity with the treaty of Paris.

MINERS RIOTING.

Grenoble, France, June 13.—There has been serious rioting at the La Motte and D'Avellans mines, in consequence of the refusal of the companies to discharge Italian workmen. Several houses were sacked and numbers of persons were injured. A force of infantry and horse artillery have been sent to assist the local gendarmes.

A severe sprain will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. Many cases have occurred, however, in which a cure has been effected in less than one week by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. For sale at Boyce's drug store.

Summer Undermuslins and Lingerie.

Second Floor.

We have an object lesson in Muslin Underwear and Lingerie in the windows—stop and look at it—it's worthy of more than a passing glance—for it tells a story of new, fresh, sanitary muslinwear—in a variety of style and trimming and materials not possible in home work, and all radically low in price. The expressions of admiration have been constant and reserved—for never before have the newest and choicest ideas been so effectively reproduced at popular prices—and the windows but hints of the grand assortment on the second floor.

Saturday's sales fraught with signal savings!

"FROM SAVING COMES HAVING," is a trite old truism. Most men of wealth have looked after the nickels. Even Russel Sage, with his millions, does not indulge in tailor-made clothing. And a Chicago millionaire has been known to walk blocks to save 5c carfare. Economy is laudable. We like to encourage it. Tomorrow's sales present thousands of opportunities for saving—promoting economy in a substantial way. We put forth strenuous efforts to out-do every former value giving event by offering the most bargains and deepest price cuts yet given. Keeping up and strengthening our reputation for invariably giving more real bargains than all other stores in Duluth combined. We intend to increase the high pitch of enthusiasm these Saturday bargain giving events are creating, and tomorrow will break all former selling records. We extend a cordial invitation to everyone (visitors and citizens) to make the Glass Block headquarters. Use the reception room as you would your own home. Meet your friends here, eat your lunches here, rest here, do your corresponding here. Our doors are wide open to everyone. Open Saturdays until ten o'clock.

THE GRADE PROGRAM

Pupils of Eighth Grade Graduate to High School.

High School Crowded to Hear the Exercises.

Three hundred and twenty-four pupils of the grammar schools became eligible for entrance to the high school last night, when the graduating exercises of the eighth grades of the city were held at the High School Assembly hall before an audience that packed the great hall from end to end. Hundreds, unable to get seats, stood through the exercises, deeming themselves more fortunate than other hundreds that failed to get entrance at all. The room was exceedingly warm, but the interest of the exercises held the audience there in spite of it. The entertainment was highly enjoyed, and it was a great credit to the school system of Duluth.

Fourteen schools were represented in the exercises, and the program, which had been prepared with great care, was carried out delightfully. The invocation was delivered by Rev. Harry W. Knowles, of Grace M. E. church. The pupils sang a chorus, "God of Our Fathers," by A. F. M. Custance. Hazel M. Owens, of the Lakeside and Lester Park schools gave a recitation, "Bryant's Forest Hymn," in a very pleasing manner. Rene Riddle of the Longfellow school gave Proctor Knott's celebrated oration on Duluth in good voice and with excellent effect.

The Irving school pupils gave an exhibition of club swinging that showed careful drill and good results. Helen Mooney of the Washington school gave a recitation, "Afterwhiles," by James Whitcomb Riley, in a very effective manner. Paul Sturm of the Emerson school recited "Duke Leopold's Stone," by Mary Bradley, in a pleasing manner. The school gave a chorus, "Spring Blossoms," by Valentine.

Walter Cox of the Washington school gave as an oration Webster's speech on the constitution in a very spirited manner. Lillie Dunn of the Fairmount school recited "Laughin' in Meetin'," by Harriet Beecher Stowe. The Lincoln school pupils gave a single stick exercise, accompanied by Ella Green and Esther Rigdon, which showed a lot of hard drilling. Elsa Hase of the Jackson school recited "Bay Billy," by Frank H. Cassaway, in a very charming way, after which the school gave another chorus, "The Gondolier," arranged from Donizetti.

Harold Cant of the Franklin school recited James Whitcomb Riley's "Cousin Rufus' Story," in a very taking manner, and Fred Buck of the Endion school gave an oration by Webster on "The Preservation of the Union," in a finely spirited manner. Club swinging by the Jefferson school, done in an excellent manner, and another chorus by the school, closed the pupils' part of the entertainment.

R. E. Denfeld, superintendent of schools, presented the diplomas in a short but interesting talk. He spoke of the splendid equipment the city has provided for the education of its children, and he advised the young people, on their entrance to the high school, to go determined to wark hard and study during the next four years in a thorough manner in order that when they graduate from the high school they might be fitted to battle successfully with the world.

The diplomas were then handed to the pupils, and the audience dispersed.

ST. THOMAS SCHOOL.

Closing Exercises and Conferring of Honors.

The commencement exercises of St. Thomas' school took place in the Catholic association hall last evening before a large audience that enjoyed the entertainment very much. The program consisted of recitations, songs, drills, pantomimes and a drama entitled "The Blind Prince," all done in a manner that conferred great credit on the management of the schools.

The program was so uniformly good that it would be difficult to single out any one for special mention unless it was Mary Lana, whose singing was delightful and exceptionally fine for one of her years.

The young people that took part in the drama played their parts exceedingly well and altogether the entertainment was an exceptionally fine one.

A feature was the address by Bishop McGolrick, who said that the moral development of each pupil is a feature peculiar to the Cathedral schools, and among all he had visited during the year he found none to excel the St. Thomas' pupils in scientific and classical accomplishments.

The distribution of gold medals, certificates and premiums was a pleasant feature. The successful pupils were rewarded as follows:

Gold medal for amiable and polite deportment, scholarship and general progress—Master Bernard Pierce.

Gold medal for amiable and polite deportment, scholarship and general progress—Miss Josephine Lana.

AMUSEMENTS.

"SAG HARBOR."

Next Monday and Tuesday James A. Herne's play, "Sag Harbor," will be seen at the Lyceum. The play is bright with the sunny humor peculiar to Mr. Herne's dramatic work, and despite its vein of serious and pathetic feeling, proves a brilliant, effective comedy. The main story involves the love of two brothers for an orphan girl, Martha Reese. This complication is developed to a dramatic climax in the third act when Capt. Dan's timely intervention averts an imminent tragedy and turns the current of aroused passions into calmer channels.

Delayed Street Cars.

Marine and street car traffic was delayed nearly an hour in Superior, late yesterday afternoon, by that relic of ancient times on Lamborn avenue designated a bridge. A tug with a dredge in tow signalled for the bridge to open, but there was no response, the reason being that the bridge tenders could not swing the draw. The tug finally left its tow and pulled the draw open. In the interval eight cars in the interstate service were blocked on either side of the bridge.

WAS MURDER.

Superior Decides That the Cause of Honeycombe's Death.

At the adjourned session of the coroner's jury in Superior yesterday, no new evidence to show the cause of death of Wallace Honeycombe was brought out. The jury finally returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death at the hands of some person or persons unknown. Many witnesses were examined, but no direct evidence was brought out. The chief witness was the wife of the murdered man, but she threw no light on the tragedy.

No motive for the crime could be ascertained. Honeycombe had no property or insurance. It is not known that he had money about his person. A trail of blood commencing some blocks from his late home reinforces the theory that he was stricken down some distance from the spot where the body was found, it evidently having been carried to the home. The police have no clue to the perpetrators.

PRACTICALLY COMPLETED.

Dredge Trust Said to Be a Certainty.

The deal to include the dredging companies at the head of the lakes in the recently formed dredging trust is said to be practically completed, and the Barker and E. T. Williams & Sons concerns are understood to be among those absorbed. The head office of the company is to be at Cleveland. The contracts held by the different companies now operating alone will be turned over to the trust and handled by it. In the formation of the combine it is understood that all of the present companies and individual owners will form companies before transferring their property to the dredging octopus.

L. ABT & SONS OF CHICAGO

Sell Their Stock to the Big Duluth.

L. Abt & Sons, one of the largest wholesale firms, manufacturing fine clothing in the world, have just closed out the balance of their entire stock of men's suits and trousers to the Big Duluth at a cash price of 60 cents on the dollar. This great purchase representing about $10,000 worth of men's finest suits and trousers will give the people the best clothing made at less than one-half what they have been paying. The entire force at the Big Duluth has been busy unpacking and arranging the clothing ready for the great closing out sale which commences tomorrow at the Big Duluth.

GUN CLUB SHOOT.

Plans For July 5 and 6 Are Progressing.

Plans for the annual tournament of the Central Gun club are progressing well, and some lively events are assured. During the two days of the tournament, July 5 and 6, it is expected that at least half a hundred outsiders will participate. The club has already secured $440 to be hung up for prizes. A feature of the tournament will be some sweepstakes of fifteen birds, with an entry fee of $10 and $10 additional donated by the club. There will also be some merchandise prizes.

Term of Federal Court.

Superior expects to have a term of the United States circuit and district courts beginning next Tuesday, but thus far is in doubt not having heard from the judges court attaches. The sessions will be held in the rooms of the superior court at West Superior. The calendar is a very small one, but there are expected to be some criminal cases.

HAS ITS DEFECTS

Board of Grain Appeals System Is Not Perfect.

Serious Weakness Lies In Supremacy of Either Board.

The system which was adopted in the state of Minnesota less than two years ago of having boards of appeals as the final authority in the inspection of grain worked very well for a time, but a defect has already arisen that is a serious and far reaching one and will bring the entire system into contempt among grain men if it is not remedied. According to the ruling made some time ago that the decision of either board is final and cannot be changed by the other, there are two courts of last resort, and that is a situation that can never be harmonious.

If the judgment of the three men who constitute the board at Minneapolis, and the three who constitute the board at Duluth was identical, there would be no trouble, but the inspection of grain is not an exact science in practice, even though it may be in theory, and what one board will declare to be a contract grade of grain, another may not consider to be quite up to the mark. This was apparent last winter when the Minneapolis board was passing as contract flax seed that the Duluth members of the board was anything but that. And yet that flax had to be accepted in Duluth upon the decision of the Minneapolis men, that being declared to be final.

The situation is no different with wheat than it is with flax, except that the difference of judgment is never likely to be so marked. And yet right now the Minneapolis board is thought to be more lenient in its inspection of wheat than the Duluth board, and as Minneapolis wheat is being shipped in here the effect on the price in Duluth is noticeable. Yesterday July wheat in Duluth closed without change from the day before, while the same option in Minneapolis advanced ¾ cent, and also advanced in other markets. The feeling that this Minneapolis wheat, inferior to that in Duluth elevators, would be delivered on July contracts here was held responsible for the weakness of the July option in Duluth.

There must, in the opinion of grain men, be some way devised to prevent this conflict of authority, or the system will be little better than none. As the powers of the boards now stand, the Minneapolis board can inspect for Duluth provided the grain reaches there first. The idea when the law was created was that each board should be supreme in the market in which it was located.

IRON ORE

Shipments During May Surprising In Size of Movement.

Cleveland, June 14.—The Iron Trade Review says: The statement of May shipments of iron ore from the Lake Superior region is only surprising in the size of the movement. With scarcely more than half a month of Lake Superior shipments the total to June 1 is found to be 1,689,775 tons, as against 3,265,888 tons to June 1, 1900—a falling off of 1,576,113 tons, or 48 per cent. When it is recalled that shipments began on April 20 last year, the performance of the ore fleet in a fraction of last month is noteworthy. It will be seen that in order to reach the total of 20,000,000 tons this year, which has been figured upon in some published forecasts, it will be necessary to bring down an average of more than 3,000,000 tons a month for six months. This would be a record performance, but it would not be impossible on that account, since the fleet of today is a record fleet.

The situation at the Lake Erie end is the one that will control, and that in turn will depend upon the furnace interest. The docks are not in position to handle any great amount of unsold ore, and if anything like the total of shipments provided for in some estimates is brought down the ore must go forward to furnace yards. The buying thus far has been for but a partial year's supply, and the point will soon be reached when the decision of furnacemen as to their additional purchases will be an important factor. And this in turn will depend upon the pig iron sales of the merchant furnaces for the second half. Of the most desirable old-range ores the unsold supply is not great, either in Bessemer or non-Bessemer, the United States Steel corporation having taken up a considerable amount in the early purchases. In selling certain non-Bessemer Mesabi ores the steel corporation was credited with a broad policy, but the outside buyer may be rather circumscribed after all in his choice of ore if the big interest is to be a regular bidder for old-range material.

Business University Happenings.

Miss Eva Falconer just completed her course and has accepted an excellent position as stenographer for the Red Cliff Lumber Co.

Mr. Frank Collins left the college last Monday to accept the position of bookkeeper for A. J. Harker.

MANAGER A BANKRUPT.

New York, June 13.—Adolph H. Chamberlain, a theatrical manager, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are given as $134,340 and his nominal assets as $90,275.

CANNIBALS.

New Guinea Natives Eat Two White Missionaries.

Victoria, B. C., June 14.—The Miowera, from Australia, brings these advices:

From New Guinea news was received via Sydney, of the massacre of Revs. James Chalmers and B. F. Tomkins and fourteen native teachers by cannibals. The whites were eaten.

The scene of the cannibal orgy was seen by the troops sent out to investigate the massacre, and a portion of a jaw and thigh bones of the missionaries were found, together with their hats and portions of trousers which belonged to Chalmers. The expedition punished the natives, destroying their villages and canoes.

As the result of publication of the stories of the presence of bubonic plague in San Francisco, Dr. Ashburton Thompson, quarantine officer at Sydney, refused to allow the steamer Ventura to go to the wharf.

THE CANTEEN

Chicago, June 14.—A pamphlet on the canteen question is being prepared by Rev. S. B. Baxter, pastor of the Humboldt Park Baptist church. Dr. Dexter again visited Fort Sheridan and vicinity Wednesday to acquire information. He obtained statistics from Col. Van Horne and Adjt. Madden and then went to Highwood, where he saw the same drunken orgies and brawls that influenced him to draw a report last month in favor of the restoration of the army canteen.

About 5000 copies of the pamphlet will be printed by Dr. Dexter. He will go into the subject and handle it without gloves. His idea is to show that drunkenness has increased in the army since the canteen was done away with—that while the temperance people "sought to heal a wound a pestiferous cancer has been increasing in its power and deadly work," and says he will plead for righteous judgment in the consideration of facts. He avers he will not plead for the canteen, but will argue against the increase of the saloon power.

Col. Van Horne admitted Wednesday that desertions were averaging twenty-five to thirty a month since the abolishment of the canteen. He sought to account for it by saying that the Twenty-ninth regiment was being reorganized and that many of the deserters were recruits.

At reveille Wednesday 200 of the 1379 men were absent, and most of those present bore marks of conflict with Highwood whisky and with each other. The officers expect most of the missing 200 to straggle in before the expiration of ten days. Those absent longer than that will be deserters, and thirty or forty, it is believed will remain away permanently. Some companies did not have enough men to drill except by uniting with other companies. Private Craig, a prisoner under sentence for murderous assault, escaped from a drunken guard during the afternoon.

MYSTERIOUS.

Prominent Montreal People Dead Under Peculiar Circumstances.

Montreal, June 14.—Mrs. J. J. Redpath, one of Montreal's society leaders, is dead in her handsome residence on Sherbrooke street and her son, Clifford Redpath, is lying dead in Royal Victoria hospital with a bullet in his brain.

About 6 o'clock the household was startled by the noise of two revolver shots from Mrs. Redpath's room. On rushing in the servants found Mrs. Redpath and her son lying on the floor, both unconscious. Physicians were summoned, but Mrs. Redpath died in a few minutes. Her son was removed to the hospital in a dying condition.

Mrs. Redpath had been ill for some time, suffering greatly from insomnia. The surmise is that while temporarily mentally deranged, Mrs. Redpath attempted to end her life and in attempting to prevent her the son was shot.

Young Redpath died in the hospital at 11:50 p. m., without regaining consciousness.

The double suicide, or the murder of one or the other of the two members of the Redpath family, created a tremendous excitement all over the city.

The Redpaths, both socially and in business life, are regarded as leaders. Their sugar refinery is the largest in Canada, and the family name is to be found upon the directorates of some of the heaviest financial concerns in Canada's commercial metropolis.

There are all sorts of rumors in the air, but those who should know best, are not disposed to talk about the affair at all.

This reticence, of course, deepens the mystery that hangs over this terrible occurrence, and the immediate employment of the best detective talent to be had, also has given rise to various surmises as to the real truth of the matter.

EXPECTS SETTLEMENT.

Possible That Turkey Will Pay Claims.

Washington, June 13.—United States Minister Fleischmann at Constantinople, has reported to the state department that he expects to effect a settlement of the American mission claims against Turkey in the immediate future. The basis for the minister's confidence is not made known. He has been giving some attention to the case of Dr. Norton, the United States consul at Harpoot, with satisfactory results, for although still without a formal exequator, Dr. Norton is exercising the functions of a consul.

DECLARED BANKRUPT.

Berlin, June 13.—The run on the Dresden Credit Ansalt continues. The directors today resolved to declare the concern bankrupt. According to a private Dresden dispatch to the correspondent of the Associated Press, this bankruptcy affects about a dozen smaller industrial banks and electric companies.

NOT BROKEN OFF.

Hamburg, June 13.—The Hamburg-American Steamship company denies the report that its negotiations with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, to handle the shore end of its new enterprise, a trans-Pacific line, are broken off.

Heart Disease

Heart trouble, at least among the Americans, is certainly increasing and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real organic disease is incurable; but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric.

In another way, also, the heart is affected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food. There is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be be found at most drug stores, and which contains valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the Stomach.

MUST BUY PERMITS.

Clergymen Must Pay Fee to Secure Rates.

Chicago, June 14.—After July 1 all clergymen east of the Mississippi river and west of Pittsburg and Buffalo must pay 25 cents for permits to buy railroad tickets at half fare. This was agreed upon by general passenger agents of all the roads in the territory named at a meeting here today. To obtain clergy half fare permits it has been customary for clergymen to fill out prescribed forms and file them with agents of the transportation companies. On this credential the reduced rate tickets were sold. There has never been any charge for these permits authorizing representatives of the railways to sell the tickets, though there has always been a fee of $1 for the annual book permits furnished preachers.

The new rule places the same restrictions about the trip credential as has surrounded the annual permit. It was found that when clergymen were not charged for the trip permits they used them exclusively and refused to pay the railroads $1 for the annual book credential. The new arrangement is an effort to induce preachers and others entitled to reduced rates courtesy to buy the yearly books, which means a big profit to the lines in the association.

Relatives Ignored By Will of Former Slave.

New Orleans, June 14.—Before the war Louisa Grant, of Donaldsonville, La., was the favorite slave of her mistress, the wife of a prominent Louisiana planter, for whom she had been named. After the cessation of hostilities Louisa went to work for herself, taking in washing and saving her money, but always speaking of Mrs. Grant as her "old missus," and revering her above all others.

Sunday Louisa died. Considerable curiosity was felt as to the disposal of her property, for she had accumulated considerable money, and had invested it so wisely in real estate that competent appraisers figure the value of houses and lots she owns in Donaldsonville at $12,000.

Her will has been admitted to probate. She leaves all her belongings, real and personal, to Mrs. Grant. Not a cent is left to her own people, and she leaves a large family.

MONSOON HAS BROKEN.

Bombay, India, June 13.—The monsoon has broken. According to a dispatch to the London Daily Mail from Simla, a monsoon had started there on June 1, and rains were everywhere experienced in India except in the northern portions of the Punjab.

THE GRADE PROGRAM

Pupils of Eighth Grade Graduate to High School.

High School Crowded to Hear the Exercises.

Three hundred and twenty-four pupils of the grammar schools became eligible for entrance to the high school last night, when the graduating exercises of the eighth grades of the city were held at the High School Assembly hall before an audience that packed the great hall from end to end. Hundreds, unable to get seats, stood through the exercises, deeming themselves more fortunate than other hundreds that failed to get entrance at all. The room was exceedingly warm, but the interest of the exercises held the audience there in spite of it. The entertainment was highly enjoyed, and it was a great credit to the school system of Duluth.

Fourteen schools were represented in the exercises, and the program, which had been prepared with great care, was carried out delightfully. The invocation was delivered by Rev. Harry W. Knowles, of Grace M. E. church. The pupils sang a chorus, "God of Our Fathers," by A. F. M. Custance, Hazel M. Owens, of the Lakeside and Lester Park schools gave a recitation, "Afterwhiles," by James Whitcomb Riley, in a very effective manner. Paul Sturm of the Emerson school recited "Duke Leopold's Stone," by Mary Bradley, in a pleasing manner. The school gave a chorus, "Spring Blossoms," by Valentine.

Walter Cox of the Washington school gave an an oration Webster's speech on the constitution in a very spirited manner. Lillie Dunn of the Fairmount school recited "Laughin' in Meetin'," by Harriet Beecher Stowe. The Lincoln school pupils gave a single stick exercise, accompanied by Ella Green and Esther Rigdon, which showed a lot of hard drilling. Elsa Hase of the Jackson school recited "Bay Billy," by Frank H. Cassaway, in a very charming way, after which the school gave another chorus, "The Gondolier," arranged from Donizetti.

Harold Cant of the Franklin school recited James Whitcomb Riley's "Cousin Rufus' Story," in a very taking manner, and Fred Buck of the Endion school gave an oration by Webster on "The Preservation of the Union," in a finely spirited manner. Club swinging by the Jefferson school, done in an excellent manner, and another chorus by the school, closed the pupils' part of the entertainment.

R. E. Denfeld, superintendent of schools, presented the diplomas in a short but interesting talk. He spoke of the splendid equipment the city has provided for the education of its children, and he advised the young people, on their entrance to the high school, to go determined to work hard and study during the next four years in a thorough manner in order that when they graduate from the high school they might be fitted to battle successfully with the world.

The diplomas were then handed to the pupils, and the audience dispersed.

ST. THOMAS SCHOOL.

Closing Exercises and Conferring of Honors.

The commencement exercises of St. Thomas' school took place in the Catholic association hall last evening before a large audience that enjoyed the entertainment very much. The program consisted of recitations, songs, drills, pantomimes and a drama entitled "The Blind Prince," all done in a manner that conferred great credit on the management of the schools.

The program was so uniformly good that it would be difficult to single out any one for special mention unless it was Mary I. Lanna, whose singing was delightful and exceptionally fine for one of her years.

The young people that took part in the drama played their parts exceedingly well and altogether the entertainment was an exceptionally fine one.

A feature was the address by Bishop McGolrick, who said that the moral development of each pupil is a feature peculiar to the Cathedral schools, and among all he had visited during the year he found none to excel the St. Thomas' pupils in scientific and classical accomplishments.

The distribution of gold medals, certificates and premiums was a pleasant feature. The successful pupils were rewarded as follows:

Gold medal for amiable and polite deportment, scholarship and general progress—Master Bernard Pierce.

Gold medal for amiable and polite deportment, scholarship and general progress—Miss Josephine Lana.

AMUSEMENTS.

"SAG HARBOR."

Next Monday and Tuesday James A. Herne's play, "Sag Harbor," will be seen at the Lyceum. The play is bright with the sunny humor peculiar to Mr. Herne's dramatic work, and despite its vein of serious and pathetic feeling, proves a brilliant, effective comedy. The main story involves the love of two brothers for an orphan girl, Martha Reese. This complication is developed to a dramatic climax in the third act when Capt. Dan's timely intervention averts an imminent tragedy and turns the current of aroused passions into calmer channels.

Delayed Street Cars.

Marine and street car traffic was delayed nearly an hour in Superior, late yesterday afternoon, by that relic of ancient times on Lamborn avenue designated a bridge. A tug with a dredge in tow signalled for the bridge to open, but there was no response, the reason being that the bridge tenders could not swing the draw. The tug finally left its tow and pulled the draw open. In the interval eight cars in the interstate service were blocked on either side of the bridge.

WAS MURDER.

Superior Decides That the Cause of Honeycombe's Death.

At the adjourned session of the coroner's jury in Superior yesterday, no new evidence to show the cause of death of Wallace Honeycombe was brought out. The jury finally returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death at the hands of some person or persons unknown. Many witnesses were examined, but no direct evidence was brought out. The chief witness was the wife of the murdered man, but she threw no light on the tragedy.

No motive for the crime could be ascertained. Honeycombe had no property or insurance. It is not known that he had money about his person. A trail of blood commencing some blocks from his late home reinforces the theory that he was stricken down some distance from the spot where the body was found, it evidently having been carried to the home. The police have no clue to the perpetrators.

PRACTICALLY COMPLETED.

Dredge Trust Said to Be a Certainty.

The deal to include the dredging companies at the head of the lakes in the recently formed dredging trust is said to be practically completed, and the Barker and E. T. Williams & Sons concerns are understood to be among those absorbed. The head office of the company is to be at Cleveland. The contracts held by the different companies now operating alone will be turned over to the trust and handled by it. In the formation of the combine it is understood that all of the present companies and individual owners will form companies before transferring their property to the dredging octopus.

Sell Their Stock to the Big Duluth.

L. Abt & Sons, one of the largest wholesale firms, manufacturing fine clothing in the world, have just closed out the balance of their entire stock of men's suits and trousers to the Big Duluth at a cash price of 69 cents on the dollar. This great purchase representing about $10,000 worth of men's finest suits and trousers will give the people the best clothing made at less than one-half what they have been paying. The entire force at the Big Duluth has been busy unpacking and arranging the clothing ready for the great closing out sale which commences tomorrow at the Big Duluth.

GUN CLUB SHOOT.

Plans For July 5 and 6 Are Progressing.

Plans for the annual tournament of the Central Gun club are progressing well, and some lively events are assured. During the two days of the tournament, July 5 and 6, it is expected that at least half a hundred outsiders will participate. The club has already secured $440 to be hung up for prizes. A feature of the tournament will be some sweepstakes of fifteen birds, with an entry fee of $10 and $10 additional donated by the club. There will also be some merchandise prizes.

Term of Federal Court.

Superior expects to have a term of the United States circuit and district courts beginning next Tuesday, but thus far is in doubt not having heard from the judges court attaches. The sessions will be held in the rooms of the superior court at West Superior. The calendar is a very small one, but there are expected to be some criminal cases.

HAS ITS DEFECTS

Board of Grain Appeals System Is Not Perfect.

The system which was adopted in the state of Minnesota less than two years ago of having boards of appeals as the final authority in the inspection of grain worked very well for a time, but a defect has already arisen that is a serious and far reaching one and will bring the entire system into contempt among grain men if it is not remedied. According to the ruling made some time ago that the decision of either board is final and cannot be changed by the other, there are two courts of last resort, and that is a situation that can never be harmonious.

If the judgment of the three men who constitute the board at Minneapolis, and the three who constitute the board at Duluth was identical, there would be no trouble, but the inspection of grain is not an exact science in practice, even though it may be in theory, and what one board will declare to be a contract grade of grain, another may not consider to be quite up to the mark. This was apparent last winter when the Minneapolis board was passing as contract flax seed that the Duluth members of the board was anything but that. And yet that flax had to be accepted in Duluth upon the decision of the Minneapolis men, that being declared to be final.

The situation is no different with wheat than it is with flax, except that the difference of judgment is never likely to be so marked. And yet right now the Minneapolis board is thought to be more lenient in its inspection of wheat than the Duluth board, and as Minneapolis wheat is being shipped in here the effect on the price in Duluth is noticeable. Yesterday July wheat in Duluth closed without change from the day before, while the same option in Minneapolis advanced ¼ cent, and also advanced in other markets. The feeling that this Minneapolis wheat, inferior to that in Duluth elevators, would be delivered on July contracts here was held responsible for the weakness of the July option in Duluth.

There must, in the opinion of grain men, be some way devised to prevent this conflict of authority, or the system will be little better than none. As the powers of the boards now stand, the Minneapolis board can inspect for Duluth provided the grain reaches thero first. The idea when the law was created was that each board should be supreme in the market in which it was located.

IRON ORE

Cleveland, June 14.—The Iron Trade Review says: The statement of May shipments of iron ore from the Lake Superior region is only surprising in the size of the movement. With scarcely more than half a month of Lake Superior shipments the total to June 1 is found to be 1,689,775 tons, as against 3,295,888 tons to June 1, 1900—a falling off of 1,576,113 tons, or 48 per cent. When it is recalled that shipments began on April 20 last year, the performance of the ore fleet in a fraction of last month is noteworthy. It will be seen that in order to reach the total of 20,000,000 tons this year, which has been figured upon in some published forecasts, it will be necessary to bring down an average of more than 3,000,000 tons a month for six months. This would be a record performance, but it would not be impossible on that account, since the fleet of today is a record fleet.

The situation at the Lake Erie end is the one that will control, and that in turn will depend upon the furnace interest. The docks are not in position to handle any great amount of unsold ore, and if anything like the total of shipments provided for in some estimates is brought down the ore must go forward to furnace yards. The buying thus far has been for but a partial year's supply, and the point will soon be reached when the decision of furnacemen as to their additional purchases will be an important factor. And this in turn will depend upon the pig iron sales of the merchant furnaces for the second half. Of the most desirable old-range ores the unsold supply is not great, either in Bessemer or non-Bessemer, the United States Steel corporation having taken up a considerable amount in the early purchases. In selling certain non-Bessemer Mesabi ores the steel corporation was credited with a broad policy, but the outside buyer may be rather circumscribed after all in his choice of ore if the big interest is to be a regular bidder for old-range material.

New York, June 13.—Adolph H. Chamberlain, a theatrical manager, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are given as $134,340 and his nominal assets as $90,275.

CANNIBALS.

New Guinea Natives Eat Two White Missionaries.

Victoria, B. C., June 14.—The Miowera, from Australia, brings these advices:

From New Guinea news was received via Sydney, of the massacre of Revs. James Chalmers and B. F. Tomkins and fourteen native teachers by cannibals. The whites were eaten.

The scene of the cannibal orgy was seen by the troops sent out to investigate the massacre, and a portion of a jaw and thigh bones of the missionaries were found, together with their hats and portions of trousers which belonged to Chalmers. The expedition punished the natives, destroying their villages and canoes.

As the result of publication of the stories of the presence of bubonic plague in San Francisco, Dr. Ashburton Thompson, quarantine officer at Sydney, refused to allow the steamer Ventura to go to the wharf.

THE CANTEEN

Chicago, June 14.—A pamphlet on the canteen question is being prepared by Rev. S. B. Baxter, pastor of the Humboldt Park Baptist church. Dr. Dexter again visited Fort Sheridan and vicinity Wednesday to acquire information. He obtained statistics from Col. Van Horne and Adjt. Madden and then went to Highwood, where he saw the same drunken orgies and brawls that influenced him to draw a report last month in favor of the restoration of the army canteen.

About 5000 copies of the pamphlet will be printed by Dr. Dexter. He will go into the subject and handle it without gloves. His idea is to show that drunkenness has increased in the army since the canteen was done away with—that while the temperance people "sought to heal a wound a pestiferous cancer has been increasing in its power and deadly work," and says he will plead for righteous judgment in the consideration of facts. He avers he will not plead for the canteen, but will argue against the increase of the saloon power.

Col. Van Horne admitted Wednesday that desertions were averaging twenty-five to thirty a month since the abolishment of the canteen. He sought to account for it by saying that the Twenty-ninth regiment was being reorganized and that many of the deserters were recruits.

At reveille Wednesday 200 of the 1379 men were absent, and most of those present bore marks of conflict with Highwood whisky and with each other. The officers expect most of the missing 200 to straggle in before the expiration of ten days. Those absent longer than that will be deserters, and thirty or forty, it is believed will remain away permanently. Some companies did not have enough men to drill except by uniting with other companies. Private Frank Craig, a prisoner under sentence for murderous assault, escaped from a drunken guard during the afternoon.

MYSTERIOUS.

Prominent Montreal People Dead Under Peculiar Circumstances.

Montreal, June 14.—Mrs. J. J. Redpath, one of Montreal's society leaders, is dead in her handsome residence on Sherbrooke street and her son, Clifford Redpath, is lying dead in Royal Victoria hospital with a bullet in his brain.

About 6 o'clock the household was startled by the noise of two revolver shots from Mrs. Redpath's room. On rushing in the servants found Mrs. Redpath and her son lying on the floor, both unconscious. Physicians were summoned, but Mrs. Redpath died in a few minutes. Her son was removed to the hospital in a dying condition.

Mrs. Redpath had been ill for some time, suffering greatly from insomnia. The surmise is that while temporarily mentally deranged, Mrs. Redpath attempted to end her life and in attempting to prevent her the son was shot.

Young Redpath died in the hospital at 11:50 p. m., without regaining consciousness.

The double suicide, or the murder of one or the other of the two members of the Redpath family, created a tremendous excitement all over the city.

The Redpaths, both socially and in business life, are regarded as leaders. Their sugar refinery is the largest in Canada, and the family name is to be found upon the directorates of some of the heaviest financial concerns in Canada's commercial metropolis.

There are all sorts of rumors in the air, but those who should know best, are not disposed to talk about the affair at all.

This reticence, of course, deepens the mystery that hangs over this terrible occurrence, and the immediate employment of the best detective talent to be had, also has given rise to various surmises as to the real truth of the matter.

Washington, June 13.—United States Minister Fleischmann at Constantinople, has reported to the state department that he expects to effect a settlement of the American mission claims against Turkey in the immediate future. Hamburg, June 13.—The Hamburg-American Steamship company denies the report that its negotiations with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, to handle the shore end of its new enterprise, a trans-Pacific line, are broken off.

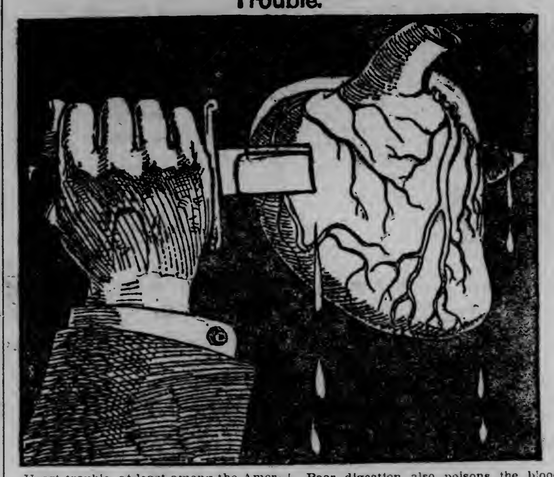
Heart Disease

Some Facts Regarding the Rapid Increase of Heart Trouble.



Heart trouble, at least among the Americans, is certainly increasing and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real organic disease is incurable; but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric.

In another way, also, the heart is affected by the form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food. There is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, making it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be be found at most drug stores, and which contains valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the Stomach.

Full sized package of these tablets sold by druggists at 50 cents. Little book on stomach troubles mailed free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

MUST BUY PERMITS.

Clergymen Must Pay Fee to Secure Rates.

Chicago, June 14.—After July 1 all clergymen east of the Mississippi river and west of Pittsburg and Buffalo must pay 25 cents for permits to buy railroad tickets at half fare. This was agreed upon by general passenger agents of all the roads in the territory named at a meeting here today. To obtain clergy half fare permits it has been customary for clergymen to fill out prescribed forms and file them with agents of the transportation companies. On this credential the reduced rate tickets were sold. There has never been any charge for these permits authorizing representatives of the railways to sell the tickets, though there has always been a fee of $1 for the annual book permits furnished preachers.

The new rule places the same restrictions about the trip credential as has surrounded the annual permit. It was found that when clergymen were not charged for the trip permits they used them exclusively and refused to pay the railroads $1 for the annual book credential. The new arrangement is an effort to induce preachers and others entitled to reduced rates courtesy to buy the yearly books, which means a big profit to the lines in the association.

Relatives Ignored By Will of Former Slave.

New Orleans, June 14.—Before the war Louisa Grant, of Donaldsonville, La., was the favorite slave of her mistress, the wife of a prominent Louisiana planter, for whom she had been named. After the cessation of hostilities Louisa went to work for herself, taking in washing and saving her money, but always speaking of Mrs. Grant as her "old missus," and revering her above all others.

Sunday Louisa died. Considerable curiosity was felt as to the disposal of her property, for she had accumulated considerable money, and had invested it so wisely in real estate that competent appraisers figure the value of houses and lots she owns in Donaldsonville at $12,000.

Her will has been admitted to probate. She leaves all her belongings, real and personal, to Mrs. Grant. Not a cent is left to her own people, and she leaves a large family.

MONSOON HAS BROKEN.

Bombay, India, June 13.—The monsoon has broken. According to a dispatch to the London Daily Mail from Simla, a monsoon had started there on June 1, and rains were everywhere experienced in India except in the northern portions of the Punjab.

Boy Singer Was Brought By Young Woman From Ireland.

Was Ten Years Ago and Now They Are Married.

Bride Has a Fortune and Is a Remarkable Musician.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 14.—Love found the way all right, all right, when Miss Susan Lloyd Bailey and Joseph A. Ireland, a sweet "boy" singer, were married in the Church of the Ascension. Mr. Ireland was 21 Tuesday, and he celebrated the event by taking unto himself a bride that has his mother beaten by a year or two.

This love story dates back some ten years, when Miss Bailey was traveling abroad. Happening to spend Sunday in a little north of Ireland town, she went to the chapel and there heard a singer who lifted the souls of men to thoughts of God and the hereafter.

She remembered the singer, she thought of the song and the next day sought the little choir boy and found him in a hut with a widowed mother with six to "feed and find." Miss Bailey investigated the antecedents of the family, and finally offered to take the lad and have him taught higher music. There was a scene, of course, but the mother's love was too strong to stand between her boy and his future and "little Joe" started for America with his new-found friend. Miss Bailey kept him abroad nearly a year, and finally brought him here and secured a place for him in the magnificent choir of the fashionable Church of the Ascension, where the boy's magnificent soprano voice won for him the admiration of all who heard him sing.

All sorts of tempting offers were made to the boy, but he continued a member of the Bailey household and sang to the music of the great organ presided over by Miss Bailey, who is herself a remarkable musician.

Dr. A. W. Bailey, a brother of Miss Bailey, formally adopted the boy and directed his moral training. The boy grew to manhood, and upon attaining his majority declared his passion for the woman who had befriended him when a child and urged instant marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. H. P. Wilson in the Church of the Ascension, and Mr. and Mrs. Ireland will hereafter occupy a palatial cottage at Pleasantville, N. J. Mrs. Ireland inherited $800,000 when a minor and she spent more on the education of her husband than she ever spent upon herself.

CONFERENCE

Of the Norwegian Lutheran Church Held at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, June 14.—The Norwegian Lutheran conference elected officers yesterday as follows:

Vice president, Rev. T. H. Sahl.

Secretary, Rev. J. C. Jenson, Roseland.

Committee on nominations, Rev. S. E. Boe, Rev. J. Haugan, Rev. G. Larson, Rev. G. Casmussen, Aev. M. Bjorn, Rev. R. H. Sjobladt, Rev. W. Christensen, T. H. Diegen, E. T. Ellesen.

Secretary J. C. Jenssen, Roseland, reported that 796 congregations had formally joined the United church, but clergymen connected with the church served 1108 congregations. The actual membership was 190,085 while the congregations having a partial relation to the church had 62,109 members. The total membership is thus 252,176, of which 134,309 are communicants.

From the pastorate reports it was learned that 28,575 public services were conducted during the past year; 10,485 baptisms were performed, 7465 young people confirmed, 1873 marriages solemnized, 2297 burials conducted, 6180 new members admitted and Sunday school held 17,850 times. There were 3427 Sunday school teachers and 42,515 Sunday school children.

Membership 11,236, divine services 1603, baptisms 774, confirmed 698, marriages 84, Sunday school children 880, churches 46, congregations 47.

The number of clergymen called with the church was given as 356, of which 316 were entitled to vote. Congregations were organized last year, as follows:

St. Johannes, Chippewa and Taylor counties, Wis.; Stanish, Monroe county, Wis.; Bakke, Becker county, Minn.; Skandinavia, Downing, Wis.; Marshall, Marshall, Minn.; Effat, Moody county, S. D.

Treasurer Lars Swenson submitted a very encouraging report. The professor fund for the theological seminary has grown to $15,503.71 and it earned $4560. The building fund now amounts to $31,-557.27.

For the general purposes of the church there was collected $20,384.

During the past two years the church has raised $262,000 for various purposes, including its contributions to foreign missions and the charitable institutions.

The Rev. Messrs. H. H. Hoverstad, Elliott, Ill.; A. E. Relstad, Elsworth, Wis.; J. C. Reiersten, Crookston, Minn., were named as a committee to apportion the traveling expenses of the clerical delegates.

SUIT OF ARMOR.

Old Time Relic Presented to the King.

London, June 13.—The Duke of Marlborough headed a deputation which, at an audience of King Edward today, presented his majesty with a suit of armor which formerly belonged to the king's champion. This historic armor was recently offered for sale at auction and was purchased by a committee who desired that it be preserved at Windsor castle.

NO NEGOTIATIONS.

Boston, June 13.—Thomas Lawson, owner of the Independence, today stated that he knew nothing about a syndicate having been formed in New York to purchase his yacht and denied that negotiations had been opened for such a purchase.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, weather bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. (Central time), June 14.—Showers have fallen over Southeastern states and throughout the Northwest, heavy at Bismarck, Moorhead, Washington and Charleston. Warm weather continues in Central and Eastern states, with a rise in temperature at North Dakota stations and a decrease over Western North Dakota and Lake Superior. The barometer is high over North Atlantic states, Lake Superior, Manitoba and Oregon and low over New Mexico and surrounding districts. The winds in the lake region are light to fresh and rather variable as regards direction, but conditions favor a general shift to easterly.

Assets Are Growing Less.

The national bankruptcy law is being utilized more and more by those who want to be relieved of their liabilities. The number of voluntary bankrupts increases rapidly and it seems that assets are decreasing with about the same speed. For the six months ending, March 31 last, a total of 1263 voluntary petitions in bankruptcy were filed in New York state alone. These, it should be borne in mind, were all voluntary and not forced by creditors. This record is surpassed by only one state, Illinois, where 1312 petitions were filed during the same period. Of the 1263 cases for New York 1033 were closed out at the time of making up the summary. The total amount of the liabilities involved in the closed cases was $18,725,014, and the value of the assets was but $253,492. During the same period there were 230 petitions in involuntary bankruptcy filed in New York state, and of this number sixty-three have been closed. The amount of the liabilities in these cases was $915,266, and the value of the assets was $138,324. It is evident that the bankruptcy law needs amending in some of its provisions, particularly in respect to the concealment of assets. The law in its present form was a compromise and like all compromise measures it has defects. It undoubtedly did much good in enabling men carried down into bankruptcy in the late years of depression to get clean discharges and to start afresh, but the time has come when the law can safely be made more stringent so as to prevent dishonest men taking advantage of its provisions.

When Should Children Go to School?

The question as to what is the proper age to send children to school has brought forth numerous diverse opinions. Many persons believe permanent injury is done to thousands of children by sending them to school at too early an age and requiring them to spend too many hours in the school room. According to William T. Harris, national commissioner of education, it would be a good thing to change several features of the public schools, especially in regard to age of commencing and hours of study. He says: "I think it would be a great improvement if the public school authorities throughout the country were to limit the working hours of children 8 years of age and under to three hours a day. In my opinion that is ample for boys and girls of that age. If this were to be the universal rule, it would not only be beneficial to the children, but would effect a material saving in instruction—It would admit of two sessions a day—one in the morning and one in the afternoon. I would have this rule apply to all children in the lowest two grades. Kindergarten sessions are only three hours, and that is quite enough. I have seen frequent cases of the injurious results of keeping children in school for long sessions at early ages. Arrested development is a common result of this and it shows itself in stunted growths. As a general thing children in the East are sent to school much earlier than they are in the West. In Boston they take them into the school at 4, and throughout the state of Massachusetts, in Philadelphia, Providence and other cities that is the age at which they are received. No children under 7 are admitted to the public schools of St. Louis, and they are refused admission to the kindergartens there until they are 5 years of age. In fact there is a state law in Missouri that makes it illegal for children to be received in kindergartens before they are 5 years old. I believe that this is a very wise law and that it could be adopted in the Eastern states with good results. If I had my way I would direct teachers in the kindergartens and lower grades in the public schools not to lay so much stress as is generally done on the importance of children attending regularly. Teachers are apt to bring great pressure on their charges to enforce regularity of attendance, but I do not think that is a good thing. I was well satisfied with the average daily attendance in the kindergartens of St. Louis which was the first of the big cities to adopt this branch of instruction. There was a total attendance there of 16,000 and the average daily attendance was 3000, which I considered enough. Teachers cannot be too careful not to force children at an early age."

WELCOME TO DULUTH.

The first of the annual excursions to Duluth arrives this afternoon, coming from Morris, Minn., and intervening points, and will remain until Sunday evening. The visitors can be assured of a hearty welcome. The people of Duluth are glad to see them and trust their stay will be pleasant and profitable and that they will find the head of the lakes sufficiently attractive to cause them to return and make a longer visit. No doubt the cool but pleasant atmosphere here will be an agreeable relief to the visitors from the sultry weather at home. To those who reside in the interior part of the state undoubtedly the greatest attraction will be Lake Superior, and the harbor and docks, fire, coal and merchandise, and grain elevators and the novel methods of loading and unloading vessels, but there are many other features of interest in and around the city, to which more extended reference is made in another column.

To those who may be interested in seeing a modern newspaper plant, The Herald extends a cordial invitation to visit The Herald building, particularly during the afternoon, when all the machinery will be in operation.

LOOTING IN CHINA.

Mr. Landor, the English traveler, who, being denied by his own people the privilege of entering the forbidden city of Pekin, rode through the gates as the guest of the Russian general, Liyinevich, has given his account of the relief of the legationers and the capture of Pekin to the world in the shape of a book. This book is commented upon freely by the London press, bringing up again the subject of looting and missionary incompetency.

Mr. Landor has added nothing new to the mass of information which has been in the possession of the world for several months, but his personal comments are of great value, acting in much the same way that circumstantial evidence does to settle disputed points. For instance, The Herald in its comments on the actions of the missionaries in China, hinted at the fact that all the missionaries sent to these foreign lands were not of the best girth and grain; that many were enthusiasts, earnest and faithful to what they believe, but totally incapable of coping intellectually with the heathen intellects of China. To this statement some of the readers of The Herald took exceptions. It will be interesting to know what the British press, as well as Mr. Landor, thinks on the same subject. From the London Express of May 29 we quote the following:

"Mr. Landor speaks well of the missionaries, but makes some just, if obvious, criticisms. 'It is great men and women with powerful brains—the greatest we have, if any at all—that ought to be sent out not those for whom we can find no use at home. One or two highly refined and intelligent men will do more good than twenty incompetent ones.' To send out a brain that is sufficient for the organization of charity bazars and an intelligence not extending beyond the collection of Tam o' Shanter caps whenever a calamity afflicts the nation, and at the same time to expect the possessor, whether man or woman, to preach and instruct and civilize Chinamen of good social standing, who reason with peculiar subtlety, and can read humanity as an open book—is obviously ridiculous. The American missionaries showed admirable business ability. Hardly had the legations been relieved when they handed to the correspondents a resolution in which it was stated that in claiming indemnity from the Chinese government the missionaries should receive compensation for loss of time, traveling expenses, rise of prices, rent of houses, and literary work destroyed!"

The sentences in single quotations are from Mr. Landor's book, the rest are the comments of the Express. It will be noted that the London editor drew the same conclusions as did The Herald from the statement of facts. The allusion to the thrifty character of American missionaries is in direct line with the opinion of the great majority of American people (not the New York Sun alone) that Dr. Ament has lost, by his Oriental association, the keen perception of Christian ethics which we are accustomed to expect from such a source. The reference to the literary work destroyed leaves the path of seriousness and enters the byway of comic opera.

On the subject of looting, Mr. Landor is entertaining and picturesque. He declares that they were all looters of the first water, differing only in national and individual tastes. Tommy Atkins made a bee line for something to eat. After the chickens and ducks were disposed of he turned his attention to articles of jewelry and silk gowns for his "gal" at 'ome. The Jap was artistic, discriminating and dignified in his stealing. He destroyed nothing, and took none but the best. After looking through a cabinet of beautiful china, he would carefully close it and regretfully turn away. The Americans were careless; they wanted money and nothing else. China of the most exquisite coloring and the most costly silks were of no use to the American soldier; all these were reserved for the missionaries to gather up and sell. Says the Express:

"The French were most unbusinesslike looters—showing that they have sadly degenerated since the days of the great Napoleon. The Russian smashes what he cannot carry away. He dotes on jewelry and scent; with one he ornaments and with the other drenches his clothes. A musical-box will charm his savage breast, even in the midst of the most desirable selection of portable property."

So much has been said, pro and con, on the question of general looting that The Herald cannot do better than reproduce a pen picture of a general looting seeen at the sacking of Tien Tsin from Mr. Landor's book. Having been carried with a crowd into a warehouse which had been broken open, he says:

"I stooped to see where I was putting my feet, for priceless brocades, bronze candlesticks, furs and other such things were underfoot. * * * Here a dozen arms outstretched from all sides pulled at valuable furs, such as silver fox, otter, white wolf, seal, squirrel—all lining gaudy coats of magnificent brocade or silk. Some were embroidered in gold, others in delicate silk, and were the patient work of years. I never saw such lovely furs." Really, before we judge the looter we must remember the temptation! Many of the Chinamen were helping in the looting when they saw a decent chance—for it was risky work for them. Others, more peacefully inclined, were decorating their doors with such inscriptions as "I am a poor man; Allies officer, please not rob me;" "Great Japan, spare me;" "Inside belong friend England; please do not kill."

To judge the looter we must remember the temptation. This is very true, and in referring to missionary looting The Herald has suggested that they should resist temptation if they desire their example to be of any account. Light is thrown upon the action of the allies by the quotations from the expressive signs of the Chinese. Oh, this is a wonderfully gallant conquest upon which the Christian world has engaged.

OUR NORTHERN BOUNDARY.

The establishing of the boundary between two countries is a matter of vital importance. In many cases the first survey is incomplete as well as incorrect. This has been brought to public attention by the resurvey of the line between Alaska and Canada, which is now in progress. The relocating of the line a few hundred feet from its original location has brought several valuable American mines into Canadian territory and there is trouble already. It is better, however, that the line should be correctly located where it belongs, no matter what the consequences are. There was more or less trouble in locating the boundary between British Columbia on the north and Washington, Idaho and Montana on the south, the present line being established in 1846. Prior to that date the boundary was in dispute between the United States and Great Britain and the Oregon question was a burning one. Great Britain claimed as far south as 42 degrees north latitude, the northern limit of California today. The United States claimed as far north as 54 degrees 40 minutes, the present southern boundary of Alaska. The slogan of the day was "Fifty-four or fight." But there was no fight and no fifty-four forty. A treaty was arranged by which the disputed tract was divided along the forty-ninth parallel from the summit of the Rocky mountains to the middle of the channel between Vancouver island and the continent and thence southward along the main channel and Juan de Fuca strait to the Pacific. The treaty was ratified and exchanged, Aug. 5, 1846. Almost exactly ten years later, on Aug. 11, 1856, congress passed an act to carry into effect the part of the treaty defining the boundary. This act provided for the appointment of a commissioner and a chief astronomer and surveyor on the part of the United States, to unite with Great Britain to survey the boundary and mark it with monuments.

In the summer of 1857 the Americans go to work, and were joined the next winter by the British commissioners. After discussing plans for determining and marking the line as far eastward as the Cascade mountains, it was concluded to be inexpedient at that time, in consequence of the great expense, consumption of time, and the impracticable nature of the country, to mark the whole boundary by cutting a track through the dense forest. It was, therefore, agreed to ascertain points on the line by the determination of astronomical points at convenient intervals on or near the boundary, and to mark such astronomical stations or points on the parallel forming the boundary by cutting a track of not less than twenty feet in width on each side for the distance of half a mile or more, according to circumstances. This arrangement was later applied to the whole line, and thus it resulted that of the entire boundary, 409 miles long—from the Rocky mountains to the coast—190 miles were cleared and marked and 220 miles were not traced out, cleared, surveyed or marked. It was not until 1866 that the final maps of the survey appeared, and it was almost 1870 before the work was brought to a close and the results deposited in the state department. The total cost of surveying and marking the line, including all expenses, was about $600,000, or $1463 per mile.

Less opposition than was expected is being met with by the postoffice department at Washington to its proposed rule excluding from the pound postage privilege those publications which offer premiums to secure subscribers. Indeed, it is said, some of the publishers of such papers are commending the plan. As one of them says, according to a Washington dispach to the New York Evening Post: "If we were on the same basis, I should feel perfectly satisfied to trust to holding my patronage by merit. I am tired of the premium business. My experience is that the subscribers who buys with a premium this year expects to be bought again next year, and with one of more value."

Much new competition is springing up in the iron and steel business for the big trust. The New York Journal of Commerce finds that since the trust took the field two months or so ago no less than $137,520,00 has been added to the capitalization of existing independent companies or invested by new iron and steel companies. This list does not include concerns like the Jones & Laughlins works at Pittsburg, which are preparing to expand their output heavily without adding to capitalization.

Several years ago the United States supreme court decided that the drummer was engaged in interstate commerce and municipalities could not make him pay local license taxes. Now it has decided that the agent who sells goods from door to door thereafter ordering the goods in bulk from another state, breaking the package himself and delivering the goods, can be compelled to take out a local license.

The "conscience fund" has been enriched by the addition of 1 cent contributed by a citizen of Toledo, Ohio. He recently purchased a lead pencil from a Canadian at Buffalo, paying the sum of 2 cents for it. He learned subsequently, "to his great humiliation,' that the Canadian had not paid the duty. This earth is no place for that man. He belongs in a better world.

Edward Moran, whose death at New York at the age of 72 has been announced, was one of three brothers born at Bolton, Lancashire, Eng., who came over the water to America in their childhood with their parents in 1844, and became noteworthy as painters, so that few names are better known in the history of American art.

The Boston Journal says the number of Americans who are purchasing, or have purchased, English estates suggests a community of interest in abbeys and castles which is likely to alarm the intensely loyal Briton far more than America's growing supremacy in manufactures.

Mrs. Carrie Rand-Herron has been interviewed, and her chief argument is that when a woman wants a man she has a right to get him by any method. She may change her mind if some other woman decides she wants George.

It remained for Gen. Grosvenor to discover that Washington refused a nomination for a third term because he feared he could not be elected. Grosvenor is a wonderful man.

Dr. Depew denies that he is about to try a second matrimonial term, but he does not say that he would refuse to consider the idea.

Perhaps the Hague arbitration tribunal might settle the trouble between the Salvationists and the Volunteers.

Probably that third-term talk was one of Uncle Chauncey's jokes.

The tariff rake-off follows the flag.

How Prejudice Works.

Wadena Tribune: The Aitkin Age, in speaking of Senator Towne's removal to New York, frankly admits that Mr. Towne is a brainy man, conscientious in his purpose and withal a credit to his state. This frank admission by the Age is surprising, for since Senator Towne left the Republican party, that paper has published not one word in commendation of him. Now that Mr. Towne has left the state, the Age feels that it can safely voice its honest convictions regarding the Duluth statesman. It is evident that the Age's prejudice has outweighed its generosity. Evidently it has all along held a proper estimate of Mr. Towne, but has not had the magnanimity to voice its honest convictions regarding him, doubtless fearing to influence a vote in his direction. The Age is one of the Republican papers in this district which would not even admit that Towne was a great orator, although it was patent to the entire nation that he stood without a peer in this regard. Truly political prejudice is a vicious and a dangerous thing.

Within the Reach of All.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Among other things that liquid air is good for is mosquitoes. Every one should remember this next summer. Liquid air only costs $8 an ounce. Apply one ounce to each mosquito.

Freedom From Red Tape.

Buffalo Express: An Idaho ranchman killed a horsethief, and the authorities decided that nothing more was necessary than to bury the thief. The War department reformers in Great Britain would do well to study this refreshing freedom from red tape.

The Nation's Generosity.

The New York Tribune: More than 40,000 names have been added to the pension rolls of the United States within eleven months. No other country ever conceived it possible that any nation should display so magnificent and almost illimitable generosity to its veteran defenders.

Great Value of Water Power.

New York World: Niagara is literally the power that runs Buffalo by day and rules it by night. And the wonder of wonders for exposition visitors to think about is that there is energy left untapped in those mighty falls equal to the latent power in 200,000 tons of coal per day.

Work For Railroad Thinkers.

Detroit Free Press: Only the most optimistic have any hope of doing away entirely with railroad collisions, but there are special reasons of trusting that a way to avoid the explosion of cars loaded with dynamite through the mistake of having two trains trying to occupy the same space at the same time will be figured out.

How to End a War.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: John Bull's secretary of war is disposed to criticise the fighting Boers quite severely. He thinks the war should be ended right away if the Boers would come out into the open and give-and-take for a while. This is the war secretary's way of ending the struggle—and incidentally of ending the Boers.

Unlifts a Medical Science.

Baltimore American: A new and important antiseptic has been discovered. Certainly, as far as putting a Chinese wall around human life is concerned, science is doing a giant's work in energy and perseverence. If the human will would only meet science half way in its powers of self-control, life under twentieth century conditions might approach the health ideal.

Saw the Handwriting.

Boston Herald: In deciding not to resign his senatorship, McLaurin takes the easier way out of his proposed joint debate with Tillman. Perchance he saw the handwriting on the wall did not read particularly favorable to him.

MY FRIEND THE EDITOR

BY ROBERT HOBART DAVIS

(Copyright, 1901, by W. R. Hearst.)

In so far as George Augustus Patterson was the best commercial traveler on the Pacific coast, it was in no particular surprising that he should have been suddenly sent to Nevada to promote the interests of the Amalgamated Native Calf Shoe company. Nor was it beyond understanding why upon the occasion of his first trip he should have turned up in Carson the night of the Fourth of July—a period when the Battle Born state regards with much patriotic fervor.

For obvious reasons, it is well to state that Mr. George Augustus Patterson proceeded, on the occasion mentioned, to burn many fireworks, to exhibit himself in the only victoria in town, to purchase vast quantities of tanglefoot for any and all comers, and to hold out the welcome hand for those of the inhabitants who were willing to receive—and give thanks.

Whether or no Mr. Patterson was brought home to the Arlington hotel by Mr. Barney Brule, the constable, is not material. It is a fact, however, that he woke up there on the following day.

It was a rival drummer, of much less popularity, who awakened him.

"Gus," he yelled, busting into Mr. Patterson's room, "have you read the Carson Star this morning?"

"No, and I don't care to," snarled the roused one, rising from his pillow and blinking.

"You're missing something good, old man. Listen to this," said the visitor, unfolding the paper, with an expression of great personal satisfaction:

"WHERE WAS SHERIFF REYNOLDS LAST NIGHT?

"Are the people of our fair city to be roused from their slumbers by a pack of unruly persons just because it happened to be the Fourth of July?

"Last night the entire city was upset by a mob of merry-makers, who carried on their Bachanalian carnival far into the morning under the guidance of a San Francisco drummer, whose name up to the hour of going to press the Star was unable to secure, but it will be published later.

"We desire to ask of the county authorities—Where was Sheriff Reynolds? And we DEMAND to know."

Mr. Augustus Patterson sat up and gazed through the open window at the butcher shop across the street. He was planning a campaign.

"Are you going to stand THAT?" queried his visitor, coughing behind his hand.

"Not if I know myself," responded the popular drummer, getting up and jumping hastily into his clothes. "I'll shave myself, put on my frock and silk hat, and go down to the Star office—and—"

"And what?"

"Kill the editor like a gentleman," responded Mr. Patterson, rubbing his overnight growth of beard.

"Oh, I wouldn't do that, Gus. The town wouldn't stand for it," ventured the bringer of the news.

"What do you suppose I care for the TOWN after I get such a deal as this in a country paper? Why, I wouldn't let it get back to 'Frisco that I permitted this to go unanswered for a Hale & Norcross dividend. What's more, if my California customers thought I hadn't the sand to live up to the traditions of Nevada and talk back I'd lose the whole crowd. Mr. Patterson shook the paper out at arm's length and stuck to his view. "No, sir. I'm going to KILL him."

He shaved rapidly, donned his best bib and tucker, took a nice, bright, unused Smith & Wesson gun from his grip, slipped it into his hip-pocket, and str - stairs, followed by his friend.

"You can tell the boys," he said to his companion, with a tremor in his voice, "if anything happens, that I called the bluff and made good. Never mind giving me any advice. It's a show down, and I'm there to deliver the goods."

Mr. Patterson turned down the main street, inquired the way to the Star office of a teamster whom he met in front of the postoffice, and presently found himself with his foot on the threshold.

"Hello, mister," piped the shrill voice of the printer's devil, who sat with his feet spread out on the exchange table. "Who'st you want to see?" Mr. Patterson, keen for the work ahead of him, decided to be cool.

"I want to know if the Star is published here?" he inquired.

"Yep," replied the kid.

"Do you know who wrote that article?" placing his finger on the particular story that had roused him.

"I guess the editor done it. What's the matter of it?" inquired the kid, proceeding to shear bits of paper in a tantalizing way.

Mr. Patterson remained perfectly placid.

"Is the editor in?"

"Yep."

"Can the person be seen?"

"What'chu want to see the editor about—advertisin'?"

"No—purely a personal matter. Here's my card."

The boy shuffled his feet off the desk, reached out a dirty, ink-begrimed fist, took the pasteboard and started for a back room. Mr. George Augustus Patterson heard the rustle of papers in the rear of the building.

Mechanically he dove for his gun. "If these Nevada editors are as lively on the draw as I hear they are, I guess it's good business for me to get my shooting iron unlimbered," he thought to himself; and acting upon his wisdom placed the weapon behind him in his strong right hand. He fully decided to shoot the instant his adversary showed the slightest inclination to open hostilities. He was filled with resentment and a thirst for trouble.

He heard footsteps approaching from the rear room, but remained perfectly calm.

In a moment a trim, fresh-faced young woman appeared in the doorway. "Good morning, sir. What can I do for you? Won't you be seated?" She was positively glad to see Mr. Patterson.

"Ah! Good morning, madam. Is the editor—"

"I am the editor."

With a graceful swing of his disengaged arm the drummer man doffed his silk hat and bowed low, dropping his bright, new Smith & Wesson into his frock coat with a dull thud.

"Well, the fact is, madam," he began, taking a seat and smoothing out the offensive copy of the Star which he had crushed in his wrath, "I came to thank you for this little newspaper mention here, and to say that I am greatly obliged to you for so clearly presenting the facts in your clever, up-to-date journal."

The editor looked at him inquiringly.

"You see," he continued, gathering courage, "the person referred to is a friend of mine, and I have come down on his behalf to apologize to you. Truth is, he DID get a little excited over the magnificence of the occasion, and deeply regrets his delinquencies. I'm sure Sheriff Reynolds is not to blame, and I herewith offer my friend's most humble regrets. It is his first offense."

"Well, since you have been so gentle about it, Mr.—"

"Mr. George Augustus Patterson, at your service, madam," added the genial one, with another superior bow.

"Then I see nothing to do but dismiss it, and to hope for his later appreciation for a quiescent life."

"How much is the Star per annum?" said Mr. Patterson, going down for his pocketbook, "I desire to do myself the honor of subscribing."

"Eight dollars a year."

"Permit me to hand you the same. And what are your advertising rates?"

"One dollar a line per week."

"I shall send you the Amalgamated Native Calf company's shoe advertising six months on trial. Twenty lines. It is a pleasure to give you a check for three months in advance. Can we hope for a reading notice occasionally?"

"I shall be pleased to extend that courtesy to you," replied the editor, gathering in the crisp check for $240.

"Good afternoon, madam. I trust we will always be amicable in our business relations. Good day."

Mr. Patterson recovered his silk hat from the exchange table, bowed again and walked out of the Star office, with his bright, new Smith & Wesson hitting against his legs as his frock coat swung to and fro.

Two months afterward Mr. George Augustus Patterson, the best drummer on the Pacific coast, and the editor of the Star were wedded in St. Peter's church, up by the public school house, and the same Bacchanalian mob that had made the Fourth of July hideous so short a time before was on hand to repeat the performance.

But the editor of the Star printed no "item" in disparagement of the gentleman who inspired the racket.

ROBERT HOBART DAVIS.

BE FRANK WITH CUBA.

Buffalo Express (Rep.): If the government at Washington is not satisfied with the Cubans' version of Secretary Root's explanation of the Platt resolutions, why should not the government offer a clear explanation of its own? The principal objections of the Cubans to the resolutions are their belief that the declarations convey an admission of their inability to govern themselves and their fear that the United States is seeking a pretext for annexing their country. Both these constructions of the purpose of the resolutions are warranted by the form in which they now stand. But United States officials deny any such intention. Then why not put the denial in such an official form that the Cubans can add it to the resolutions, as they supposed they were doing when they appended the Root explanation? That would relieve the United States of the charge of double-dealing and would satisfy the Cubans. The danger of insurrection against our authority would be averted.

Insistance on the acceptance of the resolutions as they now stand, without explanations, is neither required by the law nor by common sense. It is unworthy of the United States to adopt a shirt-sleeve policy in its dealings with unfortunate Cuba. If the purpose of the government is what government spokesmen allege, let it make a frank and honest statement of the objects it wishes to attain through the Platt resolutions and save the Cubans from humiliation by permitting them to attach it to the resolutions. Persistence in the present method of treating the matter only tends to strengthen the impression that the real objects of the United States government are not what they are alleged to be.

Philanthropy That Pays.

New York Evening Post: Perhaps the truest philanthropy after all is the kind that pays the philanthropist a reasonable profit. The Mills hotels would not be a whit more useful if by some elaborate system of rebates they distributed to their patrons the annual dividend which now goes to their stockholders, while if they offered free lodging to all comers they would quickly become a demoralizing influence in the city. Generally speaking, the most valuable contribution to social betterment is not that of money, but that of skill and personal attention. To open a free lodging house requires nothing more than the brute force of money; to start a paying system of model tenements requires infinite caretaking and skill. It is for this that the beneficiary is indebted and it is for this that his rent cannot pay. It is a mutually advantageous relation, permitting on the one hand no assumption of condescension and involving on the other no loss of self-respect.

A Dream of Young Summer.

O haunter of budding forest-side,
O mirrored pleasure of the happy stream
When into silent shade its ripples glide,
Who are thou, sovereign Dream within a dream?
Thy wings with many a prism-lighted gleam
Are overshot, and from a magic reed
Thou drawest forth those melodies supreme
That with unnamed delight the spirit feed.—
Who are thou, Vanisher; and whither wilt thou lead?

So fugitive, so sweet,—heart-breaker thou!
But yet not thee, thy beckoning Fate, I chide.
The blossom-wind from aff the orchard bough
Hath blown the flaky petals far and wide;
Born, winged as thou art, upon the tide
Of never-staying hours, borne singing too,
Thou fadest from the stream and forest-side,
Leaving a tearful splendor of the dew—

Kindness For Brother Officers.

Buffalo Express: The naval officer at Manila who thought it noble to solicit money from contractors in order to make good the alleged shortage of a brother officer has been dismissed from the service. The kind of friendship which he illustrated is a little too dangerous to be tolerated in the service of the United States.

GOOD ENOUGH TO LAST.

Philadelphia Times: In every season of prosperity there are skeptics and croakers. If the sun shines there is going to be rain after a bit. If the clouds break it is only for a little while. In brightness or in shadow gloom is always lurking. The upset in Wall street brought out the whole army of the "I-told-you-so's" and calamity prophets and they are still at it.

But speculation is not the business of the country and more than the steel game in the county fair. In spite of Wall street the prosperity continued. The very reason that it did not make a deeper impression was that the great mass of the people were too busy to bother about it. Most of them read it in the newspapers and then forgot it with the rest of the news.

If any one wants to predict he had better steer clear of the best fact on which to base successful prophecy and that is the condition of the steel market. Men do not give great orders for this kind of building material unless the way is clear for prosperity and profit. What is their testimony? "The consuming interests are still crowding production." What do the figures say? "Since October 1, 1900," said the financial dispatch to yesterday's Philadelphia Times, "orders for 2,500,000 tons of steel rails have been received by American manufacturers, a quantity which much more than breaks the record and will alone afford occupation to the mills engaged in this branch of the business until the end of the year."

Indeed this country just now is the poorest place in the whole world for the croaker. If he cannot get satisfaction in the East he might go West. Out there, so we are told, the farmers are lassoing every idle man that comes along in the hope of paying him topnotch wages and getting help for his crops.

A BUNCH OF SMILES.

Truth: Easyman—Your brother Dick did me out of $10 last night.

Wiss Wearie—That's just like Dick. He is always doing some ridiculuos thing.

"Diplomacy," answered the man of experience, "is the art of conducting a quarrel without becoming visibly angry."

Washington Star: "Don't you consider him a particular luminous quantity in politics?"

"Luminous," echoed Senator Sorghum. "I should say so. He has money to burn."

Detroit Free Press: "What did the lawyer say when you explained your case to him?" asked Mrs. Baxter.

"He said it was fees-ible," replied Mr. Baxter.

Baltimore World: Reporter No. 1—I hear you were fired?

Reporter No. 2—Yes, but it was my own fault. In writing up the accident I forgot to state what might have happened had the disaster occurred an hour earlier.

Somerville Journal: Harry—I understand that you called on Miss Bullion last evening. How did old Bullion receive you?

Ned—Very pleasantly, indeed. I wonder if the old man is going to fail.

Philadelphia Press: McJigger—There is a rumor that China is secretly raising another army by conscription.

Thingumbob—Ah! I suppose the open door is responsible for this draught.

Chicago Record-Herald: Dramatist— I am trying to think up a good take-off on the filth and dirt of this town. Give me an idea.

Practical Friend—Ever try soap?

Leslie's Weekly: "Now, don't tell me any story about misfortune an' wantin' to be a hard worker, 'n' all that," said the hard-faced lady. "I can see right through you."

"Gee!" said Dismal Dawson, "I know I ain't had nothin' to eat for three days, but I didn't know it had thinned me down like that."

AMERICANIZED.

I love my transatlantic brother well,
I hate his foes infernally;
With conscious pride I feel my bosom swell
When he greets me fraternally.
Yet might it not, I sometimes ask, befall
That his loved presence might begin to pall?

His kodak on my privacy intrudes,
His beef fills to satiety,
His canned goods crowd what late were solitudes,
His heiresses society.
'Tis his—one drop of sweet in bitter cup—
'Tis his alarm wakes my servants up.

His oil my lamp, his corn my belly fills,
He builds me my machinery,
And boards that tell the praises of his pills
Adorn my native scenery;
While in the tube—so Yankeefied we are—
I ride perforce in his triumphal car.

He wins our races, teaches us to ride—
'Tis true, I'm very sure it is—
Our markets find all stocks are dull beside
His versatile securities;
And near at hand, I hear, the period is
When all our ships and shipyards shall be his.

He fills my cosmos, and I can but see,
As every Tom and Jerry can,
Soon I, my kin, race, clime and land may be Essentially American,
And I may own, of comfort quite bereft,
That there is nothing really English left.

—London Chronicle.

On the Other Hand.

Kansas City Journal: If it had been Gen. Fred Dent Grant who captured Aguinaldo, why, then, of course, it would have been quite a different matter. The feat would not only have ended the Filipino war, but it would have made Appomattox look a little pale.

Touched the Usual Spot.

Washington Post: After depositing a proper number of drinks beneath their belts those London banqueters fell upon each other's necks and effected a very touching Anglo-Saxon alliance.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press. It is a curious thing that a woman can be so much like a cat and yet like to move.

Probably Eve turned up her nose at Adam till the Lord told her she could have him.

There never was a woman who didn't argue that a mole was a beauty spot if she had any.

What becomes of all the second wives in heaven is as great a mystery as how thin people can have fat children.

If men and women could keep the souls they had as little children there would be no little children in the world with the souls of men and women.

FOUR IN THE FIELD

Roosevelt, Odell, Fairbanks and Spooner In Presidential Race.

Indiana Senator Favored By McKinley and Hanna.

Export Trade Diverted From New York to Southern Ports.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The race for the Republican nomination for the presidency in 1904 is still between Vice President Roosevelt, Governor Odell, Senator Fairbanks and Senator Spooner. It is still believed that the administration, backed as it will be by Senator Hanna, will favor in every possible way the selection of Senator Fairbanks to head the Republican ticket in 1904. It is questioned, however, whether the administration's support will be favorable to any candidate it may decide upon. There are two men who are disposed to "cut out" anything favorable that may possibly be secured from the present administration. The two men referred to are Vice President Roosevelt and Governor Odell, of New York. If either of these gentlemen can capture the nomination for the presidency in the next national campaign, it is certain that it will be without the advice and consent of President McKinley or Senator Hanna.

There will be a heated contest between the New York candidates to secure the seventy-two delegates from that state. At the present writing it is believed by New York politicians that Mr. Roosevelt is stronger in the Empire state than is Governor Odell. In many respects Col. Roosevelt is more popular with the voters of the country than is Governor Odell, but the latter, it must be conceded, is, next to Senator Platt, the shrewdest politician in this great state. If Senator Platt is physically and mentally able to control the Republican state convention, which will elect delegates to the national convention in 1904, he will neither support Roosevelt nor Odell. This makes it evident to everybody that Platt (if he controls the New York Republican machine) will prevent the nomination of a candidate from New York.

Unless Senator Quay, of Pennsylvania joins with Platt, as he has done in the past to prevent the success of many presidential candidates, it would seem to shrewd political observers in Washington and elsewhere that either Fairbanks, of Indiana, Spooner, of Wisconsin, or Foraker, of Ohio, will lead the Republican hosts to victory or defeat in 1904.

* * *

The growing disposition of our exporters to distribute through the ports south of New York a part of the export trade which formerly passed through that great city is illustrated by a study of the treasury department figures showing the exports through the various ports of the United States in the fiscal year 1900. During that year and the months which have followed New Orleans has taken second rank as an exporting port and has displaced Boston in its position as the second exporting city of the country. The very heavy exportations of cotton and the high price at which is exported has largely increased the value of the exports through the Southern ports, while it is not improbable that the Galveston disaster may have resulted in temporarily diverting to New Orleans some of the business which otherwise would have gone through Galveston. The exports from New Orleans in the fiscal year 1900 were $115,858,764, the highest figures in the history of the port, except 1892, and an increase of $28,000,000 over the fiscal year 1899. During the nine months of the fiscal year 1901 the exports from New Orleans were $122,234,669, securing for that city a clear and undisputed title to the rank of second in the list of American export cities, the figures for Boston, which formerly held second place, being for the nine months $81,173,051, or over $40,000,000 less than those of New Orleans.

A study of the percentage which each of the principal ports handled of the commerce of the country in 1900 compared with preceding years, develops some interesting facts. Beginning with the port of New York, it is found that it handled only 47.03 per cent of the foreign commerce of the country, against 52.5 per cent in 1890, 51.4 per cent in 1896, and 48 per cent in 1897. The loss is principally in exportations, which in 1900 were but 37.21 per cent of the total exportations of the country, as against 41.3 in 1894, while the importations in 1900 were 63.2 per cent of total imports of the country, as against 63.4 per cent in 1894.

Boston did not make a satisfactory record either in its imports or exports during the fiscal year 1900, and the nine months' figures for the present fiscal year already received show a shrinkage of nearly $5,000,000 in its commerce as compared with the preceding year. Its imports were only 8½ per cent of the total imports of the country, as against 11.8 per cent in 1897, 10.1 per cent in 1896, and 8.4 per cent in 1893. Its exports in 1900 were only 8 per cent of the total, as against 10.8 per cent in 1896, 10.5 per cent in 1895, and 10.8 in 1893. Taking the total imports and exports of the country, Boston had in 1900 but 8.2 per cent of the total, as against 10.5 per cent in 1896 and 9.6 per cent in 1893.

Philadelphia's per centage of the total foreign commerce of the country has remained almost stationary in the last four years, having been 5.25 per cent in 1897, 5.31 per cent in 1899, and 5.80 per cent in 1900. In imports there has been a slight loss and in exports a corresponding gain. Its imports were 6.1 per cent of the total imports into the country, while in 1897 they were 6.3 per cent and in 1894 8.3 per cent. Its exports in 1900 formed 5.62 per cent of the total exports of the country, as against 4.5 per cent in 1897 and 5.6 per cent in 1892.

Baltimore has gained both in imports and exports. Its percentage of the total imports and exports of the country was in 1900 3.88 per cent, in 1897 3.15 per cent, and in 1895 7.6 per cent. Its importations in 1900 were 2.24 per cent of the total imports into the country, as against 1.4 per cent in 1897 and 1.6 per cent in 1895. Its share of the total foreign commerce of the country in 1900 was 6 per cent, as against 5.35 per cent in 1897 and 4.8 per cent in 1895.

Newport News shows a rapid growth in its export trade, which in 1900 represented 2.5 per cent of the total exports of the country, as against 2.1 per cent in 1897, and less than 1 per cent in 1893. Its imports have also increased materially, being in 1900 more than eight times those of 1894, but forming, however, less than 1 per cent of the total imports into the country.

The gulf ports increased their exportations materially, especially in cotton, wheat and flour, Galveston increased her exports over those of last year about $7,000,000, and New Orleans increased hers about $28,000,000. New Orleans also materially increased her imports, which in 1900 were $5,500,000 greater than in 1899.

The Baltimore Sun recently had a local story of interest to the people of the entire country. It was in reference to the dedication of a monument erected in Baltimore to Mrs. Dudley T. Johnson, wife of Gen. Bradley T. Johnson. The occasion was the annual confederate memorial exercises in the confederate lot at Loudon Park cemetery. The day was also the anniversary of the battle of Harrisonburg, where soldiers of the Maryland Line distinguished themselves.

Mrs. Johnson's grave and the monument which now marks the spot were profusely decorated, red roses predominating. Over 2,000 people gathered to assist at the exercises. The members of the Maryland Line, including about 80 veterans from the Soldiers' Home at Pikesville, formed a line at the main entrance of the cemetery and marched to the lot, headed by the Fifth Regiment Veterans' Corps band, under the leadership of W. H. Pindell. Friends of the dead and members of the Daughters of the Confederacy had previously strewn flowers over all the graves.

Capt. G. W. Booth presided at the exercises and read an appreciative sketch of Mrs. Johnson's life. "While the cause of our dear comrades failed in the purpose for which they and we gave our best efforts and prayers," said Capt. Booth, "yet the memories of their valiant struggle, the gallantry and undaunted courage with which they asserted their manhood, the fortitude with which they endured privation and suffering, sanctify and illumine a principle which we then believed, and in the light of after years of experience still believe to have been the noblest for which man could dedicate his efforts, and, if need be, surrender his life. From these silent graves comes in terms most eloquent the appeal to the young men of our country to revere and cherish its fundamental laws, to respect its institutions as a refuge for the oppressed and its mission as a protector against the oppressor.

"But these fallen heroes are not alone in their claim to our affection. The women of the South, whose tender care was lavished upon the sick and wounded, who with Spartan courage bade their sons, husbands and lovers go forth to battle while they uncomplainingly assumed the stern duty of providing for the household, who unflinchingly preserved their fortitude under all conditions of adversity and trial, and even when their loved ones had fallen abated not a jot in their steadfastness and loyalty, but whose every word and deed gave emphasis to the sentiment, 'Better an honored grave than a dishonored life'—to these daughters of our fair southland we yield our grateful homage.

"To one of these we this day rear in enduring granite a mark of our loving remembrance and place on record our appreciation of her eminent virtues and inestimable services."

Referring to Mrs. Johnson's services to the men of the Maryland Line, especially that act of hers by which she secured arms and clothing for them from North Carolina, and quoting the historian, Scharf, Capt. Booth said: "In this trying exigency Mrs. Bradley T. Johnson volunteered to go through the country to North Carolina, her native state, and their appeal to her countrymen for assistance. She, as the daughter of Hon. R. M. Saunders, of that state, formerly minister to Spain, was amply qualified by graces of person and mind and the force of the will to accomplish an enterprise which required the daring and gallantry of a man with the persuasive power and perseverance of a woman."

Capt. Booth then told of the many noble and heroic acts of Mrs. Johnson during the war, following her husband in all the camps and nursing the sick and wounded. Returning to Maryland in 1879, Mrs. Johnson at once took a prominent part in works of benevolence and charity. She became president of the Hospital for the Women of Maryland, and was efficient in the establishment of that institution on a firm and prosperous basis. Her work in the establishment of the Soldiers' Home at Pikesville was great, and Capt. Booth fittingly called it "Mrs. Johnson's Monument." In concluding his sketch Capt. Booth said: "But she left a larger, wider, more imperishable monument in the memory of her heroism, her dauntless courage, of her great heart, cherished all over the states of the confederacy."

PROTEST DENIED.

Gilman Case May Be Taken to Circuit Court.

New York, June 13.—In the supreme court today Justice Gildersleeve denied the protest of counsel for Edward L. Norton, the administration of the estate here of the late George F. Gilman, the millionaire tea merchant, who died in Connecticut, against the removal of the suit brought by Norton against Theophilus Gilman, the other administrator of the estate, and George H. Hartford, the manager of Gilman's tea business, from the supreme court of this state to the United States circuit court. Justice Gildersleeve ruled that any motion to have the case tried in the state courts could be made to the circuit court of the United States.

The action was brought to restrain Hartford, who was Gilman's manager, from interfering with the conduct of the tea business, over which Norton claims that he, as administrator, should have control.

EXCHANGE EXHIBITS.

Arrangements For New York and Kensington Museums.

London, June 13.—It is announced, that as a result of efforts of Morris K. Jessup, president of the New York chamber of commerce, an arrangement has been reached by which the New York museum of natural history and the South Kensington museum will exchange exhibits. The latter, at Mr. Jessup's request, is sending to New York a batch of specimens and photographs, dealing with items in the British collection not possessed by America. Mr. Jessup has promised to send some rare specimens here.

Secretary Fagan greatly appreciates the arrangement, by which the two museums are made increasingly comprehensive and able to help each other.

A WRECK?

Indications of Disaster Found In St. Mary's Bay.

St. Johns, N. F., June 13.—The customs collector at Trepassey, fifteen miles west of Cape Race, telegraphs to the department at St. Johns today that a fishing schooner has arrived at Trepassey with forty-eight spruce deals on board. She reports that St. Mary's bay is full of the same kind of planks. It is believed this indicates that some steamer from the St. Lawrence has stranded and had been forced to jettison her deck load in order to refloat or that possibly the vessel may have foundered.

SYNOD ORGANIZED.

Reformed Presbyterians Prepare For Business.

Cincinnati, June 13.—The general synod of the Reformed Presbyterian church organized today as follows: Moderator, Rev. George W. Brownell, D. D., of West Middlesex, Pa.; stated clerk, Rev. J. Y. Boyce, of Philadelphia; associate clerk, Rev. J. H. Kendall, Tarentum, Pa.

After the new officers were installed Dr. David McKinney announced that Cedarville colege had conferred the degree of doctor of divinity on Rev. J. L. Chestnut, the retiring moderator. Reports of standing committees were then submitted. Discussion of the report on foreign missions occupied the balance of the morning session.

The Women's Missionary union of the Reformed Prebyterian church also began its session today. Miss Jennie White, of Colterville, Ill., presided.

INCORPORATED.

The Rockefeller Institute For Medical Research.

Albany, N. Y., June 13.—The Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research of New York city, today filed with the secretary of state a certificate of incorporation. The institute will conduct medical research with special reference to the prevention and treatment of disease. The directors are: William H. Welch, of Baltimore; T. Mitchell Prudden, C. A. Hertes, L. Emmet Holt and Herman W. Biggs, of New York city; Simon Flexner, of Philadelphia and Theobold Smith, of Boston.

NO TRUTH IN REPORT.

London, June 13.—George Hamilton, the Indian secretary, answering a question in the house of commons today, said Gen. Gaselee had cabled that there was no foundation for the report (circulated in the United States by a news agency) that seven men had been killed or wounded in fighting between British and Indian troops and French soldiers at Tien Tsin June 5.

SOLDIERS' PAY DAY.

Drunkenness and Serious Quarrel at Fort Sheridan.

Chicago, June 13.—Highwood was "wide open" Tuesday, for it was pay day at Fort Sheridan, and over $10,000 was distributed among the soldiers there. The saloons were quiet for the most part, but the soldiers were belligerent in their drunkenness, gambling was free and stakes high. The influx of people to Fort Sheridan park induced Col. Van Horne, at the request of the management, to place three guards within the gates, armed with loaded guns. The net results of the day were two fights, one apt to result seriously, and one injury from excessive drinking.

At mess at 6 p. m., Herman Love, of Chicago, a recruit in Company D, of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, quarrelled with a private sitting opposite him. Both were intoxicated. Love wanted to fight, and, angered by the refusal of his fellow-soldier, he seized a large knife and hurled it at him.

The knife missed the man aimed at and gashed the one next him in the neck. The wound was deep and the man was taken to the hospital unconscious. Love was arrested and taken to the guard house, where he awaits a general court-martial, which will be presided over by Gen. Otis, commander of the department of the lakes.

AN OHIO SENSATION.

Andrew D. White's Daughter Applies For a Divorce.

Sandusky, Ohio, June 13.—A sensation has been sprung here in which two society people figure prominently. Clara B. Newberry filed suit against Spencer B. Newberry and others praying for alimony and an injunction. Mrs. Newberry is a daughter of Andrew D. White, United States ambassador to Germany, and former president of Cornell university.

Professor and Mrs. Newberry have been residents of this city for a number of years. They are wealthy and also prominent not only in Sandusky, but other cities. Professor Newberry was formerly professor of chemistry at Cornell university, Ithica, N. Y., and is now one of the largest stockholders and manager of the Sandusky Portland Cement company. It is understood that for some time the domestic relations of Mr. and Mrs. Newberry have not been pleasant and the petition filed in the courts is somewhat sensational. The petition was immediately withdrawn from the files and locked up.

Information from a perfectly reliable source, however, is that Professor Newberry is charged with adultery with several women on different occasions. The women are mentioned in the petition. Mr. and Mrs. Newberry have two children, both sons. The elder, Andrew, is now in Berlin with his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew D. White. Mrs. Newberry returned home Monday night and something then occurred which induced her to file the petition. She had been contemplating it for some time. Judge Reed allowed a temporary injunction restraining Newberry from drawing his salary or any money in banks and from interfering with the children.

Slow Healing Sores

With rich, pure, strong blood one is never troubled with sores or ulcers. A cut or any injury to the flesh heals in a few days, nature supplying the healing balm in the form of healthy, new blood; but when the circulation is tainted with poisonous germs, humors or any effete matter, a slight scratch or abrasion of the skin becomes a festering sore, tiny pimples grow to be boils, swollen joints and inflamed glands often break out into offensive, slow healing sores. A polluted blood is always a menace to health; not only does it keep the skin in a chronic state of inflammation, but every organ and fibre of the body suffers from an impure and sluggish circulation. You never feel well, you are not and never can be well until the system is relieved of its terrible load of impurities. With the blood so contaminated, so deeply poisoned, ulcers, boils and sores of every kind are apt to become chronic and often develop into Cancer.

Sores and ulcers are most often caused by poverty of the blood and a weak and slow circulation, brought on by long continued sickness, malarial poisoning, torpid liver, the use of mercury, or whatever is calculated to destroy the vitality of the blood and break down the constitution. These old chronic sores last sometimes for years, eating into the flesh, muscles, tissues, and even down into the bones, and are such a tax upon the system that it is hard for the patient to recuperate, and a simple malady often proves fatal.

I became afflicted with a severe sore leg and from the knee to the foot was one solid sore, which was very offensive. I spent over $1,000 on two trips to Hot Springs, and local physicians treated me to no purpose. I had about decided to have my leg amputated, when a friend induced me to try S. S. S. I began to take your medicine, and in the short space of seven months it has completely and thoroughly cured me. My leg is a witness today as to what S. S. S. will do when taken regularly. The sore has healed entirely and my health has improved wonderfully. I have already gained 20 pounds.

THE DAKOTAS

The Chamberlain County Court House Was Destroyed By Fire.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Chamberlain—Early Thursday morning the Brule county court house was completely destroyed by fire. The records of the various offices are all in the vaults and are presumed to be secure. Circuit court, now in session, opened this morning in the opera house in order to complete the pending business. The loss is probably $5000 on the building and the county will lose several thousand dollars on furniture and stationery. There is only $1000 insurance on the building, which was leased by the county. Origin of the fire is unknown.

Pierre—The artesian well sunk for water and gas on the Waddleigh ranch, twelve miles north of this city, was completed when a strong flow was secured. The estimated flow of water is 200 gallons per minute, and the flow of gas 10,000 feet per day. The well is only two inches at the bottom, and was sunk in a little over two weeks. The water and gas will be utilized on the ranch, the former for both irrigation puposes and to water stock, and the gas to heat and light the ranch buildings.

Aberdeen—H. Ellerman, of Yankton, appointed collector of internal revenue for the new district of the Dakotas, announces that his chief clerk will be T. H. Faus, of Ludden, N. D., and his cashier, P. D. Farrer, of Wahpeton, N. D. Special Agent Garner, of the treasury department, is here preparing for opening the collector's office in this city, which will be ready for business about June 25, in time to issue the government liquor licenses for the year beginning July 1.

Rapid City—The Fremont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley Railway company has its surveyors at work laying out a line for a spur of track, which will connect the main track with the new smelter that the National Mining company proposes to put in here. There is now not much doubt that this company will erect its 500-ton plant in this city instead of Deadwood. It is to be the most complete smelting works in the West and the machinery has all been ordered. The ore will be brought down from the northern hills over the Elkhorn.

Deadwood—The Homestake company, through T. J. Grier, has withdrawn from the electric railway project in Lawrence county, which leaves the field clear for the Golden Reward people, through N. E. Franklin, of this city, and Frank R. Greene, of Chicago. Theodore Gesky, of Lead, who represented a Kansas City company, has left and his proposition will consequently not be considered. The city councils of Deadwood, Lead and Spearfish and the county commissioners will now take the Golden Reward franchise up and settle it. The company proposes to build an electric road between the belt towns—Spearfish, Galena, Whitewood and other places.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The Catholic Order of Foresters completed the work of organizing a separate jurisdiction of North Dakota and Manitoba and adjourned. The new jurisdiction starts out under favorable auspices with a large and enthusiastic membership.

No branch of business has been boomed more than farm machinery since the rains of last week. The different general agencies in Fargo have put on extra forces and the trade is being worked harder than was ever known. Barring some calamity there is nothing to prevent a bountiful crop and the farmers are feeling like making liberal investments in articles needed to harvest and thresh their grain.

The agricultural college board let the contract for the new wing of the science hall. Stewart Wilson will build it for $19,491. Harrington secured the heating contract and the Fargo Plumbing company the other work. The entire job will cost about $25,000. The work on the new barns is progressing favorably and will be completed in time to store the grain this summer.

Fort Yates—A movement is on foot to organize a company of militia among the Indians. The Indian mounted police are a fine body of men, alert, fearless, and always ready to obey orders. Governor White is heartily in favor of the idea, and no doubt the company will soon be organized, as the Indians are enthusiastic over it.

Church's Ferry—A bug has made its appearance in the flax fields, destroying large acreages. Some farmers are already commencing to replow and seed over. A report comes in of one field of 200 acres being destroyed.

IN MICHIGAN.

Life Saving Crew Moved to Quarters at the Lake.

Houghton—The crew of the life-saving station is now located in new quarters in the old Schmidt saloon building right at the mouth of the canal, or rather about four hundred feet from the lake and canal. Superintendent Klah, of the Eleventh district, has placed the men there, considering the old station too far inland. A site has been selected at the mouth of the canal for the proposed new station and the government will build there after July 1. Mr. Klah is still out there.

Dennis Lowney, a miner, aged 23, was killed in No. 7 shaft of Quincy mine at the fifty-second level, 5,200 feet under ground, at about 12 o'clock Wednesday night. He was engaged in drilling a hole in the rock when the ground gave way. A large rock dropped on him.

Escanaba—George Ballard, the 16-year-old boy who mysteriously disappeared from his home in this city ten days ago, has been heard from. His parents received a letter from him dated at Chicago, where he was on board the schooner E. M. Stanton. It was a case of runaway from home, and the lad will (prebably return.

The 16-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stromb fell into a washtub filled with water, and was drowned. The accident happened during the temporary absence of Mrs. Stromb, and she found the child dead in the tub upon her return.

Sault Ste. Marie—The lock force finished pumping out the Poe lock at the Soo and the damage done by the Linn was inspected. The miter sill was split about two feet from the bottom and the top of the sill shoved out of alignment nearly a foot. The masonry on the north side of the lock wall was cracked near the top and on the south side cracked all the way down from a point about ten feet from the top. It is not thought that the damage to the gates can be repaired before next winter, although an attempt will be made to do so. Repairs on the masonry work and miter sill have already commenced and this part of the work will be finished within a week. After these repairs have been made, if it is found the damaged gates cannot be satisfactorily repaired, the intermediate gates will be used the balance of the season.

Iron Mountain—There was a wreck on the Northwestern Tuesday forenoon. Train No. 35, a local freight between Iron Mountain and Escanaba, broke through a bridge four miles west of Felch Junction on the Schlesinger branch. The bridge collapsed immediately after the engine had passed over it and nine cars plunged twenty-five feet into the Cedar river. Fortunately no one was hurt. The trainmen were either on the engine or in the caboose and only the middle cars were affected by the accident. Conductor John Crane of Menominee, was in charge of the train.

TWO KISSES

Are Valued at $1000 By a New York Janitress.

New York, June 14.—For two kisses, which Mrs. Matilda Droge says Louis Kleinschmidt forced upon her, she sued before City Judge Delehanty and a jury for $1000.

Mrs. Droge refused to divulge her age, and when the opposing lawyer asked, "Are you 50?" she pouted, and the question was not allowed.

Mr. Kleinschmidt was not so coy, and admitted he was 65. Mrs. Droge testified that the alleged osculatory salutes were delivered while she was janitress of Mr. Kleinschmidt's house, No. 1600 Avenue A.

"Twice he came to the house," Mrs. Droge testified, "and took me unawares. On one occasion I was sewing, and he came up and kissed me. The next time he hugged me so tight I screamed."

Kleinschmidt denied that he had kissed Mrs. Droge.

"Did you ever try to kiss her?" asked his lawyer.

"Never," exclaimed Kleinschmidt, throwing up his hands. "The truth of it is I called and found Mrs. Droge over the washtubs, and when I passed behind her she threw herself back into my arms. The whole thing struck me as a put-up job."

MAY SETTLE SOON.

Pekin, June 13.—Indications point to a probable definite settlement of the indemnity question at the next meeting of ministers, which is expected to take place Saturday. The ministers feel it is absolutely necessary that a strong effort should be made to terminate the affair.

PROFESSOR SAFFORD DEAD.

New York, June 13.—Professor Truman H. Safford, professor of asironomy at Williams college, died at the residence of his son in Newark, N. J., today. Professor Safford was in his 65th year and was a native of Williamstown, Mass.

MARSHAL OF WASHINGTON.

Washington, June 13.—Senator Foster saw the president today with regard to the United States marshalship of Washington. The term of the present incumbent, Marshal Ide, expires on July 1 and Charles R. Hopkins, of Spokane, is to be appointed as his successor.

PALMERS SAIL.

New York, June 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, of Chicago, sailed for France today on La Lorraine.

ELEVATOR AT LEITH

It Will Be of American Design and Construction.

Japan's Imports of Machinery From the United States.

The British Pacific Cable Between Canada and Australia.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Consul Fleming, at Edinburg, writes that although the imports of grain at Leith have for many years been a large and increasing item in the trade of this port, there has never been either a grain elevator for unloading vessels or a warehouse of considerable dimensions for the storage of grain. Cargoes are lifted by the steam windlass system, removed to wagons or cars by dock laborers, and either shipped directly from the quay to purchasers or stored in the small warehouses of individual importers. Employed by the dock commission, an English firm recently constructed a bucket elevator to be operated by hydraulic power for unloading vessels, but having no storage house in connection with it. This has not been used as yet, owing to defects, and shipping people and merchants alike speak of it as a failure.

The construction of a new elevator and warehouse combined will now be undertaken. It is a private enterprise, authorized by the dock commission, from whom a lease of the required ground has been obtained. The contract for the building and appliances has been let to Messrs. Botsford, Jenks & Company, of Port Huron, Mich. Not only will the elevator and warehouse, including the machinery be of American design and construction, but all the building materials, from the steel and timber to the nails, will be brought from the United States. The latest and best system for lifting the grain, handling it in bulk and weiging it automatically, will be used, manual labor being practically dispensed with. When working at full pressure, the elevator will discharge grain at the rate of 8,000 bushels per hour. The warehouse will have a capacity of 1,000,000 bushels. Throughout the new concern electric power is to be used. The cost of the elevator and warehouse together with appliances will be about $500,000.

In Japanese imports of machinery and locomotive and other engines, states Consul General Bellows in a late report from Yokohama, the United States is surpassed only by Great Britain, which continues to receive more than one-half the money sent out of Japan for these manufactures, while the United States received a little more than one-fourth in 1900 and a little less than that proportion in 1899. The whole amount paid by Japan for this class of manufactures in 1900 was $5,674,546, about one-fifth being for locomotive engines.

The railways of Japan are of two classes. Government lines, which, at the close of 1899, amounted to 823¾ miles, and private railways, which, at the same date included 2,806 miles. The latter are operated under government charters, which may be permanent or provisional. During 1899, permanent charters were granted for 176½ miles, and provisional charters for 261½ miles, showing a decrease in activity of construction of over 66 per cent, as compared with 1898. This falling off in building operations is probably due to the depression prevailing in trade and financial circles, and it is likely that new enterprises will be projected with the easing of the money market. It has been estimated that 7,000 miles of railroad would not suffice for the needs of the country. The following statement, summing up the latest statistics obtainable, shows the situation at the end of 1899:

	Miles.
Government double track lines	158
Government single track lines	675
Private double track lines	92
Private single track lines	2,713
Total	3,638

Besides this, there were roads not yet opened for traffic, but for which charters had been obtained, as follows:

	Miles.
Government lines	1,230
Private lines	2,483
Total	3,713

For constructing these lines the government had paid out on lines already opened for traffic $34,700,166, or an average cost of $41,670.89 per mile. The paid-up capital of the private companies amounted to $86,486,587, making an average cost of $30,833 per mile. In March, of this year, an additional seventeen miles of the government railway was opened to the public, this being the first government line in Kiusiu. The government railways are under the direct supervision of the railway works bureau and the Hokaido railway office, while the private railways are controlled by various companies under regulations prescribed by the government. There are 103 of these companies, of which 43 have roads open for traffic, 15 have not entered on practical operations, and 45 have provisional charters only.

The Japanese have taken kindly to the railway, and crowds of people enter and alight from every train coming into the principal stations. The strong feeling of caste which prevails make it necessary to furnish first, second and third class cars on every train, and the first class cars are usually subdivided into compartments, making possible a degree of privacy unknown to the ordinary traveler in America; but even the first class cars are less luxurious in their furnishings than the common cars on most of the poorer roads in the United States.

Sleeping cars have been introduced during the past year on the government line between Tokyo and Kobe, and are eagerly patronized and profitable. The charge for a berth is $2 in addition to a first class ticket. Dining cars are being constructed.

A Japanese expert, Kyoichi Murakami, who has lately traveled in the leading countries of the world to study their railroad construction and management, is reported to have said that the United States surpassed all other countries in the equipment of its roads in every respect, but he objected to American locomotives because of their greater consumption of coal. America furnishes more than two-thirds of the rails used in Japan, having surpassed in low prices and promptness of delivery both England and Germany, which formerly held this trade.

According to a recent communication from Consul A. E. Smith, at Victoria, a surveying party has located the landing of the British Pacific telegraph cable (which is to connect the Dominion of Canada with the Australian Confederation), on Kelp bay, near Banfield Creek, seven miles from the entrance to Barclay sound, and something over 100 miles from Victoria.

The location is described as admirably adapted for the purpose—a good harbor, twelve fathoms of water close to the shore, so that vessels of 10,000 tons can find safe anchorage. The harbor is lanlocked, and has a bottom of ooze that it is said will furnish good protection for the wire.

Work has already begun in England on the cable. It is to be 5834.5 miles in length, the longest yet constructed, and will be transported and laid in one ship, which is now being specially built for the purpose. The cable will run from Vancouver island to Fanning island, a distance of 3337 miles, before a landing is affected; thence to the Fiji islands, thence Norfolk island, and thence to Queensland.

The first installment of cable, including the sections from Queensland to Norfolk, Fiji and Fanning islands, is expected to leave England in January, 1902. The second and longest portion is expected to leave in August, 1902, come direct to Vancouver island, and be laid from Barclay sound to Fanning island.

According to the contract, the whole cable is to be laid and working by Jan. 1, 1903. Unforeseen disaster excepted, those engaged in the work believe this great enterprise, which will cost $10,000,000 will be completed at the date promised.

J. S. VAN ANTWERP.

SPANKED HER

And Former Choir Singer Is Seeking Divorce.

New York, June 14.—Mrs. Mary Redfern, of No. 237 Newark avenue, Jersey City, regretted in court that she did not keep on singing contralto in Grace Episcopal church, Jersey City, instead of marrying George W. Redfern, the baritone singer.

It was while attending rehearsals that they fell in love. They were married last December. In her suit for divorce today the unhappy bride of six months declared sorrowfully:

"My married life has been marked by most brutal treatment. One cold night in April my husband rolled all the clothing on the bed above him and left me shivering. When I protested he laid me across his knee and spanked me so hard that I was sick and sore for several days."

WINS THE BRIDE

And a Judgeship at the Same Time.

Charleston, W. Va., June 14.—At last it seems that the long contested fight for the judgeship of the Southern district of West Virginia is about to be settled, with a bit of romance woven into the battle. On the 19th of this month Col. Z. Taylor Vinson of Huntington is to marry one of Virginia's charming daughters at Richmond, and it is now rumored that as the couple go from the altar Col. Vinson will be handed his commission as judge, a wedding gift from Senator Elkins, a warm personal friend.

SORROWS OF WEALTH.

Motives That Impel Helen Gould to Philanthropy.

Philadelphia, June 14.—The North American's correspondent at Irvington-on-Hudson has coaxed Miss Helen Gould into giving some modest account, not of her giving, but of the motives that impel her to philanthropy.

"I think there can be nothing in the world," says Miss Gould, "calculated to give one such insight into the miseries and sorrows of others as great wealth. There is so much trouble for which the men and women who bear it regard poverty as the sole cause. That sort of sorrow naturally turns to wealth for relief. Pathetic applications for assistance from hundreds of that class every week kept this phase of wretchedness constantly before my mind. The dark side of wealth is its nearness to such misery. I regard my income broadly as a relief fund. If there's any left for my own support after the imperative demands of greater needs are supplied, I am glad.

"How much do I give annually? That would be difficult to say. Some years more than others. Always as much as I can afford; never so much as I should wish. I think that I derive most pleasure from—" then she hesitated. "When I see a soldier or a sailor I think that the finest thing in the world is to show one's gratitude to the heroes who yielded their lives for their country. It is always the work of the moment, I think, which is the favorite, but there is, perhaps, a lingering mental reservation in favor of the babies."

"But what volumes of gratitude must shower in upon you," the correspondent said, as Miss Gould closed the check book wherein she had been industriously tracing her signature.

An odd smile flitted across her features, and her secretary explained that more than 60 per cent of her beneficiaries forgot to write any acknowledgement whatever to Miss Gould's bounty.

GOT HER DIVORCE.

Carrie Weil Sibley Was Given a Decree.

New York, June 14.—Carlie Weil Sibley had a walkover when it came to the actual trial of her action for separation from Richard Clay Sibley, a promoter of whisky and other trusts, before Justice Truax in the supreme court. Her husband had resisted stoutly her efforts to get him to pay alimony, but she obtained an order for $350 a month pending the trial and $500 counsel fee. Sibley would not pay, and after ineffectually trying to reduce the allowances he departed from the state after being declared in contempt. He was not present at the trial, nor was he represented by counsel. His answer had been stricken out for his contempt.

Mrs. Sibley testified that she married Sibley when she was 18 years old on Jan. 11, 1886. He was twenty-five years older.

Mrs. Sibley testified that her husband was jealous and violent, had smashed dishes, had struck her, and once snatched a novel from her hand and told her to read Gibbon's "Decline and all of the Roman Empire."

"Did your husband ever borrow money from your grandfather, Mr. Weil?" was asked.

"He borrowed $350,000," was the answer.

VERY PROBLEMATICAL

It Is Hard to Say What Indemnity China Can Pay as No Financial Statement Is Ever Published.

San Francisco, June 14.—In speaking of the recent troubles in China, and the causes that brought about the Boxer uprising, Sir Claude MacDonald, British minister to Japan, but formerly minister to China during the siege of Pekin, said:

"I have been away from China since last October and do not know just what amount has been decided upon, but whatever the sum may be, it is quite impossible to say if China can meet the demand. Whether she be called upon to pay $150,000,000, or twice that amount, it is equally problematical if she can pay. China published no finanical budget, and one figures in the dark when it comes to computing what the government raises by taxation and import duties."

Sir Claude is of opinion that there were many causes for the Boxer uprising.

"It was not due alone to the anti-missionary feeling," he said, "and the causes were far reaching. The acquisition of territory by the powers was one of the chief causes. It inflamed the minds of the officials of China, and, as they do and feel, the masses of the people follow. The people of China are a peaceful and industrious race, and do not look for trouble, but they are dominated by the mandarins in every thought.

"In North China a drought had existed for two years before the Boxer uprising, and many people were starving and desperate. It but needed a spark to inflame their minds against the foreign missions. The missionaries have done many things to earn the ill-will of the people. They are earnest in the cause of civilization and religion, but many of them have interfered in legal and domestic affairs of the Chinese people in their districts.

"The Boxer uprising was mainly due to the absence of good officials in the province of Shansi. The notorious Yu Hsien was governor of that province, and was placed there despite the protests of the foreign ministers. Hsien was formerly governor of Shan Tung province, and his hostile attitude to foreigners was so pronounced that the entire diplomatic corps asked for his removal. The empress and her advisers placed him in charge of Shansi province, where the majority of the missionaries were located. No foreigner is allowed in the interior of China outside of the missionaries. They alone are allowed to go to the interior of China. A good official in Shansi could have stopped the Boxer uprising at the start."

INVESTIGATE.

Grand Jury Will Look After Hawaiian Home Rule Party.

Honolulu, June 7.—(Via San Francisco, June 14.)—Judge A. C. Humphreys, of the circuit court, has ordered the grand jury to investigate the acts of the Home Rule party for the purpose of ascertaining where their campaign funds came from and for what purpose they were spent. This action was taken as the result of the claim that the home rule members of the legislature partook of lunches at a well known restaurant and permitted the owner of a street car line which was after a railroad franchise, to pay for the meals.

An attempt is being made by some of the home rule members to have the governor grant a second extra session, or at least extend the present one, which is now drawing to a close. They assert that they desire to pass the loan bill, which is impossible at the present session, which was called for the purpose of passing the measure.

HUMAN LADDER

Rescued Woman From the Lake at Chicago.

Chicago, June 14.—By means of a human ladder, formed by two policemen and a cabman, Mrs. Nora Popke, 1982 North Halsted street, was saved from drowning early Wednesday morning in the lake at the foot of Waveland avenue, where she had fallen. A pair of knotted reins taken from the harness of a passing carriage were used as a life line to draw the struggling woman close to the sea wall.

Mrs. Popke had been walking along the lake front accompanied by her 10-year-old daughter Lillie and a large mastiff dog. She had been unable to sleep on account of the heat and went out for a stroll, reaching the lake at the foot of Waveland avenue at 1 o'clock. According to the story her daughter tells Mrs. Popke became dizzy watching the waves and fell forward into the water.

As the child saw her mother fall she began to scream, and Policemen Peter Berg and Herman Nehls, who were only a block away, ran to the spot. They saw the figure of the woman floating close to the wall, buoyed up by her skirts. The water was supposed to be deep and neither policeman thought he could swim well enough to justify jumping in.

At this a carriage was seen approaching. The driver, John McCall, at first thought the policemen intended to hold him up, but was reassured in a moment and helped unbuckle the reins. The three men then flung out the knotted reins and the woman grasped them and was pulled in to the sea wall.

Then the human ladder was formed and Mrs. Popke was drawn up from the water.

By another piece of rare good fortune the occupant of the carriage was a physician, Dr. Gilbert L. Fitzpatrick, 1776 Washington boulevard, and he revived the woman, and she was taken to the German-American hospital.

HANNA-JOHNSON FEUD.

Social Rivalry Between Leading Families at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 14.—The social rivalry here between Senator Hanna's family is evident again. The cruiser Cleveland, named after this city, will be launched some time this summer from the shipyards at Bath, Me. It was supposed that the mayor of the city would have the naming of the girl who was to do the christening.

Mayor Johnson received a letter from Senator Hanna in which the mayor was notified that the secretary of the navy has designated Miss Ruth Hanna to christen the cruiser, and Mr. Hanna suggested that the mayor invite his own daughter, Miss Bessie Johnson, to push the button which will release the warship from its place on the stocks. The invitation was promptly and curtly declined.

Asked why, Miss Johnson decided to reject the honor, Mayor Johnson said that she had another engagement.

GAVE UP EATING.

Family Was Living on Three Cents a Day.

Chicago, June 14.—Joseph Marobec, according to evidence submitted before Justice Sabath, tried to support himself, wife and two children on 3 cents a day, two dozen eggs a week, and a small piece of meat. Marobec was satisfied with the experiment, but his wife was not. The children cried for food, and to prevent their starving the wife caused the arrest of Marobec. He lives with his family at 721 West Eighteenth place.

His thrift has been such that he owns two farms, one in Wisconsin and one in Minnesota, worth $1200, and his desire to accumulate more land resulted, it is said, in his cutting down the supply of food.

The couple have been married six years. They lived formerly in Minnesota and came to Chicago a year ago. The prisoner wept like a child during the proceedings. He denied having starved his family, but said it took nearly all his money to pay for the land he had purchased. Justice Sabath reprimanded the prisoner severely and ordered him to pay his wife at least $5 a week.

LIABILITIES $5,000.

Berlin, June 14.—The liabilities of Louis Stern, the former United States commercial agent at Bamberg, Bavaria, who committed suicide at this place June 10 by shooting himself, amount to about $5,000.

TRACKMEN WILL STRIKE.

Montreal, June 14.—It was stated today that the grievance committee of the railroad trackmen had reached the conclusion that an agreement with the Canadian Pacific Railroad company was impossible, and that an order had been sent out for strike at 7 o'clock Monday morning. Two members of the committee have left Montreal.

ASSYRIAN BREAKS UP

Leyland Steamer Ashore at Cape Race a Total Wreck.

After Part Under Water and the Hull Broken Asunder.

The Tug Petrel Has Also Become a Total Wreck.

St. Johns, N. F., June 14.—The Leyland line steamer Assyrian, ashore off Cape Race, went to pieces during the night and this morning is a total wreck. The after part of the vessel is under water and the hull is broken asunder.

A heavy sea is raging and the cargo is being partly washed asnore and partly carried seaward. Owing to the fury of the gale and the tremnedous sea, little of the cargo has thus far been salvaged. The tug Petrel, which was forced on the rocks yesterday afternoon while engaged in attempting to assist the Assyrian, has also become a total wreck. The crews of both vessels escaped safely to the shore and are housed in the Cape Race light house.

IS HUMBLED.

Rebel General Cailles Is Now Willing to Surrender.

Manila, June 14.—Cailles, the rebel leader in Laguna province, has become more humble and now intimates his willingness to surrender a hundred guns to Gen. Sumner tomorrow at Santa Cruz and to give the remainder in three days.

Col. Bolanos, with five officers and forty-one rifles, has surrendered at Lipa, Batangas province. The recent battle with the insurgents at Lipa, in which Lieut. Springer was killed and Capt. Wilhelm and Lieut. Lee were mortally wounded, was begun by the Americans. The disproportionate number of officers hit is said to be chargeable to the fact that there were several deserters from the American army with the rebels.

MAY FISH.

Cleveland to Be Invited to Catch a Few Trout.

New York, June 14.—A special to the Journal and Advertiser from Wilsted says: "Former President Grover Cleveland and his family are now domiciled in their summer residence at Tyringham in the Berkshire hills. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland have just arrived at Riverside. Their children, Esther, who recently recovered from an attack of diphtheria, Ruth, Marion and Richard, accompanied by a nurse, are also here. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland will occupy the room which was occupied by George Washington after the battle of Saratoga. The chamber is locally known as Washington's room. The farmers here will extend an invitation to the ex-president to fish in their trout streams, whether posted or not."

WEDDING FETE CLOUDED.

Death In Family Cast Gloom On Wedding.

New York, June 14.—"Because of the death of the mother of Mrs. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Gray beg to recall the invitation to the marriage of their daughter to Frank Clark, on Wednesday, the 12th of June." This message was hurriedly dispatched to the many guests bidden to the wedding ceremony and reception set for Wednesday night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. Morrison Gray, 220 Penn street, Williamsburg. It did not prevent, however, a quiet wedding ceremony in compliance with the wish of the woman who, soon after expressing it, had passed away. Deep mourning took the place of the gown of white which the bride, Miss Amelia Warren Gray, was to have worn, and the bridegroom, Frank Clark also wore mourning.

So prostrated with grief was Miss Gray that it was with difficulty the family persuaded her to be married. As it had been her grandmother's wish, however, she finally consented to a quiet ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Howard Wilbur Ennis, pastor of the First Reformed Church of Williamsburg.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Green, the bride's grandmother, was 81 years old, and had lived in Williamsburg the greater part of her life. She had been in feeble health for a long time from a complication of diseases. Her death, which came suddenly at an early hour this morning was due to dropsy.

When Mrs. Green breathed her last a caterer was in possession of the lower rooms of the house and a florist was at work in the parlors. These arrangements were immediately canceled, and after a hurried family consultation the messages withdrawing the invitations to the wedding were sent out.

Miss Gray, assisted by Mr. Clark, entertained the bridesmaids and the best man in the parlors of the Hanover club Wednesday. The ceremonies had not been over many hours when the Penn street residence was in mourning. Mrs. Clark is a well-known pianist, and it was through her music that she became acquainted with her husband. Mr. Clark conducts a conservatory of music in Milwaukee.

FIRED REDELL.

Omaha Council Removes the Fire Chief.

Omaha, June 14.—The city council, at a special meeting, has summarily discharged Fire Chief John Redell and appointed as his successor former Assistant Chief Charles A. Salter. Mayor Moores immediately notified Redell of his discharge and Salter of his appointment. Redell protested, but turned over the office, but says he will do nothing pending the decision of the supreme court.

ARRESTED AT CLOQUET.

Napoleon Perry was arrested at Cloquet yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Philbin on a warrant charging him with burglary. On the nights of May 9 and 10 the saloon of Joseph Bellmeur was entered and some liquor taken. The proprietor of the place caused a warrant to be issued, on June 8, for Perry, the complainant, believing Perry to be the offender. Napoleon is said to have known there was trouble brewing for him and he made a hegira to Cloquet, where he was arrested yesterday. At the preliminary examination, before Judge Stone this morning, he pleaded guilty as charged, and was bound over to the grand jury. Not being able to secure the $250 bail demanded, he will linger in the county bastile. Perry is only 17 years of age, but in appearance he is much older.

THREE WERE FINED.

Three of the youths arrested yesterday for demolishing glass in one of the factories, were taken before Judge Stone last evening and pleaded guilty. They paid fines and promised to follow the narrow path evermore. Thomas Robinson and Clarence Boyd maintained they were not guilty, as charged, and their case will be heard this evening.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

West Duluth court No. 797, Independent Order of Foresters, will celebrate the anniversary of the order next Sunday by attending services at 10 a. m. The members meet at their hall and march in body to Asbury M. E. church where Rev. W. E. Loomis will preach. The Companions of No. 228 will also attend.

Arrangements are completed by Old Hickory camp, M. W. A., for the observance of the order's Memorial day next Sunday at the M. E. church on Raleigh street. The services commence at 3 p. m., when Rev. W. E. Loomis will give a special sermon. Extra music has also been arranged for.

The second grade of Fairmount school enjoyed a trip to Zenith park yesterday under the pilotage of Capt. Mann. A picnic dinner was the most attractive feature for the young folks of whom there were about 100.

C. E. Chase, of Anoka, Minn., representing Reed & Sherwood, was calling on the retail lumber dealers today. He says business is lively in the agricultural sections of Minnesota and North Dakota and that there is an epidemic of good crops.

J. H. Dorsey was very happy this morning. An 11-pound son arrived at his home, 602 Sixtieth avenue west.

The Guards of Pearl Hive, L. O. T. M., give their exhibition drill for the benefit of the public at Great Eastern hall this evening. After the drill there will be dancing and refreshments.

August Lundberg, of Carlton, is in the city.

A surprise party last evening for Mrs. Yax, at her home on Fifty-fifth avenue, was as successful as the originators had hoped it would be. Thirty friends, carrying refreshments, invaded her home, it being the date of Mrs. Yax's birthday.

Mrs. William McKeag is home from Ontario, Canada, where she has been for three months.

Dr. R. McKinley and daughter, Clara, arrived home from St. Angora, Iowa, last evening after a visit of two weeks' duration. Mr. McKinley thinks the trip improved his health.

K. A. McDonald leaves today for Alpena, Mich., and points in Canada and expects to make a lengthy visit.

Rev. Father Feehely, Ed. Dormedy, Frank Lynch and M. J. Solberg came home from St. Paul this morning.

THE TREND OF PRICES

Of Agricultural Implements and Machinery During Forty Years.

During First Thirty-Five Years Prices Declined Enormously.

An Increase of Prices During the Past Five Years.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nothing has heretofore been published with regard to the trend of prices of agricultural implements and machinery, and perceiving this omission from statistical knowledge and having in view the importance of the subject in the development of agricultural industry in this country, the department of agriculture recently conducted an investigation to ascertain facts within such moderate limits as it seemed feasible to embrace. The result of this investigation is contained in a bulletin just issued by the department, prepared by George K. Holmes, of the division of statistics.

The bulletin states that is was necessary to depend on the mail for information and to trust to the willingness of the manufacturers to respond. This they have done in a very satisfactory manner, and a large proportion of the responses to the inquiry of the department have come from manufacturers of national and even world-wide fame.

The endeavor was made to obtain prices for 1860, 1890, 1895 and 1900 for the date of July 1, or as near thereto as possible. Manufacturers were requested to report "cash prices of agricultural implements and machines delivered f. o. b., including commissions and other allowances to agencies, but not including discounts for cash within thirty days."

Of course it is realized that agricultural implements and machinery have been immensely improved since 1860, and in many cases materially so since 1880, and even 1890, so that a comparison of prices for these years with those of 1900 does not fully represent the same implements or machines. This should be taken into account in connection with whatever information is published on the subject.

Many establishments manufacture at least a few varieties and grades of implements and machines of the same general description as, for instance, plows, harvesters, mowers, threshers, harrows, etc. In view of this fact, manufacturers were requested as follows: "In case your establishment manufactures varieties of the same implement or machine, please adopt for comparison the more standard one, which will, presumably, be the one of which you make the most sales."

Manufacturers very generally complied with this request, but the "standard" plows, for instance, of different establishments differ in their characteristics and in the cost of production, and consequently in selling price.

The manufacturers of agricultural implements and machinery has grown to enormous proportions in this country, and has been developed here in the investment of capital, in the employment of labor, and especially in the multiplication of the varieties and excellencies of products far beyond any point reached in any country. The latest available statistics with regard to this industry were obtained in the census of 1890, and these statistics were compared with those obtained in the census of 1880, as follows:

Number of establishments, 1,943 in 1880 and 910 in 1890; capital, $62,109,668 in 1880 and $145,313,997 in 1890; number of employes, 39,580 in 1880 and 42,544 in 1890; wages, $15,359,610 in 1880 and $21,811,761 in 1890; cost of materials, $31,531,170 in 1880 and $31,603,265 in 1890; value of products, $68,640,486 in 1880 and $81,271,651 in 1890.

It is conspicuously a fact that from 1860 to 1895 the retail prices of agricultural machinery and implements have declined to an enormous extent, and this in spite of the fact that these implements and machines have in the meantime increased in efficiency, in durability, in workability, in lightness of weight, and in strength of materials. There has been a progress from wood to iron and from iron to steel, and from large patterns to small ones, and during the same time there has been an increased utilization of applied power.

From 1895 to 1900 it will be noticed that in the case of many establishments there has been an increase of prices. In connection with this it should be borne in mind that the financial depression which began in May, 1893, and continued until about 1897, had a disturbing effect upon manufacturing industries and that when the business revival began, a considerable increase in the prices of materials used in manufacturing occurred and that this lasted for a considerable length of time. On this account the retail price of agricultural implements and machines reported for the midsummer of 1900 show an increase which must be regarded as abnormal. This expresses the general consensus of opinion of the manufacturers or agricultural implements and machines in this country, and is a repetition of previous industrial experiences following financial depressions.

The trend of the prices of carriages and buggies has been downward to a very marked degree, often being from 25 to 50 per cent. In the case of one manufacturer, surreys selling at $225 in 1880 sold at $85 in 1900; top buggies with a price of $90 in 1860 and $60 in 1880, sold for $43 in 1900.

Two-horse walking cultivators that sold for $20 in 1880 had the price of $13 in 1900; disk cultivators that sold for $30 in 1890 had the price of $25 in 1900; spring-tooth horse shoes worth $9 in 1880, were worth only $6 in 1900.

The corn drills of 1880 had the price of $12, and in 1890, $8; fertilizer drills in 1880, $90, and those of 1900, $70; the grain drills of 1860, $90, and those of 1900, $50. Harrows declined from $15 in 1880 to $10 in 1900; plain float spring-tooth harrows from $20 to $10; disk harrows from $27 to $18.

Six foot twine binder harvesters were sold to the farmer in 1880 for $225, and for $120 in 1900; and the "combined" harvester was sold for $150 in 1860, as against $65 in 1900. The price of corn knives declined from 75 cents in 1860 to 40 cents in 1900; of fanning mills from $35 to $15.

The decline in the price of mowers has been very marked. One establishment reports that prices declined from $100 in 1860 to $40 in 1900; another one that the decline was from $160 to $40 for the same years, and still another $120 to $45. The price of good walking plows diminished very largely from 1860 to 1900; one establishment reports a dimunition from $6.50 to $4.50; another from $6.50 to $3; another one from $10.50 to $8.50; and in all cases reported the dimunitions are very perceptible.

Sulky hay rakes that sold for $35 in 1860 sold for $14 in 1900; but in another case the price of $20 did not change in the meantime, yet it should be understood in this instance that improvements in the mechanism may have been sufficient to maintain the price and at the same time cause the latter rake to be vastly superior to the former.

The farmer of 1900 was paying only a minority fraction of the price of the 1860 for his reaper. One company reports the price for 1860 at $150 and for 1900 at $60; another $125 for 1860 and $40 for 1890; while still another reports $200 for 1860 and $60 for 1900.

Farm platform scales fitly belong to the long category of farm implements and machines; scales of one description declined from $150 in 1860 to $50 in 1900. Then there are scythes, which have dropped from $1 to 60 cents from 1880 to 1900; two-horse seeders from $35 in 1880 to $25 in 1900; cream separators of dairy size from $125 in 1880 to $100 in 1900.

Cornshellers have shared in the general decline of prices; one that cost $10 in 1860 could have been bought for $2.40 in 1900; another one declined from $10 to $6 from 1880 to 1900.

Bobsleighs worth $34 in 1880 sold for $26 in the manufacture of 1900; spades lost 25 per cent of their selling price from 1860 to 1900, and haybedders to the value of $70 in 1880 sold for $35 in 1900.

Generally speaking threshers have not participated in the general decline of prices, the reason being that their construction has become more expensive, the materials more nearly perfect, and the effectiveness of the machine of a much higher character.

Farm wagons that cost $125 in 1860 and $90 in 1880, cost $57 in 1900; in the case of another establishment, wagons worth $100 in 1860 and $75 in 1880 were worth $35 in 1900; and in still another case, wagons worth $50 in 1860 and $35 in 1880 had the price of $22.50 in 1900. Steel windmills declined in price from $50 in 1890 to $25 in 1900; wooden windmills from $35 in 1880 to $25 in 1900.

Commencement Exercises.

The commencement exercises of one of the largest and most efficient classes ever graduated from the Duluth High school will be held at that institution this evening at 8 o'clock. Seventy students graduate in the class of 1901, of which number forty-eight are young women.

The program for this evening will consist of essays and orations by the five honor pupils, and the usual excellent music under the direction of Prof. Custance.

Unnecessary Loss of Time.

Mr. W. S. Whedon, cashier of the First National Bank of Wintorset, Iowa, in a recent letter, gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at his work." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

FLARING POSTERS

Committee Issues Flaring Announcements of the Coming Celebration.

Yesterday's Hot Wave Said to Be Due to These.

Transportation Committee Gets Low Rates From Ranges.

Dazzling posters which would make a gorgeous crimson sunset look like the carboniferous depths of darkness, will transform the principal streets of the iron range mining towns into glittering thoroughfares after tomorrow.

These loud posters have been got out for the specific purpose of cutting down the expenses for street lighting, and incidentally to announce the greatest Fourth of July celebration on earth. With all their lithographic brilliancy, these posters fail to convey an adequate impression of what will transpire in Duluth on that day.

There will be appropriate and pyrotechnical explosions of oratory which cannot be illustrated on the posters without going to the expense of inventing new and violent shades of the spectrum. If the success of the monster celebration is one-half as dazzling as the posters, or even two-thirds as brilliant as the prospects, there will be chain lightning doings within the fire limits. Even the purveyors of weather and climatic special correspondence say that there will be some sort of planetary disturbance about the time set for the celebration.

The posters will be sent to the range towns tomorrow in charge of Frank Burrows. They will be distributed liberally in all the iron range towns and villages, and for the first few days the citizens of Northern Minnesota are expected to wear goggles and read of the attractions with the aid of smoked glasses.

Mayor Hugo reports interest in the celebration booming. The extremely torrid weather yesterday was caused by a discussion of the fire works committee over the range posters. Several members of the committee couldn't see the necessity of fireworks if the posters could be gotten up in the air and made to explode. The anti-sky rocket sentiment, however, faded away before the meeting was over, and the committee decided on the greatest sky-scraping effect in pyrotechnics ever sputtered and cracked above Duluth.

The fire works committee is not the only committee that has been indulging in stretches of activity. The transportation committee is receiving the most favorable reports from railroad and steamship companies. The round trip from Virginia will only cost $2 and from other points the rates are to be correspondingly low.

The parade committee has been working overtime in its efforts to place all the organizations that are applying for a position in the procession. The Bemidji brass band which has achieved considerable fame down at the Woodmen's convention, is at the disposal of the parade committee, and the committee is delighted at getting such a good band. Other bands from out of town which would like to help out with the celebration should address the parade committee without delay.

The Clan Stewart will get into the parade with kilts and pipes. About fifty clansmen are expected to turn out and in addition to their participation in the parade they will probably erect a bronze bust of Andrew Carnegie at the new library.

NOTED EVANGELIST.

To Work In the Range Towns Next Week.

Evangelist R. E. Johnson and wife, accompanied by M. C. Martin, gospel singer, all of Chicago, will arrive in the city tomorrow. They will conduct meetings at the Lake Avenue Bethel on Sunday next, and also for several evenings during the coming week. Later they will commence a summer campaign in gospel tent work in the mining towns north of Duluth. The first point has not yet been definitely decided upon, but will be announced in a few days.

The Bethel association has recently purchased a new tent, 40x60 feet. This will be provided with canvas seat benches, a good organ, etc. The work referred to will be carried on under the auspices of the Bethel, and means the carrying out of a long-cherished plan and thought of the executive committee.

Evangelists Johnson and Martin have been highly successful in their labors elsewhere, and are said to be eminently fitted for the special work they are about to commence here.

Vndertwear

Cool, Cleanly, Comfortable.

It does seem strange that one will insist on Fine Linen Handkerchiefs and Towels for use on face and hands, for the obvious reason that cotton or any other material is not absorbent and does not "feel good," and at the same time will appear indifferent to the material used next the far more sensitive skin of the body.

It's all wrong, and there's nothing really right but cool, cleanly, sensible

A SPECIALTY.

Bert Hall Has One, That of Stealing Valises.

Officer Hagberg last evening arrested Bert Hall, a notorious grip snatcher. Hall is from Oklahoma. Last evening he went snooping through the Omaha train just before it pulled out for Chicago, and seeing a valise on a seat unguarded, he picked it up and walked off the train.

The valise was the property of L. F. Meyers, of 122 Third avenue west. He had left it only for a moment while he said good bye to a friend. He missed it just as the train was pulling out. A passenger said that he saw a man carry a valise out, and Mr. Meyers remembering that his transportation was within, got off the train. He saw a rather desperate looking man walking down the railroad tracks with his valise and followed him. A short distance down the track the man joined two others and they tried to hide the valise between them. Mr. Meyers started up to them and they got up hastily, leaving the stolen property on the ground. Mr. Meyers then followed the man that had taken the valise to a Lake avenue saloon, where Officer Hagberg caught him. His name is Bert Hall, though he gives several others.

This morning, in police court, he was desirous of pleading guilty, but as the theft is liable to a state prison sentence he was not allowed to plead. His examination will take place on June 21.

The county teachers' meeting, which was to be held in the high school tomorrow morning, has been indefinitely postponed.

HIGH SCHOOL RECEPTION.

Junior-Senior Reception at the Spalding.

The annual Junion-Senior reception, given by the junior class of the High school to the seniors, was held at the Spalding hotel last evening. All of the High school students, alumni and some others were invited. The affair was a success in every way. About one hundred couples were in attendance and the hall was beautifully decorated in red and white, the colors of the school, and the class colors of the two classes—pale blue and red for the seniors, corn and brown for the juniors. At one end of the hall at the side of the orchestra the space was decorated with the senior class colors; in the center of this decoration the senior numerals, 1901, appeared. On the other side the same decoration appeared, only the junior colors and junior numerals, 1902, were displayed.

An excellent program of twenty-six numbers was rendered by La Brosse's orchestra. The junior committee in charge was congratulated on the charming way in which everything was carried out.

The Alaskan Nuggets is the best cigar we can make, or anybody can make, to sell at the nickel price.

It's no secret, that the Third regiment band will give grand free concert at O-at-ka Sunday.

INDUSTRIAL CONVENTION.

Southern Development Is Discussed at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, June 14.—The Southern Industrial convention held its closing session this morning.

After calling the convention to order, President Hargrove, in a brief speech, resigned his office in favor of Col. W. A. Hemphill, of Atlanta, first vice president.

On the subject of the work of railroads in the development of the South, M. V. Richards said the railroads of the South have given labor and money to further the industrial progress of the South. Alex Helper, Jr., of Baltimore, read a paper entitled "Why Our Manufacturers, Our Merchants, Our Farmers Throughout the Country Should be Stanch Friends of Our Railroads."

He said in part: "The vigorous and progressive South of today owes her activity and advancement chiefly to the railroads that traverse her territory. With them she is growing and making agricultural and commercial history. Without them she would be almost as inactive as a snail in winter. Today we have 189,294 miles of railroads in the United States, a quarter more than all Europe.

"It is a fact beyond contradiction," continued Mr. Helper, "that wherever good railroads have been constructed, the cost of transportation has been enormously decreased."

President Hemphill introduced the subject of newspapers by stating that immediately after the war he established the Atlanta Constitution on the line of industrial improvement and has since been steadfast to that policy.

"The day is breaking," said Col. Hemphill, "the sun is beginning to shine over the South and the newspapers are the great agents in bringing about this happy condition."

Norman Walker of the New Orleans Times-Democrat was the next speaker on the subject. He claimed that the beginning of industrial development in the South was due to the Southern press. In ante bellum days the newspapers had considered industrial items of no importance and had not then given them a thought. It proved so successful that the Southern papers were now able to see that industrial news is the most valuable they can publish.

HANGED HIMSELF.

Des Moines Passenger Agent Takes His Life.

Des Moines, June 14.—Seneca W. Hazard, city passenger agent of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, was found hanging to a rafter in the basement of the city ticket office today. To all appearances it was case of suicide.

The Hague, June 14.—Mrs. Botha has arrived here and is domiciled at a hotel near Scheveningen, whence she will visit Mr. Kruger this afternoon.

DID NOTHING IMPORTANT.

Washington, June 14.—The cabinet meeting today developed nothing important. There was some talk about the course of procedure in Cuba, now that the Cuban convention has adopted the Platt amendment. No action by this government, however, is necessary.

IN GOOD DEMAND

The Steel Trust Wants the Bevier Corner Very Much.

All That Prevents the Deal Is the Bayha Lease.

The Difference In Price For the Bayha Rights Stops It.

The United States Steel company likes the northeast corner of Third avenue west and First street exceedingly well as a site for its offices in Duluth, and the deal for such an arrangement is not by any means off, as many people have assumed. Indeed, all that remains to complete it is to get Bayha & Company out of the way, and according to reliable report that narrows it down to a difference in price.

It was reported some time ago that an offer of $50,000 had been made Hutchson Bevier, the owner of the 100 feet on the corner, for his property. That is an excellent offer, and Mr. Bevier would have been glad to accept it if it had not been for the fact that he had contracted for the erection of a building and made a lease of most of it to Bayha & Company. It was out of his power to recall those two contracts, else he would have undoubtedly accepted.

It was supposed then that settled the deal. A number of Duluth gentlemen were figuring on organizing a stock company to put up a building for the trust, but while this deal was under way a prominent real estate man came in with another one.

This man had a party that would build a large office building for the trust on the Bevier property, costing about $160,000, if the contractor and the lessor could be got out of the way. Now it is understood that everything that stood in the way has been arranged except Mr. Bayha, and it had narrowed down to the amount of money it is worth to him to give up his chance at an excellent site for his business. It is reported that an offer of $2500 for his lease has been made, but that it has been refused, and $10,000 asked. The site is a very valuable one, either to Bayha & Co. or to the parties that are figuring on building there for the steel company, so there is a ground for an active contest over its possession.

Mr. Bayha was seen today on the matter, and while he admitted that negotiations for his rights had been under way, he absolutely refused to say anything regarding the matter one way or another.

Work on New Road.

The chain gang is working on Robert Benson's boulevard, which runs up the east branch of Lester river, or rather up Lester river proper, to the city limits, where it meets a road which the town of Duluth is building. The new road, which is well advanced in the process of construction, opens up a large amount of valuable land for farming purposes. The chain gang will work there for some time, as Commissioner Kugler has its use for sixty days in his district. The last work on the poor farm was done several days ago, and the change to the Benson boulevard was made yesterday.

Cancels the Lease.

Judge Dibell has filed his findings in the case of the Realty company against the Providence Building company and W. B. Silvey, to cancel the lease to the Providence building. He finds for the plaintiff and directs that the lease that was made to Mr. Silvey and assigned by him to the Providence Building company, be cancelled, and the title of the plaintiff declared free from any cloud through the claims of the defendants.

A MISSION

Causes Some Trouble Among the Reformed Presbyterians.

Cincinnati, June 14.—In the general synod of the Reformed Presbyterian church today quite a contest was precipitated over a test case from the Fourth Reformed Presbyterian church, of Philadelphia, of which Dr. David Steele is pastor. The Fourth church had founded a mission in West Philadelphia, and desired to retain it as an annex. The mission in West Philadelphia desired an independent organization. The mission's application was refused by the Philadelphia presbytery, and then the mission appealed to the general synod. Dr. Steele insisted that the mission could file grievances or charges against the Philadelphia presbytery, but that there was no right for such direct application to the general synod.

After an animated debate, the whole question was referred to the board of home missions, and Dr. Steele protested most vigorously. Reports of various boards were then submitted.

IS COMING.

Some Machinery For the Match Factory Is Already Here.

Part of the machinery for the Duluth Match company has arrived and is now being placed in position at the old Marinette iron plant. The machines arriving are designated filling and emptying machines, and the value of the consignment just arrived is placed at about $25,000.

Early in July the plant should be in readiness for operation. Superintendent Smith thinks that three weeks' time will elapse before the factory is ready to operate.

It is believed that 200 employes will be necessary to carry on the work of manufacture. At least half of this number will be men who will operate the machinery. There are to be about an equal number of boys and females, who will do the packing.

The machine operatives will do piecework, and in most factories of a like kind they earn from $2.50 to $2.75 daily. The other employes will also receive pay on the piece plan, and can average $1 per day or better.

It will be necessary to import some skilled labor, but home people will be given an opportunity to learn the intricate machines as rapidly as possible.

Basswood is largely used in the manufacture of matches, one reason being that it is not as expensive as pine.

The directors of the Duluth Match company were at the factory Wednesday inspecting the machinery and watching its installation. The public is not to be admitted to the factory until the plant is in complete operation.

LIEN ON A CHURCH.

W. T. Bailey Lumber Company Asks One.

A propositon to sell a Methodist church to satisfy a claim for materials that went into its construction is involved in a suit begun in district court this morning by the W. T. Bailey Lumber company against R. McBain, the contractor, and the First Methodist Episcopal church, of Virginia. It is claimed that materials to the value of $411.91, that have not been paid for, went into the building, and the company seeks to have this claim declared a lien on the property and the church sold to satisfy it. M. H. McMahon is the attorney.

School district No. 14 has begun suit against Andrew Broberg to compel him to transfer an acre of his farm to the district for school purposes. It is alleged that before he got his patent he promised to give the site for the school, in consideration of the benefits that would naturally arise, but since he has received his patent he has refused to carry out his agreement. M. H. McMahon is the attorney.

Boat Excursion.

Advertisement elsewhere in these columns gives leaving schedule for the day of the new excursion steamer, Bluebell, and it will be found interesting to visitors and citizens who wish to avail themselves of an opportunity to take either of these unique and every way delightful trips.

DECISION AFFIRMED.

Bobleter or Bondsmen Must Reimburse State.

St. Paul, June 14.—The supreme court today affirmed the decision of the Ramsey county court, holding former State Treasurer Bobleter and his bondsmen responsible for money of the state lost in defunct banks. The amount involved is about $50,000. The bondsmen are liable in the sum of $400,000. They are W. R. Merriam, now director of the census; Frank A. Seymour, Edward N. Saunders, Mayor Robert A. Smith, William Dawson and Alpheus B. Stickney, as assignee of the late William Dawson.

WOODMEN

Select Indianapolis as the Meeting Place For 1903.

St. Paul, June 14.—The Modern Woodmen of America at the opening of today's business session of the head camp adopted a resolution giving the executive council power to change the place of meeting in case it is found impossible to get acceptable railroad rates. Five cities were presented for next place of meeting for the convention of 1903, the vote resulting: Indianapolis, 334; Grand Rapids, Mich., 240; Saratoga, 23; Los Angeles, 17; Denver, 8.

The application of Nevada and Utah for admission to the jurisdiction of the order was granted, and similar applications from Kentucky and Northern Texas were refused. Underground miners applied for permission to join, being now on the list of prohibited occupations, but the request was refused.

TO SPEAK IN WATERTOWN

Watertown, N. Y., June 14.—William J. Bryan will speak in Watertown, June 25, coming here at the invitation of Rev. H. N. Dunning, pastor of the Stone Street Presbyterian church, and formerly of Lincoln, Neb.

NEED STEAM?

The Place to Get It Is From Selected Food.

It is good to know the kind of food those with weak stomachs and hearts can get along with for when a man or woman is a little below par, an easily digested food is the thing that goes right to the spot.

A man in Kirksville, Mo., tells how he got out of trouble by using Grape-Nuts Food. He says: "My trouble was intense suffering in the stomach. It was called gastralgia, but no medicine gave any permanent relief. In June of last year I began to grow much worse in every respect; I was terribly constipated and the stomach pains were severe. I ran down until I weighed only 120 pounds. I had to give up my business for my nerves were completely unstrung and I could not sleep more than two or three hours during the night and that only by snatches during a lull of the pain.

I tried almost every kind of food, but finaly was put on Grape-Nuts and in a little while it began to make its worth known. I began to sleep better nights, my strength gradually came back, and I gained in weight rapidly until a little while ago I weighed 165 pounds and have been a well man for months with never a touch of the old trouble.

My bowels are perfect, the nervous trouble has gone. You can realize I appreciate the value of Grape-Nuts Food. Don't publish my name, but you can give it in private correspondence and I will take pleasure in answering the letters."

This is another evidence of the practical worth of Grape-Nuts Food in cases of weak stomach and bad digestion. It is the most scientifically made food in existence and contains absolutely nothing but selected parts of the field grains so cooked and prepared as to admit of almost immediate digestion and assimilation, carrying with it the elements furnished by the All Wise Creator for rebuilding the nervous system, the soft part of the brain and the solar plexus.

When one gets from food what the body needs, it is easy to get well and keep well.

WOULD MARRY HIM.

Proposals of Marriage Received From Society Belles.

St. Louis, June 14.—Arthur Lee Cabanne, of 4334 Westminster place, a popular young society man, college athlete and soldier, who abandoned the luxurious environment of his wealtny father's home to enter the employ of the Shickle, Harrison & Howard Iron company, at East St. Louis, as third molder's helper in order to learn the secrets of the manufacture of steel, has attained much prominence in consequence of his voluntary change of station.

Mr. Cabanne said Monday that he had received sixty letters, some of which were proposals of marriage, and others of a congratulatory character.

One young woman of Toronto, Canada, informed him that she had $600,000 in her own name and was ready to share her fortune and happiness with him. She claimed to have a villa in Los Angeles, Cal., and other realty, besides bonds and cash aggregating $600,000.

Society women of New York, Chicago, Baltimore and other places have also written to him. Many of the names are familiar to the social world by reason of frequent publication in the metropolitan press.

Mr. Cabanne says he is not a fortune-hunter, and is not in the matrimonial market. He says that he had not answered any of the letters.

A college woman of New York wrote him an eight-page letter in which she expressed gratification at finding a man who was not ashamed to perform manual work even though he was wealthy.

Mr. Cabanne has now been with the Shickle, Harrison & Howard company fourteen days, engaged in wheeling pig iron and silica and shoveling coal in eight big, roaring furnaces. He expects promotion to the position of second molder's helper next week. He is a son of J. Charles Cabanne, president of the St. Louis Dairy company.

SAYS HE LOVED HER

But Declares That His Attentions Were Solicited.

Toledo, Ohio, June 14.—Attorney John P. Delphey took a new tack in the injunction suit brought against him by Miss Marie Aletta Lent to restrain him from making further love to her. He withdrew his original answer of prose and poetry to her petition, and in its place filed an amended answer, in which he consents to granting her an injunction, but he in turn asks he be granted an injunction to restrain Miss Lent from "visiting his office hanging about his stairway or forcing her attentions upon him whenever they meet in society or elsewhere."

Mr. Delphey alleges that Miss Lent encouraged him in his attentions toward her and that she bestowed as much love and attention upon him as he did upon her.

Mr. Delphey "admits" many things in his new answer that the plaintiff does not allege in her petition. He says that much correspondence passed between them, and that they rode and walked together in the city and country quite frequently, and were usually by themselves. Mr. Delphey alleges there wa a great deal of affectionate and loving conversation and demonstrations of affection between them, as well as a great amount of chaffing.

He "admits" that everything he has done with reference to Miss Lent was either at her invitation or with her full consent and approval. He denies the allegations of pretended annoyance, reproach, injury, loss or damage, as set forth by Miss Lent in her petition. Mr. Delphey says that he met Miss Lent about a year ago in a social way, and that she commenced calling at his office, sometimes on business, but usually she came to visit. He also alleges that she requested him to take her out driving and also asked him to "keep watch of the newspapers and clip any items he saw relating to her.

Opinion now is about evenly divided and society people are anxiously awaiting for the hearing of the case.

WILD RUMORS

That More Men Are Entombed In Port Royal Mine.

Port Royal, Pa., June 14.—Rumors are abroad today that more men than the eighteen first accounted for are burned in the Port Royal mine. Two men from Smithton have been missing since the night of the explosion, and the wild story was circulated that the number of known victims would reach thirty. A long time would be required to ascertain accurately the number of those entombed.

INHALED GAS.

Cashier Committed Suicide While Despondent.

Cleveland, June 14.—George Baird, local cashier for the New York Life Insurance company, committed suicide last night by inhaling illuminating gas in his room at 39 Lincoln avenue. Baird, who was about 35 years old, came here from Newark, N. J., where he was connected with the above-named company. His relatives live in Montreal. Officials of the company say that so far as now known Baird's accounts are all right. It is believed that despondency led to the deed.

SEVERE PUNISHMENT

For a Soldier Who Worked an Easy Dentist.

Washington, June 14.—The loss of ten numbers in his grade, reduction of his pay to furlough pay for two years and to be publicly reprimanded, is the sentence imposed by court-martial upon Capt. Robert E. Impey, stationed at Mare Island navy yard. The captain is charged with scandalous conduct, in having represented to a dentist that his bill must be reduced because it required the approval of the treasury officials, whereas this was a purely personal matter. Secretary Long has yet to act upon the proceedings of the court.

PINGREE IS SICK.

London, June 14.—Hazen S. Pingree, former governor of Michigan, is in this city, suffering from a bad attack of dysentery, contracted while he was traveling on the continent. Mr. Pingree's condition, however, is not dangerous and he showed improvement today.

New Service to St. Louis—Via "The Milwaukee" Line.

STILL LIVE.

Shreveport Negroes Were Taken Safely to the Benton Jail.

New Orleans, June 14.—Advices from Shreveport indicate that none of the negroes arrested in connection with the murder of John Gray Foster, the planter, has been lynched.

Four of the negroes, including "Prophet" Smith, who have been imprisoned at Kinnebrew's, were safely landed today in the Benton jail.

Governor McMillan, of Tennessee, and his wife, who is a sister of the murdered man, arrived this afternoon at Shreveport.

JELLEFF HELD.

Charged With Robbing Mineral Point Bank.

Mineral Point, Wis., June 14.—The examination of Stewart Jelleff who was arrested on suspicion of having robbed the First National bank May 5, last, was concluded today. Jelleff was held for trial and bail was placed at $15,000.

ARGUMENTS

In Kennedy Trial Have Been Commenced.

Kansas City, June 14.—Arguments to the jury were begun today in the trial of Lulu Prince-Kennedy, on the charge of killing her husband, Philip H. Kennedy, in February last. The prisoner appeared in court today apparently in better health than on yesterday. Accompanying her were C. W. Prince, her father and Bert and Will, her brothers, all three of whom are under arrest on the charge of having conspired to end Kennedy's life.

MOTION DENIED.

Mrs. Muir Must Contest In Orphans Court.

New York, June 14.—Argument was heard today before Judge Blair in Jersey City in the motion to remove the contest of the will of Mrs. Edia McPherson from the orphans' court to the circuit court for trial by a jury. The motion, which was made in behalf of Mrs. Edia Muir, daughter of the testatrix, who is the contestant, was denied, and June 23 was set as the time for holding the first hearing in the orphans' court.

GOLD FOR EUROPE.

New York, June 14.—The National City bank has taken $500,000 in gold from the sub-treasury for shipment to Europe tomorrow.

KILLED BY STRANGER.

Madison, Wis., June 14.—John Moore, a farmer living four miles east of Oregon, was killed last night by a stranger who called him out of his house. Moore was not known to have any enemies.

FIRE AT WINCHESTER.

Winchester, Tenn., June 14.—Fire today destroyed the entire east side of the public square, except for three buildings. Loss stimated at $170,000; insurance, $120,000. One person was injured.

MARKET IS WEAK

Wheat Started Out Weak, Advanced But Declined Again.

Lower Cables and Excellent Crop Weather In Northwest.

Decrease In Argentine Shipments Caused the Temporary Rally.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 14.—The wheat market started out weak and lower this morning, owing to the cables being disappointing. Liverpool closing unchanged to ¾d lower, and to the weather in the Northwest being excellent for the crops. There was a rally soon after the opening, due to a big decrease in the Argentine shipments, which were 624,000 bus against 1,032,000 bus last week and 1,083,000 bus last year, but the market was lifeless and a reaction followed. New York reported 52 loads of wheat taken for export. Bradstreet reported the export shipments for the week as aggregating 4,791,107 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 305,815 bus. Primary receipts of wheat were 415,000 bus, last year 637,000 bus. Shipments 218,000 bus, last year 216,000 bus.

Stocks of wheat in Duluth are estimated to decrease 300,000 bus this week.

Trading in futures was dull on the Duluth board. July wheat opened ¼c off at 69¾c, sold at 69¾c at 9:33, rose to 70c at 10:20, declined slowly to 69½c at 12:45 and closed at 69¾c, a decline of ¾c. Chicago and Minneapolis each declined about 1c.

Flax showed an advance today of 1c for the September option. The cash price closed strong today also being at $1.72 bid.

Rye was off ½c and other coarse grains were unchanged in price.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 72½c; to arrive, 72¾c; September, 69¾c; July, 72¾c. No. 1 northern, cash, 69½c; to arrive, 69¾c, September, 69c; July, 69¾c. No. 2 northern, 66c. No. 3 spring, 60¼c. Oats, 27¼-27½c. Rye, 47c. Flax, cash, $1.72; to arrive, $1.72; September, $1.31; September, Northwestern, $1.32. Corn, $1.28.

Car inspection—Wheat, 74; corn, 17; oats, 25; flax, 1. Receipts—Wheat, 50,964 bus; corn, 10,826 bus; rye, 1447 bus; flax, 1110 bus. Shipments—None.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Showed Weakness From Varied Causes.

Chicago, June 14.—Disappointing cables and excellent crop weather in the Northwest combined to cause weakness in the wheat market. July opened ¼@¾c lower at 70¾@¾c. At that price there was a fair demand, but sellers were conspicuous by their absence. A big decrease in Argentine shipments induced an advance to 71c but there was not enough life in the market to maintain that price and a reaction of ¾c followed. Argentine shipments were 624,000 bus against 1,032,000 bus last week and 1,083,000 bus a year ago. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 237 cars against 341 last week and 448 a year ago. Local receipts were 107 cars, 4 of contract grade.

After touching 71c July fell on liquidation to 70¾c. The close was weak, ⅞@1c lower at 70½@¾c.

Corn benefited by what was believed to be an effort on the part of the elevator people to advance prices in order to sell September. Weather and other conditions favorable, but July opened unchanged to a shade higher at 42¾@42c and improved to 42¾c with trade light. Local receipts 264 cars, 16 of contract grade.

July corn advanced to 42¾c, on local buying, reacted and closed steady ½c higher at 42⅝@½c.

Trade in oats was limited. July opened ½@¾c down at 26⅞@27c, and steadied at that. Local receipts were 154 cars.

Provisions were dull. July ribs opened 2½c down at $8.05; July pork and July lard were not quoted.

Close: Wheat, June, 69¾c; July, 70½@¾c; September, 68¾@69¼c; August, 68¾c. Corn, June, 41⅞@42c; July, 42¾@½c; September, 43¾c. Oats, June, 26⅝c; July, 27c; September, 25½@25¾c. Pork, June, $11.37½; July, $14.72½; September, $14.87½. Lard, June, $8.50; July, $8.50; September, $8.67½; October, $8.57½@8.60. November, $8.47½; December, $8.27½; year, $8.25. January, $8.20. Ribs, June, $8.02½; July, $8.02½@8.05; September, $8.07½; October, $8.02½. Flax, cash Northwestern, $1.72; No. 1, $1.72; September, $1.30; October, $1.25. Cash wheat, No. 2 red, 72c; No. 3 red, 69@71c; No. 2 hard winter, 71c; No. 3 hard winter, 70@71½c; No. 1 northern spring, 72@73c; No. 2 northern spring, 72@73c; No. 3 spring, 69½@72c. Corn, No. 2, 42c; No. 3, 41⅝@42c. Oats, No. 2, 27¼@28c; No. 3, 27½@c. Rye, July, 48c; September, 48¼c. Barley, cash, 46@65c. Timothy, cash, $3.70. Clover, cash, $8.50.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, June 14.—Wheat opened steady but in spite of good buying has ruled soft and is now at the low point so far. News from the fields still continues conflicting, but for the most part favorable. We have been disappointed that the market did not respond today as we thought more advance likely but for some reason offerings continue free. We think it probable that no material change in prices will occur at present and that later the spring wheat condition will be the main factor in determining values. The Modern Miller says general condition of winter wheat crop is well maintained but prospects are for a large yield.

Corn has ruled strong although the best prices not maintained. Elevator men were good buyers of July with the idea probably of changing over to September at the advance. Shipping bids are somewhat improved are not in line to do business except it be forced. We see nothing to maintain any advance in this cereal at the moment.

Oats were steady with light business.

Provisions were steady to firm. Hogs 5c lower at yards but had no effect on product. Packers were buyers of lard and ribs. Hogs at principal points 75,000 against 59,200 last year.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman report that the market contined to rule on the fairly active basis of the week. The volume of local trade was large while the speculative movement was extremely weak. The first-class horses of all grades were readily sold; the common and inferior kinds were greatly neglected and sold considerably lower than a week ago. Prices on the desirable classes showed no material change from the opening of the week. Values:

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Active Demand and Higher Opening Followed By a Drop.

Average Level of Prices Carried Below Thursday Night.

Covering By Shorts Caused Rally But Close Was Heavy.

New York, June 14.—There was an active and well distributed demand for stocks at the opening. Union Pacific and St. Paul were the features, 8000 shares of the former sold at 114⅜ to 114¼, compared with 111½ last night, and 10,000 shares of the latter sold at 170½@172½, compared with 170 last night. There were 5000 shares of Southern Pacific taken at 61¼ to 61¼, compared with 60¾ last night. Other stocks showed fractional gains except in a few of the specialties, notably Colorado Fuel, Tennessee Coal and Manhattan, the last named selling ex-dividend and gains running from 1 to 1½.

London transactions did not generally cause much variation from the opening level. Traders took profits but the demand was ample enough to hold the list well together. Union Pacific and St. Paul reached 114⅞ and 171 respectively, then reacted 1⅜ each and rallied strongly. A sprinkling of dormant stocks moved upwards a point or two, including Consolidated Gas, Canada Southern, Iowa Central, Pacific Coast, International Paper, Chicago Great Western preferred B, Pacific Mail and Wheeling & Lake Erie. Tennessee Coal lost its initial gain and Hocking Coal suffered from liquidation. Prices all around aside from the coalers were shaded from the best at 11 o'clock, the recession reaching a point in half a dozen leading stocks.

A temporary large demand for the coalers, especially Erie and Reading benefited them about a point but the absorption soon slackened and they fell back. Missouri Pacific was then pushed up to 124½ and near midday People's Gas rose buoyantly to above 118. St. Paul and Union Pacific moved up sharply to the best prices of the morning, touching 173½ and Union Pacific 115⅝. New York Central rose 2 points and the general list hardened moderately. Bonds were irregular. Mexican Central incomes were exceptionally active and 1 to 2 higher.

The failure of other stocks to respond to the renewed strength of St. Paul prompted an attack by the bears under which prices dropped sharply all around. Union Pacific, St. Paul, Baltimore & Ohio and Tennessee Coal fell 2¼ to ½, and Glucose and Colorado Fuel, 3½, while reactions of 1 to 1¾ were quite general. American Express rose 4 and Smelting preferred 2 in the face of the weakness. The average level of prices was carried below last night before covering by shorts rallied the market. There was renewed selling at some points on the rally. The closing was dull and heavy.

DENIED

Injunction Refused By Chancellor Stevens In Copper Controversy.

New York, June 14.—Vice Chancellor Stevens, sitting in Newark today, denied the application for an injunction to restrain the Amalgamated Copper company from purchasing the Butte & Boston and the Boston & Montana companies. He also required the plaintiffs in the action to file bond of 20,000 on appeal.

Vice Chancellor Stevens, in the case of Geer and others against the Amalgamated Copper Co., seeking to restrain that company from purchasing the Butte & Boston and Boston & Montana companies, refused today to hear further argument in behalf of the plaintiffs because their counsel had used up their time. He said also that he would not hear further arguments on thte question of the illegality of the contract between the companies because of the fact that the same directors belonged to each company. That question, he said, was out of the case, as these directors had resigned from the Amalgamated company, before the consummation of the contract. He would hear no argument on the trust phase of the case as the transation was not illegal under the laws of Montana. He further said that the question of relative values had been already decided by Vice Chancellor Pitney, The only questions, he said, now were "Is the Amalgamated Copper company going to pay an excessive price for the purchase of the other two companies, and can the court override the discretion of the directors in such a case." The defendants attorney then began argument on this point.

The meeting of the stockholders of the Amalgamated Copper company which was to have been held in Jersey City today was adjourned until June 21. No business was transacted today.

LOST ALL.

Guests at Burning West Baden Hotel Stopped For Nothing.

West Baden, June 14.—To the circumstances of the disagreeable weather, which reduced the usual number of guests, is attributed the exemption from loss of life at the hotel fire. As it was, the utmost consternation prevailed. Awakened at 1 a. m. by the cries of fire, and, knowing full well the combustible nature of the great wooden building, the guests rushed into the halls and pushed toward the exits. They were spurred to quick effort by the blinding smoke that threatened to cut off their retreat, and so with no attempt to save valuables and clothing, they fled from the burning hotel. Many were inadequately clothed.

Calls were made for help upon other cities, but for lack of transportation it was impossible to get assistance. The progress of the flames was so rapid that not even a metropolitan fire department could have saved the building. The hotel fire system was found to be wholly insufficient.

The opera house was threatened by the burning of the covered walk leading to it, but it was saved. The $30,000 bath room in course of construction and the new library were destroyed.

French Lick has offered shelter to the homeless guests, some of whom walked the entire distance rather than wait for slow transportation.

NOT 'TILL AUTUMN

Will Appeal In Gilman Case Be Heard.

Bridgeport, Conn., June 14.—The appeal of Edward L. Norton, from the order of the probate court appointing the Bridgeport Trust company administrator of the estate of George Francis Gilman, the millionaire tea merchant, will not be tried until autiumn. Judge Robinson so decided in the superior court today. Counsel on both sides are ready for the imediate trial of the case, but the court said he could see that it would be a long proceeding and would occupy all of the rest of the term, which is already well taken up by assignments.

$24.50 Pan American Exposition.

BUFFALO AND RETURN.

Daily until Oct. 31 the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets all-rail to Buffalo and return at $24.50 for round trip, good thirty days from date of sale. Four trains daily. For tickets and full information call at city office, 332 West Superior street or Union depot.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Two Vessels Bump Hard at Canadian Lock Entrance.

Schooner Constitution, In Tow, Was Quite Seriously Injured.

The Elwood, Somewhat Damaged, Will Continue Her Voyage.

Sault Ste. Marie, June 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The schooner Constitution, bound down in tow of the Victory and the Elwood, bound up, came together in the lower entrance to the Canadian lock, early today. The Elwood has a crack six feet font just back of the stem, and will be able to continue her voyage. The Constitution's starboard bow from the stem back to twenty-five feet is dented in and cracked and the deck is warped up. The forward compartment is full of water. The Constitution has the 5000-pound anchor of the Elwood lying on her deck, where it was thrown in the crash. She will have to be repaired before proceeding. The Pioneer and Chattanooga are aground above the cut in Little Rapids. The vessels will probably have to lighter part of their cargo.

GRAIN RATES DULL.

BUT LITTLE CHANGE IN THE FASHIONS

Styles This Season Admit of Skirts Perfectly Flat In the Back and Also Full In the Back.

After all that has been forecasted the styles are changing very little this season. As fashion admits of skirts perfectly flat in the back, and also full in the back, there are few of last year's well made gowns but what may come out fresh and attractive for this season with a few new touches, and where there is anything absolutely "inedit"—unpublished, as the French say—it is in accessories such as, for instance, bands of cloth on foulard and taffeta gowns. I know if a thing is fashionable, it matters not how ugly it may be, it will be worn, and, what is more puzzling, be counted lovely, but I do not think the idea of trimming foulards and taffetas with folds and strappings of cloth at all pretty. An all-over flowered foulard seen in a case in one of our prominent shops recently had trimmings of stitched white cloth here and there upon it. Another was embellished with white kid. I heard two shoppers beside me audibly exclaiming over the beauty of the combination, but 'twas invisible to me.

One practical hot day frock seen in a store window was a hemstitched linen made with dainty bodice opening over a white tucked vest of sheer lawn and undersleeves of the tucked white. The hemstitching being in black was extremely effective and gave the character tone to a color that is oft times trying to all but very fresh, pretty complexionss.

In the collection of your summer wardrobe have one gown, at least, lace trimmed, and, if your purse permits, have not only applications and insertions of lace, but have an entire bodice of it, and select either Cluny, d'Alencon, Mechin or guipure. A pretty combination of prevailing styles is to have a postillion back, an apron front and a bolero bodice built over a foundation of silk, cloth, or what is preferable, some diaphanous—only use lace, for it is undeniably true that lace gives a cachet to one's appearance that nothing else can. Flemish laces made on delicate net grounds are used to trim lawns, India mulls and other transparent fabrics. Every woman who has a modicum of that very desirable French knack—knowing how to dress the neck artistically—has a fluffy boa of chiffon, net or tulle either in black, gray or white with long scarf ends edged with some pretty lace. Many are trimming their summer gowns with Point Arabe and Point de Venise lace.

The most economical dress to have in your sumer wardrobe is a foulard—almost any color you select will do, for they are all so pretty, both in color and design. Trim it stylishly in lace. Have a hat to harmonize in color, a handsome parasol and there you are with a standby for any kind of a function, be it morning, afternoon or evening.

A PAQUIN MODEL.

Lace, Chiffon, Appliqued Gold and Cut Steel Produce Charming Effect.

Black Chantilly lace spangled with cut steel. Black chiffon tucked flounce with straps of black velvet and medallions of cream lace appliqued with gold; narrow plaiting of point d'esprit. The skirt is made over a drop lining of white taffeta and chiffon. Yoke studded with turquoise ornaments and cut steel. From Oppenheim, Collins & Co.

CHIC BLACK AND WHITE EFFECT.

Black Velvet Ribbon Over White Silk With Black Lace Insertions.

Black narrow velvet ribbon on silk mousseline over white silk. Insertions of black thread lace edged with spangles. Chiffon waist band and ends. Tucked chiffon flounce.

The fashion of wearing the hair low is gradually spreading. If arranged in a soft, glossy coil not too low on the neck, it is becoming to more faces than one would imagine. A fluffy, irregular bang is worn with it. The latest way to hold the untidy wisps of hair at the back of the head is to tie them with a tiny bow of narrow black velvet or silk ribbon. It has superseded the barret.

It has been heralded for some time that the earring would again be fashionable. It has actually arrived, but it is to fit very close to the ear—not hang down. What a pity to revive such a fashion! As if a woman could not make herself look sufficiently like Pocahontas with rings, necklaces and brooches without suspendings rings from her ears.

"The nicest thing going" is the sensible neckwear this season. And what a blessed relief the pretty things are from the stiff, high-neck chokers that were so hard on the throat. The new white and colored stocks and ties are so soft, stylish and natty, and a woman may have an endless variety of them because of their cheapness. Then, too, they launder so easily, requiring no starch. Those ugly gilt tabs have almost disappeared from the ends of fine neckwear, and appliques of lace embroidery or ribbon are used instead.

Buttons have an important place among dress trimmings. Clusters of them in gold, silver and enamel appear on bodies, sleeves, skirts and belts. Smoked pearl ones are put on black silk waists, and look as stylish as on wash waists. They are flat and without a shank.

There are buttons with shanks, very pretty and stylish buttons, too, which have something the appearance of pearls, or, perhaps, they look more like moonstones—they have a white effect—which are used upon some white wool frocks. They are set in little frames of gold, and are in different sizes, large and small, the latter set close together for trimming. Among the prettiest of clasps for wash gowns are button clasps. They have the appearance of big pearl buttons. One pretty little wash dress on which they are worn has them at the neck and waist. There is a vest to this little frock of white, of which only a glimpse can be seen, for the sides of the front meet at the neck and waist, where the clasps are used. There are two of these buttons in each clasp joined with hooks.

To be entirely au fait in things sartorial you must make an effort to be a symphony in black and white. It is such a beautiful combination that it is a wonder more women are not tempted by it. There was never a year when there was more of it. There are stunning things in foulards in black and white and white and black dashes of black on the white, stylish big scrolls, polka dots and rings, and the white figures on the black ground. There are hats with trimmings of black and white silk, in all sizes of dots principally, but in other figures as well; white hats trimmed with black ostrich feathers and with black flowers. There are petticoats galore in black and white stripes, and trimmed with black lace, black silk or embroidery, and there are the more dressy white skirts with black flounces and incrustations of black lace, and there are the white parasols with black figures, and some with large stripes, which are most effective. One may be black and white to the tips of one's toes with stocking, white on black and black on white at any price from 50 cents to $50.

The latest thing, they tell me, is the "war fan." These fans are silk, in black lacquer—frames lithographed with scenes from the war in China and the campaign in the Philippines.

As this is Hymen's month, it is well to tell his ever eager votaries—the brides—that the dernier cri in fashionable weddings is not to get married to the tune of Mendelssohn's march, or "Lohengrin's" bridal chorus, but instead to have new music, new marches, sung by your friends. Musical friends they must be, of course, with good voices. Select as many as you can, and have them sing in a chorus. Truly a novel and happy idea.

In the art of selecting the colors of a dress from artistic points of view—that is to say in such a manner that the dress, hat and set of ornaments, etc., not only correspond, but harmonize with the person—the French women are said to lead the world. The smart Paris set really study chromatics as carefully as the best French papers, who have to weigh each tone and its probable effect, and, in many instances, the magazines of fashion give many valuable hints in this direction. It was only recently that the Moniteur de la Mode contained several columns giving pointers about the choice of colors.

The Moniteur pointed out that bright colors, such as red and gold-yellow, are not well suited for brunettes, as is often supposed. For brunettes with delicate complexions and velvet-like eyes the Moniteur recommends pale blue, Chinese rose and bleu pervenche. The delicate, soft tone of these colors harmonizes wonderfully with the complexion and forms a "splendid, all-over tone, reminding one of the effects of a pastel."

For gold and red blonde women the Moniteur recommends medium colors, such as pensee, emerald, rubine red or violet. The complexion is usually so fresh that in connection with these opposite colors a most effective contrast is attained. Women with less lively and more delicate blonde complexion should best select cherry red or currant red; all blue colors, from marine blue up to pale blue, are also preferable and effective. A similar happy effect can be attained by the delicate rose color of the hydrangea or by the so-called ophelia and peach color.

All blondes are earnestly warned by the Moniteur against any yellow tones which might in the least resemble the hair; if these blondes insist, nevertheless, upon yellow tones, the Paris paper continues, they should by all means try to make a good combination with other bright colors.

A bright chestnut brown of the hair demands the same tones as does blond hair. The belles with chestnut brown hair of darker complexion and the brunettes should select maize colors and dark blue. Ashy blond women with delicate complexion increase the elegance of their appearance by the choice of covered colors, such as grey, biege and pale blue.

In connection with these hints the Moniteur de la Mode treats the symbolic importance of colors. We are reminded that in the Orient, in China, white is the mourning color, probably because the contrast of this color and the dark complexion of the people of these countries creates a certain rigor and cruelty of tones.

The same may be said about the black mourning colors of the occident, which shows the same contrast for the white people of these countries. Beside this sad signification, black and white have as yet another. Black, without connection of other colors, signifies pride and distinction, while white is the symbol of purity and innocence.

The red color is the most ostentatious and popular. It animates and embellishes everywhere. We find it throughout nature, with the birds, the flowers, the clouds and at the bottom of the ocean. Red signifies magnitude and dignity, for it attracts attention.

Blue, like white, is the symbol of purity, goodness and clemency. Yellow is the favored color of all the people of the far East. The Chinese call it divine color, resembling the sun.

Green is the color of the spring and hope. The Persians, the Arabs, the Turks and all Mohammedans have selected it as their national color, for the reason that it was the favorite color of the prophet.

JESUS APPEARS TO JOHN

International Sunday School Lesson For June 16, 1901.

Revelation i, 9-20: "I, John, your brother and partaker with you in the tribulation and kingdom and patience which are in Jesus, was in the isle that is called Patmos, for the word of God and the testimony of Jesus. I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and I heard behind me a great voice, as of a great trumpet, saying, What thou seest, write in a book, and send it to the seven churches; unto Ephesus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamum, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea. And I turned to see the voice which spake with me, and having turned I saw seven golden candlesticks, and in the midst of the candlesticks one like unto a son of man, clothed with a garment down to the foot, and girt about at the breast with a golden girdle. And his head and his hair were white as white wool, white as snow; and his eyes were as a flame of fire; and his feet like unto burnished brass, as if it had been refined in a furnace; and his voice as the voice of many waters. And he had in his right hand seven stars: and out of his mouth proceeded a sharp two edged sword: and his countenance was as the sun shineth in his strength. And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as one dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying, Fear not; I am the first and the last, and the living one; and I was dead, and behold, I am alive for ever more, and I have the keys of death and of hades. Write therefore the things which thou sawest, and the things which shall come to pass hereafter; the mystery of the seven stars which thou sawest in my right hand, and the seven golden candlesticks. The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches: and the seven candlesticks are seven churches."

Golden Text: "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, and today, and forever." Hebrews xiii, 8.

JOHN IN PATMOS.

The island of Patmos lies off the coast of Asia Minor, on a straight line from the ancient city of Halicarnassus to Athens. It was once covered with palm trees, but is now a bleak and barren waste. According to an old tradition, the Roman emperor, Domitian, banished the Apostle John to this island in the year 66 A. D., and he was kept there until Nerva succeeded to the imperial chair in A. D., 96. Nerva at once caused him to be released and returned to Ephesus. John himself informs the reader that he was on the island, but does not explain why except by the expression, "For the word of God and the testimony of Jesus." It is uncertain whether that means that he had been banished because of his ministry of the word of God, or had gone there in order to preach the word of God. The tradition already alluded to lends strength to the former supposition. There may have been many people living on the island at that time, for it is ten miles long by six broad at the widest part and has thirty-seven miles of shore line. Turkish rule has despoiled the island of both productivity and population, both of which abounded up to the middle ages.

John described himself to the original readers of the book of Revelation as their brother and fellow partaker in the "Tribulation and kingdom and patience which are in Jesus." The church of that day was suffering many bitter experiences, in which even the beloved disciple had to take his share. In writing to them the message of the Spirit, John assured them that he was such an one as themselves in both faith and the trials of that faith. If he did not write from imprisonment, he had before had severe trials on account of his devotion to the name of Jesus, and these trials had made him one with them in the fellowship of the persecuted. (See John xvi, 33, and Acts xiv, 22).

The day of the resurrection of Jesus early became a special day among the Christians. The scriptural authority for the term, "Lord's day," is the phrase of the present lesson, which says, "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day." It was the day for special worship among them, on which they celebrated the great fact of the resurrection. On that day, as John was no doubt contemplating the things of Jesus, he came into a spiritual ecstasy very much like that of Paul, described in Acts xxii, 17, and like that of Peter, of which an account is given in Acts xi, 5. It was also much like the experience which Paul describes in the twelfth chapter of II Corinthians, where he speaks of a man who was caught up into Paradise, and heard unspeakable things which it is not lawful for man to utter. There was this important difference, however, that John was expressly told that he was to write the things he heard and saw, for the benefit of the churches.

While in the ecstacy of the Spirit John heard a voice as clear and strong as that of a trumpet. It gave no uncertain sound. It plainly uttered the names of the churches in Asia Minor that were nearest to him. The instructions of the voice were explicit—"WRITE . . . SEND."

JESUS AMID THE CHURCHES.

On hearing the voice, John turned about to see who it was that spoke to him. His vision was at once rewarded by the sight of seven lamp stands, which, he explains, were the symbols of the seven churches for whom he was to receive messages. In the midst of the lamp stands stood one like unto a son of man. This was Jesus. So we are taught later on in the narrative. He appeared in the likeness of the Ancient of Days of the prophecy of Daniel. The student ought to read, in this connection, such passages as Daniel vii, 9, 10; Habakkuk, iii, 4; and Ezekiel i, 24, 26, 27, and xliii, 2. However direct and immediate may have been the revelation to John, he expressed what he saw and heard in imagery that was familiar to the reader of the old Jewish scriptures.

The scene he looked upon in his vision was that of Jesus standing in the midst of the churches, reigning like a king, and ministering in the habiliments of a priest. This is the idea of Jesus which the New Testament seeks to leave in the minds of his disciples. The church must ever have him in her midst as Lord and Master, and must recognize his kingship in everything. She must think of him as glorified with all the glory which the Father had with him before the world began; as wielding a scepter of light; as speaking words of invincible might that are sharper than any two edged sword, and whose presence is the shining of spiritual strength in the human soul. If, in the bold imagery of the vision, we could fancy him as walking through the life of the church, the treading of his feet would be like the glow and brightness of burnished brass that had been refined in a furnace.

But, let no one place a false emphasis upon the material imagery of the passage. We are, mostly, unpoetical inhabitants of the Western world, whose training has not fitted us to appreciate, in its real intent, the highly wrought religious literature of a master of Oriental imagery. This passage is a sequel to the account of the ascension, as given by Luke. That told of the glory of the disappearance of Jesus from the earth. This passage tells of the superlative glory of his reign at the right hand of the Father above. It seeks to emphasize, however, the fact that the glorified Jesus Christ is as truly interested in his church now as he ever was in the disciples of old. He seeks to live in and with his people. John puts, in a figurative and poetic way, what Paul presents as the substance of his doctrinal teaching, that Christ in you is the hope of glory.

THE LIVING ONE.

John was completely overcome by the sight of Jesus the glorified. He fell to the ground as one dead, so great was majesty of the divine presence. But he did not need to stay there long, for Jesus reached forth his hand and put it upon him and uttered words that had been familiar from the days of the Galilean ministry, "Fear not". Those words had been spoken by the voice of Jesus, on the lake of Galilee, to quiet the fears of the terrified disciples. Jesus was trying to identify himself to John as the friend of former days, and as the Lord and Master of his life. For the purpose of accomplishing the former object, he used this familiar expression with a friendly gesture of the hand. To effect the latter end, he uttered the rest of the sentence.

"I am the first and the last." From him all things proceeded, and to him all things shall return. He is the alpha and omega, which is but another means of saying the same thing. "In him were all things created, in the heavens and upon the earth, things visible and things invisible, whether thrones or dominions or principalities or powers; all things have been created through him; and he is before all things, and in him all things consist." He came forth from the Father and returned unto Him. He is clothed with eternal power by the Father, and partakes of the same ineffable nature as the Father.

"The Living one." Jesus had been crucified and buried, and John well knew of His resurrection. He revealed Himself to John on this occasion as the One who possesses the power of life. Having triumphed over death, He has the keys of the realm of death, as well as dominion over death itself. In the thirty-eighth chapter of Job, God is represented as asking Job, "Have the gates of death been opened unto thee? or hast thou seen the doors of the shadow of death?" That was a proper question to address to a mere man; it belonged to the ascended Lord to assert power and authority over the very gates of death.

This lesson contains the last thing that the New Testament tells us about the appearances of Jesus to his disciples after his resurrection. He appeared in a vision to Peter calling him to go unto the gentiles, and also to Saul, setting him apart as a special messenger of the cross to the gentile world. But his appearance to John was to give John a message to the church. Missionary work received its seal of importance in the giving of the great commision, in the visions of Paul and Peter, and in many other ways; but it was a part of the wisdom of the Master that He did not leave the impression that to plant the church was all there was to the work of the disciples. The church must everywhere be cared for and nurtured into the strength of maturity and spiritual purity. The letters directed to the seven churches abide as a splendid example of what the Spirit of Christ will do in the work of correcting the life and thought of the church, if His words are only heeded.

"Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and forever" is a thought fraught with untold comfort to every believer. Do our conditions and hopes change and decay? He is ever the same. Do we get disheartened about our faith? He is ever the same. Does temptation press hard upon us, and does it seem that we cannot withstand it? He is ever the same, and as He once strengthened us, so will He do it again. Does sorrow or trouble weigh heavily upon us? He is ever the same, and will bear the burden of human woe as surely now as when He said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

"That Article Third and Article Seventh of the articles of incorporation of the Higgins Land Company be amended, so as to read as follows, respectively:

Third. The amount of capital stock of said corporation shall be fifteen thousand ($15,000.00) dollars instead of sixty thousand ($60,000.00) dollars, to which amount the capital stock is hereby reduced, the whole amount thereof having been heretofore paid in."

Seventh. The number and amount of shares in the capital stock of said corporation shall be one hundred fifty shares (150) each of the par value of one hundred ($100.00) dollars.

It is further certified that at a regular meeting of the directors of said corporation, held at the office of said Company in the city of Duluth, in the state of Minnesota, on the third day of June, A. D. 1901, and subsequent to the aforesaid action of the stockholders of said corporation, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, viz:

"That Article Third and Article Seventh of the articles of incorporation of the Higgins Land Company be amended, so as to read as follows, respectively:

Third. The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be fifteen thousand ($15,000.00) dollars instead of sixty thousand ($60,000.00) dollars, to which amount the capital stock is hereby reduced, the whole amount thereof having been heretofore paid in.

Seventh. The number and amount of shares in the capital stock of said corporation shall be one hundred fifty (150) shares, each of the par value of one hundred ($100.00) dollars."

In witness whereof, the said Higgins Land Company has caused these presents to be subscribed and sworn to by its president, and its secretary, and has caused its corporate seal to be hereto affixed this third day of June, A. D. 1901.

Amendment of Articles of Association —OF— Olean Land Company.

It is hereby certified, that at the regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the Olean Land Company, held at the office of said company in the city of Duluth, in the state of Minnesota, on the third day of June, A. D. nineteen hundred and one, at which were present in person, or represented by duly executed proxy, the holders of more than two-thirds of the capital stock of said company, it was duly and unanimously resolved as follows:

"That article third and article seventh of the articles of incorporation of the Olean Land Company, be amended, so as to read as follows, respectively:

Third: The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000), of which amount seventy thousand dollars ($70,000) having been heretofore paid in, the remainder thereof, to-wit: Eighty thousand dollars ($80,000) shall be paid at such time or times and in such manner as the board of directors may require.

Seventh: The number and amount of shares in the capital stock of said corporation shall be fifteen hundred shares of the par value of one hundred dollars each."

It is further certified that at a regular meeting of the directors of said corporation held at the office of said company in the city of Duluth, in the state of Minnesota, on the third day of June A. D. 1901, and subsequent to the aforesaid action of the stockholders of said corporation, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, viz:

A Modern School of Shorthand and Typewriting Instruction.

GREGG SHORTHAND The Natural Method—Based on Longhand.
TOUCH TYPEWRITING Perfection of Typewriter Operation—The Sightless Method

The Drenning School, by the use of modern, up-to-date methods of instruction, is able to prepare young people to occupy remunerative positions as stenographers, without the necessity of hard, laborious mental drill, such as is required to master the old-fashioned systems. The course embraces instruction in all branches necessary to the acquirement of a thorough stenographic education. To those, whose residence in other places renders it impossible to attend the daily sessions at the school, our mail course offers an exceptionally desirable method of learning shorthand. GRAVE FEARS

For Many Who Were on Fated Ferry Boat.

It Is Believed That Loss of Life Is Heavy.

New York, June 15.—The divers at work on the wrecked ferryboat Northfield, which was in a collision with the Mauch Chunk, kept at their task until after 6 o'clock this morning without finding a human body in the boat's cabins. At 9 o'clock they went back to work again. The first undertaking of the divers was to make fast lines to pull the wrecked boat around so that she would lie abreast of pier 10, and they were unable to search the cabin during the night. It is not yet known definitely that there was a loss of life by the collision. The official entry on the blotter of the harbor police say that no one was lost, but according to the statements of tug boat captains who surrounded the sinking Northfield, it is thought that a number of persons must have perished. Until early this morning there were many inquiries at the old slip police stations and the station of the harbor police for relatives and friends who are supposed to have gone on the Northfield, and who had not returned to their homes at a late hour last night. Captain Johnson of the Northfield, was arrested a few hours after the collision, but he refused to make any statement about the collision. He was locked up on a charge of criminal negligence and held without bail. He will be arraigned in police court today.

Capt. Frank Griffin, of the Mauch Chunk, went to his home in Jersey City last night. No effort was made to arrest him, as officials of the Jersey Central railroad promised that Capt. Griffin would be produced in court today.

The majority of the passengers who were rescued were more or less hysterical, and their stories as to the loss of life were conflicting to a great extent. Many were of the opinion that hundreds of lives were lost, while others thought that but a few were drowned. As this dispatch is being sent the divers are searching all the cabins, the engine and fire rooms and other compartments of the ferryboat for bodies. It is known that all of the crew got ashore in safety.

The body of a boy about 10 years old was found floating in the East river. The body had been in the water but a short time. The coroner's office attributed the death to the Northfield collision and the police recorded it as the first known death.

Capt. Daniel Gully, of the tug boat Mutual, said today that many persons must have been drowned.

"I saw the two boats when they crashed" he said," and I am positive that 200 people were drowned. I saw myself more than thirty jump overboard as the Northfield was drifting from the battery to pier 10——that was on the starboard side. I saw more than fifteen in the water when I ran up to the Northfield, and many of them went down. If, as the ferry officials say, there was between 800 and 1,000 passengers on that ferry boat not more than 500 to 600 got ashore in safety."

Gen. Chas. G. Bartlett, 65 years old, of Hart Park, Livingston, Staten Island, is reported missing. Gen. Bartlett was librarian of the criminal court building. He was in infirm health and usually crossed from Manhattan to Staten Island by the 6 o'clock boat.

Mrs. Bartlett called at the criminal court building this morning looking for her husband. She fears he was drowned.

A report from St. George, S. I., says that all of the residents of the island known to have been in the Northfield, have been accounted for accept Gen. Bartlett and J. V. Wright, of Tompkinsville. Mr. Wright was engaged in business in New York, and it was his custom to return home every evening on the 6 o'clock boat. Repeated inquiries were made by members of Wright"s family at police headquarters during the night and early today, but no news of him could be obtained. Police Inspector Thompson said many injured persons had been rushed to hospitals so quickly after the stranding of the ferry boat that the police did not have a chance to make a systematic list of them. A census of all patients in hospitals received last night will be taken, and the inspector said he expected to find the missing in hospitals. He did not think many were dead, but he said it was possible that some bodies would be found among the wagons and horses on the main deck of the ferry boat.

The district attorney has assigned an assistant to take charge of the cases against the captains of the Northfield and Mauch Chunk. Capt. Griffin of the latter boat gave himself up early today.

At 11 a. m. the list of missing was as follows:

GEN. CHARLES G. BARTLETT, of Staten Island.

J. V. WRIGHT, note teller, Oriental bank, New York, resident of Staten Island.

COMMISSARY SERGT. IMHOF of Governor's Island.

VAN NAME, DAVID, Staten Island.

COLTER, R. G., Western purchasing agent American Insurance company, Newark.

BENNETT, F. J., 19 years old, Tompkinsville.

ANDERSON, MRS. VIDA, of Port Richmond.

ANDERSON, JOHN, 8 years old, son of Mrs. Anderson.

COOPER, GEORGE H., Newdorp, S. I.

Two divers came up after an hour or two down and reported no bodies found.

Magistrate Crane, before Capt. Abrahamson of the Northfield was arraigned, ordered a policeman to make an affidavit charging Abrahamson with criminal negligence.

During the forenoon Capt. Griffin of the Mauch Chunk came over from his home in New Jersey and gave himself up to the police.

THE STAND COLLAPSED

Temporary Accommodation For Spectators to Chicago Normal Sports Broke Down, Injuring Twenty-Five Persons, Some Seriously.

Chicago, June 15.—A temporary grand stand at Sixty-eighth street and Stewart avenue, built for the purpose of accommodating spectators for the annual field day sports of the Chicago Normal schools, collapsed today injuring twenty-five persons, mostly women and children. Several were hurt seriously, but it is thought none will die. A partial list of the injured follows:

Mrs. B. Zeigler, spine injured.
Mrs. J. O. Wallace, cut about limbs.
Mrs. R. Coleman, internal injuries.
Mrs. T. Fisher, spine injured and head cut.
Annie Cricory, leg broken.

The stand, which was 100 feet long and seven tiers high, was crowded. The program of the day was fairly underway when, on account of the general stamping of feet in recognition of some meritorious athletic accomplishment, the supports gave way, precipitating the spectators to the ground several feet below.

Several hundred persons were buried under the timbers. The field events came to an abrupt ending and the participants joined in the work of rescue. The injured were removed to the Normal school near by, which was converted into a temporary hospital, with more than a score of physicians and surgeons in attendance.

THE DERBY.

St. Louis Event Will Be Run on Fast Track.

St. Louis, June 15.—There is every prospect that the St. Louis derby, an $8,000 event for 3-year-olds, will be run this afternoon over a fast track.

Probable starters, with jockeys and weights, follow: Silverdale, J. Woods, 127; Farmer Bennett, J. Miller, 119; Sannasarro, Boland, 122; Duellist, Wedderstrand, 110; Wall, L. Rose, 119; Siddons, O'Brien, 102; The Commander, O'Neil, 104; Gaers, Dupee, 102; Kingrain, Overton, 107.

The Scharr entry: Silverdale and Farmer Bennett ruled favorite at 2 to 1 in the morning betting.

ROLL CALL STOLEN.

Sharp Practice at Colorado State House.

Denver, June 15.—The News today says: The roll call in the senate on the third reading and final passage of senate bill No. 87, better known as the employer's liability bill, has been stolen from the legislative records in the vault of the secretary of state's office. This, it is feared, will invalidate the bill.

THE INGALLS.

No Statement Concerning the Sinking of the Transport.

New York, June 15.—Pending investigation by the federal authorities, John N. Robins, of the John Robins company, refuses to make a statement concerning the sinking of the United States transport Ingalls in the Erie basin yesterday. So far as known the accident ausedthe loss of one life and the injury of thirty. The greater number of those injured are in Seney hospital, Brooklyn, where it was said today that several were in a serious condition. Those in charge at the dock do not think that there are any dead in the basin, although the fear was expressed in some quarters that workmen might hage gone to the bottom when the transport turned over.

To make certain that all on board had been accounted for preparations were made for a thorough search of the basin. Divers were sent to the bottom and the enclosure was carefully dragged.

Some of the workmen and dockmen still insist that a number of men who were at work in the hold of the vessel perished. The Ingalls is about half full of water and efforts are being made to right her and pump her out. Until this is done, it cannot be known whether any lives were lost among the hold gang.

RACING SEASON

Fashionable English People Captivated By the Various Events.

Ascot Meeting Next Week Will Be the Greatest Function.

After Racing Is Over, Aquatics Will Demand Attention.

London, June 15.—Racing continues to draw fashionable people and the Ascot meeting next week promises to be quite the function of the year, despite the absence of the royal procession and the curious sight of the royal stand draped with black. Orders have been issued that all persons entering the royal enclosure shall be dressed in mourning, though girls will be permitted to wear white. Even under these restrictions the applications for admission to the enclosure have already far exceeded the available space.

Foxhall Keene has gone to Paris, expecting to win the Grand Prix with Olympian tomorrow. Although the horse has been kept going since the derby he has gone to France in better condition than ever. Mr. Keene in discussing the effect of the American invasion of English racing, said it had been all for the benefit of the English turf.

"We have brought good horses over," continued Mr. Keene, "and your handicappers seem to appreciate them so highly that they generally race them about the top of their handicap. This is a compliment we could sometimes do without. There are more than 400 American horses in training in England, and there will be more next year. American trainers are equal to any, though an Englishman trains my horses. Wishard, who trains Mr. Crokers, and Huggins, who trains for Mr. Whitney, cannot be beaten at their work. The English jockeys have learned a lot from ours. You see it daily. Altogether, Americans have improved English racing."

When the Ascot racing is over the scene of gaiety will be transferred to Henley. Indications point to the fact that there will be an unprecedented number of house boats lining the Thames for the aquatic festival. Almost all the available rooms at Henley have already been engaged, and the University of Pennsylvania may find difficulty in getting suitable quarters. Their coming is eagerly awaited. All expert opinion is suspended until they are seen in trial spins. House boats are renting for the race at 100 to 300 guineas per week, while houses are fetching the first figure. Altogether, whatever the Pennsylvanians do, they will not have to complain of lack of spectators or interest.

Clyde Fitch, who is at Carlsbad, has agreed to write for Charles Frohman, a new play, on American society, which will be produced by Annie Russell at the Lyceum theater, New York. During the coming season. Mr. Fitch's "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines" will be produced in London.

Any number of dances and dinners occurred in London this week. At nearly all of them Americans were prominent, notably at Carl Meyers' party Thursday, at which Sarah Bernhardt and Coquelin acted a short comedy. Among the Americans present were Mrs. George Cornwallis West, Lady Cunard, Lady Clandebeye, the Hon. Mrs. Eaton, Miss Ward, Reginald Ward, Mesdames Leggett, Adair, Ronalds, "Jack" Leslie, Newhouse and J. Risley, J. R. Carter, second secretary of the United States embassy. Countess Sellern and Lady Gray Egerton, while among the other guests were Alfred De Rothschild, the Austrian ambassador, Count Deym, Lady De Grey and the Countess of Shrewsbury and Annesley.

New York, June 15.—The London correspondent of the Tribune says: If the houses of parliament had the energy and enthusiasm of the new bishop of London, the metropolis would soon be in a fair way to have rapid transit. As it is a slow going legislative body, it is holding committee investigations and wasting time when, as the bishop says, twenty tubes are needed to carry the working people in and out of London. The joint committee received testimony yesterday, from the traffic managers of the omnibus associations to the effect that the tubes would not take off a single omnibus between Paddington and Victoria and along other important routes, and consequently would only injure one another and be of no advantage to the public.

When the joint committee is occupied in this way capitalists and suburban residents despair of practical relief measures for the present block in traic. There is little probability that any effective legislation will be enacted before the adjournment of parliament and this will involve the postponement of scores of measures for another year, when public interest will be centered on the coronation.

BOAT RACES.

Program For Inter-Collegiate Events at Poughkeepsie In July.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 15.—The program for the inter-collegiate boat races on July 2, has been definitely arranged. It had been planned at first to have two of the races—a four-oared 'varsity and a single scull—in the morning and hold the freshmen and 'varsity contest late in the afternoon, but owing to a failure of entries to fill for the single race, that event has been abandoned and the three other races will all be held in the afternoon on the following schedule:

3:45 p. m.—Four-oared 'varsity between Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Wisconsin; course, two miles.

5 p. m.—Eight-oared 'varsity race between Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Wisconsin, eGorgetown and Syracuse; course, four miles.

HEAVY REPAIRS

Will Have to Be Made on Oregon.

San Francisco, June 15.—It is estimated that the repairs to the Oregon, which has just arrived from the Orient, rendered necessary by the damage sustained when she was wrecked in the gulf of Pechili, will require about six months on the dry dock and cost fully $250,000.

CONVICTED

Mrs. Kennedy Is Found Guilty of Murder.

Imprisonment For Ten Years Is Fixed.

Kansas City, June 15.—The jury in the Kennedy murder case this morning brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree and fixed Mrs. Kennedy's punishment at ten years imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Judge Woodford entered the court room at 9:45 and immediately sent for the prisoner. Mrs. Kennedy was brought in a few minutes later accompanied by her father and her married sister, Mrs. Leon. A moment later the jury field into the room. When the judge asked the foreman of the jury if a verdict had been reached, he handed a slip of paper to the clerk. Mrs. Kennedy heard its contents read calmly. A moment later she sank into a chair and covered her eyes with her arms and cried aloud. The jury took six ballots. The first stood ten to two for conviction. They remained that way until the last ballot. The defense gave notice of appeal.

Kennedy and Miss Prince were married in the circuit court Feb. 4. Two days before he was killed Kennedy brought suit to have the marriage set aside, alleging duress and charging W. C. Prince, the girl's father, and Will Prince with forcing him to marry her at the point of a revolver. The father and Will and Bert Prince are now awaiting trial on a charge of conspiring to kill Kennedy. Mrs. Kennedy is 26 years old and Kennedy was 28.

Judge Wooford then asked if both sides were ready to proceed with the trial of C. W., William and Bert Prince, the state announced its readiness, but the defense asked for postponement until Monday. This was granted. Judge Wooford added:

"I am not satisfied that Bert Prince and the old man were at the Ridge building at the time of the killing, and shall call in another judge to sit in the case."

EDSALL WILL ACCEPT

North Dakota Divine Has Consented to Become Bishop Coadjutor of the Episcopal Diocese of Minnesota.

St. Paul, June 15.—Bishop Edsall, of North Dakota, has consented to be bishop coadjutor of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Minnesota. His letter of reply has been received by the committee of clergymen and laymen appointed from the diocesan council who recently elected Bishop Edsall at Winona. When the committee personally notified the bishop of his election he gave no formal statement of his attitude. He said he would write to the committee. He has intimated that he would, about the same time, announce his intentions to the convocation of his own missionary juridiction. That convocation meets today at Fargo.

The bishop's announcement to his own people will, therefore, as a matter of courtesy, precede the publication of his addressed to the Minnesota committee. Until he went to North Dakota two years ago Bishop Edsall was rector of a prominent Chicago church.

LAST DAY OF WOODMEN

The Head Camp Settled Down to Work With a Determination to Dispose of All Business Before It.

St. Paul, June 15.—The Modern Woodmen of America, head camp, settled down to business for the closing day, apparently determined to complete all matters pending in one session. Many resolutions of thanks were adopted, including the press, various committees, favoring the building of a fraternal society's building at the Louisiana purchase exposition at St. Louis; changing the Woodmen memorial day from the third to the first Sunday in June of each year; thanking the Kansas girl bands for their music, and extending greetings and good wishes to the governor of Minnesota and the mayors of St. Paul and Minneapolis. The report of the law committee was then again taken up and the various recommendations were considered. The insurance commissioners of New York having ruled against fraternal insurances providing sick benefits, that feature was stricken from the by-laws of the national organization.

INVOLVING YOUNG MEN

The Particular Topics at the International Jubilee Convention of the Y. M. C. A. at Boston Were on Young Men.

Boston, June 15.—While many branches of Y. M. C. A. work were discussed at yesterday's meeting of the International Jubilee convention here, the program today included topics more particularly bearing on the problems directly involving young men. Several well known speakers presented subjects at the forenoon session. There was no meeting this afternon, the time being devoted to sightseeing. President W. F. Slocum, of Colorado college, James H. Eckels, of Chicago, and H. M. Moore, of Boston, were scheduled as this evening's speakers.

The regular prayer meeting this morning was well attended. Rev. J. H. Elliott, D. D., of New York, was the leader. The delegates then repaired to Mechanics' hall, where the usual devotional services were led by E. M. Bierce, of Dayton, Ohio. Henry Waterhouse, of Honolulu, presided at the regular forenoon session.

FINAL TEST.

Battleship Wisconsin Enters Upon the Last One Required.

San Francisco, June 15.—The battleship Wisconsin has gone outside the heads to have a five-hours' continuous test. It is now six months since the government accepted her, and this is the final test called for by the contract. After passing out she was headed up the coast, and at once plunged into the northwester that has been blowing strongly for the past ten days. The Wisconsin is expected back in port this afternoon.

DISORDERS RENEWED.

London, June 15.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg announces that the labor disorders there have been renewed. Strikers from the Baltic naval yards, the dispatch says, joined their forces with men from the Gvozdilnana works and attacked the latter yesterday with such ferocity that the military were obliged to use their arms to suppress the rioters.

OTERO

Will Be Reappointed Governor of New Mexico Territory.

Washington, June 15.—The president has decided to re-appoint Miguel A. Otero governor of New Mexico. A delegation has been here for some days making representations to the secretary of the interior looking to the defeat of Mr. Otero, but after considering the matter Secretary Hitchcock recommended Mr. Otero's re-appointment. His term expired June 7. The appointment may be announced today, if not, it will be in a few days.

Later in the day the official announcement was made that Gov. Otero had been re-appointed.

THEY RETURN

National Guardsmen Are Back From the March.

With tanned faces and pockets full of money, the Third Regiment band, and Companies A and C reached home last evening after their practice march from Milaca to Brainerd.

Notwithstanding the weather, every man in the regiment seemed to enjoy themselves, especially when the pay-master distributed $9,000 through the regiment before it disbanded at Brainerd. All the men seemed to regret that the regiment could not have been brought here for the purpose of disbanding.

The officers and men say that they received good practical instruction in field service during the march, and prefer that kind of an outing to a tour of camp duty, where scarcely anything is learned outside what can be taught in the armories.

Flaaten's band is a winner, and judging from the jaunty music played while marching up Superior street last evening, the band made the march much more pleasant than it would otherwise have been.

PLANNING ALREADY.

High School Athletes Thinking of Football.

Now that the spring athletics are over ,the high school athletes are making plans for the football season. The fact that school will open on Sept. 3 this year, instead of about two weeks later, as has hitherto been the case, will give the team a chance for a longer round of practice than usual, before the first regular game, which customarily comes off about Oct. 1.

At the last regular meeting of the athletic association, Professor Hutchinson was elected manager of the football team for 1901. Last season the team had a rather disastrous career financially, and he has been casting about for means to lower the expense during the coming season. He is to have an assistant in the manual training department next year, and has decided to select a teacher, who, besides doing his duties as instructor, can also coach the team. This scheme, however, does not receive the support of the football men, who last season came to like Dr. Park, the Pennsylvania coach, who did so well by them, very much. An effort will be made by the men to induce Manager Hutchinson to secure his services for the coming season.

Birthday Party.

A very pretty birthday party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Allen McDonnell, at Camp Chippewa, on Park Point Saturday of last week, for their daughter Kathleen's twelfth birthday. Refreshments were served in a tent that was beautifully decorated with bunting, flags, evergreens, carnations, roses and wild flowers. The day was spent with boating and games. Those present were: Margary Shippard, Jennie Stull, May McAlpin, Ella Still, Irene Johnson, Marie Lammers, Marie Williams, Sigard Lammers, Harriet Hogan of West Superior, Genevieve Deary and Mattie Deary, of West Superior, Bernard Fergerson and William Risley.

Goes to Cloquet.

The Big Duluth baseball team will go to Cloquet tomorrow. The last meeting of these two teams resulted in a defeat for the Cloquet men by a score of 2¢ to 4, but that was early in the season. Since that time Cloquet has been strengthened and has been playing remarkably fast ball. A good game is in prospect.

The Big Duluths will play at Brainerd on July 4 and 5 and at Aitkin, July 6 and 7.

I. O. O. F.

All local and transit Odd Fellows and Rebekahs are requested to be present at I. O. O. F. hall, Lake avenue north, Sunday, June 16, at 2 p. m., to assist at memorial services. By order of Committee.

T. J. ST. GERMAIN.

A PROGRESSIVE COMPANY.

Crowley Electric Company Takes New Quarters.

The Crowley Electric company has removed its offices from the Exchange building to the Lonsdale building, corner of Third avenue west and Michigan street, to the suite of rooms lately occupied by the editorial staff of the News Tribune. These new quarters have been elegantly fitted up for offices and salesrooms and this enterprising company has also taken in additional space in the same building, where it has installed one of the most complete manufacturing electrical plants in the Northwest and is now prepared to do a general construction and supply business, install complete electrical plants, dynamos and motors and will make a specialty of repairing all kinds of electrical machinery.

The company has also fitted up a beautiful salesroom, where it carries a complete stock of the newest novelties in plain and fancy colored gas globes, electric light shades and fixtures of every description.

Mr. Crowley is an expert electrician and has surrounded himself with a force of experienced workmen and this new institution will add much to Duluth's growing industries, allowing owners of electrical apparatus to now have their machinery repaired and refitted as perfectly and as cheaply at home as if sent to some large Eastern factory.

ELKS TO PLAY BALL.

Duluth and Superior Lodges to Compete.

The atmospheric disturbance which set the streets awash this morning is said to have been caused by an area of high pressure colliding with an area of low pressure, resultant from certain negotiations for a ball game between the Elks of Duluth and West Superior.

For many days this game has been talked of in the respective lodge rooms, and it promises to be one of the most scintillating diamond events ever seen at the head of the lakes. The first game will be played at West Superior on June 22, and the following week a second game will be played at Oneota park. In case of a tie a third game will be arranged on some neutral ground—probably on a scow out in the lake. Candidates for the Duluth team have been in secret practice for five weeks. Robert Cox will give an imitation of some of the National league's greatest catchers. John Fuller is practicing weird stunts which he expects to do out in center field. The Duluthians have also signed a mysterious unknown to play first base. From photographs he seems to be built like a Dinotherium, or some of those pre-historic animals that sit on the ground and eat off the tops of trees.

The games will be preceded by street parades, headed by a special band of "Reubens." The trouble in each instance will begin at 3:30.

NEW BALL TEAM.

Duluth Brewers Enter the City League.

There is a new ball team in the city league. The Duluth Brewing and Malting company has absorbed the West Duluth team, and under the new name the West Duluthians will appear on the diamond tomorrow afternoon in dashing new uniforms of gray and red. The Kelley Hardware company's team will line up against the brewers.

The following Sunday the Duluth brewers will play the Fitger & Co. brewing team, and needless to say the game promises to be intoxicatingly interesting.

Tomorrow the teams will play as follows:

Duluth Brewers. Kelley Hardware.
Robinson ..... catcher ..... Campbell
Young ..... pitcher ..... Klosky
Coughlin ..... first base ..... Dennis
A. Buska ... second base ... Kreager
M. Buska .... third base ..... Schulte
Fredell ..... short stop ..... Schuller
Nacey ..... left field ..... Berini
Carey ..... center field ... A. Kreager
Lauermann .. right field ..... Levy

WILL PUSH HIS CLAIM

J. B. Richards to Carry His Suit to the Courts.

Will Go Before the Special Term Next Saturday.

W. G. Crosby to Make No Recommendation to the Board.

The courts will be asked to pass upon the right of J. B. Richards to receive pay from the county for his services in enforcing the personal property taxes against the Duluth Gas and Water company, by which the county received $60,000 that had practically been given up.

At the time the matter was litigated, Mr. Richards was city attorney. The personal property taxes had been permitted to drop behind so that the company owed about $60,000, when the foreclosure of the bonds on the company's plants and the sale to the city by the bondholders seemed about to cause this asset to disappear from the county's books. The county attorney at that time did not believe that there was anything to be gained by attempting to enforce the taxes, because it was supposed that the bonds would swallow up all of the property and there would be no show for taxes.

Mr. Richards believed, however, that the tax claim was a prior one, and acting under that supposition he fought the case through the United States courts and got a judgment for the county, the court holding that as Mr. Richards had claimed, the tax claim could not be disregarded, but must be paid out of the moneys received from the sale of the plant.

This not only brought in a large amount of property, but it established a valuable precedent that will be worth more in the future. When Mr. Richards presented a claim of $5,000 for his services it was disallowed, on the advice of County Attorney Phelps, on the ground that Mr. Richards was city attorney, and that his work having been done in the interest of the city, which got a large share of the money collected, his salary as city attorney should cover it, and he was not entitled to any pay from the county.

Acting on this advice the county board refused to allow the claim. Recently Mr. Richards presented another claim, and it was referred to the board's attorney, Wilson G. Crosby. Messrs. Crosby and Richards have decided to submit the matter to the court in order to determine whether or not Mr. Richards has a right to compensation. The parties agreed on a draft of the facts in the case, so there will be no trial. At next Saturday's special term the matter will come up, and on the agreed case the court will be asked to decide whether or not Mr. Richards is entitled to receive, and the county board has the authority to pay, fees for his services in addition to his salary as city attorney.

A note of issue was filed fixing the matter for hearing today, but it was continued over to next Saturday's special term.

HE REPORTS.

C. E. Peaslee of Manufacturers' Bank Makes a Statement.

C. E. Peaslee, receiver of the Manufacturers' bank of West Duluth, has nearly cleaned up the estate, and this morning he presented his account to the district court and had it allowed, and the court fixed his compensation for his work at $75 per month from the time of his appointment in September, 1896.

His report makes encouraging news for the stockholders in the bank, and for creditors as well. It is his belief, as stated in his account and petition, that he will be able to pay all claims in full without calling upon the stockholders for any assessments. This is a state of affairs that few of the insolvent concerns that went up in the smoke of the panic of 1893 will be able to show, and it is very gratifying to the receiver, the stockholders and the creditors.

In his report Mr. Peaslee shows that he has converted most of the assets of the bank into cash, and has received in all $37,964.12. Of this sum he has expended $31,860.55, leaving a balance of $6103.57 on hand. He has already paid 75 per cent of all of the allowed claims against the bank, and there is a balance of 25 per cent left unpaid. With what he has and what he expects to get out of the unconverted assets, it is his belief that he will be able to pay all claims in full. The unconverted assets he values at $3850.

In his petition to have his account allowed and his compensation fixed he put an estimate of $75 per month on his services, and Judge Dibell, who signed the order, allowed at that sum. He has had no compensation since his appointment and the whole sum due him under the order is $4350 to July 1.

Other matters heard in special term this morning were as follows: H. C. Scott against S. M. Hay and others, motion to amend answer granted; Sarah J. Bennett against Walter E. Bennett, order for publication of summons; Angeline L. Tusch against T. W. Gilleland, order confirming sheriff's report of sale.

Let In the Flood.

The county treasurer's office force was converted to the need of a new court house to a man this morning. When the severe shower that occurred during the forenoon took place, the roof of the portion of the building in which the office is situated failed in the purpose for which it was made, and let in a stream of water that threatened for a time to drown out the whole force. Employes of the office might have been seen scurrying here and there agitatedly looking for water palls, cuspidors and other utensils to catch the flood, and for sheltered places where they could get out of the rain.

OPEN HOUSE.

R. R. Forward & Co. to Entertain the Public Tuesday Evening.

People who may have fancied that all of the large, complete and up-to-date business houses are located in the down town section of the city should drop out in the West End next Tuesday afternoon or evening and attend the first house warming of R. F. Forward & Company. The firm has lately removed to a new and larger location that is but another step in the onward march that has not been interrupted since the firm went into business here five years ago. To permit the public, whether on buying bent or not, to see what a complete establishment has been built up, the firm will have open house next Tuesday, afternoon and evening, with Flaaten's full orchestra in attendance in the evening and flowers and other souvenirs for the women both afternoon and evening.

There are other features also. In the front window will be a scene representing "Grandmother's Days," with a spinning wheel operated by a woman in costume, actually engaged in carding and spinning wool. In the same window, at different hours, will be shown the latest thing in power knitting machines in operation. In addition, each adult visiting the store will receive a ticket for a drawing on a Gold Coin steel range, valued at $35.

The firm of R. R. Forward & Company started in business in February, 1896, as a hardware establishment in a place 25 feet by 60 feet at 1823 West Superior street. Soon it was removed to 2023 West Superior street, in a larger space demanded by the constantly growing business. The firm still continued to branch out, and furniture, a complete line, was added to the lines carried. A warehouse was rented at 2005 West First street, and a show room was put in at 2022 West Superior street. Still the business grew and new space rapidly became inadequate.

The new building now occupied by the firm was begun during the winter, and it was occupied May 1. It has three floors, each 50 feet by 140 feet, all of which the firm uses. The new space has permitted the firm to add dinnerware, glassware and crockery to the lines before handled, making one of the most complete establishments at the head of the lakes.

The members of the firm are believers in home trade, free trade, expansion and all that stands for progress and fair business methods. Its motto, "Honest goods at reasonable prices," should commend it to buyers.

CHISHOLM BOOMING.

Village Going Ahead at Lively Rate.

The village of Chisholm, the newest settlement on the iron ranges, is proving to be a strong and hearty infant. The village is only fairly started, but it is starting in at a rate that promises to make it a village of 2000 inhabitants before the summer has waned. It is beautifully situated on the shore of Longyear lake, about six miles north of Hibbing, and it is surrounded by iron mines in an active stage of development, with a large sawmill near at hand. The sale of lots has opened actively, and many range merchants have placed t oopen shops there as soon as buildings can be erected for them. Outside merchants, also, have arranged to have stores there, and in a very short time the village will be one of the liveliest anywhere.

The fight between the company that platted the village, which includes Capt. J. H. Pearce of Duluth and A. M. Chisholm, of Hibbing, and W. J. Power, who brought suit, claiming to have purchased the site before the company did, appears to have been settled, for Mr. Power and an associate between them own two-fifths of the stock in the company, which appears to be the result of a compromise.

TO PURSUE THE PIGS

Sheriff's Force After Blind Variety Operating In County.

Colony of Them Flourishing Near Hibbing Recently.

Six Warrants Sworn Out By the County Attorney.

Three sheriff's deputies started out yesterday afternoon for the vicinity of Hibbing to make a raid on the colony of ferocious and rapidly increasing blind pigs that has been flourishing in that section for some time. The posse was expected back this afternoon with about six keepers of blind pigs, but nothing had been heard from the deputies up to a late hour this afternoon as to the number of arrests that had been made.

The destination of the party was the new village of Chisholm, on Longyear lake, six miles north of Hibbing, where it has been reported from time to time that there existed a number of groggeries kept by men who had never taken the trouble to secure state licenses in the customary manner, through the board of county commissioners. County Attorney McClintock has been quietly preparing evidence against them, and yesterday, when his plans were complete he swore out warrants for six blind pig keepers and gave them to the sheriff's office for service.

The expedition is in charge of Deputy Sheriff Newton Randall, and he is accompanied by Deputies W. J. Bates and Frank L. Magie. They were expected back on the Missabe train late this afternoon, and from the fact that nothing was heard from them this morning it is supposed that their mission was successful.

The blind pig industry has been running riot through that portion of the county, and many recent reports of lawlessness there were partly responsible for the determination to root out the evil. The resorts have been running so openly that it was not difficult to gather evidence against them. The keepers seemed to have believed that they were so far from the authorities that they would be secure from molestation.

TOURNAMENT.

Central Gun Club's to Be a Great Event.

The ninth annual tournament of the Central Gun club on July 5 and 6 promises to be one of the greatest trap events in the Northwest this season.

Amateurs of high standing from Chicago, the Twin Cities and elsewhere are expected to compete with the local cracks, but professionals and agents will be barred from shooting for money. They may shoot for fun, however.

The club will add $400 to the sweepstakes, making the cash prizes about the largest ever shot for in this vicinity. There will be ten events each day of fifteen targets each and the entrance fee for every event will be $1.50. In addition to the money put in the purses from entrance fees the club will add $10 to each event. Then the first five men making the highest averages on the two days' shoot will receive an additional $15 each; the next five $10 each; the following five $8 and the next fifteen will receive $5 each for average money.

The purses will be divided by the percentage system, 30, 25, 25 and 20.

The following rules will govern the tournament:

Shooting will commence at 9 o'clock each day. This does not mean 9:30.

American Shooting association rules will govern all events, except that all guns will shoot from the 16-yard mark.

This is a shoot for amateurs, and all professionals and manufacturers' agents residing outside of the state of Minnesota will be barred from participating in the division of money. They will be welcome to shoot for fun, and show their goods.

The money in the events will be divided by the percentage system, 30, 25, 25 and 20.

Black powder barred.

Make your entries for the entire day, and if, for any reason, you cannot shoot through your money will be returned.

Dropping for place will not be tolerated, and any shooter caught so doing will be barred from any further participation in the tournament.

Rain or shine, we dance at Oatka this evening.

Notice to Ice Cream Soda Consumers.

Owing to the advance in the cost of fountain supplies, rents, etc., we do agree on and after this date, June 15, to charge 10 cents per glass for ice cream soda, and absolutely refuse to serve any 5 cents ice cream, or ice cream soda.

Soda water, ginger ale, phosphates and such 5 cents. All egg and mixed drinks 10 cents or more.

TO BE TRIED.

Suit Against Professor Newberry Has Not Been Settled.

Sandusky, Ohio, June 15.—As a result of the failure to reach a settlement out of court, by the interested parties, it now seems probable that the injunction and alimony suit brought against Professor Spencer Newberry by his wife here recently, will come to trial. It is stated that the family conference called for the purpose of adjusting the differences between Mr. and Mrs. Newberry, was without result. Mrs. Newberry is the daughter of Andrew D. White, United States ambassador to Germany. The allegations made by Mrs. Newberry against her husband are not known, as her petition was withdrawn from the court files immediately after being received. It is known, however, that Mrs. Newberry asked that her husband be restrained from disposing of any property pending a hearing.

AGAINST BETTING.

Injunction Was Refused By Judge Tuley.

Chicago, June 15.—Judge Tuley, in the circuit court today, refused to grant a temporary injunction, without notice, against the Harlem race track, to restrain the management from allowing betting.

The petition, if granted, would have seriously affected the American derby, set for Washington Park, Saturday, June 22.

Judge Tuley announced that if the applicants so desired he will hear arguments Monday with notice.

STEEL AND IRON.

Proposed Sale of the Bethlehem Companies.

Philadelphia, June 15.—At a special meeting today of the board of directors of the Bethlehem Steel company and the Bethlehem Iron company, a call was issued for special meetings of the stockholders to consider the sales of these companies. The meeting of the Bethlehem Iron company will be held in South Bethlehem on Aug. 15 and the meeting of the Bethlehem Steel company will be held in this city on Aug. 16. The plan of the proposed sale of the companies to interests represented by Charles M. Schwab will be submitted to the stockholders at these meetings.

ITS DECENNIAL.

Imposing Celebration at University of Chicago.

Chicago, June 15.—The decennial celebration of the founding of the University of Chicago, began actively today with the raising of the founder's flag in honor of the arrival of John D. Rockefeller, who was accompanied by his wife and daughter. The day's program included the laying of cornerstones for two new buildings, the dedication of the Nancy Foster hall, class day exercises, presentation of the memorial tablet for Stephen A. Douglas, and various other minor functions. Mr. Rockefeller was greeted by a procession of 200 young women students whom he addressed briefly.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—
It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—
It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—
As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—
By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

TURNED OUT WELL

Excursionists Have Better Day Than Morning Promised.

Harbor Trip Is Easily the Most Popular Feature.

All Tell of Excellent Crops Throughout the Country.

The morning dawned cold and cheerless and there was every indication that the visiting excursionists would have another chance to comment unfavorably on Duluth weather. Shortly before noon the sun dispelled the moisture-laden clouds and this afternoon the cool breeze from the lake is invigorating and refreshing. The visitors are busy this afternoon and can be found about the city at all points of interest. The trip about the harbor and encircling the horn is easily the favorite and many of the dwellers on Minnesota's rolling prairies are enjoying their first trip on an inland sea. Enough rough water is found on their maiden cruise to give some of the voyagers an inkling of what seasickness is, but later this will be remembered as an important incident. The visitors are almost exclusively of the agricultural element, and with many of the younger people it is the initial visit to a large and modern city. The display windows of Superior street were of sufficient interest to keep many engaged all day. The large retail stores are being liberally patronized, and in fact most of the merchants in the business section are feeling the effects of this influx of people with money to spend.

Excursionists from every point through which the special train are unanimous in affirming that crop prospects were never better at any time in the Gopher state's history. The certainty of bulging granaries, the contents of which can be taken to market at good prices, leaves the thrifty farmer in a complacent state of mind.

The weather man announced that the rainmaker will have a busy day tomorrow, but it is probable that there will be enough sunshine to enable the tourists to complete their visits to attractive points not included in today's itinerary.

Te time of the departure of the excursion train is announced as 4:15 p. m. tomorrow from the Union depot.

G. M. Moore and George Petrie, of West Union, Minn., came in with the excursionists yesterday. These gentlemen have farms near West Union, which is ten miles north of Sauk Center. They have been making money with the aid of fertile Minnesota soil. A few years ago the prairie in that locality had never been disturbed by the plow, but it has been converted into a rich agricultural district, dotted with modest houses and spacious barns, and the thrifty tillers of the soil are gaining the necessary competence to sustain them in comfort in the sunset of life. Messrs. Moore and Petrie are enjoying their first visit to Duluth very much, and the weather cannot dull their pleasure. They say that the special train met with a slight accident at Little Falls, where a switch was misplaced, and the engine, tender and baggage car left the track. As the train was entering the yard limits, at low speed, the accident caused only a trifling delay.

Mr. Moore said: "The weather of yesterday was no disappointment to those of my party. We were fatigued and wanted a good rest before starting out to view the sights and wonders of Duluth and vicinity today. We are all feeling well over the prospects in our locality, and expect a bountiful harvest. The small grains are looking extra fine, and the stand of corn is very fair. With a little rain we will have the greatest crop of potatoes that ever came out of the ground. The Herald, containing a summary of the points of interest in Duluth, with which we were served on the train at South Superior, was greatly appreciated."

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Bourassa, of Little Falls, were in the party of excursionists arriving in the city yesterday. Mr. Bourass is engaged in business at Little Falls and is a large holder of realty. He says that general trade was never better in all mercantile lines, and that crops are in excellent condition. Mr. Bourassa made a mild complaint about the weather, but as this is his third visit to Duluth, he knows that the weather man has better things in stock.

DATE FIXED.

Woodland Street Railway Service to Quit June 30.

The Duluth-Superior Traction company has fixed a date for carrying out its threat of discontinuing its service on the Woodland line. It is July 1, and on and after that date, unless some arrangement is made, Woodland people will have to adopt other means of locomotion to and from town than by trolley. The ground given by the company for this action is that the Woodland line is in such bad shape that it is dangerous to use it.

Luther Mendenhall, a resident director of the company, draws a bad picture of the condition of the Woodland line, and says that the shutting off of the service has been delayed long enough. He hopes, however, that something will be done; either that the Duluth-Superior Traction company will get possession of the line or that the Woodland people will arrange to have the track fixed up so it can be used with safety.

Woodlanders are somewhat perturbed, but they do not know how the matter is coming out. They hope, however, that something will be done so they will not have to walk into town.

Time to Buy a Suit.

There is a great sale of men's suits and spring overcoats in progress at The Great Eastern. M. S. Burrows, within the last week came across a lot of 500 garments that had been made to order for a big Eastern firm, but the order had been cancelled owing to the unseasonable weather. They are all high class garments made for fashionable Eastern trade by one of the best manufacturers in the land. Mr. Burrows made a ridiculously low offer for the lot and much to his surprise it was accepted. The sale will continue until all have been disposed of.

Life Saving Inspectors Visit Duluth Station.

Capt. J. G. Klagh, of Harbor Beach, Mich., superintendent of the life-saving service in the Eleventh district, is inspecting the station and work of the crew on Minnesota Point today. Capt. J. H. Rogers, of Detroit, of the United States revenue cutter service is with Capt. Klagh. After a thorough inspection, including most of the day, the gentlemen declare that there is not a better kept station or a more efficient crew on the great lakes. Capt. McClellan is lauded as a most zealous keeper, and the crew is spoken of in the most complimentery terms. The drill of the crew in every branch of the service was military in its precision, and Capt. Rogers declares the entire work as being up to the highest standard of excelence.

Capt. Klagh goes down the lakes tonight, but Capt. Rogers will remain in the city until tomorrow.

A FOOT OF SNOW.

Denver, June 15.—Fully a foot of snow fell during the night in the mountain regions about Leadville and Cripple Creek. This establishes a new record. Serious floods are to be feared as the weather today turned exceedingly mild.

ARRIVES IN DULUTH

President F. E. House of Iron Range Road Is Here.

He Will Make His Home In Duluth Hereafter.

Indicates No Connection With the Missabe Road Management.

F. E. House, of Pittsburg, arrived in the city today. Perhaps it would be more proper to say that F. E. House, of Duluth, arrived in Duluth today, for this is to be his future home. He is the new president of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, formally elected to that position Friday morning of last week, but slated for it since shortly after the resignation of President Greatsinger.

President House arrived on the Omaha train this morning from Chicago and, after registering at the Spalding, went at once to the offices of the railroad. During the morning he made the tour of the offices, meeting the employes and getting his formal introduction to his new place under the escort of Vice President A. H. Viele.

The office of the president of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad has been during the past few years, those marked by the incumbency of J. L. Greatsinger, a place where geniality has had its home, and where the cordial smile and happy manner of the president were always in evidence. This has naturally tended to cause much interest among Duluth people in the character of the man who will be his successor.

They will find in Mr. House a man with a smile as genial and manner every whit as cordial, a man in whom good nature seems to lodge, one who gives the impression that he enjoys a good time and would not let the arduous duties of managing a large corporation detract from his mental equilibrium. There is that in his appearance, however, which indicates a large capacity, and it is safe to predict that he will be an easy handler of men and an excellent general director of large affairs.

Mr. House remarked this morning that he had not expected to find Duluth quite so chilly. He is here to stay, and will go back to Pittsburg and get his family just as soon as he can find a home for them. The impression has been that the B. C. Church home was bought for him by T. F. Cole, but Mr. House says that he has made no purchase of the house, an dhas made no arrangements for occupying it.

As to his official duties, Mr. House said that there is nothing to be said. When asked if he was to have any connection with the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, he said that he knew of none.

NOTED MASON DEAD.

J. H. Thompson of Minneapolis Is No More.

Mayor Hugo today received a message announcing the death of J. H. Thompson, of Minneapolis, grand treasurer of the grand lodge of the Masonic order of the state of Minnesota. The Scottish Rite of Minneapolis will hold memorial services at midnight tomorrow night and the general Masonic services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A number of the members of the Masonic fraternity in Duluth will go down.

J. H. Thompson was one of the pioneers of Minnesota and is well known to many of the old settlers in Duluth, and particularly to members of the Masonic fraternity. His career in that fraternity has been a distinguished one and is thus reviewed by a Minneapolis man:

"He was raised to the degree of master Mason in Bethlehem lodge, No. 35, A. F. & A. M., Sept. 15, 1856; was one of the charter members of Minneapolis lodge, No. 19, A. F. & A. M., which was organized Jan. 7, 1858, and filled the various chairs until December, 1868, when he was elected worshipful master. He served in that capacity for two years and was elected treasurer December, 1879.

"He was made a Royal Arch Mason in St. Anthony Falls chapter, No. 3, R. A. M., Feb. 15, 1859, and was a charter member of St. John's chapter, No. 9, R. A. M. He was made a royal and select master in Minneapolis council, R. S. M., No. 2, March 17, 1879, was dubbed a Knight Templar in Zion commandery, No. 2, K. T., June 12, 1863, and in May, 1892, was a charter member of Minneapolis mounted commandery, No. 23, K. T. He received the Scottish rite degrees, fro mthe fourth to the thirty-second degree, in September, 1879. They were communicated in Minneapolis by Venerable Sir Albert Pike, grand commander, who at that time instituted Excelsior lodge of Perfection, No. 2; St. Vincent De Paul chapter of Rose Croix, No. 2; Alfred Elisha Ames preceptory, No. 2, and Minneapolis consistory, No. 2, and Ancient and Accepted Scottish rite, all of which bodies J. H. Thompson was a charter member.

"He was elected treasurer at the grand lodge, A. F. & A. M., Jan. 16, 1877, serving at the same time in the capacity of treasurer of the Masonic orphans' and widows' fund; was elected grand senior warden in the grand commandery, Knights Templar, June 24, 1880; was exalted to knight commander of the supreme court of honor, Oct. 22, 1890, and was crowned honorary inspector general of the thirty-third degree, Ancient and Accepted S. R. M., Oct. 25, 1890, this degree also being conferred by Sir Albert Pike at Washington. He was elected a member of the Royal Order of Scotland Oct. 26, 1890. He was an honored member of Zurah Temple and served with distinction in the various subordinate and grand bodies of which he was a member, and at the date of his death was holding the office of treasurer of Minneapolis A. F. & A. M., St. Vincent De Paul chapter of Rose Croix and Minneapolis consistory, A. & A. S. R., of the grand lodge of the state of Minnesota, the widows and orphans' fund and the Masonic Relief association."

Clara Louise Thompson, now Mrs. E. C. Capen, a noted reader, who has appeared here, is a daughter.

The Herald's "want" columns continue to grow in volume and in usefulness. This is conclusive evidence where to obtain the best results.

WANT J. L. WASHBURN.

Movement For Him For School Director.

Another school election, when three members of the board of education of the independent school district of Duluth will be elected, is drawing near, and some talk regarding candidates is beginning to be heard. So far only one name has been mentioned, but that has come from several sources, and it meets with hearty favor. The only question about the favor it will meet with is in regard to the owner of the name himself, for he has not been consulted in the matter and his wishes are not known. The man that has been mentioned for place on the school board is J. L. Washburn, and no man that could be named could possibly be better received. Mr. Washburn was a member of the school board in his former residence, Mankato, for some time, and Duluth people who are acquainted with his service there unite in saying that Duluth could not do better than to induce him to give up some of his valuable time to the business of the school board. He is a cultivated gentleman with a deep interest in matters educational, and he would make a valuable addition to the board.

Before the date of the election, which is the third Saturday in July, there will undoubtedly be other candidates in the field. The election this year will be held under the primary election system, and nominations will be made at the primaries.

WILL NOT OBSTRUCT IT.

More as to the Michigan Street Fountain.

The board of public works in reply to the protest that has been made regarding the placing of a drinking fountain at the corner of First avenue west and Michigan street, is of the opinion that the protest was made without a knowledge of facts. The fountain will not obstruct Michigan street in the least. It will occupy a space five feet in diameter on the avenue, leaving twenty-five feet between the fountain and the curb. The matter will be taken up before the council committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks on Monday.

New Dairy Store.

J. P. Devaney this morning opened the Crescent Milk and Produce store at 111 West Superior street, where he will at all times have on sale pure milk and cream, butter, eggs and cheese.

Mr. Devaney operates a big farm, from which the largest part of his supplies will come, thereby guaranteeing his patrons the very best the market affords. Housekeepers know how unsatisfactory milk has been of late, but Mr. Devaney has fifty cows for domestic trade that will please and satisfy all. The Lindstrom creamery butter, recognized by all as the best, will be sold at this new dairy store.

BRITISH AMERICAN

Proposal For Settling Indemnity Question May Be Adopted.

Said to Be the Only Feasible Scheme For Settlement.

Effectiveness Can Only Be Attained By Unanimity of Powers.

Washington, June 15.—The news dispatches from Pekin convey to the official mind here the belief that what is known as the British-American plan of settling the indemnity question is making headway and that it will in the end be adopted as the only feasible scheme. The firm attitude of the United States in declining to enter into a guarantee of the enormous bond issue is believed to have had its effect in inclining the ministers to accept the British-American proposal. It is certain that any movement towards the settlement of this indemnity question must result in unanimity to be effective. Although often mentioned, the details of the British plan have not heretofore been given, and they were learned today from an authoritative source, to be as follows:

The Chinese government is to issue bonds to each of the powers to the amount of the indemnity due each. These bonds are to bear 4 per cent interest, with a clause providing half per cent for amortization. Certain of these Chinese revenues, not specifically designated in the proposition are to be ear-marked for the liquidation of the bonds. A committee appointed by the powers is to take charge of questions relating to the revenues thus ear-marked and the committee is to arrange details by which the revenues are to be applied on the bonds. In case of default on the bonds, the default is to be to the committee and not to the several powers. The foregoing is in substance the entire proposition, but later it was proposed in addition that the period of the bonds be thirty years, and that they be issued in installments. In this form the proposition stood up to within a few days ago, but it is not known in what particulars it may have been modified by the ministers.

COMMANDER BELKNAP DEAD.

Washington, June 15.—The navy department received a telegram this afternoon, announcing the death, at Baltimore, of Commander Belknap of the navy.

INDICTMENT.

Sixth One Found in Grand Rapids Water Scandal.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 15.—It developed today that the grand jury which has been investigating the alleged water works scandal the past two weeks, handed down a sixth indictment yesterday, which was suppressed on the order of the judge until service can be secured. The indictment charges that the five persons who were indicted yesterday, City Attorney Lant K. Salsbury, Thomas V. McGarry, Stilson V. MacLeod and Gerritt Albers, of Grand Rapids, and Henry A. Taylor, Jr., of New York, with other persons unknown on July 26, 1900, unlawfully and wickedly conspired to procure, by unlawful and criminal means, a contract for some person, firm or corporation, to be designated by them, to furnish the city of Grand Rapids with Lake Michigan water; such unlawful means being bribery of certain city officials, to-wit: The mayor and common council and board of public works, or some of them.

DR. MITCHELL'S GREAT WORK.

Crowds Continue to Throng His Reception Rooms.

W. P. Alsworth, Blind Eight Weeks—Cured By Dr. Mitchell After Five Other Doctors Fail.

This week is presented some cures for the benefit of our readers, made by Dr. Mitchell at 17 East Superior street, by his magnetic powers, which borders on the marvelous. Every word is true and founded upon facts that cannot be contradicted.

If there is any cure for you, Dr. Mitchell can cure you. Read the following remarkable cures which have baffled the skill of other physicians:

W. P. Alsworth was taken with sore and inflamed eyes. He applied to his family physician, but received no benefit. He went to the eye and ear infirmary, but failed to find relief. He gradually grew worse, but kept trying different physicians until he had applied to five different ones. He constantly grew worse until he went entirely blind, without hope, and, totally blind, was led to Dr. Mitchell, who cured his eyes and restored his sight by one month's treatment. We know this seems improbable, but nevertheless it is absolutely true.

Mrs. C. D. Boom, of Little Falls, Minn., cured of rheumatism and heart trouble.

Mr. Andrew Northem, employe of the Duluth Street Railway company, who was going blind with neuralgia of the eyes and suffering the most intense pain, cured in two treatments by Dr. Mitchell.

It seems strange to us that people should hesitate about going to see Dr. Mitchell. He is a thoroughly educated Magnetic Physician and the only genuine one in this country. You get the benefit of the very best magnetic treatment, which is far superior to medicine, and we ask again, why do you hesitate? He cures after all others fail, and he has hundreds of cases of every description that he has cured right here in Duluth, that you can see and talk to. The wealthiest and best people in the community patronize Dr. Mitchell. There is no disease but what he treats and his success in the treatment of chronic diseases has never been equalled.

Mrs. Thomas, of West Superior, was cured of a very bad case of dropsy and nervousness. Since her recovery she has gained 30 pounds. The doctor has removed a goitre which measured 24 inches around her neck; all was done without medicine after every other doctor had failed to benefit her. Her neck now measures 12 inches and is natural size.

What power this man possesses, perhaps cannot be satisfactorily explained, but that he does possess a strange and marvelous power to heal the sick cannot be denied.

Dr. Mitchell cures all forms of skin diseases, fistula, dropsy, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, constipation, all nervous disorders, all female complaints without the use of instruments, or exposure of the person, deafness, catarrh, blindness and all disorders of the blood and bones. He also cures cancers and tumors without an operation or pain to the patient.

Dr. Mitchell has an office at No. 17 East Superior street, Duluth, and by bringing this advertisement, it will entitle you to consultation free. Office hours daily from 9 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. Sunday 9 a. m. to 12 m. 'Phone 359.

OBJECTED

To His Mother's Name Being Used In "Spirit" Letter.

Detroit, Mich., June 15.—Allan H. Frazer, ex-prosecuting attorney of Wayne county, has brought suit against Henry C. Hodges, a prominent manufacturer of this city, enjoining him from circulating in his book entitled "Two Thousand Years in the Celestial Life," a letter purporting to have been written from the spirit world by Mrs. Lydia J. Manning, who died last March. The suit is brought on behalf of a son of the dead woman who objects strenuously to having his mother's name used as an advertisement for Spiritualism.

Hodges has written and published this book, under the direction of a medium named William E. Coole, in which this letter, purporting to have been ticked off by a typewriter in a dark room, appears. The son is positive the letter is not genuine and is determined to have the matter stopped. Mr. Frazer has made a careful study of the case and says that the court will issue permanent injunctions against both Hodges and Cole from bringing the mother's name in connection with voices from spirits.

FEARFUL CHARGES

Made By Servant Against Son of Murdered Woman.

Said He Pounded His Mother's Skull With a Brick.

Sweetheart Got a License and Begged to Marry Him.

Philadelphia, June 15.—The inquest in the case of Mrs. Sarah Haggenbotham, who was beaten to death in her home at 3216 Chestnut street on June 4, proved to be one of the most sensational coroner's court dramas ever enacted in Philadelphia.

Mary Wright, the negress who was in Mrs. Haggenbotham's employ and who was accused of the killing of the aged woman, was quoted as saying to the detectives:

"I think I have suffered long enough for some one else's crimes and I'm going to tell who did it."

On the witness stand she accused John Haggenbotham, the victim's son, of the crime. He was present at the inquest and seemed like a man out of his mind. Until yesterday the police were convinced that Mary Wright, the colored servant under arrest, was the person who dealt the fatal blow and crushed the skull of her aged mistress. All efforts to make the girl talk, however, have been unsuccessful.

In the presence of Capt. Miller, Detectives Geyer and Crawford and Coroner's Detective McKinney, in the private office of Coroner Dugan, the girl tired of the questioning and explained:

"I think I have suffered long enough for some one else's crime, and I am going to do it."

By this she meant that she would go upon the witness stand and reveal the identity of the one who she claims is the real murderer.

Strength is given to the woman's words by the result of Dr. Wadsworth's post-morten examination of the body. It is said that the skull was fractured in small pieces, and that this could not have been done with a bottle as was claimed. Mary Wright, the accused servant girl, was brought in by Detective McKinney, of the coroner's office. The members of the Haggenbotham family in deep mourning, occupied seats close by the accused.

Dr. Everett T. Sharp, one of the men who discovered the injured woman, testified that Mary Wright, the colored servant girl, had told him that a white man, wearing a black derby hat, had been in the house, and she had seen him peeping over the stairway. Patrol Sergeant George Faucet, who was in the wagon when Mrs. Haggenbotham was taken to the hospital, in his testimony startled all present when he stated that the colored servant girl, Mary Wright, had told him that "I judge Mr. Johnny knows as much of this case as I do."

His testimony was corroborated by the patrolman on the wagon, who also heard Mary make this peculiar announcement.

John Haggenbotham was next called. He started toward the stand, but when near the coroner he turned as if to go over to Mary Wright, the servant girl. He acted in a dazed sort of way, and when on the stand he turned and, facing the colored servant girl, raised his hand and called:

"Mary, Mary, come here to me."

He acted like a man in a trance, so Coroner Dugan ordered him taken to a seat, and Mary Wright, the servant girl, was then called.

Mary Wright, after being sworn, was warned by Coroner Dugan as follows: "Anything you say will be used against you as a means of punishment." The colored woman answered "Yes," and said she knew exactly what she was going to do, and would make a voluntary statement and tell all the truth and nothing but the truth, no matter what the consequences.

Mary Wright's story was a recital of one of the most brutal assaults ever committed in Philadelphia. She accused John Haggenbotham, the youngest son, of having murderously assaulted his mother, she having been an unwilling witness to the assault. The statement of the colored woman from her own lips is as follows:

"I was in the kitchen of No. 3216 Chestnut street early in the day when a man, rather tall, with a small mustache and a Fedora hat, came into the kitchen and said:

"'You are Mary, ain't you? Well, here are two bundles that John gave me to get you to put in your trunk to take to Somers Point.'

"I said: 'No, sir,' continued Mary. "'Nothing out of this house goes in my trunk, not even a button.'

The man had blood on his hands and said: 'My, but that feller up stairs has a hard heart. I am going to get out of this; there is nothing in this job for me.'

"The man also told me that he was the man who was in the house earlier in the day, and said he was going to give the job up. The strange man also said that he guessed John was up stairs putting the finishing touches to her."

Mary said she then went up stairs and walked right onto Mrs. Higgenbotham's face. As she reached the top step John Haggenbotham opened a door and came out into the hall where his mother lay.

"I said to him, 'What's the matter, John?' He answered, 'Hush, Mary. The man I got to do this has weakened and won't do the job.'

He then went into the room and got a bottle of wine and gave me a drink.

"I said I was going down stairs, when he stopped me and said he would give me a home in Somers Point all my life if I would not tell on him.

"Just then his mother raised her head and said: 'John, what did you and that man do this to me for?'"

John turned and said: "My God! I can't have her accusing me of this." He then stooped and, picking up a brick, bent over his mother and struck her about three times in the back and then threw the brick into his mother's face, making the blood spurt in all directions.

Mary said she promised to keep quiet and took the brick and hid it beneath a sofa, where it afterward was found.

Coroner Dugan tried to shake Mary's testimony by severe cross-examination, but the servant girl was firm and said:

"I am telling the truth. I wish I had not seen it, or did not know anything about it, then I could not tell it."

Detective Geyer was called, and he read a statement made by Mary, which was practically the same as her sworn statement on the witness stand.

The jury, after brief deliberation, returned a verdict that Mrs. Haggenbotham came to her death from concussion of the brain, the result of injuries received at the hands of her son John, and held Mary Wright as accessory before and after the fact.

A short time after Haggenbotham had been locked up, Miss Elizabeth C. Ferner, the young man's sweetheart, secured a marriage license from Clerk Bird. The woman went to the central police court and requested Magistrate Cunningham to perform the marriage ceremony, but he refused, saying that he would perform the marriage only with the consent of Coroner Dugan.

Police Surgeon Andrews declared that Haggenbotham was not in a condition to be married.

"He is a mental and physical wreck," the physician said, " and seems to be suffering from some drug. He is not able to be taken to Moyamensing prison and probably won't be for several days."

The woman and her attorneys appealed in vain to Coroner Dugan and District Attorney Rothermel to allow the ceremony to be performed, and finally the marriage was abandoned for the present.

AN IDEAL

A FRUIT TONIC

BEST FOR HEALTH.

CLEANSES THE SYSTEM. KILLS GERMS. . . . .

IN MICHIGAN.

New Catholic Edifice to Be Dedicated Sunday at Calumet.

Calumet—The new St. Anne church, erected by the French colony, is now completed and in readiness for dedication Sunday, June 16. The services will be conducted by the Right Rev. Bishop Eis, of this diocese, who will be assisted by priests from all over the country. A fine program of special music has been prepared. Work on the church was commenced May 3, 1900, and has been continued up to about a week ago. Pendergast & Clarkson erected the building, and the Associated Artists of Milwaukee did the decoration. The total length of the building is 140 feet and the width is 52 feet. The height from the floor to the highest point in the main auditorium is about 85 feet. The height of the tower on the outside of the building is 140 feet. The main auditorium contains 200 pews with a seating capacity of 800 people. The edifice and furnishings cost nearly $45,000.

Houghton—During a heavy thunderstorm Thursday afternoon lightning ran down a chimney in Henry Jenkins' house at the Quincy location, Hancock, striking his 13-year-old daughter and tearing the shoes off her feet and paralyzing one side of her body. She is in a serious condition.

Ole Rystad, 35 years of age, a Norwegian railroad grader employed on the new Red Ridge extension of the Copper Range road at Houghton, committed suicide at Hancock Thursday afternoon. He loaded his clothes with rocks and jumped into Portage lake. He imagined he had committed a crime for which the police were after him.

Bessemer—Johnnie Jubeck, a 10-year-old boy, whose parents reside at Bessemer, was arrested by Marshal Byrne on a charge of stealing several watches. When taken into custody he had a string of keys upon his person, which he finally owned up he had used in entering the homes of several citizens while the parties were out. He was lodged in jail, where he developed a strong case of measles. The authorities decided to allow him to go home until he is able to appear for trial, when he will doubtless be sent to the industrial school.

Menominee—The work of footing up the Menominee tax rolls has been completed. The total valuation of property is $5,782,129, of which $3,089,235 is on real estate and $2,692,894 on personal property. This is a decrease of $90,000 over 1900. This is partially accounted for by the fact that logs in transit were not taxed this year as last, which makes a considerable difference.

America Advancing.

American locomotives are hauling English trains, and the English trains and Englishmen are rolling over American steel rails. Our machinery is sold all over the world. A great American remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is gradually working its way to all parts of the globe where dyspepsia and indigestion thrive. Like all American products, it is honest, and does just what it claims to do. The most stubborn cases of constipation, biliousness, nervousness, liver and kidney troubles must yield to it. It is the most perfect remedy ever devised for weak stomachs. For fifty years it has been famous for its astonishing efficacy. It is a perfectly natural remedy, and there is nothing to equal it. DOMESTIC COMMERCE

Subject of Monthly Reports By the Treasury Department.

Settlement of Lands In Northwest Has Increased Trade.

Gossip About Republican Candidates For the Presidency.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Leading movements in the domestic commerce of the United States are now being made the subject of monthly reports by the treasury department. An idea of the growth of this feature of the bureau's work may be gathered from fact that April Summary of Commerce and Finance contains over 100 tables showing commercial movements at interior centers, traffic on the great lakes, receipts at the Atlantic seaboard, trade movements in Southern territory and on the Pacific coast, and shipments of coal, coke, petroleum and other mineral products in various parts of the country. In many cases comparisons are made between the four months ending April, 1901, and the corresponding period of last year. Attention is also called to the broadening basis of internal commerce consequent upon the conversion of vacant lands into farms in the Northwest and recent mineral developments in the Southwest, which sections are enjoying a large influx of population.

In Western territory, live stock and cereals are leading factors of domestic trade movements. The live stock receipts at the five principal markets of Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis and St. Joseph during 1901 show remarkable gains over last year, both as regards April and the four months ending with April, the official receipts of cattle, hogs and sheep in the four months just ended showing an increase of 659,417 head as compared with the corresponding four months of 1900. The rise in the price of corn is pointed out as being largely responsible for this increased movement of live stock to market, it having become more profitable to sell corn at 25 per cent above last year's price than to keep the stock on such high-priced feed. The receipts of spring and winter wheat at the eight markets of Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Duluth, Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, Detroit and Toledo for the harvest year to April 30 were 10,840,722 bushels more than a year ago, a gain of approximately 6 per cent.

The commercial movements at the Atlantic seaboard include grain and flour reduced to bushels. During April, 1901, Boston received 4,092,892 bushels; New York, 9,655,919 bushels: Philadelphia, 4,931,597 bushels and Baltimore, 6,213,254 bushels, making a total of 24,-993,662 bushels for those four principal ports.

In Southern territory the cotton movement is the most important, 9,384,947 bales having come into sight by May 1, 1901. Of this amount Texas alone contributed 3,508,499 bales. The growth of New Orleans as a grain port is seen in the fact that there were exported from that city during the four months ending May 1 18,022,363 bushels of grain, as compared with 14,153,127 bushels in the four months of 1900.

An event of sufficient importance to be noted in its bearing upon this phase of the internal commerce of the country during April is the shipment of a carload of Valencia oranges from Southern California to Portland, Ore., destined for Vladivistok, Siberia. This is the first fruit shipment of the kind and illustrates the tendency in this branch of production to relieve itself from the necessity of depending solely on the domestic and European markets. The failure of California orange growers to find a sufficient supply of cars to enable them to put their fruit on the Eastern market and the high rates of ocean freight from the Atlantic seaboard to Europe have conspired to force the growers either to work up the product at home or to find new markets in the far East. Another experimental feature in the distribution of the citrus fruit crop of California is the shipment eastward by way of coastwise steamers from Redondo to Seattle, thence over the Great Northern railroad to points as far east as Chicago. Several trainloads have been marketed over this route.

The positive announcement made by President McKinley last Tuesday that he would under no circumstances accept a third nomination for the presidency, was anticipated by those who were in his confidence. It has been stated in dispatches to The Herald that President McKinley did not desire a third presidential term, and it was further stated that in case he did so desire, he would not be nominated by the next national Republican convention. Major McKinley, it is believed here, has shown good judgment in making this statement at this time, though it is unusual for the chief executive of the nation to announce three years in advance of the expiration of his term that he would not be a candidate three times in succession, nor would he accept the nomination if it were forced upon him. He is the first president, next to Washington, to decline a third term.

Major McKinley, however, is well aware of the fact that it would be against the wishes of the people of the country to give him a third nomination in succession, as was the case with Gen. Grant when he had an ambition to become for the third time the president of the United States. Without doubt Gen. Grant, at that time, was equally as popular as President McKinley is with the Republican voters of the country today. As a matter of fact, the politicians usually dominate conventions, and if Major McKinley had signified his desire to run for a third term, he would probably be very easily defeated by some of the many candidates who are to enter the race for the Republican presidential nomination in 1904. This announcement on the part of President McKinley, however, will bring more prominently forward some of the men who aspire to the presidency in the next national campaign. Among these as is well known, are Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana; Vice President Roosevelt and Gov. Odell, of New York; Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts; Senator Foraker, of Ohio, and Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin.

It is not believed that Senator Hanna has any intention of endeavoring to secure the Republican presidential nomination in 1904. He will, is is believed, do his best, with the assistance of President McKinley, to have the convention select either Senator Fairbanks or Senator Spooner. It is said that Mr. Hanna and Major McKinley are anything but anxious to have either of the New York aspirants nominated in 1904, but whether they will have the strength in the convention to prevent the selection of either Col. Roosevelt or Gov. Odell, remains to be seen. It is believed impossible for Senator Foraker to secure the Ohio delegation at the next national convention, therefore, he will be entirely out of the race, and politicians here now believe that the candidates will line up practically as follows: Roosevelt, first; Fairbanks, second; Odell, third; Spooner, fourth.

It is not the intention of either Major McKinley or Senator Hanna to permit Ohio to elect delegates favorable to Senator Foraker from that state. It is also believed that Senator Platt is not at all anxious to have either Roosevelt or Gov. Odell nominated for the presidency, and unless his consent is given, it is quite probable that the seventy-two votes from New York in the next national convention will either be divided between Roosevelt and Odell or that they will be cast solidly for the administration candidate which, as before stated will either be Fairbanks or Spooner.

Under recent date Consul Hughes, of Coburg, writes as follows: "I have learned that the Austrian Fishery association will hold a large international fishery exhibition at Vienna during the latter part of September, 1902, a large subsidy for this purpose having been granted by the imperial Austrian department of agriculture. A special effort will be made to have as the principal figure of this exhibition a complete representation of the Austrian portion of the Adriatic sea, the products of its fisheries, etc. In my opinion this would be an excellent opportunity for United States houses interested in the fishing industry and in the manufacture of fish-taking apparatus to exhibit their goods."

THE DAKOTAS.

Sheriff of Butte County Buys a Few Bloodhounds.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Belle Fourche—Two bloodhounds have been purchased by the sheriff of Butte county to be used in tracking criminals and suspects. There have been several jail deliveries, the most exasperating being that of David Duharmo, who broke jail four years ago. He has just been apprehended near Dickinson. It is much more difficult to catch criminals in the Black Hills, where hiding is good, than in other portions of the state.

The country is flooded with rain. Every hole and dried-up lake is full, and ranchmen are commencing to cry enough. The range was never in better condition.

Sioux Falls—The twenty-second annual camp meeting of the Seventh Day Adventists of North and South Dakota has commenced here, and will continue until June 24. Over 100 family tents are pitched on Seney island. In addition there are six larger tents, in which services will be held in English, German and Scandinavian. Services will also be held especially for youths and children. Many prominent members of the church from adjoining states are present.

At a meeting of the directors of the Minnehaha National bank, George H. Perry, of Sioux Falls, was elected vice president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. W. S. Caldwell.

Deadwood—Capt. Seth Bullock, who has just received the appointment of forest supervisor of the Black Hills reserve, is the choice of the hills. He is familiar with every portion of the reserve, being one of the earliest settlers in this part of the state. Contrary to the report that has been circulated, the worms that have been devastating the trees in every part of the reserve are not dead, but this year will be as active as ever. It was stated last fall that a parasite had made its appearance and that the worms were being eaten up by them, but such is not the case. Settlers in every mining district in the hills is spotted with dead trees and those who have investigated are alarmed over the situation. Capt. Bullock intends to urge the department at Washington to do something immediately, before it is too late. The office of supervisor has been closed since the resignation of H. G. Hamaker, three months ago, and a large amount of work has accumulated.

Rapid City—A stock company has been organized by Rapid City men for the purpose of repairing the Harney hotel and leasing it. J. P. McElroy and John Barker will have charge of it.

Alexandria—Business men are talking of organizing a stock company for the purpose of building an opera house.

Pierre—Stockmen who live above the forks of White river report that feed on the ranges is far better now than it has been for several years past.

Milbank—Lieut. Sherman Nixon was elected captain of Company K to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Capt. R. W. Helms to the position of major.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The Episcopal convocation, which begins in Fargo Saturday, is expected to be the most largely attended of the kind ever held in the state. Bishop Edsall has developed enthusiasm to a point never before reached, and additional interest is lent the meeting from the fact that he has been elected coadjutor bishop of Minnesota. It is announced that the chief reason why Minnesotans are so anxious to have the bishop is to secure a strong man to reorganize the Episcopal school at Faribault.

Mme. Massey, the colored bagnio proprietress, has another chance to dodge the penitentiary. Recently the supreme court affirmed a sentence imposed on her by Judge Pollock for a year in the penitentiary, but on the showing of her attorneys the remittur has been withdrawn and application will be made for a rehearing.

Grafton—The meeting of the Old Settlers' association of the Red River valley closed after an interesting 2-day session. The officers for the ensuing year are: H. J. Haugen, of Abercrombie, president; G. W. Andrews, of Walhalla, secretary; D. W. Driscoll, of Grafton, treasurer. The next meeting will be held in Wahpeton in June, 1902. The enrollment for this meeting reached 150.

Forman—The board of health of Sargent county has raised a quarantine against public gatherings in the county.

Ludgerwood—Black diphtheria, which appeared on the Sisseton Indian reservation, resulted in only two deaths. Antitoxin seems to have cleared the disease out.

THE LADY OF THE CLOCK

BY DAVID ABBOTT PLANT.

(Copyright, 1901, Wm. R. Miller.)

While in London, several seasons ago, as the guest of a friend attached to the American legation, I met Lord Lionel Legrange, a typical English country gentleman, for whom I conceived a strong liking. This admiration seemed mutual, for, near the holidays, when I was on the point of running over to the Continent for a protracted sojourn, he cordially invited me to spend a fortnight with him at his country house, down among the Barkshire hills, and I accepted gladly.

We found Legrange Hall already well filled with charming guests, and the time spent there was an almost ceaseless round of gaiety.

The hall was a veritable treasure-trove of quaint legends and curious traditions, some of which were very ancient.

The library, situated in the north wing, was the repository of the family portrait gallery, contained in which was one painting that attracted universal attention. It was the portrait of a beautiful girl, charmingly arrayed after the fashion of a century gone, and hung across a corner of the room, just above a clock of massive proportions and antique design.

From the first this ancient piece of furniture possessed a sort of romantic interest for me, and I resolved, at the first opportunity, to question our host regarding the history which I had been informed was attached to both the clock and portrait.

The day before Christmas kept us close within doors—was an ideal one for the enjoyment of cheerful fires and story-telling, and after dinner we prevailed upon Lord Lionel to relate the legend of the Legrange Clock.

"Over a century ago," he began, "Legrange hall was the property and residence of my great-grandfather, Lord Percival Legrange.

"It was the Mecca for a large circle of of young people, among whom were a number of titled gentlemen, attracted hither by the celebrated beauty of Lady Grace, the Lord's charming daughter.

"The most ardent of these suitors was Count Octave de Berthier, a French nobleman of the bluest blood.

The count was a polished gentleman, which fact, coupled as it was with great wealth and irreproachable family connections, won for him the immediate regard of Lady Grace, to whom he speedily engaged himself, with the unqualified approval of Lord Percival.

"On Christmas morn, just one hundred years ago tomorrow, Lady Grace was found at the foot of the old clock in the library.

"In her breast was a long-bladed dagger, which she affirmed had been driven thither by Count de Berthier in a fit of jealous rage.

With her last breath she invoked a terrible curse upon her treacherous lover and his descendants forever.

"'Not until De Berthier blood has flowed to avenge my death shall the Legrange clock run again,' she said, and from that moment to this it has told the same trite story—a quarter till nine.

"Of the count's subsequent fate nothing was ever learned.

"Within the twelvemonth Lord Percival died of a broken heart, repeating his daughter's malediction.

"That, friends, is my version of the tragic legend, but the servants will tell you that on Christmas Eve the spirit of the ill-fated lady wanders at will through the north wing, calling aloud for vengeance on her dastardly slayer.

"Not within my ken has an attempt to start the old clock been made, and while not giving credence to the evil potence of Lady Grace's supernatural powers, I should think twice before disturbing its silent peace."

At the conclusion of the remarkable narrative Lady Agnes Thorne, rising with a wineglass held daintily between her fingers, proposed a toast to the memory of the ill-fated Lady of the Clock, as she pleased to call her.

The toast was drunk with a merry gusto, though I could see that our host's superstitious fears had been aroused and that he strongly disapproved such an irreverent proceeding.

It was with ill-concealed unwillingness that he showed us the dagger.

The blade was as keen as a razor, with a needle-like point and a handle in the form of a cross, covered with antique engraving, in the midst of which was a jeweled family crest bearing the name De Berthier.

The sight of the sinister-looking weapon cast over the spirit of festivity a shadow which the united efforts of host and guests failed wholly to dispel.

That evening Bobbins, the old butler, reported that he had seen the ghost of a woman among the trees near the gamekeeper's lodge, and, later, in the vicinity of the north wing.

He insisted that it was an evil omen. "For," he whispered, in affrighted conviction, "hit 'as the ghost of Lady Grace abroad tonight. Lady Hagnes should not 'ave treated so lightly the name of the dead."

We laughed him to silence, and he left the room, with a portentous shake of his hoary head.

No sooner had he gone than I began to entertain the most unaccountable misgivings.

His words had rooted themselves more firmly in my mind than I would have cared to admit, even to myself.

In the first reaches of a new day we sought our respective apartments, the balance possible to rest, I to toss restlessly from pillow to pillow.

Day was breaking when I was awakened from a fitful doze by a piercing shriek, which came from the regions below.

It was not a cry of affright or alarm, but the shrill scream of some creature in mortal agony, dying away with an unearthly sob that pierced to my very soul.

Shocked, terrified, quite benumbed with the horror of a first superstition, I could scarcely breathe.

Lord Lionel's tale of that dead and gone mistress of Legrange Hall, who had been stabbed to death, and whose spirit came, it was believed, on Christmas Eve, to cry aloud for vengeance, recurred to me with subtle power, striking me cold with fear.

The dread moments dragged on.

The horrible sounds were not repeated, though a silence more nerve-racking took possession of the startled dawn.

Suddenly it seemed as though a fierce current of chilling air passed through the room; a damp, moldy odor as from an old tomb assailed my nostrils for an instant, then I was myself again.

Hastily donning my clothing, I hurried below, with a feeling that something terrible had happened.

In the corridor I collided with Bobbins, pale and terrified.

"What in God's name has happened?" I demanded, hoarsely.

"Merciful 'Eavens," wailed the old man, in accents of terror. "Lady Hagnes is dead."

At the foot of the old clock, which was ticking away as sonorously as though it had not ceased its labors over a century agone, lay Lady Agnes, clad only in a rich night robe.

Her face was contorted with an agony which death could not dispel.

Lady Grace was avenged!

A STRONG PETITION.

New York.—A petition of unusual interest is being circulated in the interest of a plan to infuse into the veins of society a condition of pure blood. The assertion is made that in its present state, society is too conjested for the general health and well being of our country. An army of reformers has sprung up which is working with the firm determination to gain their end. Their agent in the work is the time-tested laxative tonic, Cascarine, the great blood renewer, great health restorer and maker of new blood. It drives out all impurities, cures dyspepsia and chronic constipation, restores the appetite and stimulates the digestive organs in their work of changing food into blood. Cascarine will change that sickly yellow complexion into one of health and freshness; Cascarine will brighten those dull eyes; Cascarine will strengthen those shattered nerves and make you feel well again. Cascarine does all this by stimulating the digestive organs to infuse plenty of fresh, wholesome blood into your system. Cascarine is made from roots, barks, herbs, plants and berries. Cures after all other treatments have failed or money refunded. Buy a bottle of Cascarine today. It is guaranteed to cure all stomach troubles or money will be refunded by manufacturers. At all druggists. Price, 50 cents per bottle.

The manufacturers will send to any address, free of charge, a little booklet explaining thoroughly the cause and cure of diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and one week's treatment, for 10 cents in stamps to cover postage.

WALLACE WELLS. R. D. ANNIS.

A PAGE OF HISTORY.

In the Catholic church service particular gospels and epistles are read upon certain Sundays and feast days that they seem to most aptly fit. And the same thing is read year in and year out, and has been read so for centuries. We think we are growing and expanding, and presumably we are, but it is along certain well traveled and clearly defined lines that other people have gone over. The supposedly new conditions we are confronting have been met time and again by those other people, and have been set aside by them, or have blocked their future progress depending entirely upon how those people profited by the experience of still others who had gone on before. The changes of the seasons, as our old world goes merrily 'round, are no more certain than is the recurrent rise, growth and fall of nations, for, verily, "doth history repeat itself."

May it not be well for us, therefore, to occasionally read a page of history, just to recall to our minds that we are not working along original lines? I will not attempt to analyze or to expound, ut will merely put before you a page I think is, perhaps, not out of place as a gospel for the period we have reached, some will call it a feast. It is from the history of Rome and describes a time just before our own era.

"After the conquest of Carthage and of Macedonia, the Romans held an empire. They became enamored of the women, the arts, the philosophy and the letters of Greece, and Greece, dying revenged herself by bequeathing her conquerors the corruption that had disgraced her old age. In the Orient, where, for centuries, commerce and industry had piled up vast wealth, that, of course, fell into the hands of these conquerors, the proconsuls soon lost the moderation and stern virtues their fathers had practiced, the strength of their race. Returning to Rome laden with the spoils of many nations they lived in regal splendor and introduced vices theretofore unknown. They scorned their inferiors, the mere people, and, scorning such rude worship, deposed their twelve great gods. Aye, even the proletariat, aping them, abandoned old gods for the new and fantastic worship borrowed from the East.

"One corner of the foundation of Rome was being destroyed.

"Another was also crumbling away.

"The middle class in Rome, holders of little pieces of property, the mainstay, the strength of Rome and of liberty—as it was and as it is in every land—was fast disappearing; most of that class had fallen in the wars, others had acquired great wealth by preying upon their fellows or by supplying inferior food and raiment at high prices to the army, and there was a huge gap 'twixt the rich and the poor. The latter, chiefly recruited from the freed captives, were therefore not Romans in any sense. There were nobles—the rich—and their 'clients,' a rable and vast numbers of slaves. And where there are slaves there can be no middle class. The two are never found in the same country. Now, the middle class is the rudder, as it were, of a nation. That lost, the ship of state is indeed on the way to destruction upon the rocks.

The army was changed, too; not, it is true, in its organization, but in its spirit. As foreign conquests extended and troops had to remain for years in a distant province, they ceased being armed citizens and became mere mercenaries; military service from being a patriotic duty became a profession. And the legions were a power in the state, politically as well as otherwise, a power that was easily purchased with money or with favors. They were no longer the troops of the republic, they were Marius', Pompey's or Caesar's.

"Likewise was the Constitution changed—no, the words remained the same, but their application, their interpretation by venal courts and rascally officers must have made its sturdy old Roman farmers turn in their sarcophagi. The senate controlled all things and became the citadel whence the nobility, offspring of the old patricians intermingled with the rich plebian families, dominated the government, the people, forsooth, the world! The senators filled the judiciary with their creatures, and the executive offices, the civic government, everything elective or appointive. The tribunes who still clamored for 'justice and the people' in the forums were firebrands of the senate, instructed agitators, maintained for a blind, and who knew just when to stop their agitation. Public works, roads, aqueducts, temples, all contracts were executed by the sons or relatives of the senators. Their agents everywhere loaned small sums at enormous interest. Private lands as well as public fell into their possession by fraud if not by worse crimes, and, by their speculations and peculations, they amassed stupendously colossal fortunes that produced more revenue than any human being could possibly spend. Some at first gave statues to the temples, some even built temples and dedicated other structures to public use, after extorting the wherewithal from that public, but few were as generously-spirited as that. They built senseless abodes for themselves, palaces of rarest marbles, gaudy displays of wealth and poor taste, baths fit only for an emperor, and country villas in every direction that were no longer villas but veritable palaces; ordinary food and pleasures ceased to satisfy them and they sought and found strange divertisements that were in turn succeeded by monstrous pleasures.

"And Rome found herself in the grasp of this oligarchy, the senate, that ruled her with a rod of iron, though she still bore the name of republic!"

Now, so endeth the first lesson.

May we not as a nation and as individuals draw from that lesson food for serious thoughts, remembering always that "like conditions beget like results" the world over and in all times?

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT

Chicago Inter-Ocean: The Volunteers of Americ are not very far out of the way when they declare that salvation follows the flag.

Washington Post: By calling for condemnation in newspapers Bishop Potter has succeeded in starting quite a clamor for shorter sermons.

Minneapolis Journal: A Nebraska minister asked the press for pointers on how to run a church, and the amount of free religious advice in the Nebraska organs is simply astounding. It shows that the editors have given the subject deep religious thought for at least ten or fifteen minutes.

Detroit Free Press: The reformed Presbyterian synod of America seems determined to make it as hard for a trades unionist to get into the kingdom of heaven as for a camel to go through the eye of a needle. Thus would the synod put the workingman on the same level as the rich merchantman.

Buffalo Express: The superintendent of Presbyterian missions in Porto Rico told the arbitration conference at Lake Mohonk on Friday that "the desire for native rule in Porto Rico must be ignored, and the personnel of the government should be distinctly American." The Golden Rule does not count in such cases.

Chicago Chronicle: The various religious bodies which are viewing with alarm some of the customs prevailing in the new tropical possessions of the United States should understand that colonialism is likely to result in some curious performances under the aegis of the American flag. With this territory extending more than half way around the globe Uncle Sam will have to get used to some things in a social way which would be likely to shock a New England prayer meeting.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Dowie, after howling and charging all over the platform Sunday, informed the audience that he was the Prophet Elijah, topping his scurrility and blasphemy with a message to his people. "Listen to the first message of the prophet," he demanded. "You must pay your tithes and offerings into the storehouse of God. Accursed be ye if ye would seek to rob His house of its fulness by not obeying this, His will, sent through Elijah." Selah! The first message of Elijah is, "Shell out!" Dowie is not in the prophet business for fun.

Atlanta Constitution: Those who join the Constitution in its crusade in behalf of the good old-fashioned hell do not all lose sight of the kindness, love, long-suffering and forgiveness. There is no question here between "religion and love" and a "religion of hate," as some of the controversialists contend. There is a doctrine of punishment for evildoing, and that is part and parcel of the religion of the Bible. We simply decline to take one part of that religion without taking it all. We believe in the Bible and we believe in the hell of the Bible. The world may be far from perfection, but it is better with hell in its religion than it would be without. We decline to believe that it is in the interest of good morals to hold out as punishment a hades that has no more terror than a round of golf links, even though we have heard golfists use some pretty strong terms in describing that.

IT WAS A RANK DEAL

Imperial Woodmen Were Beaten Out of First Place.

Penalized Five Points For Strictly Following Military Tactics.

Decision Nothing But Absurd---Judges Not Military Men.

Duluth's crack degree team of Modern Woodmen lost in the Woodmens' competitive drill on a foul. It was one of the rankess deals imaginable.

The Imperial camp's degree team made the highest score ever recorded in a competitive drill and yet the judges imposed penalties enough to give the prize to older tetams.

Local men who saw this cold deal feel very bitter about it. They say that the team of the Imperial camp, after weeks of the most diligent drilling in preparation, really won the highest prize in the competition at St. Paul, but were unjustly penalized.

Members of the team feel as badly about it as their enthusiastic supporters here at home. One of them said this morning that it appeared to be practically fixed up among the older organizations that a new team should not be permitted to win. This is the first time the Imperial camp has tried for the honor, and it may be the last.

In the drill the Imperial team made a score of 99 7-10 points. Major Resche says that the 3-10 of a point was knocked off this because a street car passing made so much noise that three men did not hear the command to open ranks.

But the penalty of five points was imposed because the judges thought that the team should be dismissed and reassembled after inspection, instead of closing ranks and going on with the drill.

This interpretation of the Woodmens' judges is liable to cause death from excessive mirth to almost any person that has studied infantry drill tactics. It is probably one of the most absurd rulings ever inflicted by a board of incapacity. It simply paralyzed the Duluth men. They were surprised and disgusted that they could scarcely bring themselves around to enter a protest. It was a severe blow, however, as they had been drilling night and day for weeks.

When asked concerning this, Major Resche said:

"Yes, it's a fact. Absurd? Why the dismissal of command after inspection is so unmilitary and contrary to tactics that I wouldn't have executed it had I known the interpretation of the judges."

The deduction of five points made Duluth's team 94 7-10 and put it hopelessly out of the running. The Rockford, Ill., team made the highest score, 98.09.

The Imperial team entered a protest against the decision, but it was turned down. One of the judges was from Rockford, and not one of them was a man of practical military experience.

The members of the Duluth team are: Major F. E. Resche, William Ottinger, R. Nelson, V. Anderson, D. Anderson, Joe Berini, William Pfitzenmaier, Fred Wood, C. Lemieux, Otto Warnese, Hector Lamount George Studley, F. Knowlton, Fred Lowe, C. Anderson and Clyde Barnecard.

The band of Whaleback camp, M. W. A., of West Superior, took first prize for Woodmen bands and second prize of all bands at the convention in St. Paul. The first prize was a purse of $150. The Woodmen and people of Superior are elated over the band's success, and will give them a warm reception tonight when they arrive home on the Twilight Limited.

ARE KICKING.

Commission Men Object to First Avenue West Fountain.

The board of public works could hear something to its advantage by passing up and down Michigan street in disguise and listening to the comments of the commission merchants on the new drinking fountain the board is putting in at the intersection of First avenue west and Michigan street.

The fountain is being laid in the middle of the square, and this is the reason the merchants are making torrid comments on the matter. They say that it will interfere with traffic to a large extent, that it will present an impassable barrier to fire apparatus in the part of the street where it is most likely to be needed, and that generally, far from being the blessing and convenience a drinking fountain is supposed to be, it will be a decided nuisance.

The council ordered the fountain to be placed under the viaduct, at the intersection of Lake avenue and Michigan street, and here it would not have been in a position where it could interfere with traffic so much. But the commission men fail to see why it should be placed in the center of the square anywhere. They say that it might just as well have been placed at one of the corners, where it would serve its purpose just as well and could not be in anybody's way. Michigan street is the narrowest and busiest thoroughfare in the city. Commission row is crowded during certain portions of the day with the teams and wagons of the commission men and grocers, and without any obstruction whatever the street is none too wide for the business that passes through it. With a drinking fountain occupying the center of a busy square there will be all kinds of trouble, and the commission men are making a vigorous protest that will probably be brought before the council Monday evening.

SOCIETY LADIES GIVE THEIR EXPERIENCE WITH PE-RU-NA.

Prominent Ladies All Over United States Are Using PE-RU-NA.

Miss Janet Wilson Gaire, President the Ohio Musical Club, Kansas City, Mo., writes:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"For the past few years I have tried several kinds of medicines when I was feeling badly, but I am free to admit that I never found anything to equal Peruna.

"Last fall I contracted a severe cold which seemed to settle in my joints and made me very uncomfortable for a couple of weeks, until I tried Peruna. Before a week was passed the soreness was gone and before I had used two bottles I was completely restored." Yours very truly,

J. Wilson Gaire.

There is no other remedy that medical science can furnish, so reliable and quick in its action as Peruna.

Miss Mattie L. Guild, President Illinois Young People's Christian Temperance Union, in a recent letter from Chicago, Ill., says:

"I doubt if Peruna has a rival in all the remedies recommended today for catarrh of the system. I have found it the best remedy I have ever tried for catarrh, and believing it worthy my endorsement, I gladly accord it." Yours truly, Mattie L. Guild.

For diseases peculiar to women, Peruna is a specific. Peruna never fails. It has cured many thousands of cases of female weakness. Dr. Hartman advises all women free.

Miss Bertha Fischer, a popular young woman of Appleton, Wis., writes of Peruna as follows:

"I have found Peruna a wonderful remedy for catarrh of the respiratory organs which I had for several months, and which nothing else I tried seemed to cure.

"My general health has been unusually good this entire winter, due I firmly believe to the health-giving qualities of your wonderful remedy." Yours sincerely,

Miss Bertha Fischer.

Mrs. Col. E. L. Gresham, Hernden, Va., Treasurer Daughters of the Confederacy, also President Hernden Village Improvement Society, writes:

"I cannot speak too highly of the value of Peruna. I believe that I owe my life to its wonderful merits. I suffered with catarrh of the head and lungs in its worst form until the doctors fairly gave me up, and I despaired of ever getting well again.

"It took six bottles of Peruna to cure me, but they were worth a king's ransom to me. I talk Peruna to all my friends and am a true believer in its worth."

Mrs. Col. E. L. Gresham."

People who have suffered from catarrh during the winter, generally suffer from nervous depression in summer.

Mrs. A. C. Jackson, Democratic Member Board of Lady Managers, World's Columbian Exposition in a letter from the Sherman House, Chicago, Ill., says:

"Peruna seems to be especially of value where nerve filaments are in disorder, digestion deranged or disturbances created either in the pelvic or respiratory organs.

"Several cases have come under my personal observation and I have been highly gratified to see the patient cured in every instance. I have tried it myself and find it a very valuable tonic."

Cordially yours,

Mrs. A. C. Jackson.

Men and women are subject to catarrh. Women are even more subject to catarrh than men. This is due to many causes. The chief cause is the delicacy of her organism, as compared to man. The extreme sensitiveness of the mucous lining of every organ of a woman's body is well known to physicians. This explains why, in part at least, so few women are entirely free from catarrh.

A vast multitude of women have found Peruna an indispensible remedy.

Everywhere the people, especially the women, are praising Peruna as a remedy for all forms of catarrhal difficulties. Send for free catarrh book written especially for women by a renowned specialist on the pelvic catarrhal diseases of women. Address Dr. Hartman, President The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

"TROTTIE" FIELD TO MARRY

Daughter of Children's Poet Surrenders to Cupid.

Baltimore, June 15—Miss Mary French Field, daughter of the late Eugene Field, the children's poet, is to marry William C. Engler, Maryland. Miss Field, who is familiarly called "Trottie" by her intimates, is well known in Chicago, where she makes her home, and throughout the great Middle West.

When her father died, five years ago,

MISS MARY FRENCH FIELD.

she took up public reading as a means of livelihood, and was very successful, especially in presenting the writings of her gifted parent.

Mr. Engler, whom she is to marry, is a native of Fredericks county, Md., who went to Chicago six years ago, and holds a good position as secretary of one of the big manufacturing concerns on the North Side.

For the past six months he has lived at the Field residence, on Clarendon avenue. The young people will be married this fall.

Rheumatism

What is the use of telling the rheumatic that he feels as if his joints were being dislocated?

He knows that his sufferings are very much like the tortures of the rack.

What he wants to know is what will permanently cure his disease.

That, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, is

Hood's Sarsaparilla

It promptly neutralizes the acid in the blood on which the disease depends, completely eliminates it, and strengthens the system against its return. Try Hood's.

Iron Is on Hand.

The Duluth-Superior Traction company is unloading three carloads of iron at the Central Park trestle in Superior for its new broad gauge track to the East End. This iron is what the company has been waiting for for a long time to get the real work on the track started.

All of the gravel will soon be on hand and it will be hauled along the line. Ties are also being unloaded. It is expected that work on the putting in of the track will commence shortly. Several hundred men will probably be employed at the fork as soon as the company gets things well started.

Traffic on the East End line will be continued as usual during the putting in of the track. It will be so done that the cars will be able to run on one line part of the time and on the other part of the time.

THE DEADLY STOCKING.

Causes Death of C. L. Catlin of Superior.

Charles L. Catlin, a very prominent resident of Old Superior and well known to all old settlers at the head of the lakes, died yesterday in Minneapolis. The death was unexpected and was an unwelcome surprise. Mr. Catlin had made his home in Superior since 1884. He leaves a wife and three small children. Some days ago Mr. Catlin was working in his garden, and while so engaged wore a pair of heavy boots, which caused an abrasion of the skin. The coloring matter of his hose became impregnated with his blood, and caused the disease which resulted fatally.

If you have a good business, advertise and keep it. If you have not, advertise in The Herald and get it.

The Wrong Medicine.

Thousands of people yearly treat their ails with the wrong medicine. They are in the habit of jumping at the first "cure-all" they see advertised and fancy they are going to be benefited.

People should use more caution in selecting their medicines. These are times when the country is flooded with the printed boasts of experimenters. Those who have piles in any form cannot be too careful in its treatment.

The delicate membranes may receive injuries from the humbug remedies that will lead to the most complicated eruptions.

Pyramid Pile Cure is the safest remedy known to medical science. It purifies the affected parts, reduces the tumors and takes away the inflammation. If you are troubled, try it.

It is prepared by the most skilled specialists who have made the curing of piles and kindred troubles a life study.

It is now the best known pile remedy before the public. Thousands have been cured who had experimented for years with every other known remedy. Hundreds who have been treated surgically without results have been completely cured by Pyramid Pile Cure. Don't experiment with dangerous drugs nor run the risk of a painful surgical operation. This remedy is a prompt, perfect and permanent cure for the most persistent case of piles. It is manufactured by the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., and has found its way into every wide-awake drug store on this continent. Ask for it and be cured of a disease which may lead to fatal complications.

DUN'S REVIEW

Bright Outlook In Wheat Crop Gives Business Greater Confidence.

New York, June 15.—R. G. Dun & Company's Weekly Review of Trade, says: Confirmation by the agricultural bureau of recent private estimates of the wheat crop has given to business a tone of greater confidence. Retail operations both East and West are larger and distribution of merchandise by the wholesale trade is increasing in dry goods and boots and shoes. The labor situation is gradually mending, with the appreciation of the fact that in some directions manufacturers would be glad of a temporary shut-down of works.

Pig iron production on June 1 was at the rate of 314,505 tons weekly, according to statistics compiled by the Iron Age. This about the anticipated increase for May and establishes a new high-water mark, exceeding the previous record by 13,380 tons. An interesting feature of the situation is the decrease of furnaces in blast to 252, which if 44 less than were actively employed Feb. 1, 1900, when the weekly output was 298,014 tons. Although new orders for pig iron have been light in recent weeks, actual deliveries on old contracts must have reached a heavy total, for furnace stocks June 1 were but 407,723 tons, a decrease of 30,565 tons during May. Conditions in the industry must be satisfactory if material is taken faster than it can be produced, notwithstanding a new record of output each month. Prices are easier, Bessemer pig iron showing a loss of about $9 a ton compared with the quotation in February last year, when the production was near present figures. This absence of inflation in prices is the best symptom in the market, and precludes a possibility of a collapse like last year. In finished products there is great activity owing to the large amount of goods to be delivered July 1. There is noted special urgency for immediate shipment by consumers of plates, bars and structural shapes, the activity in building operations showing no diminution.

Seasonable weather has somewhat aroused the dry goods market. There is not yet such activity that dealers are overwhelmed, but the various divisions of manufacture are fairly occupied and heavy supplies of print cloth at Fall River have decreased. Lower quotations recently established had a helpful effect, but the temperature was more potent for good. Forwardings of footwear from Boston have averaged over 100,000 cases weekly for some time and shops are well engaged. Fall contracts are beginning to receive attention. Prices are steady. Retailers are receiving better grades of glazed kid shoes without higher quotations. Local jobbing trade is very active. Scarcity of heavy sole leather sustains prices, but light-weights are dull and weak.

Wheat declined to a more reasonable level with withdrawal of speculative support. The government report of conditions on June 1 was chiefly responsible. A crop this year equal to the greatest ever harvested was indicated by the official statement and as department figures have generally proved below the final close, there was heavy selling of options, with a fall below 80 cents for cash wheat at this city. Foreign buying promptly decreased with the prospect of more satisfactory terms. Atlantic exports for the week, flour included, were 2,935,983 bushels, against 4,520,144 bushels the previous week and 3,081,926 the same week last year.

Corn also lost in value, although crop news was not especially bright. Atlantic exports are still unsatisfactory, amounting to 2,287,525 bushels, against 3,286,593 bushels a year ago. Notwithstanding somewhat lower quotations for corn, the provision market has developed much strength and pork products at the West are receiving the attention of speculators to an unusual extent, mess pork rising to $15.75 here.

Failures for the week numbered 179 in the United States against 162 last year and 23 in Canada against 21 last year.

SWALLOWED FALSE TEETH.

Scranton, June 15.—Last Thursday Gertrude Reddington, a servant girl, swallowed an upper set of false teeth while laughing. Physicians could not remove them, and yesterday adopted the heroic measure of forcing them from their lodgment in the æsophagus down into the stomach. They will take an X-ray photograph preparatory to opening the stomach and removing the teeth.

The Secret

Of womanly health would be esteemed as priceless by thousands of suffering women. Each month sees them moaning in a darkened room. At the best they endure pain every day. At the worst the pain becomes torment.

The secret of womanly health is in keeping the womanly organism in a perfectly healthy state. This can be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the periods, dries debilitating drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Women suffering from chronic forms of disease are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential and womanly confidences are guarded by strict professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There is nothing else "just as good" for womanly ailments.

"I suffered for more than ten years with female weakness of very bad form," writes Mrs. D. Marwood, of Treherne, Macdonald Co., Manitoba. "I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' with good results. I am able to do all my own work now. I do not know how to thank you enough for the kind advice you have sent me by letter. Your remedies did for me more than all other doctor's medicines, and I have taken lots of them."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness.

GRADUATION

Final Exercises of the Class of 1901.

Essays and Orations--- Diplomas Conferred.

The climax of the events of this commencement week in the High school was reached last evening. The closing exercises of the class of 1901, the largest and one of the brightest and highest in average that the school has ever turned out, took place. The diplomas were conferred and the seniors of the past year are now ready for entry upon a term in advanced education or upon the battles of life. They have received all that the Duluth High school can bestow upon them.

The class made a handsome picture seated on the stage of the large assembly hall. Bright-faced young women and manly looking young men they were, the light of intelligence shining in their countenances. The stage was prettily decorated with the colors of the class, red and white, and overhead was the class motto, "Vestigia Nulla Retrorsum."

CHARLES ALDEN SMITH,
Principal of the Duluth High School.

The exercises throughout were excellent. The class music was rendered with much spirit, and the essays and orations reflected much thought and were finely rendered. The large auditorium was well filled, but the attendance was not as large as at the class day exercises, the weather undoubtedly keeping many away.

The invocation was made by Rev. T. H. Cleland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

The program opened after a selection by the orchestra with "Alma Mater," sung by the class.

"A MODERN HEROINE."

"A Modern Heroine" was the subject of which Miss Ella Deetz spoke, and the reference is to Clara Barton, the founder of the Red Cross association. The speaker first told of Miss Barton's home six miles from Washington on the north bank of the Potomac river. Though humble in its farm-like surroundings, the place is in some respects unusual in appearance. But it is not because of its appearance that it arouses interest, but because of two small emblems in colored glass in the front windows, and a similar symbol on a banner that floats from the pointed stone peak. Hundreds of soldiers from Camp Alger pass through the grounds every day, sometimes drunken and boisterous, but a glance at these emblems transforms them, and they stand and salute.

Though not a national flag, this one commands respect because of the design which is a blood-red cross. The soldiers bow their heads in memory of bright faces that watched over their long nights of suffering, soft voices that soothed them and loving, tender hands that staunched their wounds. Miss Barton has been connected with this great work for nearly forty years, beginning with the civil war's outset. When the first blood was spilled in the riot in the streets of Baltimore, the wounded were taken to Washington, where Miss Barton was working in the patent office. The sight of the wounded brought upon her a realization that here was her life's work, and she took the forty sufferers under her care.

MISS ELLA DEETZ.

This was the keynote to her life thereafter. Her place she said was between the bullets and the hospitals, and she gave her entire time to the work. She organized a field hospital and a corps of nurses that were very efficient. Toward the close of the war Secretary Stanton called upon her to assist in the identification of the dead soldiers, and out of 13,000 graves she identified all but a few hundred.

The American Red Cross society was not formed until 1881. In Switzerland Miss Barton met the work of the International Red Cross society, already formed in several European nations, and returned to America, after a visit for her health, determined to make the government appreciate the value of the Red Cross service. At last she succeeded in influencing the United States to join the international society, and thereafter her work, before confined to the battlefield, became broader, chiefly of a hospital and charitable nature. She crowned her life work in Cuba by heroic efforts for starving and suffering people, not only Americans, but Cubans and Spaniards.

Miss Deetz closed with a glowing eulogy of the character of Miss Barton and her especial fitness for the work she chose for her life's mission.

"A WORD FOR THE GREEKS."

Leifer Magnusson spoke "A Word for the Greeks," and a good word it was, too, for he finds the Greeks to have been a race whose intellectuality was far ahead of that of the average of the people of today. All ages overestimate their own greatness, he said, and the present is no exception, though no age ever had greater reason for its pride. But our immense wealth, our improved social conditions, and our vast knowledge should not permit us to forget our debt to the past. The Hebrews supplied the basis of our common law, Rome bequeathed us her constitutional law and Greece laid the basis of modern art. The past has furnished many models for the present, but the present exceeds the past in the vast increase of its knowledge.

LEIFER MAGNUSSON.

The speaker was not so sure, however, that this increase of knowledge had brought a corresponding increase of individual intellectual power. He then gave it as the verdict of those who have made special investigations of Greek civilization that it was far in advance of our own. They do not judge from the mental ability of a few men like Socrates and Phidias, but from the mental average of the whole Greek people. In the small state with its few people were men that seemed to have attained to the highest human perfection in philosophy, literature, statesmanship and art. The literature of Greece is surpassed by none and it was the spontaneous outburst of Greek genius without any model or forerunners to follow. The splendor of that golden age is still reflected today through centuries of human progress.

The lustre of that age was lost in the gloom of the middle ages. In the fifteenth century intellectual activity again seized men, and the poets and philosophers of Greece again began to be read with zeal. In that literature great minds again found a stimulus and pleasure, and ever since the revival of learning Greek classics have wielded a powerful influence in the development of modern literature, and a study of European literature which leaves out its classical models cannot be anything but superficial. Modern literature could never have attained to what it is without the aid of Greece and Rome.

Apart from their literary value these tongues are essential elements in a thorough understanding of the English language. Even for a complete mastery of our tongue, study from another is very helpful. In conclusion he said:

"From what has been said, it will be seen that I have spoken to uphold the Greek language. Let the humanities, I say, be retained in their undiminished fullness. Let them be ever the landmarks of a liberal culture. Give us science, too, but give us that science which broadens the mind and liberates it from narrow specialties. Give us also a practical knowledge, for after all the most useful education is the one which leaves us the happiest and makes us men of the highest ideals."

Miss Rena V. Smith, whose charming solos formed so effective a part of the class day exercises, then sang Bishop's "Should He Upbraid" in a most delightful manner. She was warmly applauded.

PLEA FOR ATHLETICS.

Hans Haroldson, himself one of the shining athletes of the high school, made a plea for "Athletics in the High School." He holds that weakness is a crime; that, if inherited, it is the crime of our ancestors; if otherwise, the crime is our own. The Divine Creator intended the body to be the temple of the soul and invested it with a muscular fiber that strength and agility might be its attributes. For the development of that muscle exercise and exertion are necessary. Man deleops slowly and his period of growth is by no means over when he reaches the freshman stage in his school life. A few decades ago athleticism was looked upon with suspicion and a stoop was ordinarily associated with intellectuality if not actually considered an essential. The inventions of labor saving machinery have given the temporary illusion that manual labor is no longer necessary. As the demand for brain workers has increased the development of brains has by many been considered the only important requisite of education. That people have come to see the danger and absurdity of such ideas is a source of much gratification, but that so few interest themselves and encourage athletics is a matter of disappointment.

HANS HAROLDSON.

Good health is one of the most essential elements of high morals, the young man argued, and athletics bring health. Human nature, too, demands social intercourse and where can better and healthier associations be found than on the campus or the ball ground?

In athletics, too, is found an outlet for that overflow of spirits which sometimes results in rowdyism. It imbues the temperament with steadiness and application, and affords the necessary variation from study. The woodpile, which is so frequently suggested for the development of the young man's muscles does not appeal to Mr. Haroldson for he finds that "sawing wood allows no recreation, is uncongenial work and thus serves to depress the spirit and sap the brain strength."

The speaker also argued for manly strength because it is admired by woman and because if man neglects it woman will become the superior being, if she but begins to pay attention to her physical development. "This evolution is usually ridiculed but, laugh at it if we will, the bloomer girl and the shirt waist man are certainly indications of a transition of some kind."

The fact that athletics increase school patriotism was presented. The speaker said, however, that sometimes to much time and attention are given to them and control is, of course, necessary. The benefits derived from healthful exercise were pictured as many. Baseball brings out such qualities as quickness of perception and presence of mind. Football develops courage, self-control, poise of will and steady nerve for meeting a crisis. Football was defended in the following declaration:

"Those loudest in their denunciation are those that have never seen a game but have had their imaginations fed by rumors and senational newspaper reports. But those that havo played the game and all competent and experienced judges declare that it is the most beneficial and educating exercise yet produced." Mr. Haroldson discussed the game and the physical development necessary to play it to some length.

Men may achieve brilliant success even if they have weak and sickly bodies, he said, but how much greater would be their power had they strength and health. "To be strong is a duty we owe to posterity. The time and money devoted to athletics is, therefore not expended in vain, but goes toward the laying up of a physical capital and forwards the noble work of realizing a race of stronger men and more beautiful women."

The class sang one of Mr. Custance's clever arrangements, "D. H. S.," which the audience applauded heartily.

"JAZON."

"Jazon—a sketch," was the subject treated by Miss Florence McLean, in an interestingly original manner. She said that Jazon was a poet, which was why he made a failure of life. Though the poet in him aaw all the possibilities of happiness and success in life, the prosaic world is difficult for a poet to deal with, so Jazon failed. It was a pity, for he had many talents—too many, perhaps. He played by instinct all the musical instruments he could lay hands on, his gift of mimicry was wonderful and he was full of mechanical ingenuity. But he lost more money than ever he made; his inventions fell just short of the mark; his music never made itself heard in the world. Though he was a poet, a stranger never would have guessed it from his gray felt hat slouching comfortably and his huge rubber waders as he floated in his tiny rowboat down the current. His face was of that florid cast that is markedly unpoetic, and his not overlarge blue eyes did not glow with inspiration. His prominent nose was also florid, and his rich tone was a contrast to the thick gray moustache which was its nearest neighbor, a moustache that was a darker, sterner hue than his benignant white hair, which was soft and fine as silk. Tall and erect, though portly, he made a fine figure of a man. But as a poet? No, not by the strongest stretch of the imagination could he have been dressed, drilled or dragged into the remotest semblance of a poet. Indeed, he looked rather cumbersome in his little boat, which he declared was "just a fit." He held in his teeth a small briar pipe, which had gone out, but was evidently at home in the situation.

Then, too, he had never in his life written a line of poetry, nor did he often read any. If he had done so he probably would have admired the wrong things, things in which sentiment predominated over imagination; things about broken-hearted maidens, or possibly about some faithful dog, starving to death on his master's grave. Descriptions of natural scenery failed to interest him, especially descriptions of the sea. His friends sometimes enclosed in their letters clippings from the "Poet's Corner," in which the English language was exhausted in the well-meaning effort to conjure to the mind a vision of the sea. Jazon politely admitted that the description was somewhat like the ocean, but then, the ocean was not one bit like the description. Then he would forget the verses in a wordless reverie upon that great, changing, musical, living poem, drawing his thoughts away far beyond, where imagination grew dim in horizons that no ship has neared. And so it will be seen that Jazon, in spite of his imperfect equipment, was a poet. He is a poet even now as he sits with his pipe between his lips, drifting with the tide.

Clarence D. Shepard sang a tenor solo, Bishop's "Pilgrim of Love," in a very pleasing manner, and he was applauded warmly.

"NEW GOSPEL OF WEALTH."

William Rose discussed "The New Gospel of Wealth" in a very thoughtful and interesting manner. He said in opening that there is a good destiny in the affairs of men, and that the world is always growing better, forever rolling out of the shadows into the sunshine. Nearly 2000 years ago the young ruler was told by the Master to go and sell all that he had and give to the poor; but he went away sorrowing, for he had great possessions. In that he sought the right and sorrowed at its cost he was ages better than his time, but in refusing the sacrifice he echoed the spirit of his surroundings.

The speaker referred to Andrew Carnegie, whose life is a history of successes in the face of great odds. The force of his genius created great commercial enterprises and won him a place in the world of thought. He is a modern Midas; all that he has touched has turned to gold. But greatness is not measured in riches, and his greatness is founded in love. He has spent more money in his libraries alone probably than any other man in any age. The centuries are working out great problems, some plain and many obscure. Great changes are taking place. Last March the formation of the most gigantic combination the world has ever seen occurred. The principle of cooperation, of which the United States Steel company is the greatest example, may be termed the altruism of wealth. It means that the business world recognizes that co-operation and not competition is the most profitable. But there is also developing an altruism of wealth in a far higher sense, and of this Andrew Carnegie is the greatest example. There has been published a book of essays, written by him, entitled "The Gospel of Wealth." It is of this gospel that I speak.

WILLIAM ROSE.

The true relations between men, dimmed as they are by pride and selfishness, show that they are all marching under the same banner, and should they not share their rations? Riches are a sacred trust, to be used for the best good of those among whom they were obtained. This is not a gospel of luxury dictating vast expenditures to gratify personal pride. The wishes of those who leave their wealth to charity are often disregarded, for there is no charity in a will any more than in any other legal document. As to leaving wealth as an inheritance, Mr. Carnegie says that he would as soon leave his sons a curse as the almighty dollar. Unwise giving is as bad as none, or worse, such as that which makes beggars. Mr. Carnegie has pointed out by his example that judicious giving is practical. When the submerged tenth shall have been raised by the efforts of the philanthropic rich, and giving shall be as much a business principle as getting, there will be hope of better things. The new gospel of wealth, with Andrew Carnegie as its master builder, stands as a temple of hope in the gloom of the ages.

The valedictory song, "When Shall We Meet Again," by German, sung by the class, completed the exercises so far as the class of 1901 was concerned, and marked its final act as a class.

CONFERRING DIPLOMAS.

After the exercises Principal Charles Alden Smith presented the class. He mentioned the four long years of work which the class had just finished, their teachers' sorrow at their departure and said that they were now entering upon a new life, which to many of them would be very different from the one they were just completing. He had not much advice to give them only that whatever they did in years to come, let them do it with the earnestness with which most of them pursued their school work and which was necessary to all students who graduate from a school at which the requirements in scholarship are as strict as they are at the Duluth high school, and which was necessary to all who are to succeed in the world. At the close of his address the principal presented the class to Superintendent Denfeld.

In his address Mr. Denfeld said that he, too, had little advice to give the class. Hundreds of young men and women were standing on stages at this time of the year, at this very moment in fact, all over the country, while advice was being given to them by their instructors. He was glad, yet sorry to see them go. Many he hoped would continue their education at other institutions of learning. And those who did he was sure would reflect credit on the Duluth high school. As he looked in their bright, intelligent faces he felt very proud of them. They were one of the largest, if not the largest class that had ever graduated from the school, and also one of the best in scholarship.

"And now, young ladies and gentlemen of the class of 1901," continued Mr. Denfeld, "I take the greatest pleasure in presenting you the documents which will make you graduates of the Duluth high school."

The diplomas were presented and the exercises closed with the school song, "Triumphales."

LAST CHAPEL EXERCISES.

Addresses By Teachers--- Class Presidents Respond.

With class night, commencement and the Junior-Senior reception as diversions, the last week of the school year has passed very swiftly and pleasantly to the High school students, except, perhaps, the seniors, whose joy at once more being free from studies for another long vacation, is dampened by the fact that this has been the last week that they will spend at their Alma Mater.

On Friday morning the last chapel exercises of the year were held in the High school assembly hall. After the usual bible reading, Principal Smith made his farewell address to the seniors, and to the rest of the school before they separated for their summer vacations. He said that he and the rest of the teachers appreciated the willingness with which the seniors had always complied with the requests of their instructors; that they had enjoyed teaching them, and had enjoyed watching them improve in their work, and now that they were going to leave never to return, words could not express his regret. He supposed that some mistakes had been made by the faculty in dealing with them and for these he was sincerely sorry. Then, making his speech more general, and addressing the whole school, he reviewed briefly what had been accomplished during the last nine months. Speaking of the importance of the secondary course, he said, that formerly people believed that the most impressionable age through which children pass, begins at 6 and ends at the age of 10. Recently this has been disproved, and now it is generally admitted that with girls this stage begins at 11, has its maximum of impressionability at 14, and ends at 17. With the boys it begins at 12, is at its maximum at 16, and ends at 19. Thus it will be seen that in either case it falls in the secondary or High school course, making it the most important of all the stages of education.

He greatly regretted the fact that so many of those who enter the school with each freshman class drop out before finishing the course. This year out of 570 that entered in the fall 100 have discontinued their courses, in some cases from necessity, but generally because they were tired of their school life or because they believed that the world was no longer able to get along without them.

He bade the undergraduates good-bye, hoping that when they again assembled in September that none of their faces would be missing.

When Mr. Smith had finished his address, the class presidents, beginning with the seniors, each addressed the principal and the faculty in behalf of his class, thanking them for their kindness. As each president's speech ended his class gave their cheer.

After chapel the year's reports were given to the classes in their respective rooms. The school year is over.

PASTOR DISCIPLINED.

Accused of Kissing and Hugging Young Ladies.

Greendale, Mass., June 15.—Rev. G. F. Wheeler, pastor of the Baptist church here, has been advised by the members of his church to pay less attention to the young ladies and more to his wife; to take these same young ladies driving alone no more; but to take his wife out driving with him instead. The clergyman has been told that his carriage is large enough to admit his wife when he takes young ladies to ride and that he should not neglect to take her again. He has also been accused of kissing and hugging young ladies and in a meeting before some of the leading members of his church he has admitted that he has kissed, on more than one occasion, Miss Ethel Woodward of Greendale. The church meeting was held June 4, and one of the men present told of the rumors afloat, that Mr. Wheeler had kissed Miss Woodward.

"Did you?" he was asked.

"Well, it was in this way," Mr. Wheeler is said to have replied. "You see Miss Woodward was a Sunday school teacher in my church and very intimate with my ward, Miss Wheeldom. I was going home with them and endeavoring to settle some dispute between the young ladies. They were disputing to such an extent that I tried my best to smooth matters over and finally succeeded, but meanwhile Miss Woodward, as well as Bertha, Miss Wheeldom, said many things that they were doubtless sorry for and at the close Bertha said: 'Now, kiss papa and make up with him for all the naughty things you said to him when so angry.'"

STATE'S GOOD TEMPLARS.

N. T. Moen of Shelly to Head the Organization.

Taylors Falls, Minn., June 15.—Thursday was the most interesting day of the grand lodge of Good Templars. Resolutions for an increase in the salaries of grand chief and grand secretary were adopted. There was a heated debate over the proposition that no subordinate lodge be allowed to have or permit dances or card playing in halls which it owned or controlled, but it was laid on the table.

Grand lodge officers elected and installed were: Past chief templar, N. J. Bray, Holland; chief templar, N. T. Moen, Shelly; counsellor, George H. Hazzard, Park Lodge, Taylors Falls; vice templar, S. Kalland, Minneapolis; superintendent of juvenile temple, Miss L. P. Cole, Minneapolis; secretary, Miss A. E. Safely, Minneapolis; treasurer, L. Mell Hyde, Minneapolis; chaplain, C. W. Ellis, Soudan; marshal, R. C. Sloan, Duluth; electoral superintendent, J. J. Fikkle, Ada.

There was a platform meeting in the evening with addresses by Princell and Dutton and music and readings by local lodgemen. St. Paul was designated as the place for the meeting in June, 1902. The customary resolutions of thanks to the railroads, the press and local lodge were adopted.

REMOVAL NOTICE.

We beg to advise our customers and the public generally that we have removed from 301 Exchange Building to

Lonsdale Building,
Cor. Third Ave. West and Michigan St.

In these new commodious and enlarged quarters we have thoroughly equipped one of the most complete manufacturing electrical plants and repair shops in the Northwest, and are now fully prepared to do a general construction and supply business — install complete plants, dynamos and motors. We will make a specialty of repairing and rewinding dynamos and motors, and our facilities warrant us in saying that with our force of expert workmen, specially adapted for this class of work places us in a position to do this work as satisfactorily and economically as can be done in the large factories of New York or Chicago.

We will also do electric light and bell wiring, install private telephone plants and fire alarms, design and manufacture special electric light and gas fixtures.

Gold, Silver, Copper and Metal Plating,

In fact anything and everything in the electric work or supply business will receive every possible attention at our hands.

A Beautiful Stock of Fixtures.

A bright, cheerful show room stocked with the newest novelties the market affords, in plain and fancy colored gas globes, electric light shades, lamps, wall and ceiling fixtures, is something new to the public of Duluth, but we propose to make ours the most satisfactory electric supply store in the state. Estimates for hotels, public buildings and private residences furnished upon application. We want your orders and can assure you that with our increased facilities we are now in a position to execute them promptly and satisfactorily.

DRAMATIC

"Sag Harbor" at the Lyceum Monday Night.

Company Returning From Pacific Coast.

When the critical press of San Francisco—celebrated for its "roasting" propensities—endorses a play, that play must possess extraordinary merit. When the new Herne play, "Sag Harbor," was presented there recently, the entire 'Frisco press were unanimous in pronouncing it the best attraction seen there since Bernhardt and Coquelin left the coast. New York, Chicago and Boston had previously put their seal of general approval upon "Sag Harbor," the consensus of opinion being that it is a better play than "Shore Acres." In fact "Sag Harbor" seems to have captured the cities everywhere, and as for the public, they have flocked to see it in its tour from Maine to California. This new play of the late distinguished author, James A. Herne, seems a fitting climax to the brilliant career of Mr. Herne, who has done so much for the American stage. Duluth will pass judgment upon it at the Lyceum on Monday next, when it will open for a two-nights' engagement. Manager Williams is fortunate in securing this splendid attraction for the final fall of the curtain closing the season of 1900 and 1901. The production here of "Sag Harbor" will be the original one, exactly as given in New York for three months, and the cast the identical one that supported Mr. Herne. The company is now en route East after a tour of the Pacific coast, where it was greeted with a succession of packed houses.

MRS. SOL SMITH OF "SAG HARBOR" COMPANY.

In a column review of "Sag Harbor," in the Portland Oregonian, speaking of the principal players, it said:

"Besides the people who are most directly concerned in the plot, there is Freeman Whitemarsh, who is the village painter and choirmaster, and who requires only to say 'Come 'ere' to win any girl in town. There is also William Turner, agent of the 'steambut' Antelope, a number of villagers who are as unlike as the people we meet every day, and last of all there is the most delightful baby ever seen on a stage. The scenery carries out the whole natural atmosphere of the play, and consequently is all that art can make it.

"It is a hard task to single out the members of the company, for no all-star cast could more perfectly interpret such a play. George Woodward plays Cap'n Dan so naturally that one never misses Herne, and if a higher compliment could be found for him it is not within reach of the writer.- Marion Abbot, last seen here when she faded the stars in the Kelcy Shannon production of 'The Moth in Flame,' was Elizabeth Ann Turner, the spinster, who accepts Cap'n Dan after fifteen years of lovemaking, and a wonderful piece of work she did with the part. Frank Monroe, as William Turner, didn't act at all; he was just the old, keen-witted, loquacious steamboat agent. W. T. Hodge, as Freeman Whitmarsh, red of head and rasping as to voice, reminded every one in the audience of village characters they had met, and perhaps contributed more to the merriment than any of the others. Forrest Robinson was all that could be asked of Ben Turner, and one can ask a good deal of such a part. J. Wooster Dean played Frank Turner acceptably. Fanchon Campbell, as Martha Reese, was allotted the difficult task of bringing unhappiness into such a sunny scene, and she did it admirably. Charlotte Walker made a very winning music teacher, contributing a delightful bit of comedy in the last act. Mrs. Sol Smith made much of the small part of Mrs. John Russell, and her allusions to the late Capt. John will be long remembered. The remainder of the cast, which is considerable, was so good as to cause not one jarring note in the general harmony of the production.

"'Sag Harbor' will be the attraction the remainder of the week, with a matinee Saturday, and those who miss it will miss the best attraction of the whole season."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

George W. Lederer Has Made Another "Find."

New York, June 13.—George W. Lederer has made another "find" in an Ohio girl which he believes will fully rival his discovery of Edna May. She is Miss Shirley Davis, and comes from a small town near Newark, Ohio. She is but 19 years old, and came to New York about two years ago to become an instructor in dancing, physical culture and gymnastics at the Nurses' Settlement in Henry street and the Phelps Settlement of the Phoebe Guild at Thirty-fifth street and Second avenue. Later she was instructor of dancing at Dr. J. L. Elliott's Settlement on Eighth avenue. Lederer heard of her through a friend who has been interested in mission work on the East Side, and finally he consented to give her a hearing. He found she could sing and was a finished elocutionist. She so impressed Lederer that she was engaged for "The Strollers," and will make her debut on June 17.

The approach of the hot weather has not prevented Miss Grace Filkins from being worried over her diamonds. Unlike the average actress in need of summer press notices, Miss Filkins has not lost any precious stones. They are being forced upon her in a mysterious manner and with Monte Cristo prodigality. Besides, Miss Filkins is not in search of an engagement, for she seems placed for the summer at least in "The Buxton Burglary," at the Herald Square. But she is excessively annoyed by an unknown admirer who sends her diamonds every week without any clew to his name and address so that they could be promptly returned. Miss Filkins' latest exhibit is a diamond-encrusted, heart-shaped pendant, and a card which would be a total blank were it not for the words "For you." There is danger of Miss Filkins' serious indisposition in case the mystery is not speedily solved. All this is upon the highest authority.

Manager M. B. Leavitt has practically completed the details for the tour of Rose Coghlan, and is casting about for a quiet place to spend a little resting time. In view of her success of the Empire revival, it is probable that "Diplomacy" will have a prominent place in Miss Coghlan's repertoire. "London Assurance," "The School For Scandal" and "Peg Woffington" will also be given. Just as soon as this star is launched Leavitt will begin work on his athletic carnival for the South. John T. Sullivan is greatly pleased at the prospect of work after his own heart, and he will figure prominently in the aggregation.

Jim Corbett was sitting in his Broadway studio the other afternoon thinking up new bits for his monologue, when in drifted a Westerner of fixed purpose but unsteady legs, who demanded to know where Corbett was and when he could see him. He seemed perfectly satisfied when Corbett assured him the former champion would not return until the latter part of the evening. "There's a new one for the monologue," remarked Jim, "because that has just reminded me of an incident out West when I was matched to fight Sullivan. At the same hotel was stopping a fresh drummer, and we sat together at the table. He had been showing off for about half an hour, when he turned to me and asked me if I knew Corbett. I caught on and wanted to know who Corbett was. Then I strung him along for a quarter of an hour, and we walked out to the office together. There were a lot of people looking at me, and I thought surely that drummer would tumble. Finally he did wake up a little. He slapped me on the back and said: 'Say, it's the greatest joke ever happened. Do you know they think you are Corbett. It's great.' I have never seen him since."

Now that the march of improvement has decreed that Corbett's saloon must go, it is more than likely that he will devote himself to the stage. He is booked for that monologue almost solidly for the next year, and he is beginning to dwell again upon the alluring prospect of a starring tour with his own company and his wife as his leading lady. Following the example of many managers Corbett goes to England on Tuesday, and he may pick up a play or two just to be in the swim.

The stock company revival has been growing splendidly. Now Charles E. Blaney has secured a ten-year lease of the New Century Theater in Newark, and will put a stock company in it.

Oscar Hammerstein's ducks have caused considerable trouble ever since the Paradise Gardens were opened, but the climax was reached the other evening. A party of college boys in uniform were among the spectators, and with that peculiar college spirit suddenly decided to wipe out the windmill and literally chase the duck. They had, of course, imbibed enough extraneous spirit to make the merry jest appeal to them with full weight. The first duck was hit in the neck with a soda water bottle and promptly laid down and died. The college mirth grew apace. Then entered Hammerstein, he of the wily ways. One youth was bending over the pond, reaching for another duck, when Hammerstein turned him into an involuntary bowling ram and landed him with a splash. A moment later the dripping youth was led into Oscar's private office and a heart-to-heart talk followed. The chastened offender said he preferred to pay sooner than go to jail, and he was allowed to settle at canvas-back rates. Then the whole party sought excitement elsewhere.

While on the subject of Hammerstein it would be well to read a short note which (the press agent asserts on his honor) the doughty manager sent to the city authorities when trouble seemed to be brewing over a license for putting up his windmill. This note read as follows: "If you gentlemen object to giving me a license for my windmill I will be compelled to turn it into a ginmill. Then I know I'll get a license."

Before sailing for England with his wife, James Hackett secured the dramatic rights to Winston Churchill's latest novel, "The Crisis." The author will dramatize the work himself. Hackett will find another Richmond in the field when he tries his hand at 'Don Caeser's Return" in the fall. Just as there were two Nell Gwyns, so there will be a dual Don Caesar de Bazan, with goodness knows how many more on the vaudeville stage. William Faversham will be a foeman worthy of Hackett's steel, and the rivalry between the Criterion and Wallack's early in September will be highly interesting. Faversham's version will be known as "A Royal Rival," and has been written by Gerald du Maurier.

After a couple of years of idleness the American Roof Garden will be opened shortly. The man who is not afraid to tempt fate again is George A. Blumenthal, formerly manager of the Harlem Opera house. He will give a short season of comic opera at modest prices, and has engaged a company of sixty.

Will A. McConnell has decided that while the job of manager has certain attractions, there is nothing the matter with that of the actor who gets his money and lets the business end of the show do all the worrying. McConnell is now on the ocean blue speeding Americaward that he may get back to work on his part in "The Wine Agent," Peter F. Dailey's new play. He will play opposite the star, and in the cast will be Christie McDonald, Ada Lewis, George A. Beane, Frank Lane and Helen Reimer.

The Theatrical Business Mens' club is booming and all the members are enthusiastic. Among the names recently proposed for membership was that of Nat Goodwin. Actors are not eligible, but as Goodwin is his own manager it was decreed that that let him in. One of his best friends in the club thus wrote to him of this fact:

"My Dear Goodwin: I am delighted to inform you that the Theatrical Business Mens' club has elected you unanimously. There was only one objection raised against you, the fact that in addition to being a manager you were an actor. Since seeing your performance of Shylock, however, that objection has been removed entirely."

Young Victor Mapes, who is responsible for the Tackett play, is a nephew of Mary Mapes Dodge and has been trying his hand at writing ever since he left Columbia. He had several one-act plays produced by amateurs, and one of these, a revolutionary story, excites the most comment. Now he has been added to the Frohman forces, and will keep on with dramatic work in the sole interest of that manager.

Elsou Fernandez will have the role of Miss Godesby in "The Climbers" next season. She is now in Washington with the Lafayette Square Stock company. Her success in Gillette's "Because She Loved Him So," was sufficient to win her the engagement for as long as Miss Bingham can spare her.

Three plays are on the way for Mrs. LeMoyne. One is by Marion Crawford, one by an English author and the third by Charles Henry Meltzer. The latter will have for its central figure the first duchess of Marlborough.

Stock company work at the continuous houses is on the increase. This week's plays included "Into Darkness," a new curtain raiser; "Confusion," by Joseph Derrick; "Lost, Strayed or Stolen," "The Violin Maker," "The Guv'nor," "The Elder Brother" and "The Woman Hater."

The production of the new Rogers farce will be the most elaborate yet planned for the comedians. Klaw and Erlanger will present it at the Knickerbocker on September 2. Ernest Gros is at work on the models of the scenery and F. Richard Anderson is designing the costumes. It will be "The Rogers Brothers in Washington."

Goodwin's hope that he will be able to remain abroad all next season has excited considerable comment along the Rialto. The general consensus of opinion seems to be that he will yearn for home long before the time is up. Goodwin is a favorite in England and has done very well there, but not so well as he has been doing in this country. He will give us another Shakespeare revival when he comes back, and he promises that it will surpass "The Merchant of Venice."

The Shylock of Daniel E. Bandmann at the Murray Hill excited even more applause than did Goodwin's on Broadway. It is an interesting fact that when Edwin Forrest and Bandmann, years ago, went to Boston to play "The Merchant," Nat Goodwin was a call boy at the theater. Several years later Goodwin met the veteran actor and told him that as Shylock he had so enthused him that some day he would play it himself. Nat did not forget, for before he opened at the Knickerbocker he journeyed across town to see Bandmann and led vigorously in the applause. When the latter closed his engagement on Saturday night he received fourteen curtain calls.

Ethel Barrymore is to be rewarded by Charles Frehman because of her success in "Captain Jinks" by an early appearance in that play in London. Nearly 200 performances have been given at the Garrick, and the house is crowded every night. No date has yet been fixed for the end of the run. Negotiations are now under way for a London theater, and it is probable that the young actress will go abroad early next month and continue her run there.

The success of "Lorna Doone" in Chicago will be watched with great interest by New York managers. Should it prove a hit it will be one of the earliest attractions on Broadway. Manager Harry Hamilton has secured a remarkably strong cast. Ralph Delmore, who has been the society villain in "Sherlock Holmes," will be Carver Doone. Robert Payton Carter, Frank Burbeck, Marjorie Cook and Meredith Perry will be in the list. Ellen Mortimer will be Ruth, and Frank Worthing will appear as Charleswerth.

Nance O'Neil, who left the somewhat chilly atmosphere of New York for fame and fortune in Australia, will come back here as a star under the management of J. C. Williamson, who has had a considerable hand in her success in the antipodes. Miss O'Neil and her company will play a long engagement in London before she crosses the Atlantic.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

Lottie Collins is in Australia.

Dutch Daly has been ill in England since April 1, but is now convalescent.

Ellie Ellsler is to star in a new play next season.

Edna May is to appear in "The Three Little Maids."

Bernhardt's "L'Aiglon" is a frightful failure in London.

Julia Arthur may forsake the stage the coming season.

Wilson Barrett is to play Alfred the Great in "The Christian King."

"The Wizard of the Nile" is to be revived next season. Not by Frank Daniels.

D. L. Don is to marry Emily Jordan, whom he met in Australia six years ago.

Milton Aborn has accepted a fortnight's engagement with the Murray-Lane Opera company.

Alice Nelson declares she is not engaged to Lawrence Irving. Her London season has been a failure.

Lederer will produce, next season, "McAdam and Eve," an opera by Oliver Herford and Henry Waller.

It is said that Francis Wilson will not head his own company next season, but will play the chief role in "The Strollers."

Edgar Seldon, author of "A Hot Old Time," was tendered a benefit in New York last week. He was Henrietta Crosman's first husband.

The sultan of Turkey has prohibited the performance of "Cyrano de Bergerac" in that country, declaring the play to be revolutionary.

Edmund Hayes, of "A Wise Guy" fame, read and bought outright from John Ernest McCann, last Wednesday, a one-act play, entitled "Captain Sorel."

The English censor of plays has forbidden the production of "The First Visit," an English version of the younger Dumas' "Une Visite de Noces."

George V. Hobart is writing the books of two comic operas—"The Daughters Dangerous," of which Reginald de Koven is the composer, and "The Happy Honeymoon," that will have a score by Gustav Luders. He is also the author of the new play in which Marie Dressler will star next season.

William A. Brady has arranged for five "monster revivals" next season. The plays which he is planning to have before the public next season are: "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Way Down East," "Nazareth," and "Julius Caesar." The fifth will be the revival of an old spectacle (the name of which is guarded), at the Grand, in San Francisco.

In Chicago today, Ernest Stout's new play "The Duke de Reichstadt," will be presented. May Hosmer will have the leading role. Mr. Stout says, however, that beyond the fact that the central figure in his play is the son of Napoleon, and the fact that the scene in his play is laid at the Austrian court, there is no resemblance between his piece and the production of the famous French playwright.

There could not be a much clearer manifestation of the spirit and policy which prevail in the commercial theaters of today than is afforded by the announcement that Sarah Bernhardt is to play Romeo here to the Juliet of Maude Adams. • • • Novelty, even when monstrous, or on account of its very monstrosity, has an irresistible attraction for the multitude. The fame of Shakespeare, happily, is beyond the reach of the most malignant assaults, but it is too bad that an indignity of this sort should be offered him under the pretence of dramatic art.—New York Evening Post, (Editorial).

Really, the old-time players are likely to crowd out the younger aspirants for stellar honors if this series of revivals keeps up. Here we have Kate Claxton announced to resume in "The Two Orphans;" Rose Coghlan in "Peg Woffington," and other plays; Ada Grey, who is said to have recovered sufficiently from her illness to resume with "East Lynne," and now comes a report that Marie Wainwright is going to revive "School for Scandal," which, by the way is to be part of the repertoire of the R. D. McLean and Odette Tyler company. Nellie McHenry has found one season profitable in "M'Liss" and is going to continue in it next season.

A glance at the booking sheets shows that the fall will see a majority of the leading attractions in the hands of the few managers. Charles Frohman will have no less than eighteen on his hands by the time the season begins, while Rich & Harris will have five, Klaw & Erlanger about seven, W. A. Brady about nine, W. B. Gross will handle four for the Herne estate, while the Lieblers will have at least six, if not seven; Fred C. Whitney is booking three, Kirke La Shelle five, and Samuel S. Shubert five. In addition Gus Hill will have twelve road companies, Charles E. Blaney four, Lincoln J. Carter, of Chicago, manipulates eight; Jules Murray has five, Jacob Litt will have at least six companies, Broadhurst & Currie will have four, Frank McKee four, and Nixon & Zimmerman two. Henry Greenwall will send two plays on tour, Sullivan & Woods will have three of the popular price melodramas, E. D. Stair will send out three companies, George W. Lederer two and late in the season another, making three in all; while John C. Fisher will have two "Florodora" companies, and there will be two organizations playing "When We Were Twenty-one."

Viola Allen cleared $40,000 for her share of "In the Palace of the King," and if Julia Marlowe cannot find $50,000 balance over all expenses from her extended season she should hire a new bookkeeper, says Hillary Bell in the New York Press. Maude Adams is on a salary of $500 a week, which gives her an income of $10,000 for the season, but like as not her manager, finding that the little Mormon was the most profitable of all his attractions, made her a handsome present in addition to her salary. Florenz Ziegfeld says that his vivacious Parisian spouse, Anna Held, has taken in over $700,000 with "Papa's Wife." Reginald de Koven assured this chronicler the other day that his own share of that work, as composer, amounted to over $25,000. Richard Mansfield's earnings for the year reach $40,000. John Drew has a salary of $500 a week and a percentage, but "Richard Carvel" was lucky if it paid the former and said nothing about the latter. E. H. Sothern has had the unluckiest and most unfortunate year in his history. He has been ill and his entire outfit of Shakespearean scenery was destroyed by fire. Ordinarily Sothern's income jogs along comfortably between $40,000 and $60,000, but this year he may scarcely find a balance of more than $10,000. Ada Rehan made no money above her salary, which is not exorbitant, but her rival, Henrietta Crossman sails to Europe this week with $20,000 in her inside pocket, or wherever lovely ladies hide their money. In spite of the animosity of the Trust, Minnie Maddern has continued all season in life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and she ends the year with wealth enough to rent the Manhattan theater and buy a lot of plays by which she hopes to make the octopus look seven ways for Sunday.

NOVEL GRADUATION GIFT.

Cincinnati, June 15.—A buried town in Palestine has been bough for Martin Meyer, the valedictorian of this year's class of the Hebrew Union college, of this city, who graduates this month. He will leave on Aug. 15 for the Holy Land to make excavations and scientific researches there. He will be furnished with money with which to pay Arabs to dig into the historic ruins.

WANTS A LATE DIVIDE.

Wilkesbarre, June 15.—Charles A. and Lafayette Franklin, brothers, each over 70 years old, were the plaintiff and the defendant in a suit in court today which dated back fifty years. Recently Charles A. Franklin discovered that in 1856 his brother had disposed of a piece of land which he says both owned. This is the cause of the suit, and it is being fought bitterly on both sides.

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss.
In Probate Court, Special Term, May 31st, 1901.
In the Matter of the Estate of James Erickson, Deceased:
On receiving and filing the petition of Edward Anderson, of the county of Douglas, state of Wisconsin, representing, among other things, that James Erickson, late of the county of St. Louis, in the state of Minnesota, on the 15th day of June, A. D. 1899, at the county of St. Louis, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is a creditor of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Edward Anderson granted;
It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock a. m., at the probate office, in the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county.
Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.
Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, the 31st day of May, A. D. 1901.
By the Court,
W. G. BONHAM,
Judge of Probate.
(Seal Probate Court, St. Louis Co., Minn.)

There is no more sense in paying big fees to a great medical specialist when you are distressed with liver and kidney trouble, than there is in trying to heal a broken limb with putty.
Fifty years ago as Dr. McLean treated the most complicated cases, curing and bringing hope and happiness to his great number of patients, he did not have one-fiftieth as many medicines as his fellow doctors have to-day. The wonderful success of his cures proves that the simple common sense remedies he employed were right. His theory was to go direct to the seat of the trouble and apply the simplest form of remedy there.
The McLean way of reaching the trouble, which has stood the test of a half century of successful life-saving is simple, safe and sure. It is the good old-fashioned, practical method of going direct to the evil to quickly relieve suffering.
Nothing will take the place, nothing can replace
McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm
It should be used at the beginning of the trouble, but it is equally safe and sure even if taken when the trouble has taken deep root.
In new cases a cure will result in a short time. In very bad, chronic cases, it is equally effective, but patience is necessary and the need to keep up the treatment faithfully. Kidney and liver troubles are stubborn, and only a persistent use of this reliable remedy will cure them.

The Canteen Question Again.

Several letters on the canteen question have been published during the week, some from those who believe that the abolition of the army canteen has been a good thing and are averse to believing that the result has been an increase of drunkenness among the soldiers. There will soon be some reliable statistics on this subject, as Gen. Corbin has ordered them from the various posts and no doubt they will be made public. The Chicago dispatches, however, have related some occurrences at Highwood, Ill., last Tuesday that have a bearing on this subject. On that day the soldiers at Fort Sheridan received their pay, and being unable to secure a drink on the grounds they ran away to Highwood and indulged in drunkenness and immoralities which were scandalous. As the Milwaukee Sentinel says: "On purely sentimental grounds, it may be wrong for the United States government to sanction drinking by authorizing the canteen, but experience is fast showing that from a practical standpoint it is right. On the grounds the Fort Sheridan soldiers would have been under military regulation, and they could not have indulged in disorderly conduct; at Highwood they were unrestrained, and their drinking and debauchery knew no limit. The town was terrorized and the soldiers degraded. The fact that the military or civil authorities should have stopped them does not alter the case. Had there been a canteen there would have been no such rioting. The soldier will drink, and since he will what excuse, other than a sentimental one, can there be for driving him for drink where he cannot be controlled?"

Hawaiian Islands Nearly Bankrupt.

Matters are not progressing as satisfactorily as could be desired in the Hawaiian Islands. There are a dozen different cliques, and all are trying to rule, and as a result contentions are the order of the day. After his fight with the legislature Governor Dole moved his residence to the mountains and is now recovering from an attack of sickness. W. W. Ludlow, who was sent to Honolulu by the treasury department to redeem the bonds representing the debt of the Hawaiian islands has returned and he is not particularly enthusiastic about the conditions. When the islands were annexed to this country the outstanding indebtedness amounted to a little more than $3,000,000, and according to the terms of the annexation act, this was assumed by our government. Mr. Ludlow took about half a million dollars in gold and the balance in treasury certificates. He found that about two-thirds of the Hawaiian bonds were held by people in San Francisco, who were mighty glad to surrender them in exchange for cash. The prospects were not bright for their being redeemed by the Hawaiian republic. Mr. Ludlow struck a peculiar state of affairs in Honolulu when he called in the bonds there. The bankers raised a big row about accepting gold certificates and insisted that they be given gold currency for the bonds. It was only after much explanation and persuasion that they would take the certificates. The islands are about bankrupt now and the local government is experiencing difficulty in paying expenses. It developed during Mr. Ludlow's visit that some dissatisfaction exists among the Hawaiians over the new form of government. They are disappointed at some of its features and evidently expected a reign of great prosperity and easy times with the advent of the Stars and Stripes. However the more conservative ones are inclined to wait patiently and feel confident that a great future is before them.

THE CONQUEST OF RUSSIA.

The commercial conquest of England by Germany and the United States is the eighth wonder of the world. Although it came about by the law of natural selection, yet it is still looked upon as somewhat of a miracle. We speak of the commercial conquest of England as an accomplished fact. The present status does not warrant so sweeping a statement, but the forces which are working to that end are so powerful that time alone is essential to render the commercial subjugation of the old-time mistress of the seas complete.

Another peaceful conquest is in progress, a conquest, which if not as picturesque as that of England is more gigantic and contains greater possibilities. Reference is made to the industrial conquest of Russia by the United States. With natural resources equal, if not superior, to those of the United States, with a territory three times and a population twice as great, Russia is dependent upon the industrial genius of the United States for development.

Russia has been attacked by the internal development fever. The empire is in the condition of the United States during the period immediately following the civil war, but without the native genius to make the most of its resources. There is at hand abundant raw material, plenty of workers and an abounding ambition to bring the nation to the forefront of the industrial procession, but there is no one to lead and control the native forces. Both English and German trained industrial managers are persona non grata to the Russians. The professional engineers and superintendents of France would be acceptable, but they are not disposed to exile themselves for the almighty dollar. In this dilemma it is to the United States that Russia turns for assistance and finds a ready response.

The American possesses the special genius for just that sort of work. Trained in the school of exact business methods, he has the imaginations to conceive and carry out large industrial schemes which would appall the unimaginative foreigner. The American is able by the sheer force of intellect to combine the essential qualities of the manufacturer, the shipper and the common carrier. He knows how to do things, not only one thing but all things essential to the success of whatever enterprise in which he finds himself engaged.

He may be a builder of wagons, a maker of stoves or have charge of iron or coal mines, yet if it becomes necessary to build a railroad, to facilitate the business of his enterprise, he becomes a railroad builder as if he were to the manor born. These men find in Russia material to their hands. Knowing the national weakness, the Russian capitalist prefers to trust his schemes of internal development to the American promoter and the American superintendent than to a native, however well intended.

A number of Americans of prominence are now in Russia investigating the resources of the empire, with a view to industrial promotion and trade. Samuel J. Hill, the son-in-law of the president of the Great Northern, is touring the empire of the white czar and receiving, so report says, almost royal attention. Senator Beveridge, the investigating representative of the state of Indiana, is there also. J. Pierpont Morgan is said to have agents looking over the transportation facilities of the empire with a view to introducing the products of the United States Steel company into the heart of the continent.

Russia, in the next twenty years, will make wonderful strides toward the light. While her diplomacy is controlling Europe and the Orient, her internal affairs are gradually slipping into the hands of the omnipotent Yankee, whose genius for making things and doing things gives him an advantage in the race for supremacy which his older brothers can never overcome. The conquest of Russia has begun and will continue until all Russian enterprises will be under the control of Americans as the progressive enterprises of Northern China are controlled by the Russians. Here will be found the outlet for the brains, energy and skill that the combinations are throwing upon the market of the world. Every railroad and other industrial combination, by reducing what is called the dead weight of management, throws out of employment many thoroughly trained experts. These men will be received by Russia with open arms. They will become the generals in this peaceful conquest of the greatest empire on the face of the earth.

THE COAL PRODUCTION.

The United States maintains its supremacy among the coal producing countries of the world. The final coal returns for 1900 have been received by the statistican of the United States geological survey and he is able to make up his report for the year. This shows that the total output of coal in 1900 was 267,540,000 short tons, an increase over the preceding year of 13,800,000 tons, or a little over 5 per cent. The value of this enormous product was $297,920,000, an increase over 1899 of $41,845,000, or about 16 per cent. Coal producers felt the benefit of the improved trade conditions in 1900 to a much greater extent than they did in either 1898 or 1899. Coal contracts are usually made a long time ahead, sometimes more than a year, and much coal was delivered in 1899 at less than it cost to produce it, the price of labor having advanced before the operators could advance the price of coal.

The value of the coal product in 1900 was equal to nearly one-third of the value of the total mineral product of the United States in 1899. The reports received by Mr. Parker, the statistican, show that there were only three states whose coal product last year was less than that of 1899. These were Maryland, Oregon and Idaho. The last is insignificant, having an output of only twenty tons in 1899, with no reported product in 1900. Owing to the strike which occurred in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania in the fall of 1900, the production of anthracite coal decreased about 3,000,000 long tons, the product of last year being 50,988,982, against 53,944,000 long tons in 1899. This decrease was more than made up for by an increase of nearly 5,500,000 short tons in the output of the bituminous coal of the state. The decrease in Maryland amounted to 782,000 short tons, while Oregon's decline was small in amount, but equivalent to 33 1-3 per cent of the product of 1899. The figures showing increase in production are more interesting and instructive. The largest gain was made in West Virginia, that state exceeding a total of 20,000,000 tons. The next largest increase was made in Ohio, where 2,600,000 short tons were added to the product of the previous year. The net gain in Pennsylvania amounted to only 2,150,000 short tons. Alabama is credited with a gain of 800,000 tons, while Arkansas, Indian Territory and Michigan each reported an increase.

Prior to 1899 Great Britain was the leading coal producing country in the world, but in that year the United States took first place. The production of Great Britain in 1900 amounted to 225,170,163 long tons, or 252,190,573 short tons, compared with which the United States has a lead of 15,300,000 short tons, or just double that of the preceding year. It is certainly gratifying to note the wonderful progress of the United States. Who shall say where it will end?

THE NUDE IN ART.

A few well meaning but misguided members of the Y. M. C. A., now in session in Boston, made a serious mistake the other day, which was liable to hold that estimable body up to ridicule, if not to censure. A reception was tendered to the members of the association at the Museum of Fine Arts by the trustees of the museum, and the Women's auxiliaries of the Massachusetts and Rhode Island associations. But suddenly a strong opposition to the plan was manifest, and a vigorous protest went up against holding the reception in such a place, the objections vested mainly on the statuary halls, where it had been discovered that the Greeks and Romans, who made the originals of the statuary neglected to carve trousers upon them. The mutterings grew louder, and a protest, signed by, among others, Bishop W. T. Mallelieu of the Methodist Episcopal church, was widely circulated. It read in part as follows:

"The undersigned respectfully protest against the holding of a reception, given by the Ladies' Young Mens' Christian association auxiliaries to the Young Men's Christian association delegates in the Museum of Fine Arts, on the grounds of its being a place hardly proper for a mixed social gathering of young men and young women, because of the presence there, in many parts of the building, of large numbers of fully developed and entirely nude masculine statues.

"Young Men's Christian association delegates are spiritually-minded men, and such fleshly sights, at the late hour of 9:30 to 11 p. m., combined with the attentions of young ladies from the churches in serving refreshments, cannot be else than embarrassing as a public spectacle and offensive to their spiritual minds. 'For the flesh lusteth against the spirit and the spirit against the flesh, and these are contrary the one to the other.'

"Is there anything in the tragic word Art to eradicate indecency? How can the obscene expusure of the human form be any less potent in seducing thought when chiseled by a master hand? Rather may it not be said that the more exactly art follows the lines of the flesh the more effectively does it exert the same temptation as the flesh.

"Everyone knows that these identical images, or the originals from which these casts are taken, corrupted Greece and Rome, and that Naples and other Latin cities, whence they are obtained, are sunken in the mire of vice. Why should any Christian association ally itself to the propaganda of nudity which, wherever it has been patronized, has bred moral decay, which, in turn, has led to physical decay, and likewise physical decay to national decay."

Wiser heads prevailed, however, the protest was ignored and the reception was held. At the morning session, on the day of the reception, the new president, William E. Dodge, brought up the matter with dignity and discretion. His implied repudiation, on behalf of the convention, of the remarkable circular of a few members of the association condemning the Museum as an improper place for young people to meet, while couched in moderate language, was strong and forceful, and that the convention was with him was shown by the applause which greeted his remarks. It is not necessary to comment further on the action of the few. The object of art museums is to elevate and promote good. They serve an excellent purpose, and the unclothed statues ought not in any way to prove injurious to such pure-minded people as the members of the Y. M. C. A. are supposed to be.

The Pittsburg Dispatch discussing the servant girl problem from a business standpoint offers the following sensible and timely remarks: "Families of unlimited income will find it feasible to have one relay of servants to do a nine hours' term of work in the early part of the day and another relay to do another turn in the latter half of the day. But although the literature of the subject sometimes seems ignorant of the fact the great mass of American households has the problem of getting service done from 6 a. m. to 8 or 9 p. m. for the sum which will pay a single housegirl a very moderate wage. The fact is that the domestic service is on a business basis and always has been. It is on the basis that those who wish the best service must pay high rates for it, and those who cannot pay those rates must pay up with the half-trained or inefficient service which is all that can be had at the price. The unbusinesslike part of the subject consists of complaining when a first-class article cannot be got for a second-class price."

The London Daily News reports the death rate in the Boer camp at Pretoria for three weeks at the rate of 435 to the thousand annually. This revives the memory of British complaints about the treatment of prisoners in the hands of the Boers at an earlier stage of the war. The present concentration camp at Pretoria, where the Boer non-combatants are kept, is on the race course, the precise place where the Boers stockaded the captured British soldiers. Among those soldiers the death rate was never one-tenth as high as that among the Boers kept there by Kitchener. The evidence is thus all on the side of the Boers as to the humanity and the care taken of their prisoners with the additional discredit to the Kitchener administration that it is principally women and children who are now the sufferers. It is a disgrace to Great Britain.

A little machine which threads 1000 needles a minute is in Minneapolis. It was seen by L. S. Donaldson, of Minneapolis, in St. Gall, Switzerland, on a recent visit, and he had it sent to his place of business in Minneapolis, merely as an exhibit. The purpose of the machine is to thread needles that are placed afterward in an embroidery loom for making the Swiss or Hamburg lace. The device is almost entirely automatic. It takes the needle from a hopper, carries it along, and threads, ties the knot, cuts the thread off a uniform length, then carries the needles across an open space and sticks it in a rack. The work of threading these needles was formerly done by hand, and the advance from what may be done by hand to a thousand a mlute by machinery is an index of the progress of the Swiss republic.

On the basis of the government's report of acreage and crop condition, the statistician of the New York stock exchange figures out a wheat harvest of 683,871,000 bushels. It is true that this crop is yet to be gathered, and that many chances of heavy damage are yet to be run, but the present premise is of a record-breaking yield of wheat, coincident with only fair crops at the best in Europe, and short crops in most of Western Europe. This would mean another season of a large home surplus in demand abroad at most profitable prices. A large crop in the Northwest means increased prosperity for Duluth in many ways.

The German consul at Cincinnati, who sends word home that immigrants to the United States no longer have the chance here that they did, owing to the overcrowded condition of all occupations, must have forgotten the matter of domestic service. The girl immigrant will now find a sharper demand in this particular and better pay than she has ever before met. At least that is the state of affairs in Duluth.

Young Mr. Rockefeller recently said that wealth has its trials, and now Miss Helen Gould is credited with a talk about the sorrows of great wealth. But there are many people ready to bear the trials and sorrows.

And now W. C. Pollard Breckenridge has emerged from his cave and presumed to advise the people on public questions. Brenkenridge should subside and cease to affront decent people.

THE HEAVENLY GIFTS.

What gifts, what myriad gifts, are given
To all
As rains upon the just and unjust fall!
Blue sky, and winds that bear the breath of flowers,
Gray mists, and shining threads of summer showers,
Sunsets blown red from battlements of even,
Sunrises opening all the gates of heaven,
The emerald sheen of harvest-fields at hand,
Dark bloom of distant valleys rainbow-spanned,
Purple of mountain forms that take the soul
Close to the stars where drift their silver shoal,
Infinite seas that lead the thought away
Into a world of everlasting day,
The hope that lifts us like an angel's wings,
And makes us glad among immortal
things,
Song, love and sorrow, and the joyous tear
When delicately music meets the ear,
The beauty of the little child, its strength
That feeds the hero's arm, the happy length
Of summer days to lovers, and the night
When through the sleet the fires of home flash bright,
Then on our knees the will to bless the Power
That follows us with love from hour to hour,
While roars the storm with purifying breath—
O lovely life, and just as lovely death!

THE PRESIDENTIAL RACE.

New York Journal: With McKinley out, these Republicans are in the presidential race:

Mark Hanna—Because as campaign manager he brought out McKinley, elected him twice and wrought national prosperity.

C. W. Fairbanks—Because of faithful party service and his hope of delivering the electoral vote of Indiana.

Governor B. B. Odell—Because of silent statesmanship and hope to carry the pivotal suffrages of New York state.

Theodore Roosevelt—Because of demonstrated ability as soldier and statesman, and of symbolizing young, militant Republicanism.

Shelby M. Cullom—Because Senator Mason favors his candidacy and thinks he can carry the state of Illinois.

John W. Griggs—Because of sound legal ability, of property conservatism and popularity in doubtful New Jersey.

W. B. Allison—Because of familiarity with national finance, of residence in pendulous Iowa and his tried ability.

On the Amateur Ambassadors.

By F. P. DUNNE.

"I'm glad th' la-ads fr'm th' New York chamber iv commerce had a good time in England," said Mr. Dooley. "I don't know what a chamber iv commerce really is onless 't is a place where business men go to sleep, but annyhow, th' la-ads fr'm th' wan in New York have been callin' on th' other hands acrost th' sea, an' now we're so firmly ceminted together again wanst more that ye cudden't tear us apart with a steam winch. They've thravelled acrost th' ocean lavin' a thrail iv morthar behind him like a bricklayer comin' home fr'm wurruk, an' they've got me so closely knit with Lord Salsb'ry, first be ties iv blood, thin be a common language which we both speak at each other, an' fin'lly be a shovelful iv cemint, that I feel like wan iv th' entries iv a three legged race at a picnic.

"An' 'tis on'y a few years ago whin if wan iv our chamber iv commerce wint to London, he was searched at th' dock f'r counterfeit money an' sometimes, Hinnissy, successfully. I used to pick up a pa-aper an' r-read, 'Dhreadful accident to an American in England; Frozen to death at a Garden Party,' or 'Singular occurrence at Chelsea; American gintleman thries to enter society through a thransom.' But that's all past by, Hinnissy. 'Tis all past an' gone, an' we're as welcome in England as if our language was less common an' our ties iv blood wasn't ready made. Ye see, Hinnissy, an American business man, whin he's in this country, is a business man an' that's what he is. He's down-town in th' mornin' at 8 o'clock thryin' to beat a check to th' bank. He keeps wan eye on th' damper and th' other on th' dure till 6, an thin he's homeward bound in a cable car with a hand on th' sthrap an' another on his watch pocket. He leads a simple, pasthral life an' is widely an' pop'larly known as Cy. Th' on'y pollytics he's inthrested in is who's goin' to be illcted assissor an' how much an' whin he wants to know who's secrety iv state, he asks th' typewriter who's just out iv colledge an' has time to learn these gr-reat facts. "But whin he goes to England, he's another man. All we hear about him at th' time he laves, is that Cy's been ast to partake iv th' Merry Roast beef iv ol' England, which he prob'bly met whin 'twas on th' hoof, an' th' hands ar-re glad he's got a vacation so that he can have a r-rest an' they can sind out th' pail without fear iv bein' docked. An' thin, lo an' behold! we pick up th' papers an' see that Cy's suddenly become an ambassadure. They've rayjooced Choate to th' r-ranks an' Cy is ambassadure exthraordin'ry an' invoy plinipotootionary, residin' at or near th' coort iv St. James. He's met at th' dock be th' king an' rile fam'ly who escort him to th' rile lodgins in Windsor castle, where he has a fr-ront room with a bath an' they's a jook to unpack his thrunk. 'Yesterdah,' says Cy to th' rayporther, 'I spint a long time with th' noble king. He's a splendid fellow an' I regard him as a competent king, painstakin', active an' agreeable, an' always willin' to show goods. He felt thurly th' importance iv our visit, cemintin' as it does th' lleance between th' two gr-reat Anglo-Saxon cannin' establishmints. I said we were bound together be a common language, an' he asked me if I spoke Fr-rinch. I said, "Noble king, blood is thicker than wather." "We ought to be proud iv our blood," says he. "We would shed it f'r each other," I says. "Ye wud," said he. "My prisince here,' says I, "cemints th' lleance between us," says I. He said it did, but they'd been so much cemint applied that day he began to feel like a cellar dure. He graciously asked me if I wudden't like to walk arround th' rile domain as far as th' railway station. I cud also see a gr-reat deal iv it fr'm the window iv th' car. I thanked him, an' as I was lavin', the queen enthred—wan iv the most atthractive, ladylike woman I've met. I shall niver forget her gracious smile as I heerd it goin' down th' steps. I hope th' people at home appreeyates what I've done f'r thim. They'll niver be another war as long as I live. I've written to Mark to sind f'r Choate. He might as well go home an' go to wurruk. Cincinnati pa-apers please copy."

"Th' nex' day, Cy had a gr-ran' time in London. He was allowed to pay his bill in advance an' go out th' fr-ront dure iv th' hotel. Gr-reat crowds welcomed him, not with th' glad cries iv us expansive Americans, but with such hearty, bluff English expressions as, 'Get out th' way.' Even th' busmen an' cab-dhrivers offered to give him a ride. That night he was entertained be th' worshipful comp'ny iv British Merchants That Have Sold Out or Are Goin' To, an' ye bet Cy made a speech. Be this time he was an orator as well as a diplomat. 'Me noble lord chairman, me noble lords, me noble gintlemen, me noble waiters,' he says, 'd'ye ralize that this is wan iv th' most important ivints in th' histhry iv th' wurruld? 'Tis th' first time I've been here. (Cheers). Befure I come to this fair land,, which has no hospitality welcomed me, an' see ye'er noble an' even rile king, they was a gr-reat gap between th' two branches iv th ' Englishspeakin' people. Siv'ral times we've been at th' pln iv wor—wanst I raymimber in siventeen siventy-six an' again in eighteen twelve. I don't know who staved it off thin. 'Twas befure I wint into th' butthrine business. But that day has gone by. I done it. I say I, but th' others can speak f'r thimselves. Th' inthroduction iv me Goolden Creamery Buttherine into ye'er fair land was th' beginnin' iv this era iv peace, an' now, that ye-'ve seen me, th' man behind th' firkin, ye know what to expict. Hereafther whin a dispute comes up about a coalin' station, we'll take it out iv th' hands iv polityicians fr'm Irish disthricts an' lave it to th' comity on weights an' measures iv th' chamber iv commerce. 'Tis a most intilligent body iv which I am chairman an' have such associate diplomats as Higgins th' Machiavelly iv th' dhry goods thrade, an' Hoontz th' Bismarck iv th' pickle inudsthry. F'r we ar-re no longer rivals in business, but frinds, ye havin' retired. We have th' same language an' manny iv thim, th' same Bible or Bibles, th' same missin' Gainsborough, a common Shakespeare (if I have th' name r-right) an' an uncommon lot iv bum actors playin' him. We ar-re achooated by a common purpose f'r to march on, ankle to ankle, ceminted so close ye cudden't squeeze a five-dollar bill between us, carryin' to th' ends iv th' earth, th' blessins iv civil an' religious liberty an' shootin' thim into th' inhabitants thereof an' teachin' thim th' benefits iv ye'er gloryous thraditions an' our akelly gloryous products, among which is Higgin's Golden Creamery Butthrine XXX. It melts in th' mouth.'

"That ought to settle it,' Mr. Dooley went on. "If Cy was goin' to stay over there, we cud adjourn congress an' give Mack his time. But th' throuble is th' ambassadure may have to come back to meet a note an' thin our relations will be about th' same as th' county Kerry's with England again. I suppose we'll have to keep Choate so's he can look afther things whin Cy is home."

"Who th' divvle made him ambassadure annyhow?" asked Mr. Hennessy angrily.

"Sh-h!" said Mr. Dooley. "He's a self-made man. But I wish he wuddan't put on th' cemint so thick. I'm beginnin' to feel sticky."—(Copyright 1901, by Robert H. Russell).

Didn't Take.

Charleston News and Courier: We have no authority to speak for the new Republican party in this state, but as long at least as Mr. McKinley has any "patronage" to dispense in this region we should think that he might count with certainty upon the South Carolina vote.

THE UNDERSTUDY

By ADA PATTERSON

(Copyright, 1901, by W R. Hearst.)

"Miss Milton will never give me a chance to sing her part. I know she wont."

Irene Gray plucked at the ragged edges of the once ornamental tablecloth in the dingy boardinghouse parlor. Anger faded into dejection and she rested her elbows on the table and her pretty flushed face in her hands and looked appealingly at George Hammerton. Irene often told the other girls in the Amy Milton Opera company that she could not remember the time she hadn't known George.

"Why, I tell him everything," she said. And so she had; even the tale of that August at Long Branch, when she though she had fallen in love with a man from Philadelphia and how he had gone home without "really saying anything," and how life had seemed the same after she had learned that he was a married man who had affected the seaside resorts while his wife and children were in the mountains. Had Irene noticed, she would have seen George clench his big hands nervously during the recital, but she wasn't in the habit of noticing George much. You don't when you have known people always, you know. So she told the other girls in the company, and when Lillie James, who wore pink tarlatan and "did a specialty," asked her to introduce the young broker, she said, "Why, certainly!"

Lillie, who aspired to be a premiere danseuse, touched the bow on Irene's shoulder daintily with her toe.

"You don't care to keep him all to yourself," she remarked with a sidelong glance.

"George? Oh, no!" said Irene wonderingly, and touching up her upper lip a bit as she heard the call boy's "second act."

"everything" as usual.

Irene, it must be admitted, was from the country. It must also be admitted that she was gauche. Candor requires a further admission. She had been on the stage three years and was still in the chorus. But she was Miss Milton's understudy, and she lay awake nights thinking of the time when Miss Milton should have a sore throat and she should sing her part, and only Miss Milton's special friends should know the difference. Miss Milton's special friends and the newspapers. The last would talk about her "wondrous art." She had seen that phrase once and it had haunted her. It would look so well opposite "Irene Gray."

"But she'll never give me the chance," she complained this afternoon to George Hammerton.

George listened impatiently. The story was not a new one. It was beyond his memory and mathematical powers to calculate just how often he had heard it. Being a man, he had some latent selfishness, almost as much os a woman. And he had his own heart needs and his own homely ambition, although he never spoke of them. He only looked wistfully at the self-centered little being and listened with his thoughts far from Miss Milton and her arias.

"Hang it all, Irene! Why ruin your temper and waste your life in this sort of thing?" he broke out. "Why don't you marry?"

He had been walking the floor of Mrs. O'Rourke's parlor to the serious menace of the ancient carpet. At Irene's resentful "Marry whom?" he stopped his march and looked long at her. He saw vexation in the small face, nothing more, and he felt suddenly foolish and awkward.

"Some one might be found," he ventured.

"Possibly by publishing a personal, 'object matrimony,'" she answered, scornfully.

Just then Lillie James "dropped" in. Welcome or not, there she was. They dispenced with the formality of announcing visitors at Mrs. O'Rourke's. Irene presented George Hamerton.

"We grew on adjoining farms out West," she explained absently, her thougats still upon the possibility of Miss Milton's ever "giving her a chance to sing her part."

Lillie fluttered into a chair close to the broker's She smiled archly at him and said he reminded her of a cousin of hers out West. She did love the West. Lillie was a wise woman. On their walk home she never once referred to the theater except to say as she passed it that she wished she might never see the "sickening old place again.' She coaxed the young man to tell her how he had left the farm seven years ago and risen step by step until he was a member of the firm. She didn't say a word. Her comments were in her wide, adpiring eyes. It was so different from those monologues in Mrs. O'Rourke's parlor. Of course he invited her to supper after the opera that night. And she, hesitating as coyly as though she had never had an invitation to supper before, finally accepted.

Irene, hurrying out of the stage door, saw them getting into a cab. She bowed stiffly and went on frowning. The manager had told her that Miss Milton's mother was ill and that she must have a rehearsal in the morning.

"Don't know that she'll be called to Boston, but she may. We must be ready," he said.

The "chance" was assuming a form. She must sleep well so that she would be in "good voice" for rehearsal. But Irene didn't sleep well.

"Isn't it absurd! I'm actually lying here thinking of George and Lillie. Lillie's a nice girl, but so designing."

She buried her curly head deep in the pillow and counted imaginary white sheep jumping an imaginary fence.

"Six, seven, eight—George never asks me to supper any more. These late suppers are ruinous to the voice. I'm glad I never eat them. I wonder whether they went to Rector's."

Much tossing and opening the small window of the hall bedroom wider.

"Such a suffocating night. Fifteen, sixteen—George looks almost handsome in evening clothes. Nineteen. Lillie wore her biscuit cloth trimmed with gold braid. I wonder if she thinks she can make a fool of George? How ridiculous!"

It was so ridiculous that she sat upright in bed and laughed hollowly as she stared at the darkness.

Irene met Lillie at the stage door at the noon rehearsal. Lillie simpered and Irene looked ill-tempered.

"Your friend's charming, and what a flirt! I'm afraid I'll really lose my heart this time," said the danseuse of the future.

"A flirt! George never had that reputation at home," said the prospective star, tartly. "She wants me to tell him she thinks he's charming and she's losing her heart, but I wont," she thought, with an unbecoming tightening of the lips.

"But men learn so much when they leave home," Lillie drawled, simpering again.

The manager was cross. Irene did her best, but he was brute enough to say she had acquired a wide crack in her voice since yesterday, and she cried behind a newspaper all the way home in the street car. She hoped George would call. She wanted to tell him "everything." He didn't, and that evening she saw a note in his handwriting addressed to Lillie James. It lay just below the mirror Lillie used at the end of the long dressing table used by seven "ladies of the chorus." Irene's hand hovered about it, but she drew it back, shocked at her evil impulse. Lillie sauntered in singing. She snatched the note from the table, read it, and ostentatiously tucked it into her corsage.

"You're pale tonight, 'Rene. What's the matter?"

A loud rap at the door. The stage manager burst in and handed Irene a telegram.

"Milton just left for Boston. You've got to sing. Here's the key to her dressing room. Get into her things and hurry up."

He slammed the door. "Oh, hully!" said the good natured "ladies of the chorus." "Pr-f-f!" said the acid-tempered ones.

Irene made a running entrance. Miss Milton made it effective, but Milton was born in Paris, and I have said that Irene was born in the country and was gauche. She stumbled and three gallery gods laughed. As she picked herself up among her unaccustomed draperies she saw George Hammerton in front.

She saw the dark body in front as through a mist. Her voice sounded strange. She had missed a bar. Heavens! And her breath was leaving her. She tripped upon her train as she made her exit. The audience was silent save for five kind souls. One of these clapped loud enough for three. It was George Hammerton.

Irene cried piteously in her dressing room. A visit from the stage manager made her cry the harder. She said she would not go on again. He said she must, and she did.

The first act was bad, the second worse, the third worst. The five kind souls were loyal. The orchestra was apathetic and part of it went home early. The ingenuous gallery joked and hissed.

A lonely little figure crept out of the stage entrance and was met by a big, sympathetic one.

"Oh, George!" Irene gasped. "It was awful. I can never look at any one again."

He hailed a passing hansom and lifted her into it. "Aren't you going—to—take Lillie?" she sobbed.

"No. She invited me to meet some friends, but I declined. I wanted to see you, Irene."

"Will anyone ever want to see me——" Oh, George, I have failed! I have failed!"

George Hammerton took the trembling little figure in his arms, and drew the curly head to his shoulder.

"Be my understudy, Irene," he said. "I will give you every chance. You shall be a star in my home. Be my prima donna and sing only for me."

She sat straight and dignified for an instant. "You flirted with Lillie," she charged.

"Not guilty," he said, laughing. "I took her to supper, because she seemed so sweet and sisterly and sympathetic."

"She's a designing little beast."

"Well, well, perhaps," Hammerton returned ungallantly.

"It was worrying about you and her and that note that made me such a 'frost' tonight. I believe I'll just try again."

"No, you went," said George Hammerton, assertively, and she didn't.

From that date Irene Gray filled only private engagements.

DULUTH'S SOCIETY

At the Spalding hotel Thursday evening the great social event of the High school year, the Junior-Senior reception, was held. The reception is an annual event: the farewell offered by each junior class to the seniors. The committee, which was composed of the following juniors, Ralph Bradley, Leora Fenton, Fred Johnson, Sumner Smith and Myrtle Butchart, made every effort to make this reception more of a success than any of its predecessors. Their endeavors were rewarded.

The large dining room of the Spalding was very effectively decorated with the High school colors, red and white, and the colors of the two classes, which are red and blue for the seniors and corn and brown for the juniors. A large part of the student body of the school and many of the alumni were present.

An execellent program of twenty-six numbers was charmingly rendered by the full La Brosse's orchestsra. The programs were nicely printed in the colors of the junior class, with the class motto, "Carpe Diem," on the first page. Punch was served. Besides dancing, there were cards in a room provided for that purpose. These, however, were neglected, all those present preferring to either dance or watch the dancers.

The marriage of Miss Ora Gridley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Gridley, and William D. Bailey, took place Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 1003 London road. It was a very quiet home wedding, with none but relatives and a very few friends present. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion. Dr. Milne, of Pilgrim Congregational church read the service. Mrs. Emil Schmied played the wedding music. Mr. and Mrs. Bailey left for an Eastern trip.

A beautiful wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Wood 801 East First street, on Wednesday evening, their daughter, Miss Vera Edna Hood, being married to John M. Oldham of this city. Rev. Alexander Milne performed the ceremony. The bride's costume came from Lucerne, Switzerland, and was of embroidered mousseline de soie over cream taffeta silk, and she carried a large boquet of bride's roses and maiden hair fern, tied with white satin ribbon. The bridesmaid, Miss Maud Young, of Chicago wore a handsome effect of white silk mull over pink taffeta silk and carried pink roses.

Walter Rennison of Sioux City, was best man, and assisted the bridesmaid in leading the bridal march to the strains of the "Lohengrin" march.

The bride's boquet was thrown from the stairs, and the young ladies among the guests eagerly sought to obtain the greatest number of roses, thereby insuring themselves the next wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Oldham will be at home at 215 Ninth avenue east after Aug. 1.

On Monday evening Rev. and Mrs. Alexander Milne entertained a large number of young peopel, at their home on East Third street, in honor of Miss Vira Hood and J. M. Oldham. The feature of the evening was a heavy shower of tinware which descended on the heads of the prospective bride and groom. After recovering from his astonishment the young man was made to designate the use of each article presented, which trial caused much merriment. After much well written advice had been bound into a volume for the groom, the bride had a similar book of all the choice receipts known to the assembled guests. It was a very delightful evening.

Graduates of the Duluth high school are looking forward with pleasure to the coming reunion of the Alumni association, which is to take place at Harmonie hall, at Lester Park, Monday evening. The business meeting is called for 8:15, when there will be election of officers for the ensuing year. The alumni has been strengthened by the addition of about seventy members since the graduation of the class of 1901, and now the rolls of the association show a membership of some 650 or 700.

Invitations have been sent out to a large number of these, but it was impossible to reach all the graduates in this way, but all graduates of the high school are requested to be present and help enjoy the fine music which has been provided for the dance. Arrangements have been made for a special car leaving Lester Park in time to connect with the last West Duluth car.

The marriage of Miss Lillian Alice Skuse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Skuse, and Hans Christenson, took place Wednesday evening at St. Paul's Episcopal church. It was a handsome wedding, plain for a church celebration, but beautiful and impressive. At 8 o'clock the edifice was filled with friends. The church had been artistically draped and ornamented with palms, smilax and potted plants. Mrs. James McKindley was the organist, and played a number of selections before the arrival of the bridal party. Miss McKay sang "To the Angels, by Liddel, and Mrs. James McAuliffe "Calm As the Night," by Bohm.

The "Lohengrin" wedding march was played as the bridal party entered. The ushers were W. L. McLennan, Harper W. Skuse, Maurice T. Bywater and George W. Welles. Miss Jennie McLennan was maid of honor and was gowned in white over white silk and carried American Beauty roses. The bride was also attended by Miss Kate Boyce and Miss Mildred Cleland, who also wore white over yellow and carried Sunset roses. The bride was with her father and wore a handsome gown of point d'esprit over liberty silk and carried a shower boquet of lillies of the valley.

At the chancel rail the groom and his best man, John M. Graham, met the party.

The service was read by Rev. A. W. Ryan, and consisted of the usual betrothal ceremony followed by the marriage ceremony. During this the organ played softly. The bridal party left the church to the strains of the Mendelssohn march.

An informal reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Skuse in the St. Elmo flats. A large number of relatives and friends were present and extended their congratulations. The house was handsomely decorated with lilacs, roses and smilax.

Mr. and Mrs. Christenson left for the East on a night train.

"WHAT WITCH?"

A Husband's Question.

When a man, from coffee drinking, gets to such a condition that he cannot eat breakfast without throwing it up, it seems time to quit, but there are thousands of weak-minded people who have not logical brains enough to understand that when an article of food or drink produces such conditions as these, it should be absolutely left off.

A little woman in Butte, Mont., Mrs. Fitzmaurice, writes that she and her husband are a different kind of people. They knew enough to quit coffee when it had rapped them hard. She says: "My husband was so badly affected that he ate no breakfast for three or four years. He would often try to drink a few sips of coffee and invariably threw it up. When Postum Food Coffee was brought to my attention I tried it without having any faith in it, but when I found what a delicious beverage it was when prepared according to directions, and from trying it on myself found there were no bad effects, I induced my husband to take a cup without telling him it was the Food Coffee. He objected at first, saying that he would be sure to throw it up, but when I insisted upon his trying it, it agreed with him.

"Morning after morning I gave him Postum without telling him that it was any different from ordinary coffee. His stomach quickly recovered and he began to eat breakfast. He asked me one morning as he asked for a second cup of the Postum 'what witch had taught me to make such delicious coffee,' and where I 'found some that would agree with him?' Then I told him for the first time that he had not been drinking coffee but Postum, which had so strengthened his stomach that he could now eat as much breakfast as anyone.

"My two sisters were badly troubled with stomach disorder, but after leaving off coffee and taking Postum they both recovered their appetites and took on considerable flesh. I wish everyone could be induced to use the health-giving, aromatic Postum."

VALUABLE BOOK.

Biography of Lord Milner to Be Published.

New York, June 15.—A dipatch from London to the Tribune says: An important book which will be published early this autumn is a biography of Lord Milner, by Ivan Muller. The author and Lord Milner were in school together and subsequently were intimate at Oxford, and have been lifelong friends. Mr. Muller visited Lord Milner at Capetown, and was admitted to his confidence in all matters relating to South Africa. The book will describe Lord Milner's career in Ireland and Egypt, and will contain a complete revelation of the difficulties with which his work in South Africa has been beset.

DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE.

Guests at Mankato Escape In Scanty Attire.

Mankato, Minn., June 15.—The Saulpaugh, Mankato's finest hotel, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire early yesterday morning. The fire broke out in the basement from some unknown cause and was only prevented from spreading by hard work for several hours.

Sixty-three guests were sleeping in the building and were awakened by the electric room alarms and by hotel employes. The building was filled with smoke, and many made their exit down the fire escape in scanty attire, while others went down the hallways.

The damage to the building and furnishings will be upwards of $5,000. The building was erected ten years ago at a cost of $125,000 and is four stories high. Clarence H. Saulpaugh is owner and Fred H. Snyder lessee; both are insured.

FAILED IN THREE TRIALS.

Vineland, N. J., June 15.—So determined to die was J. Rothman, of Alliance, that in a fit of despondency he tried to kill himself three days ago by gashing his neck with a pair of scissors. Yesterday Rothman seized a knife and stuck the blade into his throat, but before he could inflict a mortal wound he was overpowered. This afternoon he again mutilated his neck by broken glass. He was taken to an insane asylum.

ALL THIS IN AMITYVILLE.

Amityville, N. Y., June 15.—Freak animals have become epidemic. Two one-legged chickens have been born here. Both of the feathered bipeds are doing well, and while they have some difficulty in scratching seem otherwise healthy and happy. A brindle cow a day or two ago gave birth to a tailless heifer calf. A plain old tabby cat gave birth to an eight-legged kitten. The feline has one head, two bodies and two tails.

Col. Lawton Here.

Col. Charles Lawton, head of the Salvation army in the United States, is visiting in Duluth today and will conduct this evening's services at the hall on Seventeenth avenue west and Superior street. Tomorrow morning he will preach at the Baptist church on Nineteenth avenue west and First street, and in the afternoon will speak at the hall. His interesting appearance, together with his short and pointed addresses, has made him rank high as a religious speaker.

Dispatches received at Paris from Pekin say the foreign ministers are considering fresh propositions from Mr. Rockhill affecting the Chinese concessions looking to the payment of the indemnity.

"A mob of Germans attacked a handfull of Czechs at Leitmeritz," says the Vienna correspondent of the Lodon Daily Express, "where it had been arranged that Emperor Francis Joseph should go next Monday. The Germans violently assaulted the Czechs and wrecked their houses. Finally the militia was called out to protect the Czechs."

An obscure official of the Russian ministry of the interior was attacked by a man who has not been identified, but he was not seriously injured. The affair gave rise to reports of a Nihilist outrage.

DAINTY STYLES FOR SUMMER DAYS

Boas and Tiny Capes Conspicuous Features---Ostrich Feather Tippets Rivaled By Novelties In Chiffon, Gauze and Lace.

New York, June 13.—While this month of roses and brides has nothing distinctly new to offer in the way of models, it provides opportunity for displaying the charming costumes prepared during the spring days of which the choicest are included in the trousseaux of the brides. The most conspicuous are the fluffy boas and tiny capes with long stole ends that are seen in marvelous variety and profusion. Ostrich feathers in white, delicate gray, and pale blue, black and white, that is sometimes more white, sometimes more black and other soft harmonizing colors are conspicuous and are always elegant; but countless rivals in chiffon, gauze and lace are also seen. Women whose purses forbid the possession of really handsome feathers prefer these novelties to the cheaper sort and exert every power to obtain new and exclusive designs, with the result that ruffles of many sorts and sizes have made their appearance. One of the newest and most chic is black Chantilly edged with plisse white chiffon. A dainty creation is of chiffon edged with cream lace and still another is pastel blue, flecked with black, and edged with tiny black velvet ribbon, both being made extremely full and consisting of frill on frill running lengthwise of the narrow foundation. Others again are of white net with an edge of tiny black lace or ribbon frills, with long loops and ends of velvet ribbon, or of cream chiffon edged with chenille and finished with the soft becoming material arranged in loops that fall nearly to the hem of the skirt. Parisian women supplement the use of chiffon by the introduction of flower petals, massed to give the fluffy effect or chiffon blended with flowers, but, as yet only a few of these have appeared on this side of the sea. A lovely one of double white violets has been imported for one of the many June brides that is exquisite with the accompanying gown of white crepe de chine. But this is an extreme fashion, possible only in the carriage or for evening wear while the chiffon boas are suitable for the afternoon promenade. The latest dictum of fashion calls for all one color with variety found in varying tones rather than for contrasts and the up-to-date women order ruffs or boas to harmonize with their various costumes, preferring a number of less cost to one of even the rarest feathers that cannot possibly suit all gowns alike.

Summer gowns of vailing, barege, grenadine, crepe de cine and various gauzes are all much trimmed with lace. A novelty is the use of two sorts upon a single gown. Chantilly with Cluny or guipure being a favorite combination and one that is exceedingly effective. One of the handsomest garden party gowns included in a June trousseau is of that softest of woolen fabric, chiffon vailing, in an exquisite moss green shade and trimmed with black Chantilly enriched with motifs of Cluny. The material is scarcely heavier than mull and takes the most graceful lines and folds, while the combined laces gives a striking effect. So many of the old time laws with regard to combination of materials are now disregarded that this union of laces meets with favor, particularly as the result is satisfactory.

One of the most attractive informal dinner gowns seen recently is of black grenadine with trimming of Chantilly and guipure, and is hung over pale blue vailed with white chiffon. Soft delicate colors are the ones preferred and this use of the filmy interskirt of white over the colored silk brings about the result more perfectly than any other method known. In the case of less costly materials, such as mull, plain or printed, linen batiste and the like, the same effect is sought, but is obtained by means of simple things. Often the drop skirt is nothing more costly than lawn, with the inter filmy one of plain mull, but the general result is the same. An especially charming gown is of linen batiste with the entire shaped flounce and the blouse of all over point de Gene, while the chemisette is of tucked white and the entire gown is hung over pale green, vailed with sheer white mull. Admirably as silk serves for the drop skirt of blonde lace and worn with a bolero entirely of renaissance. The drop skirt is of taffeta vailed with a plain net, edged with a plisse frill, while the waist niso has a foundation of silk covered with the transparent material. Semi-decollete, as it might be called, is a feature of all the season's gowns, and is even worn by many brides. Delicate transparent, or semi-transparent fabrics have the foundation cut away to form a yoke and leave that and the sleeves lined only with such filmy materials as chiffon or net. The effect is charming, often better than the actual low gown, for the dainty linings under lace or gauze have a softening effect and tend to conceal any tendency to over slenderness that may exist.

Black and white has great vogue, but to be quite up-to-date, should show a touch of blue, which is best found in collar and belt, where the color suits the wearer; but, like all fashion rules, this one should only be followed when the result will be satisfactory from an individual point of view. To look her best is the aim of every sensible woman-and no matter how chic or novel a style may be, it loses its effect if it is not suited to the wearer. Blue, in pale and pastel tints suits many complexions, but is exceedingly unbecoming to certain types. A fascinating gown, imported for the mother of one of the brides of the month, is of black d'esprit, the skirt run with perpendicular stripes of velvet ribbon. The foundation is lustring silk, warp printed, that shows a very delicate blue ground with a dim, shadowy, floral design. Over it is hung a plain, slightly full skirt of net and over it again the skirt of the gown which is arranged in the scantiest possible gathers at front and sides, and made full at the back. The bodice, an open blouse, is treated in the same manner, but made with yoke and front of finely tucked chiffon and finished with a bertha of the net with bands of velvet ribbon. At the waist is a soft, narrow belt of panne that exactly matches the blue of the taffeta and the collar shows lines of the same material with black chiffon. The blue thus introduced is in evidence and yet so deftly and charmingly managed that it could scarcely be ungecoming though larger quantities should be abjured.

Among foulards the latest novelty is cloth hands, stitched on either simply straight or in fancy patterns. A striking costume that is only just completed is of dark blue, with figures of white, and shows stitched bands of blue cloth on both skirt and bolero. Another in the fashionable cord red shows bands of the plain colored cloth to form geometrical figures and still a third is of pastel violet with the strapping stitched with black and applied in a succession of bands each terminating in a point held by a strass button. A few years go this combination would have been viewed with extreme disapproval, but stitched bands of cloth on silk have proved a success and here is another evidence of marked departure from tradition in matters of dress.

FASHION NOTES.

The new crepe de chine with its satiny luster is welcomed by those to whom the dull finish is unbecoming.

The latest fad with regard to lingerie is to have it embroidered with a blossom corresponding to one's name instead of initial or monogram. If a flower name is not one's fortunate possession any blossom desired may be chosen as a mark.

Buttons of cabuchon topaz set in narrow rims of gold make very effective ornaments.

Wooden buttons of Swiss manufacture are a fancy for brown grass linen gowns and shirt waists. Some are shown beautifully carved, others etched, with the pyrographic needle and then artistically colored.

A Parisian idea in wraps is a costly novelty in the form of a three-quarter coat of beautiful point lace.

Polka dots—coin spots is the newer term—of all sizes and sorts are in evidence.

The empire night gown is the favorite style at present, the finest set off with medallions of old lace or hand made embroidery and tied with lingerie ribbon of pink, blue or lavender. Silk gauze, batiste or French lawn in white and delicate colors are used for these robes, which sometimes have large falling collars of tucks and lace.

Louisine comes in so many soft, pretty shades that it is particularly well adapted for corsage trimming or the making of entire costumes.

A blue and white foulard gown recently designed was turned into an elaborate work of art by being strapped all over in a perfect maze of imcery with white satin stitched on with blue silk. The vest was white pleated mousseline, with an outer vest of turquoise velvet sprinkled with tiny gold buttons.

Medallions in imitation of old French needlework are introduced into some of the new laces; little landscape designs and Watteau shepherdesses adorn these medallions.

The tulle bow worn at the back of the neck or at the throat as desired matches the color of the gown if of a pale shade. With black gowns bows of maize or shrimp pink are worn, but white is no longer in favor.

White satin overlaid with heavy lace, showing the pattern outlined in silver, is admirable for a collar for a light gray Eton.

Flemish laces wrought on delicate net grounds are much used to decorate India mulls, ecru lawns, grenadines and similar transparent fabrics.

Paneled redingotes of creped satin peau de sole and taffeta silk are noted among imported gowns, formed variously of grenadine, dotted mohair, satin foulard, and point d'esprit net.

Robe patterns of cream colored Russian net decorated with applique designs on the skirt, with a finish at the bottom of the skirt of a wide hem of cream colored silk make exceedingly effective gowns.

Ordinary twine, netted or knotted, and studded with gems, is the latest form of dress and coat garniture.

Black gowns trimmed with white lace are preferred by the French woman to the ordinary combination of white gown and black lace, and some handsome French models have been designed of black mousseline de sole and organdy with white lace garniture.

A boa of gold tissue, edged with narrow ruching of white mousseline de sole, or tiny ostrich plumes, is one of the dainty effects of the season.

THE DAINTY SUMMER GIRL.

She Will Be Immeasurably Effective When Robed In This Filmy Gown of White, Black and Blue.

This filmy organdie gown shows the favorite combination of the season, white mingled with black and a dash of blue. The gown is of white organdie. The decoration black lace and the yoke white embroidered with black polka dots. Bow and waistband of blue satin ribbon. From Oppenheim, Collins & Company.

Health for All Women

Cumbow, Va., September 13, 1900.

I can truthfully say that Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught have done me more good than all the other medicines I ever took. I have had better health and have been able to do more work this summer than I have in ten years before. I have persuaded others to use your medicine. Mrs. MINERVA N. BARBER.

Women may be healthy. There is no excuse for all the suffering there is in the world. Thousands who would be filling premature graves or dragging out lives of suffering are happy and healthy because they took Wine of Cardui. There is no mystery about this.

WINE OF CARDUI

Is the medicine provided by Nature to strengthen and regulate the menstrual organs of women. Nature never intended all women to suffer. If they do suffer it is because they have neglected some natural law. They have neglected some little menstrual irregularity which has grown into falling of the womb or one of the long calendar of ills to which women are subject. Women only know the awful distress continued menstrual disorders bring. Headaches, backaches, aches in every limb and pains in the abdomen, neck and chest all combine to make the sufferer's life one of misery. By taking Wine of Cardui these pains can be banished quickly and permanently. This simple medicine has cured a million women. It will cure you. Try it! All druggists sell $1.00 bottles.

Practical Suggestions About What to Eat and How to Prepare Food.

SWEET ACCESSORIES.

Daintiest Last to Make the End Most Sweet.

There are many dainty little accessories the hostess desires to have to add to the attractiveness of her table on special occasions, which she does not dream can be made just as well at home as by a high-priced caterer. They require but little skill and practice and materials that are not expensive. Many housewives may be so situated as not to find it convenient to employ the services of a professional in manufacturing these dainties, and unless she can make them herself, must forego the pleasure of having them.

FRUITS IN FONDANT.

These are among the daintiest preparations of sweets, and at this season, when we have the strawberry and cherry, we can make some very delicious as well as dainty little "kickshaws" to ornament the table and please the palate.

MAKING FONDANT.

This is the foundation of all fine cream candies, and is used also for covering as well. In order to understand the secret of making all candies made from boiled sugar, it is necessary to have a knowledge of the action of the heat upon the sugar.

The degrees of boiling sugar for confectioners use are seven, not including the first degree, which is the reducing of sugar and water to a syrup. These degrees are: To thread, large and small; to pearl, large and small; to blow; or feather; to ball, large and small; to crack, and caramel.

Of these degrees the housekeeper employs most frequently the syrup, the thread, the ball, the crack and caramel.

The proportion of sugar and water used is three and a half pounds of granulated cane sugar and a pint and a half of water. Add the water to the sugar and stir over the fire a few minutes until sugar is dissolved; remove the paddle and be careful not disturb the syrup while boiling. Small crystals will form around the side of the saucepan; remove these with a small piece of muslin wet in cold water, but do not disturb the boiling syrup. If the syrup is to be used for soft icing, test after a few minutes' boiling by dipping in a spoon; if, when drawing it out a long thread of the syrup will follow, it is ready to pour into the beaten whites of the eggs. But for fondant it must continue to boil until it will form a very soft ball when rolled between wet fingers. This may seem a severe test, but it is very harmless and simple and the only one to insure success.

THE TEST FOR FONDANT.

Great care must be observed at this point in order that the syrup does not become discolored, as it is rapidly reaching the caramel degree and it passes quickly from one stage to another. Have a bowl of ice water ready, hold the thumb and two first fingers in it until they are thoroughly chilled, then quickly slide them into the hot syrup at side of saucepan and as quickly take them out and dip into the ice water; if you can form a soft ball of syrup clinging to the fingers it is done. Have a large platter or marble slab brushed well with oil to within two or three inches of the edge; pour the syrup gently into this to cool; do not disturb until you can make an impression on the syrup with your finger; then, using an oiled, wooden paddle, stir the syrup rapidly until it is white and stiff. Then knead a few minutes like dough; place on a dish and cover with a damp cloth and set in a cool dry place until needed; if it is to be used for dipping this can be done at once; but if for cream fillings it must stand until the following day.

DIPPING FRUIT.

For strawberries in fondant, select large, firm, ripe fruit; see that they are perfectly free from sand and grit. If they must be washed, dry them thoroughly before dipping. Do not hull them. Melt enough fondant for dipping quantity of fruit desired, by placing it in a small saucepan or cup and melting it over boiling water, stirring all the time; take up each berry by the stem and petals and dip into the fondant, covering the berry entirely; place each berry, as soon as covered, in a tiny paper case, unless they are for decorating; then place on their tips on oiled paper to dry. The color shows through the white fondant and they are pretty for a pink breakfast or luncheon as well as delicious to taste.

Cherries, sections of orange, white grapes and cubes of candied pineapple may be treated in same manner. The fondant may be colored, to carry out the color scheme used in the decorations; but the bright colored fruits look best with the pure white covering.

GLACE FRUIT.

The syrup for dipping must be boiled longer than for fondant, and is next to the caramel degree; for this reason it must be watched closely; test as for fondant, and if the sugar hardens at once in ice water and breaks with a crackling noise between the fingers it has reached the proper point and must be removed at once from the fire the instant it begins to turn straw color. Another way to test the syrup is to dip the point of a cold steel-bladed knife into the syrup, then into the ice water, then place between the teeth and if it breaks brittle without sticking or cracking it is ready. Set at once over hot water and commence dipping.

Cherries and grapes dip nicely on account of their stems. Blanched and toasted almonds may be dipped; also walnuts, chestnuts, hazel nuts, etc. Orange and mandarin glaces are nice, but must be carefully handled so as not to break the skin of the carpel, allowing the juice to escape. These will not keep over twelve hours.

After dipping the fruits can be placed in little paper cases or lay them on an oiled wire tray for the sugar to set and cool. Nuts should be dried in this way as they are usually mixed with bonbons.

CREAM MERINGUES.

For making these it is best to have a thick, well-seasoned board that will go into the oven (it must not be of pine, of course); cover this with thick well-glazed, white paper. Separate six eggs carefully and beat the whites to a stiff froth; then fold in gently half a pound of confectioner's sugar; in doing this do not break down the eggs, but work lightly and quickly; as soon as thoroughly incorporated, drop the meringue, by large or small spoonfuls, according to size desired, on the paper-covered board, making them round or oblong in shape, as you fancy. Dust the meringues with powdered sugar and slide the board into a very slow oven so they will dry out rather than bake. When set turn the board frequently unless your oven has a very even temperature. When the meringues are a delicate light brown remove from the oven and cool a little; then take from the paper and without crushing them scoop out the soft center and press the rest back into the shell so as to form a hollow center; dust with powdered sugar, lay the shells, bottom upward, on a clean paper on the board and stand in a cool oven to dry out. If these shells are made small they may be filled with marshmellow filling and two fastened with white of egg; the larger ones filled with whiped cream or charlotte russe mixture, or they may be made very small and not scooped out, but put together and served as soon as cold with small fancy cakes and ice cream.

PEPPERMINT AND WINTERGREEN STRAWS.

These are a change from the conventional "drops" usually served at the end of the meal and can be made at home from the fondant. Flavor a little of the white fondant with a few drops of oil of peppermint; work it in well with the fingers, using powdered sugar, then roll out on a board, sprinkled with powdered sugar, into a sheet not more than an eighth of an inch thick; while still soft cut with a sharp knife, dipped in the sugar, into tiny straws not more than an eighth of an inch wide and two and a half inches long. Place on a slightly oiled paper to harden. For the wintergreen color the fondant with a little coloring paste and flavor with wintergreen. Pistachio, violet and orange can be obtained in same manner.

Home-made confections are generally much better than others and are not difficult to make.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

(No attention paid to inquiries not giving name and address of writer, plainly written).

Mrs. M. D. S. desires recipe for chicken saute, cheese souffle, stewed figs, beauregard eggs and planked shad; these are contained in the weekly menu.

CHICKEN SAUTE.

Cut a small spring chicken into four pieces and place on ice to get very cold, or dip quickly into ice water. Season with salt and pepper and cover well with flour. Put enough fat, vegetable oil is best, in a frying pan to nearly cover the pieces of chicken, fry each piece a rich brown on all sides; when done, place on a hot dish. When all are fried, make a cream sauce with two tablespoonfuls of flour, a half pint of milk and salt and pepper to taste. Pour this over the chicken and sprinkle a little finely minced parsely over it.

CHEESE SOUFFLE.

Heat a cup of milk, add a teaspoonful of butter, half a cup of soft bread crumbs, quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne and a cup of grated cheese mixed with the well broken yolks of three eggs. Cook three minutes; then fold in the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth; moderately quick oven from 15 to 20 minutes, until set. Serve at once.

STEWED FIGS.

Use the California figs and stew or steam them same as prunes, but without soaking, until tender; drain them from the water in which they are cooked, using it for making a syrup, flavor with a little stick cinnamon. The imported figs may be used, but must be thoroughly washed in warm water.

BEAUREGARD EGGS.

Boil five eggs for twenty minutes. In the meantime put half a pint of milk on to scald with a slice of lemon. Rub two level tablespoonfuls of flour with two level tablespoonfuls of butter. Add the hot milk to this fitstraining out the onions; season with half a teaspoonful of salt and eighth of a teaspoonful of white pepper; stir and cook until it boils; as soon as the eggs are done remove the shells, separate the yolks and whites, press the whites through a sieve or chop very fine and add to the sauce. Dip five or six slices of nicely toasted bread quickly into hot water, place them on a heated platter and cover with the sauce; put the yolks through a vegetable press or sieve over the top of the eggs, leaving a margin of the white sauce. Sprinkle the yolks with a little salt and cayenne, place in a hot oven for a few minutes; garnish the dish with a spray or two of parsley and serve at once.

PLANKED SHAD.

Procure a hardwood board made for this purpose; they can be purchased at any house furnishing store and are also to be found at china stores and some with a platter for serving. Split open the shad as for broiling, season well with salt and pepper. Heat the plank very hot, then place the fish on it with skin side down, fasten it to plank with tacks. Cook it before an open fire if possible; if not, put the plank in the oven and bake until you can pierce it with a fork and the meat is flaky. Brush frequently with a little melted butter. When done place the plank on a hot dish, garnish with border of mashed potatoes, browned parsley and lemon cut into quarters.

SPORTS

Duluth and Superior to Play Again Sunday.

Cummings Would Improve Duluth Team.

The Duluth team will descend on Superior tomorrow full of ginger and red feathers. Manager Hansell and Manager Porter say that this game will decide the "championship." Managers always like to talk about championships early in the season, but it seems a little absurd to talk about tomorrow's game in that way. Nevertheless, the deciding game of the first Duluth-Superior series should prove fast and interesting.

Duluth.		Superior.
Sturgeon	catcher	Scott
Glenney	pitcher	Augustine
Hansell	first base	Porter
Cameron	second base	Olson
Shepard	short stop	Riches
McLaren	third base	Chase
Bemfort	left field	Hurley
Lambert	center field	Mullaney
Randall	right field	Hall

* * *

After last Saturday's game there seems to be scant need of Duluth keeping wires hot for outside pitchers. Young Cummings, in allowing Superior but three hits on a cold day, seems to have demonstrated the fact that he is plenty fast enough. He pitched himself out of a tight place in the sixth. With two men on bases he struck two out. That performance is something that more experienced pitchers find hard to duplicate.

* * *

Many of the fans are kicking because the Duluth team has not been playing enough home games. The management of the local club has a much better right to kick on the poor manner in which the home games have been patronized. A town cannot expect to have a winning ball team without good support.

Next week the Ashland team will be here, and the following week another strong out-of-town team will be scheduled, possibly from Minneapolis. Get out and root—don't knock!

McGovern says Herrera was a "wonder." The fact that the Spaniard thought he had any chance against the champion is proof of the assertion.

Australian Tim Hegarty has arrived at San Francisco and is now in training for a contest with Tim Callahan, on June 28. Hegarty has made a good impression since his arrival, and competent judges express the opinion that he can hold his own with any of the 126-pounders in this country. Hegarty's match with Tim Callahan will be a good try-out for the new comer, and if he can put it on the Quaker City lad a match with McGovern will then be in order. Hegarty is about 29 years of age, with a sharp eye and broad jaw. He looks every inch a fighter, and in all his contests has never been knocked out.

Hegarty was brought to this country by Steward James, of the steamship Sonoma, who was responsible for bringing to America Young Griffo, Peter Jackson, Bob Fitzsimmons and others. Hegarty will probably be managed by George Hardin, who formerly looked after the interests of Australian Billy Smith and Peter Jackson.

Joe Walcott's colossal nerve in challenging Jim Jeffries for a heavyweight championship battle was the most amusing piece of nerve this week from gay Gotham. Walcott's challenge set the sporting men to laughing, and, as far as known, no one took the black boy in earnest. If there was to be a burlesque on a heavyweight championship battle no more ridiculous feature could be secured than to put this 147-pound bit of humanity with the ebony-hued hide against the California giant. Jack O'Brien's victory over the heavyweight champion of England was something to laugh at, but to throw Joe Walcott in the ring with Jeffries would produce a roaring farce seldom equalled on the American stage. Jeff in a clinch could pick up this package of lampblack in one arm and strangle him until his tongue hung out like a monkey's tail without half trying, if such a thing as putting them in the ring was ever attempted. Walcott may be capable of putting away a few of the has-beens in the heavyweight division, but if he is ever stacked up against the Californian it's the Bank of England against a bunch of confederate currency that the "whirlwind" will be carried from the ring in a blanket.

Hugh Jennings, who is reported to have signed with Baltimore to play first base, is still a bone of contention between Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Jennings accepted the terms of the Athletics presented by Ban Johnson in person. Subsequently McGraw asserted he had an option, or rather promise, from Jennings to play with him. Then, to complicate matters, Jimmy Manning came along with the statent that Jennings had said he would play in Washington if he flopped to the American league. Meantime Jennings, who appears to be in Comiskey's "slow thinker" class, has overtures from Brooklyn and Philadelphia. He wants the American league clubs to settle the squabble so that he may know where he stands when his contract with Cornell expires.

Not in years has the baseball championship race in the National league been so close and exciting as this season. Only a few games in the won column separate the top from the bottom team. A streak of ill-luck is liable to make a big change in the standing of the clubs, and most of the games so far this season has been close and exciting. Enthusiasts in the various cities of the National league circuit are aware of the fact that when they pay admission to any of the big league parks nowadays they are going to see a hotly contested game of baseball. Last year it was different. The teams all hustled hard for contests, but the real fight for the flag was between Brooklyn and Pittsburg. Manager Hanlon still insists that the same clubs will fight it out for the flag this year, but Mr. Hanlon is human and can err. To many the New Yorks do not look pretty good. Most of the Giants are coming, while Hanlon's men are going. The Reds may also surprise a lot of wise people. Of course, Matthewson is a tower of strength to the Giants. He is young, strong and intelligent. Best of all he has good habits and takes excellent care of himself at all times. Some may say that one man can't land a pennant, but by going over the records of the last few years one must be impressed with the great factor that McGinnity was last year at Brooklyn.

Champion Jim Jeffries has arrived at his old home in Los Angeles, Cal., and, according to latest advices from the Pacific coast, the big boilermaker will not do any fighting until the latter part of August. Jeffries' trip to California is for the purpose of resting up, and he will take things easy while in the land of flowers. Gus Rublin would much prefer having his contest with Jeff come off before next August, but big Jeff is the boss as far as setting the date is concerned, and Gus will have to await the champion's pleasure.

No one can blame Jeffries for taking a rest, and the champion has certainly picked out a nice spot to enjoy it. Jeffries is not the kind of a fellow to duck a chance to make a championship fight, and his vacation in no way interferes with the plans of the club managers who have been after his services. There is nothing in sight as yet for Jeff and Rublin. Several attempts have been made to have the match come off at San Francisco, but nothing definite was done in the matter, and Jim thought it was about time for him to rest up. He has been on the road doing his stunt in "The Man From the West" company ever since last February, and a month's vacation will do him a world of good.

The owner of the San Francisco club has been compeled to recognize a "union" formed by the small boys of that city, who put in their time returning balls knocked over the fence during games at his park. They were not satisfied with admission to the grounds for returning a ball hit over the fence, and preferred to keep it. A corps of men on the outside failed to get the balls back, for the youngsters were stationed at intervals of about seventy-five feet up and down the street, and before the watchers reached the one holding the ball, it was passed along to his pal, who in turn shot it along the line until it was a block away and hopelessly lost. A compromise was effected with the boys, and now every ball returned to the watchman entitles the holder to 50 cents in cash and a free admission ticket. The youths of Frisco are reaping the benefits of organization. Men and boys who are above pilfering do not consider it wrong to appropriate the property of a club, and when a ball goes into the bleachers at

Honest Beer

The first brewery of Jos. Schlitz was a hut, but the beer that was brewed there was honest. That was fifty years ago. Today the magnificent Schlitz brewery forms a monument to that honesty.

From the very beginning the main object has been to attain absolute purity. In Schlitz beer pure yeast was first introduced in America. In the Schlitz brewery are all the inventions men have made for protecting beer from impurities.

Schlitz beer is even cooled in filtered air; then it is filtered, then sterilized. It is well aged to avoid the cause of biliousness.

YOUNG FIGHTER.

Thomas F. Millard, the war correspondent, tells the following story of Boots, a 12-year-old Yankee, whom he met fighting with the Boers, and who may be still dodging bullets and lyddite shells, says the New York Sun. Said Mr. Millard:

"His real name is William Young, but in the laagers he is known by the sobriquet of Boots. I think he came by this honestly enough, for he drags about a hug pair of legging boots many sizes too large, and ornamented with enormous brass spurs.

"Boots is a midget of 12—or at least he gives that as his age, though he does not look it by three years.

"Boots was born in the United States. Just where this important event occurred he does not know. "It was somewhere near the ocean, he says, when question, as if that location was definite enough for all practical purposes.

"When very young he remembers being taken to England, whence he came to South Africa. His parents are long since dead, and since their death William, having no other relations that he knew of, has rustled for himself.

"When this war began William espoused the cause of the Boers and joined the Irish brigade, under Col. Blake. The men who formed this adventurous corps took a fancy to the waif and made him one of them. They named him Boots and Boots he remains. Being of a self-reliant nature, Boots was not content to remain in the laager when a fight was going on. No sooner was the brigade well on its way to the field than he followed, and the men chancing to look around as they entered the fight generally spied the diminutive figure of Boots. At first they tried to drive him away, but this failing, and finding that Boots was well able to care for himself, being singularly adept at finding cover, his accompanying the brigade to battles came to be regarded as a matter of course.

"So it was that Boots saw all the bloody battles of the Natal campaign—Dundee, Newcastle, Nicholson's Nek, the Platrand, and the many fights along the Tugela. Armed with two water bottles, the midget would enter a fight, and more than once has a wounded brigadier, on finding a cooling drink placed to his parched lips, looked up to discover Boots. If the fire were too hot to permit his wounded comrades being removed to a place of safety, the boy would remain to attend them until the battle was over or night fell.

"When Capt. Hassell organized the American Scouts as a separate company, Boots decided to join his countrymen. So far as I know, he is still with them. Boots has a horse to ride, but his ambition is to possess a pony of his own and a Mauser carbine, so he can fight like the other scouts. For the purchase of a pony he has saved up £2 and 5 shillings, which will buy no horse in South Africa in war time. So Boots has to go without a pony until better times. But he has hopes of capturing one from the British.

"Meanwhile, since he cannot fight like a full-grown man, he makes himself useful around the laager. As to the future, Boots scorns to contemplate it.

"'What'll I do when the war's over?' he said. 'I dunno. I'll do whatever I can. Maybe, if the Boers lose, I'll go to America."

A runaway girl; a hurried marriage; a yacht; a thousand-mile sail away to the north, through the myriad islands of the inland sea, which winds its many channels from Puget sound to Alaska, says the San Francisco Call.

That was an elopement worth reading about.

Ray Ovlatt, of Seattle, was a sailor boy, 19 years old, and the lass that loved a sailor was 18-year-old Mamie Gridell, who lived down by the bay with her grandmother.

Ray was beardless and brown, with lithe form and laughing face. As he sailed in his boat on the bay, Mamie's blue eyes watched him with ever increasing emotions as he departed each time from her view.

Later on they met and sailed together. Ray taught Mamie to steer and how to let go the jib sheets in coming about while he was forward attending to the anchor.

Then when sailing out on the sound he gave her instructions in all the arts of sailor craft—how to luff quickly and ease off the sheets when struck by a flaw from the mountains, and how to jibe without cracking the main boom or her own head—until at last she could stand her watch alone with self-reliance.

Venus was seaborn, the Greeks said, and still she rises from the sea when man and maid appear. Puget sound is not less beautiful than the Ionian sea, and Venus is not the goddess of the Greeks only. She cast her witchery over the two who sailed on the summer days, and then came an engagement and the storm at home when it was announced.

Ray's parents raged. His father used language; his mother tears.

Mamie's grandmother said not much. Only that Mamie was all she had.

Ray was under age and needed his parents' consent. But the spell of Venus was over them, and love will find a way. There is one thing that a girl will do. She may be weak and vacillating in everything else, but when once she gets the idea of marriage into her head it is there to stay.

One day when they were out on the bay:

"If I could only sail on forever like this," said one.

"Why not?" said one.

"Why not?" said both.

The next thing was to prepare. Mamie began by packing her trunk a little at a time in a hiding place which Ray had found for her. Piece by piece she transported the bits of her wardrobe that was to be her trousseau.

He at the same time commenced laying in a store of provisions.

It was the most fun in the world, and no one knew a thing about it but the two. When Ray added a sack of flour, Mamie would throw in a pillowcase that she had made. Then she would turn red and think perhaps she should not have shown it, and then they would both laugh. When it came to buying the coffee, Ray had to ask her what kind she liked, for they were both live, healthy people and drank coffee instead of bran tea boiled hard for fifteen minutes.

Then they both laughed again, for Mamie had never had anyone ask her what kind of coffee they should buy, and she didn't know, and Ray did not either.

At last the time came when the provisions were all stored in the secret hiding place. The little trouseau that Mamie had scraped together, made and pieced out, was all ready, and then one day Ray got a friend to go with him to the court house and help him get the marriage license. He could not have asked for it himself.

It's funny how hard it is to say some things without giggling and looking green, and the idea of having to ask a fat political clerk for license to marry a girl whom he never saw was too much for the would-be groom. The license obtained, there was a wait until one auspicious evening when the young couple went out for a walk, as they had often done before. Only this time they were two who went out and but one came back, if there is truth in the statement that marriage makes them one.

Everything was now ready, and, taking the first favorable opportunity, they stowed their provisions and clothing on the little yacht Ultra and started, and on as strange and adventurous a runaway wedding trip as ever two mortals had.

While Ray was young, he had seen storms on the sea, and he had also seen parental storms at home, and he knew that nature in her wildest moods was soon calmed down, while parental wrath would grow fiercer as time rolled on.

So, less fearing stormy seas than stormy people, they started on their long climb up the meridians to the land where at midnight they could peep over the top of the world and see the sun on the other side.

"Down the sound the voyage was uneventful," said Ray Oviatt in describing the beginning of his journey, which shows how the greatest event of a man's life may fail to impress him with its significance.

It was a happy, busy, nervous time for them. Mamie steered while Ray stowed the anchor and made things snug forward. Then, after he had adjusted the heavier boxes and things in the cabin, he took the helm, and Mamie started in the first of her housekeeping duties, tucking and tidying things up in the cabin, giving those little touches and twists and poses to objects as only a woman can, and entirely destroying in a few minutes that ogre's castle appearance which a man's arrangement of a dwelling invariably gives.

Then it was Ray's turn again to go and build the galley fire so that Mamie could cook their dinner.

And, of course, it goes without saying that whoever was at the helm could not leave it, and so they would have to call to whoever was below to come up and see something or do something, for it would be awfully lonesome for them if they didn't. There was real danger, too, to be apprehended every time a launch or steamer appeared to be coming after them, for there was no telling who might be in the boats or what their intentions were. And, besides, it was so much more fun to think that they were being pursued, even if it was unlikely that their absence would be so noted. The first meal was eaten sitting out in the cockpit. Mamie served it on a tray and sat with it on her knees, while Ray steered with one hand and ate with the other. It was all so very jolly that they did not notice how the wind was swirling the clouds down from the mountains until everything began to darken around them. Then there was a hurrying. Mamie took the helm again while Ray shortened sail and then rushed below to stow things which might carry away when the sea rose.

By the time he had finished this the wind had increased so that Mamie was braced with all her strength to keep the helm up, and the boat was tearing through the water, throwing spray clear back to the championway as she butted against the head seas. Ray brought up an overcoat for Mamie and an oilskin sou'wester that became her more than any spring hat she had ever worn. At least it seemed so to him as he tied the strings under her chin, that was tipped up so childishly to the touch of his strong hands. Before long there was work enough for both of them, for it is no easy task to keep a little short chunky vessel headed anywhere within four points of where she ought to be, when there is a choppy sea and a flawy wind.

The darkness came on imperceptibly, the coast outline disappeared bit by bit, and the shore lights taking its place, cut out now and then by the lowering clouds.

Ray went below and lit the little binnacle light that shone blood red on the compass card, its ruby light not in the least blinding their eyes in the darkness about.

Not till then had they realized what is and always has been the dream of lovers.

They were alone in the world. Around them was the black night. All the world and sky was black except that little red-lighted compass card with its white face and the thirty-two black points of the compass. Just enough of its rays shone upon them to assure each that the other was still there. The storm might do, do, might do its worst. They were together and they were happy. Ray knew the waters of the sound as he knew the way through his own house, and the yacht, while small, was as seaworthy as a lifeboat.

The evening wore on, the boat dashing from wave to wave, splashing and roaring enough to deaden all sounds, until suddenly there came from in front of them a hoarse blowing noise as of a steamboat's escape pipe.

"A whale," said Ray, and changed the course of the boat to avoid its apparent direction. Before they had sailed long, again came the noise, still ahead of them and in a new direction. Again he changed the boat's course, and then it seemed as though the whale had deliberately started in to tease them, first on the port bow, then on the starboard; then, just to make them think they were safe, he would drop back and they would hear his blowing close on their quarter, close enough to make them think that a blow of his tail might reach them. Then he would drop astern, and as they thought he was leaving them, he would suddenly rush ahead and again divert them from their course.

At last the whale tired of teasing, and when he had left them the storm alone did not seem so threatening. As dawn came on the wind decreased, and, the increasing light making it safe for them to run close to shore, they found a beautifully sheltered anchorage in a little inlet, or bight, with wooded shores that overhung the water. They were now across the British line. The storm was gone, they were safe from the irate parents. The world was theirs, and they were each other's and alone.

The anchor was dropped, the sails lowered, and soon the blue smoke of the galley fire was curling lazily around the mast before floating away through the tired atmosphere that sagged listlessly in its rest after the wild storm of the night before. No less delightful than the scenery was the sizzling sound that came from good things on the galley stove below.

Breakfast over, the young pair, exhausted with their long struggle against the storm, slept the entire day.

The experience of the storm had shown them that their boat was seaworthy and to be relied upon in their long journey from civilization upon which they were starting.

The first storm was followed by others. In all of them Mamie took her turn at the helm with her husband, strong and brave to face the flying spray.

More storms followed, but by this time they were well into the inland passage, and little harbors were to be found whenever shelter was wanted. The days were lengthening with the increased northing which they were making, and days and nights both they sailed, one keeping the boat on her course while the other slept. For a boat as small as theirs there was little choice as to which channel should be taken, and in most of the parts of the way there were two or three courses open. Fish, halibut especially, were plentiful, and, like all Alaskans, they ate fish until surfeited with the delicious, firm-meated specimens that they pulled out every day with their hooks and lines while trolling as the boat sailed slowly.

Provisions were running short, and it was necessary to supplement the stock they had with something else besides the monotonous fish.

Mamie suggested that they could dig clams.

This was great fun, too. Going ashore when the tide was low, they could in a few minutes secure enough of the rich, succulent shell fish to last them all day.

At one place where they had gone ashore on an island for fresh water Ray saw the track of a deer. Thinking the place was so small that he could not miss finding it, he split off a bunch of fagots from a pitch-pine log, and, waiting until it got as near dark as the northern latitudes approach in midsummer, he started with his rifle to secure the game.

Lighting one of the splints of pitch pine, he began carefully beating his way through the woods, always going to windward and trusting to the curiosity of the deer to bring it out of its hiding place to see what manner of thing a moving light was.

Before he had been gone long he was rewarded by seeing a pair of blazing globes—the eyes of the deer reflecting the light—which blinked and shook as the impatient deer silently tossed its head.

Carefully setting his light behind him, where he would not blind his sight, he aimed at the lurid circles and fortunately brought down the deer, which proved to be in fairly good condition for the early season.

This gave them an agreeable variety, and with the ever-plentiful fish, enabled them to get through to Pyramid harbor.

Here, lost to the world for the whole summer, they honeymooned to their hearts' content. At times the diet was clams and nothing else.

Ray was prospecting, and as his wife could not follow on his hard trips he built a shelter for her on the beach, and taking the little yacht, would sail away across the harbor and be gone for a week at a time.

Successful in love, he failed in his search for gold.

The relatives of both at home had long given them up for dead, as they found by newspaper reports which reached them.

The cold of the Arctic winter was approaching before they began their homeward journey. This was forced upon them by the fact that they had no money, and there was no alternative. They could not live on love alone, though it had been a good part of their diet through the summer.

The voyage homeward was tedious and uninteresting, as are all retracements. Storm succeeded storm, but they were only natural storms and not the matrimonial kind, which are the worst to be feared.

They were bashful about returning together, so when they arrived at Victoria Ray sent his wife home to her grandmother by steamer and let her clear the coast, as it were.

When people have been mourned as dead their relatives are not going to think about the past in the joy of their return.

There was rejoicing on the arrival of the bride, and now the two are settling down in a little cottage in Seattle to "live happily ever after."

DULUTH'S NEIGHBORS

BIWABIK.

Biwabik, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the Consolidated company's steam shovels arrived at the Duluth mine the first of the week, and work at shipping the stock piles from the mine to Duluth docks has commenced. The amount of ore in stockpile this season is very small, not aggregating over 50,000 tons, due partly on account of the cyclone last October, which wrecked all the mining and shaft buildings, and caused two months' delay. A new shaft has been sunk, and as soon as the shaft-house will be completed, ore will be shipped from that shaft, direct into the cars, instead of stockpiling. The mine is now employing between fifty and sixty men.

Miss Carey, of Ely, arrived here Saturday for a visit with relatives.

Fred Brennan came down from Stevenson Saturday for a short visit.

Mrs. James Carey returned Saturday from a two weeks' visit at Ashland, Wis.

A farewell party and dance waes given at the Opera house Friday evening, in honor of Misses Mewhinney and McCullom, who left for their former home in Canada the day following. About twenty-five couples were present, and danced until the wee small hours of mornings. The McKinley orchestra furnished the music for the occasion.

E. H. Schur was in Virginia on business Monday.

H. Flemming, of Proctor, was a Biwabik visitor Saturday.

A small wreck occurred on the Iron Range road, in the yards below Canton avenue Saturday evening, when the last coach on the short run passenger missed a switch and was derailed. Considerable track was torn up, but the coach was not damaged to any extent.

Mrs. Ed Brennan left Saturday for Virginia, where they will make their home in the future.

Grant Miller returned to his home at Two Harbors the first of the week.

Miss Mae Hammill, of Elba, visited with friends here Saturday.

Tom Mewhinney, of Hibbing, visited here with relatives Saturday.

Miss Maggie Mewhinney, Wilhelmina McCullom, and Mrs. Mewhinney left Saturday morning for their former home in Canada, where Miss McCullom and Miss Mewhinney will remain. Mrs. Mewhinney will return in a few months.

H. Conlin came down from Hibbing Friday for a short visit.

Miss Nellie Walters left Friday for her home at Lake City, to attend the wedding of her sister. She has resigned her position as teacher in the lower primary room, and the class has been closed for the year. The other four rooms will continue in session until June 21.

Dr. Bray returned Saturday from St. Paul, where he attended the convention of the Medical association.

The revivalist meetings to have been held here all the week, have been postponed, owing to Revivalist Connoly being called back to his home at Chicago by urgent business.

Mrs. William Carmichael visited her daughter, Mabel, at Duluth, Saturday.

The local baseball team defeated the McKinley baseball team, at the McKinley grounds Sunday afternoon, in a very closely played game, by the score of 25 to 5. A large number of Biwabik residents drove over and witnessed the game. No game has yet been scheduled for next Sunday, but a game with Ely will probably be played. The baseball boys are intending to give a dance next week, to aid them in purchasing suits.

Mrs. William Norton visited with friends at Hibbing Tuesday.

Stephen Pirney, a laborer on the Missabe road, at Hutton Station, near here, was brought to Biwabik, and placed in the jail, on the charge of having stole a small amount of money, about $25 and a certificate of deposit on a bank from an old German working at the same place. He is also charged with forging the name on the check, and with stealing a horse from E. H. Schur, who loaned him his horse for a trip from McKinley, but Firney did not return it, and Marshal O'Hara telephoned to the neighboring towns, and found that Firney was trying to sell the horse to a Virginia livery man. He will be detained in the jail here until the prosecuting attorney comes down from Duluth, as he could find no one to go bail for him.

Mrs. W. E. Powers, of Elba, was a Biwabik visitor Monday.

Mrs. Williams visited with her daughter at Auburn, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Humane Officer Withrow arrived here Monday, and made preparations to take charge of the three children of John Johnson, also known as John Locala. Locala was one of the smallpox patients at the time of the epidemic, and was released from the pest house about two months ago. His wife is a bed-ridden invalid, and could take no care of the children, and Locala on account of his illness could not provide properly for his children, so Mr. Withrow deemed it advisable to take charge of them.

L. Polinsky, of Duluth, was a Biwabik visitor Monday.

Rev. Fr. Bolbin, of Eveleth, was here Monday to officiate at a wedding at the Catholic church. Both of the contracting parties were Austrians.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Glassner were Eveleth visitors Tuesday, to attend the Shapiro-Schuirman nuptials at that place.

John Koski returned Saturday from Ironwood, Mich., where he attended the Finnish synod the past week.

A. A. Talle visited with his family at Tower over Sunday.

A number of Biwabik citizens have purchased lots in the new town of Chisholm, a few miles west of Hibbing, and will build business buildings thereon. Among them are Frank Faber, Frank Sonrick and Jerome Gallozzi. All report that the outlook for the new town is promising.

D. L. Fairchild returned Tuesday from a visit at Two Harbors.

P. Beneteau, of Duluth, was in Biwabik on business Tuesday.

N. B. Shank transacted business at Duluth Wednesday.

Mrs. Julia Brennan and family left Tuesday for Hibbing to reside there.

Emphatic Talk.

The Kind That Carries Conviction to Every Duluth Reader.

CONVICTION MUST FOLLOW SUCH EMPHATIC PROOF AS IS GIVEN HERE. THE TESTIMONY OF DULUTH RESIDENTS SHOULD SATISFY THE MOST SKEPTICAL—HERE IS A DULUTH CASE—READ IT AND SEE IF DOUBT CAN EXIST IN THE FACE OF THIS EVIDENCE.

Mr. Josiah Collins, of 510 Third avenue east, employed at C. Coon's meat market, says: "I suffered severely from theumatism for a long time and during a year was so bad I could hardly get around at all and found it impossible to get up and down a hill. I felt like an old man, all worn, my shoulders were so sore I could scarcely raise my arms, and the least exertion tired me out completely. I tried bottle after bottle of medicine and spent lots of money treating for the trouble, but nothing did me any good. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised I procured a box at W. A. Abbett's Drug store and used it. I felt none better after the first box and continued their use until I had completed the seventh box, when I had no signs or symptoms whatever of the trouble left."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Aiding Digestion

In some parts of the body the blood is sluggish, not capable of building up. A glass of taken during the meal will send the blood coursing to all parts alike, carrying nourishment with it as quickly as produced by the stomach. The unused muscles enlarge as they grow stronger, producing an even roundness of the body, great strength and beauty of form. Men, Be Cured

JUNIPER ALE

HOW THE FRIGHTFUL TENSION OF STRICTURE IS INSTANTLY RELIEVED.

Startling Record of Gran-Solvent.

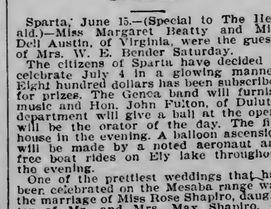
Dissolves Stricture like snow beneath the sun, reduces ENLARGED PROSTATE, contracts and strengthens the Seminal Ducts, forever stopping DRAINS AND EMISSIONS in 15 Days.

No Drugs to Ruin the Stomach, but a Direct, Local and Positive Application to the Entire Urethral Tract.

GRAN-SOLVENT IS NOT A LIQUID. It is prepared in the form of Crayons or Pencils, smooth and flexible, and so narrow as to pass the closest stricture.

Showing the diameter of the St. James Crayons, containing the solvent "Gran-Solvent" or tonic "Civinine," or both in combination. THEY ARE PREPARED IN VARIOUS LENGTHS TO SUIT THE PATIENT'S CONDITION, are inserted into the urethral canal upon retiring at night, slip into position without the slightest effort, requiring three hours to dissolve, are wholly soluable and act like a mild electric current, invigorating and imparting vim and snap to the entire body. The curative effect is felt from the first application.

The Great Virtue in the Method of Application



Is its direct and positive action. No vile, drastic drugs to ruin the stomach and digestive system. The crayons are inserted upon retiring at night, dissolving by the heat and secretions of the body, in three hours, which is sufficient time to penetrate and dissolve Stricture, dislodging the granular mass, root and branch, TOGETHER WITH THE FALSE MEMBRANE UPON WHICH IT FORMS, thoroughly medicating the PROSTRATE GLAND, reducing enlargement and contracting the Seminal Ejaculatory Ducts, forever stopping

DRAINS AND LOSSES,

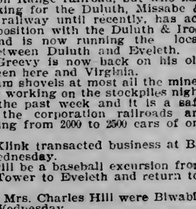
Curing while you sleep, without pain or inconvenience, in Fifteen days. The alternative and antiseptic action of "Gran-Solvent" asserts itself in destroying Gonococci and the germs that infest the Bladder and Prostate Gland.

During the past year thousands of weak, strictured, wasting wrecks were cured—a vast army born again to begin life anew, with fresh vigor, full of strength and consciousness of restored manhood. Under the influence of this sovereign solvent

STRICTURE

Is dissolved and dislodged in Fifteen Days, no matter how old, tough or calloused it may have become.

From time immemorial cutting and dilating have filled up the record of treatment in Stricture, and there has never been one cure by such savage methods. The eagerness with which medical men are applying for this solvent is an open confession of their error in the past. Over 800 Leading Physicians in the United States and Canada have abandoned the knife, and are employing Gran-Solvent in their practice, as a humane and unfailing agent.



Showing Stricture Granules dissolved on the eighth night.

VARICOCELE Is an accumulation of sluggish blood in the veins of the scrotum, due solely to imperfect circulation, and has its origin in a diseased and torpid Prostate Gland. Operations in this disease are only temporary, and no mechanical device yet discovered has cured a single tecase. Gran-Solvent heals the Prostate and restores healthy circulation. Varicocele disappears and the sluggish accumulation is replaced by pure, healthy, red blood.

There is no question that you feel like you look; despondent, weak, nervous and despairing. Your sleep is disturbed with unpleasant dreams, and you awake tired, and with your mind filled with evil forebodings. You know you are seminally weak: you also know from sad experience that all of the drugs that you have poured into your stomach have left you worse than they found you.

NOW LISTEN!

Not one drop of internal medicine that you ever did or will put into your stomach will ever cure you. Why? Because your ailment is not in your stomach, or liver, or kidneys, but in the urethral canal. It is a local disease, and as such requires local treatment.

The St James Method is direct, positive and unfailing.

CASS LAKE.

Cass Lake, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is very liable to be some dead "hoboes" hereabouts, unless some of the free and easy "willies" desist in their depredations. A short time ago a party of "pot-gang" artists broke into the chicken coop belonging to George N. Hitchcock down at the Bay View hotel and in addition to stealing several of that gentleman's finest fowls, deliberately butchered one of his best hogs. A few nights later, the gang made a raid on M. S. Lillibridge's henroop and stole a number of chickens. They next went to Joe Newman's premises, on section 16, and after their visit, Joe was "shy" a prize rooster and several choice hens. Now Messrs. Hitchcock, Lillibridge and Newman have purchased the latest-make, rapid-fire guns and have them loaded to the muzzle, prepared for a return visit of the thieves. Other owners of chickens have also laid in a store of arms, and there is a "hot time" in store for the sneak thieves if they attempt to rob any more roosts.

VIRGINIA.

Virginia, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Virginia contingent of volunteer soldiers who left here two years ago to serve Uncle Sam at the Philippine islands, returned to this city Monday evening amid very stirring auspices, and the welcome the boys received will always be remembered by them. Their homecoming was unknown as to the particular time until Monday noon, when preparations for their proper reception were partially made. The fire department members were called together and they in turn waited upon the Woodmen band, their services in a musical line being secured. Long before the march to the Iron Range depot on the hill was completed a large number of our townspeople had gathered on the street and to the depot. Amid great cheers of welcome and the stirring strains of martial music the train entered the usual place and the boys in blue were picked off the train by their friends and it was some time before the marcn to the city could be commenced. The firemen formed a good repast at the Hotel Fay and the halt was made oefore the hotel. During the supper hour the Opera house and music was secured for a reception and dance, and at shortly after 9 the assembled citizens and firemen inaugurated the formal reception, when Mayor Thompson, in a few remarks welcomed the soldiers home in the name of the city. Dancing continued until an early hour Tuesday morning. The members of the returning soldiers are: William Peters, Peter McDonald, John Delaski, John Lackery, Ed Williams, Ell Reid, and Dennis O'Brien. The soldiers gave a return party to the firemen Thursday evening and a very enjoyable evening was held.

Robert J. Cobean, the brakeman who was run over by the cars a week ago yesterday at the Great Northern yards, died of his injuries at the hospital Tuesday forenoon. It was a great surprise as well as a matter of sorrow to his many friends here. The remains will be shipped to Barnyone, Florida, accompanied by his sorrowing widow. Rev. Jamelson going as far as Duluth with her. Mr. and Mrs. Cobean had lived here for over six years and had many friends who regret the misfortune.

Nels P. Fordham, of A. Hanekinson & Co., the hardware men, returned Tuesday from an extended visit with relatives at Sweden.

The grand ball by the members of the Virginia Maroons baseball club at the Opera house Saturday night was a pronounced success. The ball boys are preparing to put up a first-class article of the national game with some fine clubs on the Fourth of July, when a large purse will be hung up.

Mrs. E. W. Coons visited with friends at Hibbing Monday, returning Wednesday.

Gen. P. W. Scott has returned from a trip to Mass City, Michigan, where he has considerable property interests.

Mrs. S. A. Reid went to Duluth Monday to meet her son, Ell, who was among the Virginia soldiers who were on their way home.

About a dozen of our citizens drove to Eveleth Tuesday evening to attend the wedding of Miss Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Shapiro, of Eveleth, to Louis Schuirman, of Sparta. The ceremony was performed by a Rabbi of Duluth, at 8 o'clock, and after congratulations and wishes for a happy wedded life, the floor space was cleared and dancing was indulged in. Those from this city were: Messrs. and Messdames Meeberg, Shanedling, Steinberg, Rublotf, Shapiro, Mrs. Cohen, Ben Milanetz and Miss Sadie Polinsky, of Duluth. A very sumptuous superp was served at 11 o'clock, and all report a very enjoyable time.

A shooting contest was pulled off at the Virginia grounds Saturday afternoon between Dr Spratley, of St. Paul, and William Cass, Barber, of this city, and William Cass, Barber, of Eveleth, in which the latter won out. The shoot was for 100 birds and the Virginia and Eveleth men were given handicap of two birds, the purse being $10 each. The score was: Cass 93, Barber 87, and Spratley 81. Mr. Spratley made a very creditable showing at the pecel but his diamond ring was secured for a resident of Wheat Started Out Lower, Declined But Soon Reacted.

Weakness Due to Crop Prospects and Lower Cables.

Decrease In World's Shipments of Wheat and Flour.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 15.—The wheat market started weak and lower this morning on account of the splendid prospects for a large wheat crop, and lower cables, Liverpool declining 1/4@3/4d. The rally was due to an estimated decrease in the world's shipments of wheat and flour of 2,300,000 bus for the week.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 402 cars, against 439 last week and 523 last year. Chicago receipts, 145 cars, 10 of contract grade.

There was fairly active trading in futures on the Duluth board. July wheat opened 3/8c lower at 69¼c bid, sold down to 69c at 8:32, reacted to 69⅜c at 9:40, rose to 69⅝c at 11:30 and closed at 69¾c, a net gain of 1/4c. Chicago advanced 1/4@3/8c and Minneapolis 1/8@1/4c.

Cash sales were 30,000 bus at July price.

There was a lively advance in oats at Chicago, the Pallips party being the bull interest. There was some trading in flax at Duluth and September closed unchanged while October advanced 1c. Rye advanced 1/2c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 72¾c; to arrive, 72¾c; September, 69¼c; July, 72⅞c. No. 1 northern, cash, 69½c; to arrive, 69⅜c; September, 68¼c; July, 69¾c. No. 2 northern, 68¼c. No. 3 spring, 66½c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Was Weak But Corn Surprisingly Firm.

Chicago, June 15.—Improved crop prospects and lower cables caused weakness today in wheat. July opened ¼c lower at 69⅝@70c. Selling was quite general, but in small lots, and July declined to 69⅜@⅝c. At this point a fair commission demand developed and the price reacted to 70½c. The intimation of firmness was credited to the decrease in the estimate of the world's shipments of wheat and flour, the falling off for the week being about 2,300,000 bus. Bradstreet's reported exports of wheat and flour for the week as equal to 4,791,000 bus, against 6,644,000 bus for the week before, and 4,578,000 a year ago. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 402 cars, against 439 last week and 523 a year ago. Local receipts were 145 cars, 10 of contract grade.

July closed strong, 1⅛@1⅜c higher, at 70¼c.

Corn was surprisingly firm. July opened unchanged at 42⅝@½c and under local buying, improved to 42¾c. Local receipts were 230 cars, 10 of contract grade.

Oats were strong on outside buying, July opened 1⅛@⅜c up at 27⅛@⅜c, and rose to 27⅝c. Receipts were 141 cars.

Provisions were helped by better prices for hogs and buying by packers. July pork opened 5c up at $14.77½. July lard unchanged at $8.50, advancing to $8.52½, and July ribs 2½c higher at $8.05@8.07½.

Close: Wheat—June, 70c; July, 70¼c; September, 68¾@⅞c. Corn—June, 42½c; July, 43⅜c; September, 44¾@½c. Oats—June, 27¾c; July, 25¾@¼c; September, 25¾c. Pork—June and July, $14.75; September, $14.92½. Lard—June and July, $8.55; September and October, $8.52½@8.55; November, $8.47½; December, $8.27½. January, $8.20; year, $8.25. Ribs—June and July, $8.05; September, $8.12; October, $8.05. Flax—Cash and Northwestern, $1.73; No. 1, $1.72; September, $1.30; October, $1.26½. Cash: Wheat—No. 2 red, 71@72c; No. 3 red, 69@70c; No. 2 hard winter, 70¾c; No. 3 hard winter, 69½@70c; No. 1 northern spring, 71¼@72¾c; No. 2 northern spring, 71¼@72¾c; No. 3 spring, 66¾@71¾c. Corn—No. 2 42½@43c; No. 3, 41⅝@42¾c. Oats—No. 2, 27¾@28c; No. 3, 27½@¾c. Rye—July, 48@49c. Barley—Cash, 40@53c. Timothy—September, $3.77. Clover—Cash, $9.50.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, June 15.—In spite of lower cables wheat averaged firm up to the close. The principal factor was bad crop news from France which was received from two or three different sources and said to be accompanied by buying orders. These advices reported the French wheat prospects gloomy and deteriorating daily. This cereal declines stubbornly and it is the opinion of some observers that not much more decline can be expected at least for the present. The world's shipments are expected to be around 9,500,000 bus and the visible will likely decrease about 1,500,000 bus. Minneapolis decreases her local stocks for the week 170,000 bus. Primary receipts for the week 3,449,000 bus against 3,858,000 bus last year. Shipments 1,774,000 bus against 1,410,000 bus.

Corn was stronger on higher cables and a much better tone to the cash demand. This demand has been noticeably absent for the past few days but came into the market again this morning although the rise here prevented much business from being done. The weather continues ideal over the corn belt. A singular feature in Liverpool is the decline

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Colorado Fuel a Sensational Feature In Opening Trading.

Good Advances But Bank Statement Caused a Dip.

Prices Hardened Again and Closed Near the Top Figures.

New York, June 15.—Colorado Fuel was a sensational feature in the opening dealing, rising 8 points by successive jumps as wide at 3 points between sales. Tennessee Coal advanced more than a point in sympathy. There were narrow changes in the general list and the trading was quiet. A majority of stocks showed gains but there were losses in some prominent stocks.

Stocks became reactionary owing to free selling of Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific. These stocks lost 1¾ and 1½ respectively, but losses otherwise were fractional, aside from Tobacco, which figured for a point. Trading then became dull and somewhat feverish, but when St. Paul rushed up to 178, the tone got better all around. All of the Pacific and Western stocks returned to opening figures and substantial advances were made in a few specialties, notably People's Gas and Union Bag. Colorado Fuel broke under 130 and was negelected.

Prices generally hung suspended pending the appearance of the bank statement. There were sharp advances in individual stocks. Pere Marquette rose 14, jumping 6 points between sales, and Kanawha and Michigan 6. Northwestern advanced 4¾, the preferred 1½ and St Paul preferred 3. There were gains of 1 to 1⅝ in Metropolitan, the Readings, Amalgamated Copper and Glucose. There were some sharp dips after the bank statement appeared. St. Paul reacting 2. Colorado Fuel 5, Tennessee Coal 2⅝, Kanawha & Michigan 1¾ and Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Reading, Sugar, Amalgamated Copper and People's Gas about a point. The market became feverish until St. Paul was marked up above 181 when prices hardened. Losses were generally recovered. The closing was active and feverish at about the top for most stocks.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf gossip to Edwards, Wood & Co.—The stock market is acting about as leading commission houses have expected. The reaction is considered natural and these houses think it may go farther when good stocks will be a purchase. Profit-taking by interests which bought at low prices early in the week, talk of a bad bank statement and the effects of bear room traders are cited to explain the reactionary movement. In well informed quarters it is believed that the community of interests plan has made important progress this week and that large holdings of Union Pacific, St. Paul, Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific have been absorbed by capitalists behind the movement to centralize the control and ownership of Western roads originated by William K. Vanderbilt. It is reported that carrying out this policy involves the retirement of St. Paul stocks and the issue of bonds therefor as was done in the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, and announcement to this effect may be made sooner than is generally anticipated. It is doubtful, however, if these rumored deals have as much influence in representing settlment favorably as has been believed. Good crop prospects are assured. The earnings of the Missouri Pacific for April are instanced to show the great prosperity of the transportation industry as well as the wonderful change that has come over conditions in the Southwest. Now that a winter wheat crop is assured the interests identified with the Atchison are becoming again aggressively bullish and advise the purchase of these stocks on all reactions. Their followers say that the favorable crop outcome means that at the next dividend meeting of the directors Atchison common will be placed upon a regular 4 per cent dividend basis. St. Paul and Texas Pacific among the non-dividend payers continue to be regarded with favor by conservative commission houses.

New York up-town gossip to Jones & Co.—The rapidly swelling volume of business in both stocks and bonds is simply an advance action in the way of a reinvestment of an enormous amount of money which will be disbursed for interest during the first week in July, now only a little more than a fortnight away. Yesterday's market was a broad and strong one, although it was given a severe setback at the close through profit-taking while room traders saw this disposition and made a quick sharp raid for a good turn on the short side. Missouri Pacific directors meet Monday and there is strong probability of important action. This actior is expected to have an important bearing on the future of the Southwestern properties. Texas Pacific directors met on Wednesday. There has been very good buying of Texas Pacific and M. K. and T. Buying of Coalers is approaching the sensational stage. Keene who led the buying of Erie and Western has grasped the situation and will endeavor to bring shorts to an expensive accounting before long.

• • •

New York—The week has seen an important broadening of interest in the stock market. Large corporations, including the insurance companies, are anticipating the enormous July interest disbursements and have been good investors, not only in stocks, but in bonds as well. The result has been a hardening of values all around. Special interest has been attracted to C. F. I. in possibility of its merger with United States Steel and the certainty that it is continuing its large volume of profitable business. St. Paul and Union Pacific have also come in for unusual attention. It is generally conceded that there is to be harmony of interest if nothing more tangible. The bad bank statement last week not only closed that week very low, but acted as a depressing factor on the market during the early days of this week. It was during this period of low prices that the most conservative and responsible interests of the country did its heaviest buying of stocks and bonds. The bank statement today was again unfavorable when viewed from the surface. The bank rate has advanced slightly for call loans. Railroad earnings for the fiscal year now drawing to a close are eminently satisfactory. Crop prospects indicate that there should be a continuance of the same.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 15.—Cotton opened firm with prices unchanged to 7 points higher and continued to advance most of the early session on brisk room and outside buying. July reached 8.24, August 7.85 and January 7.27 or 8 to 9 points above last night's close. Domestic news averaged up much in favor of the week. Sales of over 1,000,000 pounds were ordered. goods this week in Fall River mills at unchanged to 1 1-16 higher prices, and reports of continued rains over the South Atlantic states served to stimulate buying for both accounts.

Cotton spot closed dull; middling uplands, 8¾; middling gulf, 8¾; sales, 6360 bales. Futures closed steady: June, 8.15; July, 8.19; August, 7.63; September, 7.33; October, 7.24; November, 7.20; December, 7.24; January, 7.26; February, 7.27; March, 7.31.

Mountaineer Oil Shares
AT 7½c PER SHARE.

To Be Taken Off the Market Within the Next Few Days.

The company will soon have all the money it needs to carry out its plans. "Enough is enough" and then no more stock will be sold.

The demand for these shares is increasing. People from all over the Northwest recognize the fair basis upon which Mountaineer is organized. Think 500,000 shares $1 each and 350,000 shares in the treasury. Compare that with any public floatation now asking public subscriptions.

Stock non-assessable and no personal liability. The money goes into the treasury to be used to sink wells. No officers' salaries. The management is as follows:

DIRECTORS—T. H. Glaskin, Thomson-Glaskin Company, wholesale, president; G. Fred Stevens, Surveyor General of Logs of Minnesota, vice president; H. C. Harding, Superintendent Globe Elevator Company; J. S. Hadley, capitalist; C. S. Carpenter, Northwestern Fuel Company; E. L. Brown, Superintendent Northern Pacific Railway.

We do not claim Mountaineer is anything but a speculation, but we do claim it is one of the best now on the market, and we believe we are pretty sure to strike pay oil, as it is all around us. Our plan is simply dividing the risk. Co-operation of money and division of risk. We have just as much reason to believe that we will strike a gusher as any company operating in any section of the world. If we do you are going to make a fortune on a small investment. If we only strike pay oil, you will make some money.

The Blue Grass oil shares which went onto the market at 5c have now been taken off the market, because a good well has been struck and a dividend payer is sure. The Blue Grass is near the Moutaineer and did not have as good prospects to start with.

AT WEST DULUTH

S. M. Sherman, formerly of West Duluth but now residing at Villard, Minn., arrived in town yesterday for a short visit, taking advantage of the special rates and excursion train. Mr Sherman was engaged in the wholesale commission business on Central avenue prior to his removal to Villard. There were twenty-five people on the special Northern Pacific train, and they all remained on the cars until Duluth was reached. Mr. Sherman is familiar with the methods adopted by West Superior boomers to induce tourists to stop there, and he says they are working their same old schemes this season. Several advance agents for Superior boarded the train at Cloquet and commenced distributing cards bearing the names of hotels, rooming houses, restaurants, etc., giving the rates at each place.

Mr. Sherman confirms the reports of others in regard to the crops, and thinks that the large yield promised at this time will in a measure offset the loss of 1900, when the cereal harvest was almost a failure. He is enjoying prosperity in the mercantile business at his new home, but still has a large place in his heart for this city. After an absence of fourteen months, Mr. Sherman notes many improvements in buildings and general appearance of the city.

IT GRATIFIES THEM.

West Duiuthians interested in music and bands are much gratified to learn of the success of Whaleback Camp band of West Superior at St. Paul. Herbert Spohn, Lee Swingle, Mr. McNaughton, Charles Bergren and others are with the Whaleback band, and contributed materially to its brilliant success. This band took first prize for Woodman musical organizations and second prize for all bands among the 200 in the competition. The first prize represents $150. The local musicians will receive a hearty welcome when they reach West Duluth.

ATTENTION, WOODMEN!

Old Hickory Camp, No. 1555, M. W. A., will observe Memorial day with appropriate services at the Asbury M. E. church, corner Raleigh street and Sixtieth avenue west, Sunday, June 16, at 3 p. m. All members requested to meet at Great Eastern hall at 2 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all. By order,

W. H. TWEET, V. C.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Tommy Robinson was discharged in Judge Stone's court yesterday, the complaint against him having been withdrawn. He was charged with throwing stones through the Match factory windows. Clarence Boyd will have his trial next Wednesday.

West Duluth Degree of Honor will give a banquet next Friday night for Progress lodge, D. of H., of the West End. In a contest, commencing last January and ending this month, as to which lodge could secure the most new members, the West Duluthians lost and the banquet is the penalty they are glad to pay. The spread will be given in Gilley's hall and will be followed with a social dance.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Strauss and daughter, Abbie, of Long Prairie, Minn., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Levy. Their coming was a complete and joyous surprise at the Levy home. Mrs. Strauss and Mrs. Levy are sisters.

Mrs. F. J. Hautz, of 1717 Raleigh street, leaves this afternoon for Cloquet to remain a few days.

No services will be held at the West Duluth Baptist church tomorrow owing to repairs in progress on the building. On Thursday evening, at 7:30, will begin the sixth annual meeting of the Lake Superior Baptist association. The public is invited to attend the sessions.

Mrs. H. H. Phelps entertained at her home on North Fifty-seventh avenue, yesterday afternoon, for her friend, Mrs. Morris Ives, of Chicago. Thirty guests were present, including Mrs. Phelps' sister, Mrs. E. E. Kearney, and daughter, Mona, of St. Paul.

The drill by the guards of eParl hive, L. O. T. M., at Great Eastern hall last evening, was witnessed by an appreciative audience, and was followed by dancing.

R. H. Patterson is home from a visit to Chisholm and Hibbing. He says the citizens of Chisholm are making every effort to boom their town.

Mrs. R. A. Sanderson is home from Minneapolis, where she spent three weeks with her parents.

Miss Stella Lumley, the eighth grade teacher of the Irvine school, leaves today for Chicago to visit relatives. She expects to attend summer school at the university, and will also visit the Pan-American before returning in the fall.

Mrs. Anna Martin, of Brainerd, who has been visiting relatives here, returned home today. She was accompanied by her daughter and little grandson, Reginald.

Mrs. Richard Findlay, of Fifty-seventh avenue, leaves this afternoon for Buffalo to visit relatives and the Pan-American exposition.

Mrs. Clarence Young and her mother leave this afternoon for Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, where they will remain during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tupper, of New Duluth, left today for Vermont. This is Mr. Tupper's first trip home in thirty years, and he will spend the summer among the Green mountains.

Services will be held tomorrow evening as usual at the Episcopal church at 7:30 o'clock.

There will be no service at St. Rose church at Proctorknott tomorrow.

Pure drugs and wall paper, at Olanders', 228 Fifty-fifth avenue west.

MAY FISH ON SUNDAYS.

New Pennsylvania Law Does Not Prohibit.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 15.—W. E. Meehan, secretary of the state fish commission, says that the new fish law recently signed by Governor Stone does not prohibit fishing on Sunday. He said: "The new laws are very much more liberal than the old ones. Among other things you will notice that there has been no prohibition against Sunday fishing.

"This feature of the law will undoubtedly be welcomed by those who cannot find time to fish on week days."

LARGE INCREASE

In Customs Receipts In the Philippines.

Washington, June 15.—An increase of $940,515 in the customs revenues of the Philippines for the first quarter of 1901, as compared with the same period of 1900, is set forth in a statement made public today by the division of insular affairs of the war department. The total revenues for the first quarter of the current year amounted to $2,190,394.

YOUNG MAN SUICIDES.

New York, June 15.—Dudley R. Walker, a grandson of the late Rear Admiral Walker, well known in musical circles, committed suicide by inhaling gas at his boarding place in Brooklyn. He was thirty years old. Business reverses are thought to have caused him to take his own life.

COLLUSION

Caused the Judge to Deny a Petition For Divorce.

New York, June 15.—Because he believes the suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Lottie F. Longley against Mace E. Longley, was the result of collusion, Judge Giegerich, of the supreme court dismissed the action.

Mrs. Longley is said to be the daughter of Mrs. John Buskill, of Louisville, Ky., who prior to her marriage was Lady Mary Steele, of England. She married Mr. Longley in Vancouver, B. C., on May 2, 1899. She separated from him some months ago and charged in her suit for divorce that he had been on intimate terms with Miss Mamie Ashley. Mr. Longley did not defend the case.

Judge Geigerich was not satisfied after hearing the evidence based upon the testimony of James McCloskey and his wife, Annie, who had been a dressmaker for Mrs. Longley, and again directed Mrs. Longley to appear before him. She denied there was any collusion and asserted that her husband threatened to kill her if she got a divorce from him.

"Are you aware that your husband passes under the name of Lake?"

"No, but I am aware that he had another wife who may have used that name."

Mrs. Longley said that because Longley was constantly annoying her she obtained a warrant for his arrest. It was on Feb. 5 last that her husband followed her into a shoe store, and while there he was served with the summons and complaint in the suit.

"Didn't you take the Ashley woman there and turn her over to your husband at the corner of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Eighth avenue?"

"I swear I did not. I saw her that day when I was getting a dress fitted at the McCloskeys. I did not see the girl at the store."

Mrs. Longley said she believed Miss Ashley resided with the McCloskeys and had seen her within a few days. As she could not produced in obedience to Judge Giegerich's request he dismissed the case.

REALTY MARKET

Some Deals Under Way But Secrecy Is Maintained.

Purchases of Fine Residences Continue to Be Reported.

Much Interest Over Negotiations For Steel Company Building.

The week in real estate has been characterized more by rumors of deals and secrecy regarding the same among the real estate men, and by promises of important deals that will come out in a few days, than by announcements of deals concluded. There is an active, stirring air about the market, however, that is decidedly encouraging, and the list of transfers for the week shows a very rapid market. All of the real estate agents are feeling firmer and more hopeful every day, and the outlook was never better.

* * *

Charles Edgar, of the lumber firm of Alexander, Edgar & Co., of Iron River, has purchased a residence in Duluth, and will remove here in a short time. He purchased the residence formerly owned by Alfred E. McCordic, now of Chicago, but at one time a member of the law firm of McCordic & Crosby. The house is located at 2104 East Superior street, and it is occupied at the present time by Henry C. Marshall. The price paid was $8000, and the sale was made by John A. Stephenson. The house is a handsome one and is in a beautiful location.

* * *

The deed conveying the property at the southeast corner of Superior street and Lake avenue was filed for record in the office of the register of deeds. The deal was announced by The Herald several weeks ago. The purchaser is William J. E. Sander, of Cambridge, Mass., the seller is Abram Nesbitt, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and the price is $52,500, all as stated before.

* * *

The Peavey Duluth Terminal is working upon the second half of the big concrete elevator on Rice's Point. Work has been in progress for two weeks, and is advancing rapidly. The break of last fall will be thoroughly repaired and strengthened. When completed the house will have a capacity of 3,500,000 bushels.

* * *

David Hood, of Duluth, has been awarded the contract for a handsome passenger station at Marquette, Mich., for the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad. The building will be of stone.

* * *

A great deal of interest is being taken in the proceedings for the location of the offices of the United States Steel company in this city. As The Herald stated yesterday, Bayha & Co. and their lease from Hutchinson Bevier are all that stand in the way of a handsome office building to cost a large sum being erected on the northeast corner of Third avenue west and First street, a site that attracts the Steel company people very much. The offer to Mr. Bevier of $50,000 for the lot, which is at the rate of $500 per foot, is a good one, though undoubtedly the location is worth fully that much. However the deal comes out, that corner is assured of substantial improvement.

* * *

A transfer of some interest that was recorded yesterday was that of the Clyde Iron works, on Lake avenue, from the old Clyde Iron company to the Northwestern Manufacturing, which will take hold of the plant and operate it.

* * *

G. G. Hartley during the week bought for Philadelphia parties the handsome brick residence at Thirteenth avenue east and Superior street, formerly occupied by the late Myron Bunnell and his family. The consideration is not named.

Amendment of Articles of Incorporation —OF— The Higgins Land Company.

It is hereby certified, that at the regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the Higgins Land Company, held at the office of said company in the city of Duluth, in the state of Minnesota, on the third day of June, A. D. nineteen hundred and one, at which were present in person, or represented by duly executed proxy, the holders of more than two-thirds of the capital stock of said Company, it was duly and unanimously resolved as follows:

"That Article Third and Article Seventh of the articles of incorporation of the Higgins Land Company be amended, so as to read as follows, respectively:

Third. The amount of capital stock of said corporation shall be fifteen thousand ($15,000.00) dollars instead of sixty thousand ($60,000.00) dollars, to which amount the capital stock is hereby reduced, the whole amount thereof having been heretofore paid in."

Seventh. The number and amount of shares in the capital stock of said corporation shall be one hundred fifty shares (150) each of the par value of one hundred ($100.00) dollars.

It is further certified that at a regular meeting of the directors of said corporation, held at the office of said Company in the city of Duluth, in the state of Minnesota, on the third day of June, A. D. 1901, and subsequent to the aforesaid action of the stockholders of said corporation, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, viz:

"That Article Third and Article Seventh of the articles of incorporation of the Higgins Land Company be amended, so as to read as follows, respectively:

Third. The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be fifteen thousand ($15,000.00) dollars instead of sixty thousand ($60,000.00) dollars, to which amount the capital stock is hereby reduced, the whole amount thereof having been heretofore paid in.

Seventh. The number and amount of shares in the capital stock of said corporation shall be one hundred fifty (150) shares, each of the par value of one hundred ($100.00) dollars."

In witness whereof, the said Higgins Land Company has caused these presents to be subscribed and sworn to by its president, and its secretary, and has caused its corporate seal to be hereto affixed this third day of June, A. D. 1901.

THE HIGGINS LAND COMPANY,
By FRANK W. HIGGINS,
President.

In presence of:
C. d'AUTREMONT, JR.,
JAMES WANLESS.
Attest:
FRANK S. SMITH,

(Corporate Seal).

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF St. Louis.—ss.

Frank W. Higgins and Frank S. Smith being each duly sworn, depose and say: That the said Frank W. Higgins is the president, and the said Frank S. Smith is the secretary of the Higgins Land Company; that the foregoing certificate by them subscribed contains a true statement of the action of the stockholders of said corporation at the regular annual meeting thereof, as set forth in said certificate, and also of the action of the board of directors of said corporation, as set forth in said certificate, whereby at the time and place therein indicated, it was resolved to amend the articles of incorporation of said corporation as is set forth in said certificate; that the seal attached to said instrument is the corporate seal of the said corporation.

FRANK W. HIGGINS.
FRANK S. SMITH.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 3rd day of June, A. D. 1901.

Amendment of Articles of Association —OF— Olean Land Company.

It is hereby certified, that at the regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the Olean Land Company, held at the office of said company in the city of Duluth, in the state of Minnesota, on the third day of June, A. D. nineteen hundred and one, at which were present in person, or represented by duly executed proxy, the holders of more than two-thirds of the capital stock of said company, it was duly and unanimously resolved as follows:

"That article third and article seventh of the articles of incorporation of the Olean Land Company, be amended, so as to read as follows, respectively:

"Third: The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000), of which amount seventy thousand dollars ($70,000) having been heretofore paid in, the remainder thereof, to-wit: Eighty thousand dollars ($80,000) shall be paid at such time or times and in such manner as the board of directors may require.

Seventh: The number and amount of shares in the capital stock of said corporation shall be fifteen hundred shares of the par value of one hundred dollars each."

It is further certified that at a regular meeting of the directors of said corporation held at the office of said company in the city of Duluth, in the state of Minnesota, on the third day of June A. D. 1901, and subsequent to the aforesaid action of the stockholders of said corporation, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, viz:

"That article third and article seventh of the Olean Land Company, be amended, so as to read as follows, respectively:

"Third: The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be fifteen hundred shares of the par value of one hundred dollars each."

In witness whereof, the said Olean Land Company has caused these presents to be subscribed and sworn to by its president and its secretary, and has caused its corporate seal to be hereto affixed this 3d day of June, A. D. 1901.

MYSTERIOUS

Is Disappearance of a Fargo Physician.

Left to Answer Call and Never Returned.

Fargo, N. D., June 17.—Dr. Edward B. Evans, a prominent physician of this city, has suddenly and mysteriously disappeared from his home. He left Fargo on Tuesday night, May 28, ostensibly to visit a patient some miles in the country. Since then no word has been received from him. No reason can be assigned for his silence and absence. He was happily married, and had, just before his disappearance, brought on his young wife, and was arranging, up to the hour of his disappearance, a home for himself and wife. Dr. Evans enjoyed a good practice and was not embarrassed financially. All this deepens the profound mystery surrounding his sudden disappearance.

Dr. Evans was married last January to Miss Jennie Lewis, of Lowell, Mass., a well-known singer on the concert stage in New England and in theatrical companies in the East.

TO GO TO CANTON SOON

Mrs. McKinley, In the Opinion of Her Physicians, Will Be Able to Travel By the First of July.

Washington, June 17.—Mrs. McKinley's condition continues to improve, and there was no consultation of physicians at the White House today. Surgeon General Sternberg, one of the consulting physicians, left for the Philippines today, and Dr. Rixey did not consider it necessary to call in Dr. Johnston, the other consulting physician. If the present mprovement goes on it is expected Mrs. McKinley will be able to travel soon after July 1. The president will then accompany her to Canton, where the McKinley home has been made ready to receive her. How long the president and Mrs. McKinley will remain in Canton will depend upon the benefit Mrs. McKinley receives from her stay at her old home. After she has been there for some time, if the weather is oppressively warm and her physician recommends a change, the president probably will take her to some quiet place in the mountains or at the seashore. In any event, when the president departs for Canton with Mrs. McKinley, early in July, it will be to remain away from Washington for the remainder of the heated term. He may return for a day or two once or twice during the summer, but he will not again take up his abode at the White House until fall.

CRAFTY OLD EMPRESS

Proposes to Announce That Emporer Has Been Killed By Brigands and Prince Tuan's Son Is Successor.

London, June 17.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Globe, telegraphing under today's date, says he learns in Chinese quarters that the dowager empress proposes, when the court reaches Kai Fong Fu, in Honan, to announce that the emperor has been killed by brigands, and that Prince Tuan's son has succeeded to the throne. The dowager empress will then establish a new capital at Kai Fong Fu, which will be connected by railway with Nankin. The cotract for this road will be given to John C. Ferguson, of Boston, who, the correspondent understands, will sell the concession to the Russians.

The correspondent adds that Ferguson is acting on behalf of Li Hung Chang and Taotai Shang, who hope to escape censure by throwing the blame for the transaction upon Ferguson.

CHARGED WITH BIGAMY

Earl Russel Arrested In London and Held to Answer to the Complaint of Feloniously Marrying In America.

London, June 17.—Earl Russell was arrested today on a charge of having contracted a bigamous marriage in the United States. The earl was met at the railway station upon his arrival from the country by detectives with a warrant and was taken to the Bow street police court, where he was formally charged. The nobleman appeared to be quite unconcerned.

About a year ago it was announced that Earl Russell had obtained a divorce in Nevada and had there married Mrs. Mollie Somerville, daughter of the late George Cooke, of Combernauld, Scotland. Mrs. Somerville had also obtained a divorce in Nevada from her husband, George J. Somerville. Later the earl and his new countess went to England, and the first countess threatened to have the earl arrested for bigamy.

While Earl Russell awaited in an anteroom the summons to appear before the magistrate, the woman he married in America joined him. When the case was called a representative of the public prosecutor said the prisoner was charged with feloniously marrying Mollie Cooke in America, April 15, 1900, while his wife, Mabel, Countess Russell, was alive.

Earl Russell was remanded in £2000 ball.

The prosecution proceeded to outline the earl's marriage to Mabel Scott (his first countess), their separation, his subsequent disappearance from England with a neighbor, Mrs. Somerville, and the discovery that he and Mrs. Somerville were together at Reno, Nevada. On April 14, 1900, Earl Russell obtained a license to marry Mollie Cook, otherwise Mrs. Somerville, and a judge performed the ceremony April 15.

Counsel for the earl pointed out that the prosecution omitted mention of the divorce proceedings instituted by his lordship in America.

In the event of a conviction the case will be taken to the house of lords, as Earl Russell is entitled to a trial by his peers.

BARKER ON TRIAL

Must Answer For the Shooting of Rev. John Keller.

Some Sensational Testimony Is Expected From the Defense.

Keller Says His Life Is a Refutation of Charges.

New York, June 17.—Thomas G. Barker was placed on trial in the Hudson county court, Jersey City, today before Judge Blair, charged with assault with intent to kill. On Feb. 3 last, Barker shot the Rev. John Keller, of Arlington, N. J., vicar of Trinity church in that place. Barker told the authorities he shot the minister because his wife had told him that Keller had been guilty of a criminal assault upon her. When Keller was shot he was on his way to Fort Lee, to assist at the ordination of a minister. Barker stepped out from the shadow of a hedge and fired at him with a revolver. Barker says that he spoke to Keller before firing. Keller says that he did not see his assailant. One of the bullets fired by Barker went through Keller's facial bone from the right side, destroyed the sight of right eye and after tearing through the nasal bone, buried itself beneath the skin of the left side of the face. A second bullet shattered the fingers of the right hand. According to Barker's story, Mrs. Barker told him shortly before the shooting that about eighteen months previously Mr. Keller called on her while she was alone in the house and made an improper proposal. When she repulsed him, according to the story told by Barker, the minister attacker her violently and she fainted. Barker further said his wife had been afraid to tell him the story of the assault because she knew that if she did he would kill the minister. For some days before the alleged confession, Mrs. Barker had been in a sick and nervous condition. Mr. Keller denounced the whole story as utterly false. He declared that his whole life was a refutation of the charge.

PAUNCEFOTE.

Rumors of His Early Retirement From United States Restarted.

New York, June 17.—Rumors of the early retirement of Lord Pauncefote have been restarted by his arrival in London with his family, says the Tribune's London correspondent. It is said, as it has repeatedly been said before, that he will not remain in the diplomatic service for many months, and as he is now 72 years old and has certainly earned a rest from his heavy responsibilities. It was intended that he should terminate his career as the British ambassador to the United States last year, but his term of office was prolonged because of important questions remaining to be settled between England and America, and it may, perhaps, be extended again for the same reason.

CIVIL ENGINEER DEAD.

Thomas C. Clarke, Prominent In His Field.

New York, June 17.—Thomas Curtis Clarke, consulting engineer and ex-president American Society of Civil Engineers, is dead at his home in this city. He was born at Newton, Mass., in 1827, and was graduated from Harvard in 1848. He was known as a bridge engineer and designer, and built over 125 miles of iron and steel bridges, viaducts and elevated railways. He was a Telford Gold Medalist of the Institute of Civil Engineers of London, and a member of the American Philosophical society of Philadelphia.

TYSON DEAD.

Was Member of Famous Maryland Family.

New York, June 17.—Frederic Tyson, 73 years old, for many years the most extensive grain exporter in Baltimore, is dead there, a Tribune dispatch announces. He was a descendent of Reyner Tyson, who came to America with William Penn. The Tyson family is one of the oldest and most prominent in Maryland. Frederic Tyson's father was one of the original members and the first president of the Baltimore chamber of commerce. Frederic and his brother composed a firm which did an immense grain business. He retired from business some years ago.

FARMERS WANTED.

Uncle Sam Needs Them For Indian Service.

Washington, June 17.—The civil service commission announces that on July 23 it will hold an examination for the position of farmers in the Indian service. This position pays from $600 to $720 a year at the start, with prospect of promotion to $900 a year, and in addition quarters are furnished.

The commission states that it has experienced considerable difficulty in securing a sufficient number of qualified persons to meet the needs of the Indian office, and there are now twenty-two vacancies, as follows: Two each at La Pointe, Wis.; Ft. Belknap, Mont.; Lemhi, Idaho; Yankton, S. D., and Curay, Utah, and one each at Carson, Neb.; Colville, Wash.; Yainax, Ore.; Crow Agency, Mont.; Blackfoot, Mont.; Ft. Pratt, Mont.; Standing Rock, N. D.; Ft. Totten, N. D., and Tongue River, Mont.

LAST HOPE

Molineux Case Before Court of Appeals.

Closing of a Most Famous Fight For Life.

Buffalo, June 17.—The second plea for the life of Roland B. Molineux, claimed by the law for the mysterious murder by mailed poison of Mrs. Katherine J. Adams, in New York in December, 1898, began today before the court of appeals. Chief Judge Parker and Associate Judges Vann, Bartlett, Gray, O'Brien, Haight and Werner, will decide the appeal, and the respective arguments are in the hands of specially retained counsel. John G. Milburn represents the defendant, and former United States Senator David Bennett Hill speaks for the people. The record of the case is the largest ever submitted in the state in a criminal case, and upon its consideration during the interim between now and the fall session of the court, rests the decision. The oral argument submitting the briefs is to be short, and it is anticipated that it will be concluded by tomorrow afternoon. The officers of the court, fearing the annoyance of a large crowd, locked the outer doors of the supreme court room, and admitted the privileged few by the private entrance.

Assistant District Attorney Lee Barbeur of New York, who is assisting Mr. Hill, was the first to appear, and after him came Barlow S. Weeks and George Gordon Battle, who defended Molineux at his trial in New York. With them were Gen. Molineux, the aged father of the defendant, and David N. Carvalho, the handwriting expert, who advised the defense at the trial. After them came a corps of clerks, carrying law books and records. Mr. Hill and Mr. Milburn came last, stopping at the doorway to exchange friendly greetings.

Judge Parker asked counsel if an extension beyond the two hours usually alloted to an argument was desired. Mr. Milburn said he would probably require four hours. Mr. Hill nodded his approval, and so it was agreed that each side should have four hours.

Mr. Milburn began his address for the defendant with a brief statement of the charge and nature of the appeal, and following it with what he called a sketch of the chief personnel of the case. He sketched the training of young Molineux as an expert paint and color manufacturer, and in turn told of his connection with the Knickerbocker and New York Athletic clubs, his marriage to Blanche Cheeseborough, and his relations with Harry Cornish, manager of the Knickerbocker Athletic club. Mr. Milburn passed on to the receipt of a bottle purporting to contain medicine, and of Mrs. Adams' death after taking a dose of the supposed medicine, and contended that the prosecution had failed to connect the accused with the sending of the bottle through the mails.

BOERS GAIN RECRUITS

The War Situation In South Africa Is Far From Satisfactory to Englishmen at the Present Time.

New York, June 17.—The situation in South Africa is far from satisfactory just now for Englishmen, says the Tribune's London correspondent. It is believed that the Boers are gaining many recruits from the Dutch districts of Cape Colony, and in spite of Mr. Chamberlain's calm assertion that the embers of war are only smouldering, it looks very much as if they had burst into flame.

A question will shortly be put from the Liberal benches in the house of commons as to the proposed suspension of the constitution in Cape Colony. There is a general belief that Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Milner will hesitate before taking this step. Lawyers are of the opinion that the only way it could be legally accomplished would be by an act of parliament, and in the present state of public business the government will scarcely care to invite opposition on such an issue.

INSANE FOR MANY YEARS

James Wambold, at One Time a Famous Clown, But For Twenty-Six Years In an Asylum, Is Dead.

New York, June 17.—James Wambold, who years ago was one of the best known circus clowns in the country, is dead in the Overbrook, N. J., insane asylum, a branch of the Essex county asylum, of which he had been an inmate for twenty-six years.

Mr. Wambold was born in Newark in 1834, had his first minstrel experience on the Spaulding floating palace, which traveled up and down the Mississippi river, giving performances at various landings. Later he became connected with the Backus minstrels, of Chicago, and earned wide fame as a comedian. He played the banjo expertly and was a humorist and an expert whistler.

Later as a clown in Sands & Nathan's circus, with "Bob" Butler, of New York, and in the Henry Barnum Circus company he used bismuth and antimony for whitening the face and it caused softening of the brain.

SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT

Commissioner Rockhill Is Confident That the Chinese Indemnity Question Will Be Brought to an Early Close.

Washington, June 17.—A cablegram has been received at the state department from Special Commissioner Rockhill, full confirming the Associated Press report from Pekin to the effect that an early and complete agreement on the indemnity question is expected and that on the basis of the proposition variously known as the American, British and the British-American. The officials here are hopeful that the present week will witness the close of the negotiations on the subject of indemnity, though it is possible a further slight delay may occur though a yielding to the desire of one of the ministers to be allowed another opportunity to consult with his home government.

Once the subject of indemnity is out of the way, the withdrawal of the foreign troops from China will progress with rapidity. But there are still several other matters of the first order of importance, to be finally adjusted by the ministers, and one that is expected to give the most trouble is that of the arrangement of new trade treaties between the powers and China.

TO PORTUGAL.

Minister Loomis Transfered From His Venezuelan Post.

Washington, June 17.—The following changes in diplomatic posts were announced today: Francis B. Loomis, minister to Venezuela, has been transferred to be minister to Portugal, vice John N. Irwin, of Iowa, resigned; Herbert W. Bowen, of New York, present minister to Persia, has been transferred to Caracas, succeeding Mr. Loomis as minister to Venezuela; Lloyd C. Garrison, of Pennsylvania, present first secretary of legation at Constantinople, has been made minister to Persia. Spencer F. Eddy, of Illinois, present second secretary at Paris, has been made first secretary at Constantinople, to succeed Mr. Garrison; Arthur Bailey Blanchard, of Louisiana, has been promoted from third to second secretary at Paris.

FIRE AT TWO HARBORS.

Beckman Bros.' Livery Barn Was Totally Destroyed.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Beckman Bros.' livery barn caught fire at an early hour yesterday morning and was totally destroyed. The horses and carriages were gotten out, but some sleighs stored in the loft were destroyed. The loss to the building and contents is estimated at $700. Not insured. It is supposed the fire caught from electric light wires.

MORTALITY

In Transvaal and Orange River Camps Is Very Heavy.

London, June 17.—Replying to questions in the house of commons today, Mr. Broderick, the war secretary, said that there were 42,299 persons in the "Klen camps" of the Transvaal and Orange River Colony. The deaths in these camps for the month of May numbered ninety-eight men and women and 318 children. The announcement of the mortality was received with groans from the Irish members and cries of "scandalous." Mr. Broderick added that the authorities were arranging for the removal of the women and children who had friends to receive them, but the government could not undertake to feed them in isolated positions.

TO JOIN SQUADRON.

New York, June 17.—The United States battleship Alabama left today to join the North Atlantic squadron, which is concentrating at Newport preparatory to starting on its summer cruise, June 5, along the New England coast.

BRAKE BEAM

Manufacturers to Consolidate With Capital of $5,000,000.

St. Louis, June 17.—The Globe-Democrat says it is possible the coming week may see the consolidation, with $5,000,000 capital, of the four great companies interested in the manufacture of brake beams. The companies to be taken into combine are the Chicago Railroad Equipment company, which is practically owned by St. Louisans; the Monarch Brake Beam company, of Detroit, Mich.; the Interchangeable Brake Beam company, of St. Louis, and the Sterling Worth Brake Beam company, of Easton, Pa.

WILLIAM STACEY DEAD.

Cincinnati, June 17.—William Stacey, one of the leading manufacturers of this city, died suddenly today.

PRESSMEN.

National Convention Holding Annual Session at Washington.

Washington, June 17.—The National Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' union began its thirtieth annual session in this city today. The first session was given up to addresses of welcome and to a response by J. H. Bowman, president of the National union. Among the speakers who welcomed the delegates were George M. Ramsey, president local pressmen's union; Commissioner MacFarland, Public Printer Palmer, Gen. George H. Harries, Hon. T. V. Powderly, commissioner of immigration; Samuel Gompers, president National Federation of Labor, and President Lawson, of the local Typographical union. Mr. Ramsey presided.

NOT SAFE

For Big Yachts to Cross Atlantic In Racing Rig.

Glasgow, June 17.—Capt. Hamilton, who in 1899 navigated the Shamrock I across the Atlantic, in an interview with a reporter of the Associated Press, said he considered it impracticable to carry out the suggested ocean race with the yachts carrying their racing gear. While the hulls were strong enough and the over-canvassing, difficulty might be met with reefing. He believed that in the event of heavy weather and cross seas, the yachts would be in imminent danger of jumping their big masts out. The great booms carried by the cutters were also liable to drag in the seas, constituting a serious danger. He sees no reason, however, why the races should not be held if yawl rig is adopted with shorter and stouter masts.

APPOINTMENTS.

By President For Navy and Marine Corps.

Washington, June 18.—The president today made these appointments:

Navy—Maj. George Richards, lieutenant colonel by brevet.

Marine corps—Capt. Newton H. Hall, majo by bevet. Matin E. French, lieutenant. Gatewood S. Lincoln, lieutenant junior grade. Herbert M. Tolfree, assistant surgeon, rank of lieutenant, junior grade.

Charles W. Rae, to be advanced three numbers in rank on the list of commanders in the navy, for eminent and conspicuous conduct in battle.

TO RENEW LEASE.

St. Petersburg, June 17.—It is said the committee having the matter under consideration has decided to renew the lease and contracts of the Commander and Tulery islands for ten years for 3,500,000 roubles.

THE LACK OF WATER

That Will Delay the Opening of Normal School.

Cannot Be Supplied Before Nov. 1 at Earliest.

Water Board Was Delayed In Making Its Contracts.

Because there is no water in that locality, the Normal school will not be ready for occupancy before Nov. 1. Saturday afternoon, at the meeting of the state normal board at St. Paul, Professor Phelps stated that the building cannot be opened before Nov. 1, as the work will not be completed before that time. It was intended to open the school for occupancy by Sept. 1, but because of the lack of water a delay of two months will be necessary.

Manager Case, of the water and light commissioners, says that he cannot guarantee to have the water ready by Oct. 1 because the board has been delayed a month in letting the contracts. At the beginning of March a proposition was made to the normal board, but it was not officially accepted until the latter part of May. The board immediately awarded the contracts for the required amount of pipe and it is expected to arrive in the city some time next week. The water board cannot install the gas engine and pump until they have the pipe, but will probably commence work by the end of June.

The board will erect a pump house at the old reservoir by the boulevard drive and the water will be pumped from that place up to a 25,000-gallon stone reservoir located at Jackson street and Woodland avenue on the hill back of the Normal school. This will give the Normal school a pressure of 100 feet as the tank will be that distance above the building.

Professor Phelps says that the contractors are not in any way to blame for the delay as they have done all that they promised to do, but as the water is necessary for the plumbing, the steam and the sewerage, a trench much be ling for a distance of about 400 feet through the solid rock and the water pipes will also be laid in this.

Mr. Case expected a meeting of the water and light commissioners this afternoon to make the final arrangements for the pump house and its contents. The plans and specifications are all ready so that the work will be rushed along as rapidly as possible.

At the meeting of the normal board in St. Paul Saturday, the Duluth member further recommended that the election of the faculty for the school here be delayed for the present, so no action regarding it was taken.

AT WEST DULUTH

The contract for sprinkling Central avenue will be awarded by the council tonight and it is expected that the winner will commence laying the dust tomorrow. There are several bids to be considered. The territory through which the sprinkler will run covers eight blocks on Central avenue and is known as Duluth district No. 10. Nature has been the only leveler of Central avenue's dust since last summer. The paving is covered with gravel and on gusty days there is a continual dust cloud sweeping along the thoroughfare. The consummation of the West Duluthians' efforts to secure sprinkling is heartily welcomed by the merchants and citizens generally.

WOODMEN'S MEMORIAL DAY.

Old Hickory camp, M. W. A., observed the Woodmen's memorial day yesterday at Asbury M. E. church. The church was prettily decorated with the national colors, emblems of the order, cut flowers and potted plants. The assemblage listened to a fine address by Rev. Mr. Loomis. His text was: "What Doth the Lord Require of Thee? Deal justly, love mercy and walk humbly with thy God!" Short addresses were also given by Hon. G. J. Mallory and Mr. Stephenson. Music during the services was by the church choir and the specially prepared program was a feature of the observance. The inclemency of the weather kept many from attending the services, but, nevertheless, the church was well filled. A grave at Oneota cemetery was decorated by the lodge.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

West Duluth court 797, I. O. F., met at Gilley's hall at 10 a. m. yesterday and proceeded in a body to Ashbury M. E. church, where they listened to a memorial sermon by Rev. Loomis. The church was filled by members of the order, companions and friends.

At the regular morning service of the M. E. church yesterday several new members were received into the fold and there were some baptisms.

The Duluth brewers played a picked team yesterday, but rain put an early stop to the contest when the score was in favor of the brewers. To be sure, they couldn't lose on a wet day.

A 13-pound girl arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Seymour at Seventieth street and Grand avenue yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brotherton went to Grand Marais, Minn., on the Argo yesterday. Mr. Brotherton will return at once, but Mrs. Brotherton will remain for a visit of two weeks with relatives.

Frank Burnside and daughter, Miss Katie, of Ashland, are visiting friends here.

Dolph Borghorn and Philip LeFevre were up from Cloquet over Sunday.

Special novena services at St. James' church commenced last Friday and will continue all this week. Mass daily at 7 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

The ladies of the congregation of St. James will give a lawn social on the grounds next Thursday evening.

Ladies of the Macabees are planning for their annual dance, which is to be given on June 28, at Great Eastern hall.

Harry Confer, of Minneapolis, is a guest of his uncle, Dr. Confer.

Miss McCourt, of the Irving school, has gone to Minneapolis to spend her vacation with her parents.

Miss Metcalf, of Duluth Heights, left for Michigan today.

Mr. Sherman returned to his home in Villard Sunday.

The Duluth Brewers play the Kelley Hardware team next Sunday, the West End team has the Black Diamonds for adversaries, and the White Eagles and Second Streets will strive for honors.

Old Hickory camp goes to Proctorknott tomorrow night as guests of the local camp. All intending to make the trip should be at J. A. Scott's office, 316 Central avenue, at 7 p. m.

A. Newton expects to make a visit to the East at an early date.

Spirit Island will be invaded by a large party of campers early next week.

Walter Loveless, of Fifty-ninth avenue, who has been very sick, is improving rapidly and will soon be released from his long confinement.

Mr. Fobisher is home from Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Smith and family have gone to Michigan. Mrs. Smith and the children will remain a month, but Mr. Smith will be at home in a few days.

Was Another Adams.

The announcement on Friday that D. T. Adams is interested in the find of iron made in township 57-21 was incorrect. The man who has the interest is J. B. Adams, who represents the Aetna Powder company. His interest is said to be one-quarter, and he will make a handsome thing out of it. E. A. Sweeney, who operates diamond drills, owns a one-half interest, and W. J. Olcott and G. D. Swift one-eighth each.

Mr. Sweeney has sold his outfit of three drills to the Union Steel company, which has taken the option on the property from them.

BULL FIGHTING.

While I was reading the glowing words of the program a bugle sounded, the wooden gates of the ring opened, and the procession entered, says a writer in the Wasaington Post. At the head, quite alone, walked the matador, costumed in a Spanisa bolero and knee trousers heavily embroidered with gold lace, and carrying a sword. His jet black hair was braided down his back likea Chinaman's queue. There was a smile upon his smooth-shaven, swarthy face as he approached and doffed his turban-like hat to the officials in the private box. The toreadors were costumes of similar fashion, but not quite so handsomely made, and carried their gay cloaks upon their arms. Then came the picadors, with lances and riding the sorriest looking plugs of horses, whose breasts were protected by heavy aprons of leather. Finally came the pair of horses whose services would not be required until it was necessary to drag the dead body of the bull out of the ring.

The procession retired, upon the warm, still air the notes of the bugle rang out again. Once more a gate was opened and the bull came running into the ring. Upon his side was fastened a dart, gayly decorated with flowing ribbons of the Mexican colors. By this time the toreadors and the picadors had again entered and the fight began.

There is not a moment when the animal has a chance for his life, and there is not a moment when any man in the ring is in real danger. There are four heavy board structures inside the ring, behind which the toreador can step if the bull makes for him after he has daunted his cloak in the animal's face. Once during the exhibition one of the toreadors leaped the low fence rather than get behind the shelter of the escape, and went over so hastily that he tumbled into a heap on the other side.

The only men who seem to be at all in danger of receiving injury are the picadors on horseback. The bull has an antipathy for the horse, and if he has any fight in him at all—which some of them have not—he will attack the animal vi-olously. One rider was unhorsed, and his horse gored during the exhibition of which I write. But the horses are worthless creatures, all skin and bones, and, besides, are blindfolded, so that their death is nothing more or less than tame butchery. The picadors, like every one else in the ring, are fleet of foot and can easily escape while the attention of the bull is diverted. It is a curious fact that the bull when charging at a man never follows up his advantage. When the cloak is flaunted in his face he lowers his head, shuts his eyes and charges at the object. The man merely steps aside, and the bull, rushing forward for a few yards, stops to recover his breath and look around him. If for a single moment the bull seems really to mean business the toreadors fly to cover like a flock of scared partridges.

There are only two moments in a bull fight when skill and courage would seem to be requisite.

The first is when the toreador, discarding his cloak, takes two banderillos, or decorated darts, one in each hand, and inviting the bull to charge upon him plants both steel points in the opponent's forward flanks and then jumps aside without injur- to himself. If he does his work well, the darts which are barbed, remain fastened in the bull's flesh, still further to enrage any annoy him. The other moment is the finale of the fight, when the matador, summoned by bugle note to administer the coup de grace, stands in front of the bull with a red cloak and with drawn sword. The bull rushes toward the cloak and impales himself upon the sword with such force that the weapon buries itself to the hilt in the body. If the matador has an arm of iron, an eye unwavering and an accurate knowledge of the exact spot where the sword should enter the steel pierces the animal's heart and death is almost instantaneous. But only once during the afternoon did this matador make this single, effective stroke. Once he had to make two thrusts, again he severed an artery in the bull's side so that the animal bled to death, and the other time he struck a bone, so that the sword glanced off and two or three more efforts were required to end the bull's life. The crowd hissed at him and flung at him harsh epithets in the Mexican tongue. The butchering was so cruel and prolonged that nearly all the Americans left.

Interesting Facts Printed By the Department of Agriculture.

Europe Consumes Over Half the World's Wheat Production.

New Era In Rice Production In United States.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Crop Reporter, just issued by the department of agriculture contains the following interesting facts concerning the wheat and rice crops:

Since wheat is a prime necessity of civilized life, and is produced on all the great continental divisions of the earth's surface, the distribution of the world's crop first, with reference to the proportion annually produced on each continent, and then, with reference to the operations of commerce, is always the central point of commercial interest and importance. It is commonly estimated that there is necessary annually to supply the constant wants of the world a quantity ranging between 2,500,000,000 and 2,600,000,000 bushels. According to the estimates of the department of agriculture, the quantity of wheat produced for the five years has been 13,037,540,000.

The feature of economic importance in connection with the world's annual wheat supply is that Europe is invariably the consumer of considerably over half the world's production and never produces sufficient for her needs; North and South America, and, as a general rule, Asia, Africa and Australasia, have an excess over their domestic wants and are competitors in supplying the European deficiency.

In 1897 Europe, the one continental customer in the world's wheat markets, produced toward the supply of her domestic wants only 51.79 per cent of the unusually small world's crop of 2,234,461,000. In 1899, when the world's crop attained nearly record proportions, Europe supplied her own needs to the extent of 54.98 per cent of a heavy world's crop, and it is noteworthy that, although in no year since 1897 has the world's crop fallen anywhere near that year's short output, the proportion raised in Europe has steadily increased, reaching the high mark of 57.05 per cent in 1900. In North America, the chief source from which Europe obtains her imports, it is noticeable that the tendencies have been exactly opposite. Producing the high percentage of 26.67 per cent of the small world's crop of 1897, that continent has contributed a steadily increasing percentage to the larger world's crops of succeeding years, until in 1900 the proportion reached 22.50 per cent. The almost certain effect upon wheat prices of these opposite tendencies in the two great sources—one of demand, the other of supply to that demand—is apparent. Nothing is more patent, as the experience of the past year indicates, than that the price of wheat is made, not in the markets of one country or of one continent, but in the markets of the world; and the "sentiment" which is so often spoken of as making the price of wheat is, after all, nothing more nor less than constantly varying differences of opinion as to what the supply and demand, in all the complexity of their relations, are or are likely to be throughout the world.

* * *

There are many indications of the approach of a new era in rice production in the United States. For the last thirty years rice has been the one cereal of extensive use of which this country has produced an insufficiency for domestic needs. Lately, however, the area in rice is being enlarged, notably in Louisiana and Texas, production in the rice-growing belt is gaining on national consumption and an approaching change in the existing relation between domestic supply and demand is already being anticipated, but commercial efforts to increase the uses, and thereby the consumption of rice in this country, and even by suggestions of the possible need of foreign markets in the near future for a prospective surplus.

The average yearly consumption of cleaned rice in the United States for the past ten years has not been far from 250,000,000 pounds, and the average production about 150,000,000 pounds, leaving a net annual average of about 100,000,000 pounds to be supplied by importation. In the last year of the decade, however, there were indications of a decided increase in both domestic consumption and production, and also of a significant lessening in the difference between them. Apparently the consumption of rice in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1900, amounted to upwards of 275,000,000 pounds. The production in the same year was about 220,000,000 pounds, or in the fiscal year 1899-1900, the production of rice in the United States was only about 55,000,000 pounds short of supplying the domestic needs.

It is somewhat difficult to calculate the total quantity of rice of first quality that comes into sight in the United States through the medium of importation and production. Rice is imported into the United States in the form either of cleaned rice, uncleaned rice or paddy, and in the official statements of imports it is not always possible to distinguish between them other than to know that much the larger proportion of imports is in the first class.

The exports of rice from the United States are small and consist mostly of foreign rice brought into this country for re-export. Exports of domestic rice have at no time within the past ten years amounted to so much as 10 per cent of the total exports, excepting in 1900, when they constituted upwards of 40 per cent of the trade.

Rice, unlike wheat, is a product that is not made ready for market simply by the process of thrashing, which does not remove the inner hull adhering closely to the grain. Rice mills, with machinery necessarily so elaborate and expensive as to debar them, as a general rule, from being classed as agricultural, are operated as manufactories for the purpose of preparing rice for the market. In the operation of these mills a considerable proportion of the rice grains is crushed and broken, and the output consists not only of prime or cleaned rice, but of a variety of what may be called by-products, such as broken rice, rice flour, etc.

The production of these by-products in the United States enters mostly into home consumption and a considerable quantity, though this has shown a steady decrease for the past five years, is imported from foreign countries.

CHINAMEN'S TEETH.

"No," I have never pulled a Chinaman's tooth," said a dentist who has an office on the outskirts of Chinatown, to the Philadelphia Record. "I don't believe any other dentist has, either. As a rule, the teeth of the Chinese are very sound and strong, notwithstanding their yellowness. When a Chinaman has a decayed tooth he suffers like a stoic until the the pain becomes unbearable, and then he asks one of his friends to pull it out for him. This operation is performed, not with forceps, but in the primitive manner with the thumb and forefinger. It requires considerable time, but rather than sit in a dentist's chair and be confronted with an array of instruments, the Chinaman willingly submits to having the decayed tooth loosened gradually by a revolving motion of the fingers. As the tooth gets looser and looser the pressure is increased, and really the patient doesn't seem to suffer as much pain as you would suppose, even with a large molar. I once saw the operation performed. It lasted about ten minutes."

OLD TIME CIRCUS.

Veteran Tells of Many Exciting Episodes.

Comparing the modern circus with the traveling hippodromes that made America their home twenty or thirty years ago, I could aptly make use of the words of Nill Nye, who said that Horace Greeley and himself were exactly alike, only different, says T. B. Manley in the Philadelphia North American. The circus possesses an individual character that always remained the same in spite of time and modern improvements, but on the other hand many traditions of the ring have long since been abandoned, making all due allowances for points of resemblance, as well as marks of dissimilarity, I would say that the difference is one of degree rather than one of kind.

In the first place, the old circuses were held under one large tent. There were three compartments, containing the museum, the menagerie and the ring, respectively. Competition between the rival showmen in the '60s and '70s was intense. The number of clowns, rings and elephants was set forth in prominent type in the handbills, often, alas, to the detriment of truth. It was reserved for John Robinson, of Cincinnati, to make the first great improvement in the ground plan of the show. He invented the 3-tent circus in 1872. There was only one ring in his first performance tent, but this was changed to two, and finally to three.

Until quite recently there was little travel by rail from town to town. The freight lines did not frequent all the villages on the route, while rates were high and facilities poor. We drove over the country roads sometimes for twenty-four hours without rest. Many a driver has been buried from his high seat by low-hanging branches, and on one occasion the writer, who had fallen asleep on top of a cage-wagon, narrowly escaped a rude awakening in the river while crossing a rickety bridge.

The elephants were always driven over the road behind the wagons containing the wild animals. Heavy animals like the rhinoceros and hippotamus were sometimes two or three days behind the main body, and if the drivers met with hospitality or were flush with money the show would often have to go on minus these star attractions. The amount of territory covered in a single season would almost stagger belief. In a year's time one show would visit all the principal cities and towns from St. Louis to New York and from Montreal to New Orleans. Some of the circuses even included Cuba and Mexico in their visitations.

Our advance agents would reach the towns a day or two ahead of the wagons and arrange for hotel accommodations. But we could never put up at a hotel more than once in the same town. An universal boycott followed our departure, and the town papers were filled with advertisements of things lost, strayed or stolen. Blankets, silverware and even furniture were ruthlessly appropriated by men connected with the show.

Such headlines as "The Circus Is Coming! Look Out For Your Clothesline!" would herald our approach in the town sheets. The proprietors tried to prevent thefts by the employs as much as lay in their power, but the class of men they had to deal with made their efforts for the most part in vain. The "wind jammers," as we called the musicians, being considered on a higher plane than the showmen and animal trainers, were allowed the courtesies of hotel keepers, but the rest would have to camp out on lots and improvise their own cuisine. It was necessary to present a formidable appearance to ward off attacks from the villagers.

To this end we would string muskets alongside the wagons. The guns wouldn't go off with a charge of dynamite, but they served the purpose. On camping we would stack the harmless rifles in the center of the group and send several sentinels to parade the outskirts. We might be only thirty or forty strong, but the numbers on belts and hats would be 537, 685 and the like, to give the impression that we were legion. In the South we had many encounters with the "Kuklux," but always came off victorious. Our method of fighting was simple. We kept together in a compact body and struck out in all directions. This increased both our power of attack and ability to resist. "Hey Rube!" was our war cry. At its sound everyone left his work and flew to the scene of trouble.

The sideshows were a great element in the success of the old-time circus, and the show itself had many money-making schemes besides the price of admission. In the country towns cornucopias were made of brilliant colored paper and filled with candy or peanuts. When a rustic youth and lady were seen approaching the vender walk up to the lady and place two of the cone-shaped packages under her arm. "Ten cents," he would say to the man. If a larger coin than a dime was presented the circus man would then walk off. If halted he would explain that he was going for change or that he had made a mistake in the price. When bills were given in payment the process of "doubling" was resorted to in making change.

On warm days fans would be presented to purchasers of tickets at the doors of the tent. After the performance had begun a man would go among the spectators and collect money varying in amount according to the gullibility of the people. As a rule the farmers would be too much interested in the performance to raise objections, and if they did it was an easy matter to throw them out of the tent.

The "fake" element so intimately associated with the name of circus varied according to the place visited. In large cities the handbills displayed more than facts warranted, on the principle of P. T. Barnum, that the people got their money's worth, if not all that was promised. In the small towns, though, especially on first visits, all sorts of deceptions were resorted to.

We would take the most docile elephant and rub cornstarch or some harmless powder over his skin and advertise him as the "Sacred White Elephant of Siam." One of the showmen, in the garb of a Sahib, would be in constant attendance on the beast.

Elands, a common species of antelope, were made to do service as unicorns, chimpanzees were labeled gorillas, and coils of painted garden hose were pointed out as boa constrictors. I can recall one instance where for want of something better we put an East India buffalo knee deep in a trough of water and exhibited the animal as a submarine seacow that sweated blood every two weeks.

Nowadays there is little deceit practiced. The few remaining circuses are on such a large scale that they depend for revenue on exhibitions given in the larger cities and towns. Police protection and departments of public safety make it almost impossible to resort to dishonest or dangerous methods. It is now left to the genius of press agents and newspaper reporters to hunt up marvels.

THE NEW COMPANY

Pittsburg Dispatch Tells of Union Steel Company's Plans.

Valuable Properties on Mesaba Range Purchased By It.

Enormous Plant Under Way---Frick and Oliver Interested.

The article in The Herald last Friday to the effect that the Union Steel company is acquiring properties on the Mesaba range and that the company is one in which the Mellon brothers, of Pittsburg, were interested, and behind which were also H. C. Frick, Henry W. Oliver and others has awakened the Pittsburg papers to the fact that a big steel company is building plants in that vicinity. The following day the Pittsburg Dispatch, which had received the news from dispatches sent out from Duluth, had a two-column article with front page display on the enlargement of the Union Steel works at Donora, near Pittsburg. The plans, says the Dispatch, contemplate the expenditure of fro $18,000,000 to $20,000,000. W. H. Donner is president; A. W. Mellon, vice president; S. H. Waddell, secretary, and R. B. Mellon, treasurer. The Dispatch says:

The Union Steel company is now building at Donora the largest and most complete rod wire and nail mill in the world, and it is expected that it will be in operation within the next thirty days. This plant alone will produce 800 tons of rods, wire of all descriptions and wire nails daily, but the company owns two miles of river front on the Monongahela, and the intention is to make the plant approaching completion merely the nucleus of a great general steel plant that will rival all other independent plants.

Purchases have just been made by President Donner of several valuable roperties on the Mesaba iron ore range in Minnesota at a cost of $1,000,000 that will give the company its independent source of iron ore for many years. The company has also concluded negotiations for the purchase of 3000 acres of the finest coking coal in territory immediately adjacent to the Connellsville region, and the purpose is understood to be to erect several hundred coke ovens this and next year.

Contracts will also be awarded shortly for the construction at Donora of two monster 600-ton blast furnaces at a cost of $3,000,000, and plans have been prepared for a large steel plant with a capacity at least of 1000 tons a day and for finishing mills that will greatly broaden the present scope of the company. All of these plants will be started, if possible, some time this summer, but it is believed that two or three years will be required to bring into operation the plants now projected.

"President Donner returned a day or two ago from Duluth, where he spent two weeks buying, leasing and optioning all of the valuable ore properties on the Mesaba range that were available."

After giving general descriptions of the immense blast furnaces to be built and the rod mill that is to be put in the Dispatch says:

"It is the intention also to add to the finishing mills and steel plates will probably be among the products of the new plants to be added. The officials will not talk of these plans, and it is understood that the scheme has not reached that point of perfection that will permit of its exploitation. The company has an abundance of level bottom land upon which to build the great steel industry projected. Provision will be made for docks on the Monongahela so that the coal and coke can be hauled by barges, and the machinery to be installed in the yards will be of the most improved type."

That The Herald's statement that Frick and Oliver and others are interested in the new concern and its adjuncts is evidenced by the following from the Dispatch:

"The Mellons now have a large interest in the New York shipbuilding plant, organized by Henry G. Morse two years ago, and it has been thought for some time that some of the steel needed in the great shipyard on the Delaware river, at Camden, would be made in the Mellon plant at Donora. The buildings of the New York shipyard were built by the McClintic-Marshall Construction company, which A. W. and R. B. Mellon control, and a great steel forging plant, to cost $2,000,000 for the initial installation, is being designed by John A. Potter, former general superintendent of the Homestead works of the Carnegie Steel company, for erection at Paulsboro, N. J., by A. W. Mellon, R. B. Mellon, H. C. Frick, H. W. Oliver and others closely identified with their present movements. It is believed that many other lines of steel work will be taken up at the Donora plant. These will be announced as the plans are perfected."

READY TO GO ALONE

Special Session of Porto Rican Legislature Called.

Free Trade With the United States Now Desired.

Receipts of Island Will Be Sufficient For Administration.

Washington, June 17.—Secretary Hay today received the following from Governor Allen, of Porto Rico, at San Juan: "Unanimous vote today heads of department fixed the date for the special session of the legislature for July 4. The date of the proclamation will be announced at the session."

The proclamation referred to is that which will declare free trade to exist between the United States and Porto Rico, after a designated date, in conformity with the terms of the Foraker act, which allowed two years to test the ability of the island to sustain itself through internal taxation. Governor Allen's reports have indicated that under the Hollander act Porto Rico is now ready to assume free trade.

Washington, June 17.—Dr. Joseph Barbosa and Dr. Jose Gomez Broso, members of the executive council of Porto Rico, who are in this city, have received cablegrams from Porto Rico calling them back to attend a special session of the legislature called for July 4. Although they are uninformed of the purpose of this extraordinary session, they believe that it is called to take action upon the question of the abolition of the tariff duties between the United States and Porto Rico. They say that Treasurer Hollander has made a report showing that the receipts of the island will be sufficient to carry on the administration of the government after the new Hollander law goes into effect July 1, and that this being the case, the legislature can request the United States government to suspend the further operation of the Foraker law.

KNIGHTS OF HONOR.

BLIND PIGGERS FINED.

Three Brought In From Stuntz Township.

Three "blind pig" proprietors from the town of Stuntz, were fined $25 and costs each, in police court this afternoon. It is said that there are about fifteen "blind pigs" in Stuntz, though these three were the only persons captured. The men fined were John Larson, John Pomroy and John Illey.

Gottlieb Krause, a saloon keeper of 619 East Fourth street was convicted of keeping open on Sunday on two different complaints and it cost him $67.24.

Charged With Assault.

This afternoon Charles Narlety, engineer of the steamer Madagascar, was arrested on complaint of the mate, Martin R. Donovan, charged with assault and was taken before United States Court Commissioner Pressnell. The two had a scrap that is said to have amounted to little. The hearing was on this afternoon.

HUNTING WILD HOGS.

The strange deaths of animals was the subject which interested several local cattlemen and live stock handlers yesterday afternoon, when during a lull between the arrivals of the steamers they had gathered on one of the Light street piers, says the Baltimore Sun. Several stories had been told of the suicides, fights to the death or other unusual ending of the lives of dumb beasts, when Bernard Teacon Cannon, or, as he is familiarly known about Light street, "Election" Cannon, told the following story, for the truth of which he vouches:

"Last September I conceived the idea of hunting wild hogs on the great marshes of Holland Point, in Anne Arundel county, and succeeded in interesting "Buck" Allison, another cattleman in the project. We secured two "hog" dogs of the cur strain which had gained a reputation on the Haven, and early on the following morning in the month we landed at Fairing, accompanied by our dogs and provisions enough for two days, we arrived at the Holland Point marshes. There was plenty of sport, and the dogs soon struck a trail which led into the pine woods. We followed them, with guns ready to fire at the first appearance of a hog. Suddenly the baying of the dogs changed into a terrified howl, and through an opening in the heavy timber we saw the dogs in their last agonies of death, while over them and all around them was the fiercest bunch of wild hogs I have ever seen. They were of all colors and shades and were grunting and squealing with rage, the froth dripping from their mouths. In a few seconds the dogs were torn to pieces.

"As there were at least a dozen of them and the majority were old boars with murderous-looking tusks, we thought it a good time to disappear. As we turned, one of the boers saw us, and, with a grunt which evidently meant the order for a charge, they made for us. Our guns were forgotten in an instant and fell to the ground while we both scrambled up the nearest tree. We gained the limbs in safety, and the brutes held an excited council of war, with the result that we were kept prisoners up the tree throughout the day.

"At nightfall the whole band moved off and we ventured down. As quietly as possible we made for the open marsh, and had just reached it, when we heard the hogs coming at breakneck speed. We ran for the water and plunged in, not for an instant thinking that the brutes would follow. But they were not willing to relinquish the chase, and six of the large boars swam after us. We then began to think it was all up, when we heard a sound which made our hearts jump with joy. The hogs were drowning. We swam until a boat which was anchored off shore was reached. We returned and found that all of the boars were dead and that the throat of each had been cut by their sharp hoofs while trying to swim after us. We pulled them into the boat and next day returned to the city with the vivid remembrance of an experience which was our first, and will be our last, in the haunts of the wild hogs."

BRITAIN OPPOSES

Against An Increase of Duty on Opium and Rice.

Other Nations Oppose Britain Receiving Such An Advantage.

Will Demand the Same Concessions For Their Goods.

Washington, June 17.—Great Britain formally has informed the powers she will not consent to China putting an increased duty upon imports of opium and rice. Unless the combined influence of the powers induces the British government to withdraw from this position, China's efforts to lessen the opium traffic will result in failure.

It is almost seventy years since the Pekin government, alarmed by the effects of opium upon its people, first sought to stop its importation. That policy was followed by an "opium war," and Great Britain forced China to legalize the traffic. The war was beneficial to the Western world, because it brought it into closer relations with China, but it was disastrous to the Chinese government fastening a national curse upon the empire.

Great Britain's determination to oppose an increase on the duty upon opium and rice was communicated to the powers through her minister in Pekin. The state department will, at the proper moment, instruct Commissioner Rockhill to oppose any attempt or the part of any nation to have particular imports exempted from the application of the increased duty.

In opium and rice—important imports into China from India—continue to enjoy the advantage of a duty of only 5 per cent advalorem in silver, while the imports o fother nations have to pay the proposed duty of 10 per cent. Great Britain naturally will derive considerable benefit.

None of the powers is willing Great Britain should receive such an advantage and if that country is to receive preferential rights on certain products, others will demand the same concessions for their goods.

It is evident, therefore, that if Great Britain declines to permit an increase in the duty on opium and rice, an attempt on the part of certain powers to provide China with the means of raising the enormous indemnity demanded will fail.

RELIEVED BY DEATH.

David Blunt Is Free From Prosecution.

Death has saved David Blunt from the law. Late Saturday night he passed away at St. Luke's hospital, where he was lying ill from general break-down.

Blunt was 76 years of age and was arrested for perjury at Walker last March, it being said that he had misrepresented certain homestead matters. He was indicted by the grand jury here for that crime, and his trial was to have come up in May, but when that time came he was suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia, and although he recovered, soon after he had a general break down and ultimately died. It is said that old age was the cause of his death, but the fact of his arrest undoubtedly hastened it. Blunt always said that he intended to do no wrong when he made the representations for which he was called to account. A brother of Blunt's residing in Grand Rapids was telegraphed for and was expected to arrive today.

FAILURE TO DELIVER.

Suit Against American Linseed Oil Company.

McCarthy Bros. & Co. and Charles H. Thornton are plaintiffs in a suit in district court against the American Linseed company to recover $700 damages for failure to deliver 2000 bushels of Argentine flaxseed. They claim that the company agreed to sell them 2000 bushels of Argentine flax, known as "La Platta" seed, for $2000, to be delivered during March. It was necessary to have it before April 1, as it was bought to be resold to farmers for seeding this spring. According to the plaintiffs, the seed was not delivered. The market price of the flax at that time, according to the plaintiffs, was $2.35, and they sue for the difference between what they were to have bought the flax for and what they could have sold it for, or $700. Searle & Spencer are the attorneys.

JURY SECURED.

Eldorado, Kans., June 17.—After four days, a jury was secured today in the second trial of Jessie Morrison, on the charge of killing Mrs. Olin Castle, the bride of her former sweetheart. It is believed this trial will be much shorter than the first, which ended in a disagreement.

Two Divorce Suits.

Two divorce suits were filed in district court Saturday afternoon, and in both cases the ground is desertion. One is a deserted wife and the other is a deserted husband.

Jennie A. Best, aged 22, asks for a divorce from John M. Best, aged 26, on that ground. They were married in Duluth, May 6, 1897, and it is claimed that the desertion took place in Biwabik in April, 1899. Alexander Marshall is the attorney.

Thomas J. Waldren asks for a divorce from Bridget J. Waldren because of desertion. The complainant says they were married in Clayton, N. Y., Dec. 15, 1890, and that they are each 39 years of age, and that the desertion took place at Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 17, 1892. Frank Cutting is the attorney.

Twilight Limited.

Avoid the heat and dust of the midday by taking the "Twilight Limited" over "The Northwestern Line" for St. Paul, Minneapolis and Stillwater. This train of fame leaves Duluth daily at 4:30 p. m. and arrives at destination at early bed time. Without question it is the most pelasant train from Duluth to the Twin Cities.

ON THE WAY.

Rails For Street Railway Superior Street Track Coming.

The paving of Superior street cannot begin until the Duluth-Superior Traction gets the new rails with which the track through the central part of tahe city is to be improved.

The new rails will be very heavy and 60 feet long, resting on concrete beams. The order has been placed some time and the company expects to begin work within a very short time. Pending the arrival of the rails, however, the paving cannot be started, but the rails may be here by the time the brick is.

The Purington Paving Brick company of Galesburg, has the brick ready for shipment, except the special brick which will be in between the street car tracks. About 23,300 square yards of brick is needed for the street and 9700 square yards between tracks.

City Engineer Patton said that the delay would not be long, as he had been advised that the new rails of the street car company were on the way to Duluth.

He said that the street car people would have to keep about a block ahead of the street paing force while making the improvements in order to keep from blockading the streets.

Mr. Patton also expects to see the new paving put down with very little inconvenece to traffic. Only one side of one block will be torn up at a time and the work will be pushed very rapidly.

The new track the company proposes putting in through the center of the business district is similar to the tracks in St. Paul and Minneapolis. The rails are 60 feet long and welded together.

LOSES HER MIND.

Whisky Ruins Carrie Halverson's Mentality.

Carrie Halvorson, weary from the press of duties involved in her capacity of continuous performer at the police court, has taken refuge in insanity, according to County Physician Graham, who filed information of insanity against her in probate court this morning. She will be examined as to her sanity this afternoon.

Miss Halvorson began a thirty-day sentence for disorderly conduct June 8, after getting out June 2 from a sentence of ten days for drunkenness. The other evening one of the turnkeys heard a commotion in her cell, and when he went up to see what was the trouble, he found her making wild efforts to escape from the attentions of two big negroes, that she alleged were pursuing her about the cell, each with an open razor in each hand. She has been wild ever since, and frequently puts on her hat and wraps, rolls up her bundle of clothing and marches about the cell under the impression that she is going somewhere.

Whisky is said to he the cause of her lack of mental equilibrium.

Is at Beaumont.

James Shannon, the Duluth boy suspended from the United States Military academy, recently, has struck it well at Beaumont, Texas. He has been retained as civil engineer by one of the oil companies working in that vicinity and is said to be making considerable money.

ON A STRIKE.

Linemen of City Are Out For Eight Hours.

Linemen employed by the Commercial Light and Power company, the Zenith City Telephone company, and the Duluth Telephone company, went out on a strike today. They want an 8-hour day instead of 10 hours, at the same wages.

Both sides were doing some brilliant wire pulling this morning and the Duluth Telephone company induced a number of their men to return to work with a compromise of 9 hours, but the linemen still out announced that they would endeavor to have the Duluth Telephone men return to the side of the strikers, unless the dispute is settled today.

About thirty men are affected by this strike, and in case assidents should occur while it is on the telephone and electric light service would be crippled. However, the indications are that there will be an early and satisfactory adjustment of the difficulty.

TENDERED A BANQUET.

F. M. Crawford Is Surprised By Friends.

A well arranged and very sucessful surprise was tendered F. M. Crawford, of New York city, the secretary of La Mexican Land and Colonization company, by about thirty-five ladies and gentlemen interested in investments in tropical Mexico. Mr. Crawford arrived in Duluth in the morning, and was invited to a dinner at the Spalding in the evening. Many of his investors had never met Mr. Crawford before, but were won by his courteous manner, and became enthusiastic at his statements and explanations of the developments attained in their property. Dinner was served in a private room. The menu follows:

Little Necks.
Stuffed Olives.
Consumme, Royal, in Cups.
Radishes, Nipersteiner.
Soft Shell Crab, on Toast, Sauce Tartar.

MISSIONS

Was the Topic of Discussion For the Swedish Lutherans.

Jamestown, N. Y., June 17.—This morning's session of the Swedish Lutheran synod was devoted chiefly to the cause of foreign missions. During the past year the synod's congregations have given $12,794 to the cause. An effort was made in the synod to have it withdrawn from the general council of the Lutheran church, and establish mission fields under the direct control of the synod, but after a full discussion this was considered ill-advised and the synod will continue its mission work as a part of the general council of the Lutheran church.

A resolution was introduced making the use of the revision version of the New Testament compulsory among the churches of the synod, but it was voted down.

A congratulatory message was received from the New York ministerium, now in session in Rochester. The secretary of the synod was directed to return fraternal greetings on the part of the synod to the ministerium.

PAYS A DIVIDEND.

First Time In Ten Years For Missouri Pacific.

New York, June 17.—At a special meeting of the directors of the Missouri Pacific today a semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent was declared. This is the first dividend declaration by the company since 1891. Rights were given to stockholders of record on July 5 to subscribe for 15 per cent of their holdings at par.

The present outstanding stock of the Missouri Pacific is of the par value of $50,432,150. In April of this year the directors authorized an increase in the capital stock to $100,000,000, a portion of the increase to be used to pay for the interest acquired in the Denver & Rio Grande railroad by President Gould, which was about $12,000,000 of stock. The 15 per cent of the present outstanding stock would call for the issue of about $7,500,000 par value.

MANY STRIKE.

Between Three and Four Thousand Trackmen Out.

Montreal, June 17.—Officials of the Trackmens' union announce that between 3000 and 3500 of the Canadian Pacific Railroad company's trackmen struck today for an increase in wages.

The trackmen receive an average of $1.15 a day and want an increase of from 10 to 20 cents a day, according to locality. They claim that while the Canadian Pacific pretended to increase their wages 5 cents a day, they really had decreased the weekly wages by 37½ cents through cutting down track walking, so that the company, with the apparent increase, still had the better of the trackmen by 27½ cents a week. The company claims the men are as well paid as on any other road.

BOUNCED GOVERNOR.

Albanians Raise a Riot In Novi-Bazar.

Belgrade, Servia, June 17.—A serious rising is reported to have occurred in the Turkish town of Novi-Bazar. A thousand Albanians rebelled at the appointment of an unpopular lieutenant governor and compelled him to flee. The rioters then turned their attention to the Servian population. All the shops of Novi-Bazar were closed when the above advices were forwarded here.

GOES TO HUSBAND.

Mrs. Pingree Will Sail For Europe Wednesday.

Detroit, June 17.—Frank C. Pingree, brother of ex-Governor Pingree, who is dangerously ill in London, will leave for New York this afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. H. S. Pingree and her daughter, Miss Hazel. The party will sail for London on Wednesday. Mrs. Pingree is far from well, but is so anxious about her husband's condition that she will cross the ocean to be with him.

PINGREE WEAKER.

London, June 17.—The anxiety felt here regarding the condition of ex-Governor H. S. Pingree, of Michigan, who is suffering from an attack of dysentery, is in no way allayed this morning. Mr. Pingree is slightly weaker than he was yesterday.

TOOK REVENGE.

Killed Principal on Account of Dismissal.

Dothan, Ala., June 17.—Professor Rankin, formerly of Pensacola, Fla., who was until Saturday assistant principal of the public schools here, today shot and killed Principal George R. McNeill, and then committed suicide. Rankin had been dismissed from the school and the loss of his position is supposed to have led to the shooting.

NOT APPROVED.

Washington, June 17.—The president has disapproved an act of the Cherokee Indian council providing for a commission to execute a new agreement with the Dawes commission. The tribe by popular vote recently rejected by a majority of over 1000 the agreement which had been made between its representatives and the Dawes commission.

BACK AT MANILA.

Washington, June 17.—The navy department has received a cablegram from Rear Admiral Rodgers, aboard the New York, announcing his arrival at Manila. He is back from a trip to Olongapo, P. I., the site of the new naval station in the Philippines.

HAY HAS RETURNED.

Washington, June 17.—Secretary Hay has returned to Washington from Buffalo and resumed his duties at the state department.

EDWARDS CAPTURED.

Memphis, June 17.—A special from Monroe, La., says Prince Edwards (colored), the alleged murderer of John Gray Foster, of Shreveport, has been captured.

Attend Gately's rummage sale.

HOME MISSIONS

The Business of the Reformed Presbyterians.

Cincinnati, June 17.—At the general synod of the Reformed Presbyterian church today, Rev. R. B. Patton of Columbus, Ohio, led in the discusion of home missions.

Rev. R. W. Chestnut of Marrisa, Ill., presented the reports on the Lamb fund and on Sabbath schools and both were adopted. Trustees of the theological seminary at Philadelphia presented the 94th annual report of that institution and it was referred.

A radical report on Sabbath observance and temperance was adopted.

Consideration of the report on foreign missions was then resumed.

Tuesday, June 18th,

Is the next date on which you can take advantage of the low rates offered by the Eastern Minnesota and Great Northern railways. WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

HAS MANY FARMERS

This County Not Devoid of Them as Some Suppose.

Census Figures Give Farming Population at Nearly 4000.

The Figures By Towns--- A Large Increase Since.

When anyone mentions agriculture pursuits in connection with this county before a person that has been here but a short time, and that has confined his presence to the city limits, it is common to have that person smile in a manner that indicates that you cannot string him. The impression in the mind of such a person is that there are no more farmers in this county than there are elephants, and that back of Duluth there is a waste occupied only by pine stumps, iron mines and tamarack and muskeag swamps.

It would pay a person in that degree of darkness to take a day or so off and hire a rig for a trip about the farming districts within thirty miles of Duluth. The trip would prove an eye-opener, and it would totally revise his estimates of the resources of the great county of St. Louis. Not only is the county great in size, being 5869 square miles in extent, larger than many important states and one of the five largest counties in the United States that are habitable, but it has the varied resources of an empire.

It will surprise everybody, not only the doubting persons above referred to, but older residents of the city, to learn that the population of the farming sections of the county is nearly 4000. To be exact, the census of 1900 shows it to be 3858 souls. This is in districts that are distinctively farming, and includes nothing north of the range line between townships 56 and 57, though there are many farmers north of that that are swallowed up in the range population.

Through the organized townships, where there are good, level, solid roads, there are farms that would open the eyes of nearly every person in the city of Duluth that has not seen them. In the eastern part of the main farming district there is a threshing machine, and there are not many people in Duluth that would imagine there was any use for such an institution here.

The population has greatly increased since the census was taken a year ago. Several colonization schemes are in progress, and nearly every township will show a greater population than it did last year. New settlers are coming in constantly, and it is safe to say that the farming population has increased 1000 since the census was taken. The figures of the census of 1900, by townships, organized and unorganized, are as follows:

NEW SECRETARY TALKS.

Philip Bevis Addresses the Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

The men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon was addressed for the first time by their new secretary, Philip Bevis, who arrived in the city Saturday morning. Mr. Bevis is very much pleased with the outlook at Duluth and with the reception accorded himself and family. He spoke of the men who took hold of the opportunities that are offered them.

"In my class at college," he said, "I knew three men who entered the door that was opened to them, and now one of them is a college president, another an assistant to a college president and the third is drawing a salary of $10,000 a year."

Mr. Bevis showed how the Young Men's Christian association is enabled to help young men take advantage of the opportunities that are offered them, and said that he intends to give his best and whole work to the work at this place. The new secretary has taken up the work here with a great deal of energy, and the boom that the association work received while under the leadership of R. F. Shuman is sure to be sustained. There will be an informal reception tendered him and his family at the building Friday evening.

Humors

They take possession of the body, and are Lords of Misrule.

They are attended by pimples, boils, the itching tetter, salt rheum, and other cutaneous eruptions; by feelings of weakness, languor, general debility and what not.

They cause more suffering than anything else.

Health, Strength, Peace and Pleasure require their expulsion, and this is positively effected, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Which radically and permanently drives them out and builds up the whole system.

FOOD FOR MEMORY.

The Kind That Builds Up the Brain.

It is hard to believe that certain kinds of food will strengthen the memory, and yet upon the condition of the brain depends the character of the mind, and its power to remember, and to exert itself in various ways, and a healthy brain can only be maintained by well-selected food.

Now we know that daily use of the brain uses up certain parts that are thrown out through the pores to the outer surface of the skin. This waste is natural and must be made up from food.

Grape-Nuts Food was made especially to rebuild the brain and nerve centers. An experience in Chicago will illustrate.

Mrs. G. H. Baber, 528 South Paulina street, writes: "I had a terrible siege of gastritis, my stomach refused everything in the way of food until I got hold of Grape-Nuts. It was perfectly wonderful and marvelous to see the difference; I began to improve at once. I weighed myself about that time and found that I had 118 pounds to my credit. I gained in weight, strength and health steadily and rapidly, and now weigh 160 pounds and am strong and in better health than ever in my life.

I have lately had a seven months' course of vocal instruction and have memorized fifty-eight songs and most of the accompaniments, besides several piano pieces. When I started in it seemed difficult to memorize one, but my memory has been growing better every day and I now find it easy to commit to memory without difficulty.

I have taken no medicine, but my steady diet of Grape-Nuts Food has given me strength, health and memory."

FORTUNATE.

D. O'Leary's Foresight Saves Him a Good Sum.

Because D. O'Leary took his money to police headquarters Saturday night, he didn't have to tell his troubles to a policeman Sunday morning.

Mr. O'Leary is the well known grocery man formerly in the Masonic Temple building, but now located at 17 East Superior street.

Saturday the grocery business flourished and at night there was $400 in the cash drawer.

The original intention was to leave it in the drawer, but Mrs. O'Leary objected and suggested that the money be left at police headquarters. It was subsequently deposited in the big burglar proof safe purchased some years ago to keep a certain night jailor's shoes in.

Some time between midnight and daybreak a burglar stealthily entered the store and pried open the money drawer. He evidently knew of the store's receipts, and must have been tremendously disappointed when the drawer was found empty.

Entrance to the store was gained through a rear window, climbing over the iron bars and pushing down the upper part of the window. A hatchet was used on the money drawer, but finding no money the thief went to the tobacco case and helped himself to a quantity of smoking supplies. In leaving the store the man left the door open and the gas burning. The burglary was not discovered till 10 o'clock yesterday morning and there is no trace of the thief.

AMUSEMENTS.

"SAG HARBOR."

The theatrical season of 1900-1901 in Duluth will close with the appearance of James A. Herne's "Sag Harbor" at the Lyceum tonight and tomorrow night. The peculiar distinction of Herne's "Sag Harbor" company, it is said, rests in the nicety with which each one of the character roles has been fitted with its interpreter, or vice versa, as one may choose to regard it, by Mr. Herne who himself cast and produced the play. It has been a matter of marvel not only in New York, but in Boston and Chicago, the manner in which the players in this piece do not seem so much to be playing parts as to be living the lives of the actual persons of the play they are interpreting. The special distinction of the performance of "Sag Harbor" then obtains in the effect of almost perfect illusion. It does not seem to be a play set in painted scenes but rather a page from real life on which the auditor for the time is permitted to gaze.

The Healer Leaves.

Schrader, the self-styled "divine healer," who was in Duluth last week, left Saturday night for points in Western Minnesota and North Dakota. A curious crowd gathered in front of the Eastern Minnesota office while the grotesque appearing crusader was securing his ticket. He found little encouragement for his labors in this community and his assumed eccentricity of personal appearance and dress aroused none of the interest which he hopes to excite.

Eagles to Celebrate.

Virginia Eagles are preparing for a great celebration and clam bake next Sunday, and every Eagle in the range town is a committee of one working to make the event a great success. T. R. Patterson was in Duluth yesterday and received assurances that the head of the lakes would furnish 250 patrons of the special train which will be run on one of the three roads which reach Virginia. It is expected that between 600 and 700 Eagles and their friends will assemble for the celebration.

Excursion Returns.

The excursionists left yesterday on schedule time. The rain interfered somewhat with their pleasure while here, but none of the party complained of lack of entertainment. About 200 boarded the train at West Superior. Fourteen coaches were necessary to accommodate the travelers.

Beware of Ointments For Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damages they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. LUMBER MARKET

Buyers Are Numerous But Few Sales Are Reported.

Nester Interests and Others Lose Some Rafts.

American Lumberman Finds Prices on Good Foundation.

There are more lumber buyers in Duluth now than there are sales recorded. Plenty of lumber to supply the demand is for sale, but it is in small lots and cargoes are at present a trifle difficult to secure. Prices are strong and though there has been no noticeable advance there are no concessions from any one. The first of the new cut will soon be ready for shipment; some has already been shipped. Sales for the early fall cut are under consideration and may be closed at an early date, for shipment just before the close of navigation.

Vessel rates are from $2.25 to $2.50, the latter having been paid for some cargoes, but the bulk of shipments has been at the former rate. Shipments of the week are very large, and there is an immense amount of lumber going out of Lake Superior just now. At the Sault a day last week in an hour six lumber boats passed the canal, down bound, with probably 4,500,000 feet of an aggregate cargo. The Lake Superior shipments for June were 88,000,000 feet, against 121,000,000 for the corresponding month last year. Shipments of lumber for lake ports from the head of the lakes for the two weeks just past numbered forty-five, with aggregate of 32,015,000 feet of lumber.

The Nester estate is logging on the Gooseberry river, a few miles down the shore from Two Harbors, thirty-five miles from this city, and is towing the logs to the mill at Barnum, 250 miles away. One raft of 6,000,000 feet has been successfully taken around and a second of the same size is to go at once. To cross this work, Alger, Smith & Co. are logging on Pigeon river, nearly due north from Baraga, and are towing the logs to Duluth for sawing. The Nesters will have a tow of but thirty-five miles to the Alger-Smith mill here and the Alger-Smith logs could go to the Baraga mill in a straight pull across the lake. The two rafts from the Gooseberry will clean up all that winter's logging, but more timber is coming out all the time and it is hoped to get 40,000,000 feet during the season. Alger, Smith & Co. have nearly 20,000,000 feet to bring here from Pigeon river. The second raft of the Nester estate was demolished by the heavy sea running last Friday. There were 1,500,000 feet of logs in the raft and they are now strewn along the lake shore. The lost logs are valued at $20,000. It is fortunate that the raft was not completed or the loss would have been very much heavier. G. A. Potter lost $7000 worth of logs on the same day as the Nesters were unfortunate. He lost 500,000 feet of logs and the Ayer & Ring company 350,000 feet, a monetary loss of about $4000.

The site of the Brooks-Scanlon mill near Cloquet has been named Scanlon, and will be incorporated as a village. The mill is rapidly nearing completion. Many logs are on hand, but sawing cannot begin for some time.

By its recent deals, including the purchase of the Day timber in 61-14 and of the Tower Logging & Railway Company, the Tower Lumber Company has taken a very prominent place in the lumber concerns of this region. It is the largest and heaviest interior mill in the district aside from the Weyerhauser concerns. It is fixed with timber for a long period and is amply supplied with capital for any undertaking it may consider profitable. Aside from these two big deals it is buying small lots of timber steadily.

The American Lumberman, discussing editorially the general conditions, sees no ground for uneasiness. In some branches of the lumber business there seems to be an under-current of dissatisfaction with the trade that is being done, and some apprehension as to the future. Occasionally if this or that market is heard of as being a little unsettled and of a certain class of operators being inclined to weaken a little in their views as to the value of their commodity. Yet when tangible facts are received, there seems to be no ground whatever for dissatisfaction with present conditions or for apprehension as to their future.

Whenever definite figures are available, the steadiness, good volume and stability of the demand for lumber are demonstrated. The comparisons usually available are with 1900. While that was not as good a year as 1899 it was still a very satisfactory one on the whole. All the markets which make weekly or monthly reports show a decided gain over last year and many of them are doing a business as large as or even larger than in 1899. Chicago does not show a heavy gain over last year simply because its local demand is so heavy that sales to the out-of-town trade are not urged as they were last year, and yet there is some increase. Minneapolis shows a very much larger business than last year, while the same is true of Duluth and the entire Northwest as far as represented in the Mississippi Valley and the Wisconsin Valley lumbermens' associations, the gain for five months this year having been 22 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. Not only has there been this increase for the entire period up to June 1, but each month has shown a gain ranging from 10½ per cent in January to 28 per cent in April.

The yellow pine trade is in equally as good position. The decrease within ten months in stocks on hand at the yellow pine mills is estimated at above 20 per cent. In the East the general report is of decidedly better conditions now than prevailed a year ago at this time.

POOR BOARD

Finds No Deserting Husbands to Prosecute Thus Far.

The poor board held a regular meeting Saturday afternoon at its offices in the Mesaba block, when it was developed that the board had had no opportunity to carry out its announced policy of getting after deserting husbands under the new law making it a criminal offense to desert a family. Since that announcement no deserted wives have applied for aid, and none of the absent husbands of former applicants have been located.

The board was much pleased with the results from placing a cream separator at the poor farm. It cost $125, but according to the members of the board it will soon pay itself. It is working very successfully, and it has enabled the farm to dispense with the services of one domestic. Where it was formerly necessary to buy butter for the use of the farm, now more than can be used is produced. The milk, after the cream has been separated, is made use of in various ways.

An adjourned meeting of the board will be held tonight.

BASEBALL.

Wind and Rain Interfered With Many Games.

At Thirty-second Avenue west and Superior street, Saturday afternoon, the Tigers and the Marshall-Wells Rivals played four innings of a baseball game, but were forced to stop at the beginning of the fifth on account of the heavy wind which threatened to blow holes in the ball. At that time the score stood 25 to 4 in favor of the Tigers. Duncan who pitched for the Tigers allowed the first three innings, although rather erratic, is a young fellow with plenty of speed and good curves, and the Rivals found him a rather difficult problem to solve, only two hits being secured. Bradley who was in the box the fourth inning, struck out the first three men at bat. Piering for the hardware people, was knocked all over the diamond, and was poorly supported in the outfield. The teams lined up as follows:

Tigers—		Rivals—
Frazier	Catcher	Ely
Duncan (Capt.)	Pitcher	Piering
Bradley	First base	LeRoy
Weber	Second base	Coleman
Thrall	Shortstop	McDonald
Swan	Third base	Smith
McKenzie	Left field	Schultz-Mertinger
Deetz	Center Field	Borgen
Bowers	Right Field	Haig

High School Game Off.

Baseball did not flourish in Duluth Saturday afternoon. There was a game scheduled to take place between the high school team and Manager Hansell's men at Oneota Park. The high school aggregation admittedly had the strongest box work, as Cummings, the second edition of Frank Merriwell, was to have twirled for them, but the Duluth team would have of course, had the best batting and all around work. When the time came to play, however, there was such a strong wind cavorting down the field directly against the batter that it was decided to call the game off, as everybody would have been busy chasing fouls. Otherwise the day was perfect baseball weather, bright and clear, with an ideal diamond. The high school people want to arrange a game with the Board of Trade, when their season will close.

Could Not Play.

The baseball "championship" of the head of the lakes remains undecided. The driving park at West Superior was a sea of mud yesterday and Hansell and his cohorts were unable to clash with the Superior representatives. Next Thursday the Superiors will play a colored team, made up from the Georgia minstrels.

Rain Interfered.

Rain stopped the Big Duluth-Cloquet game in the third inning yesterday, with a score of 1 to 0 in favor of the Duluthians. The three innings played were very fast and the clothing store representatives hammered out five bilthesome singles.

TAXING OF MINES

Member of Legislature Presents a New Phase.

Country Legislators Will Be After Mines Red Hot.

Must Prove Intention to Do Some Manufacturing Here.

Next winter there will be a special session of the legislature of Minnesota to consider the subject of taxation, and at that meeting there may be a general change and remodeling of the tax laws of the state. The session has not been called, but Governor Van Sant last winter agreed to call it and will undoubtedly do so. At that session of the legislature one of the most important matters that is liable to come up is the taxation of railroads and mines, especially the latter.

It is a fact which is fast becoming notorious all over the state that the mining industry of the state does not pay taxes at all commensurate with the share of the property of the state which it owns. The members of the legislature and the state officials have known this for some time and have lately manifested a disposition to make them pay more. No radical measures have thus far been brought to the point of an attempt to introduce them.

One of the members of the delegation from this part of the state is positive that the tax session of the legislature will see a general onslaught on the mines and an attempt to make them pay taxes much larger than they now turn into the state treasury. This member thinks the general desire to get at the mines will be so great that there will be danger of the adoption of measures that will be unjust to them. The delegation from the three districts in which this county lies have always been looked upon as picked by the mining companies, and the members will undoubtedly oppose measures that look to the taxation of the mining industry to a radically increased extent, although they do not all believe that the mines are paying enough now.

This member is one who realizes that it is going to be a difficult matter to check the tendency to pile it onto the companies, unless there is some strong argument that can be put forth to keep the legislators within the bounds of what the delegation believes to be reasonable, and he believes that here lies an opportunity for the business men and the people of Duluth to interest themselves and perhaps accomplish something substantial for the city.

The United States Steel company has come into possession of the three largest mining interests in the state since last winter. The members of the legislature all over the state know this. They believe, too, that the only interest the big steel trust has in the state of Minnesota is to get the iron ore it owns here out of the mines and out of the state to the Eastern furnaces at the lowest possible cost. It is establishing headquarters in the state and is bringing many men here in connection with its offices, but that will be looked upon by the people of the state at large as a thing necessary to the economical management of the mines and not an evidence of anything particularly friendly to Minnesota. To see all this mineral wealth going out of the state, leaving nothing here but the bare cost of digging it up, the taxes and the cost of transportation has always been repugnant to the people not only of Duluth but of the state. Now with this big corporation, owning enormous plants in another part of the country, coming into possession of nearly all the mines, they are apt to believe that the possibility of iron manufacture in Duluth or in the state is well nigh hopeless. The disposition will naturally follow to make the company leave all behind that it can be forced to and the first avenue certain to be opened up is in the matter of taxation, for that is where the corporation is vulnerable. Even the members of the legislative delegation, favorably as they are inclined to the mining companies, are convinced that they do not pay their just proportion of the taxes.

The opportunity which this member of the legislature believes is open to the people of Duluth is this: To call to the attention of the heads of the Steel company the situation in Minnesota with reference to this tax matter and the possibility that they will be seriously harassed by the coming state legislature and to point out to them that the easiest way to circumvent it is to give some evidence that they contemplate other things here than getting out the ore as fast as they can; in other words, that there is some hope that the corporation will engage in the manufacture of iron or its products here in some way. It will take some tangible proof of this, too, to appeal to the legislators from the country districts. They will not be content with promises. Once assured, however, that the mineral wealth is not always to be merely carted out of the state for the enrichment of some other part of the country, and they will be far more inclined to deal fairly with the mines.

This member of the legislature is very anxious to see this phase of the question taken up. He does not say that he is sanguine of success, but he believes there are possibilities that make it well worth trying. At any rate it can do no harm.

BIG TOBACCO DEAL.

The Largest Shipment Ever Made to the Twin Cities, Shipped to Winecke & Doerr, Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, June 17.—The enterprising firm of Winecke & Doerr, Minneapolis, received yesterday the largest shipment of tobacco that ever came to the Twin Cities. It consisted of two carloads of Duke's Mixture and two carloads of plug tobacco. The total cost of this shipment is said to be about $50,000.

Winecke & Doerr, of Minneapolis, are the largest jobbers of cigars in the West, and their progress has been due to the quality of their goods and their good advertising. It is said that the firm of Winecke & Doerr pays more for cigars than any other jobber, and makes the dealer pay more, but charges the consumer no more.

Their famous Red Box Trade Mark, which is stamped on the label of all cigars they job, is familiar to all smokers who appreciate good cigars.

TO BE EXTENDED.

Salvation Army Work to Be Resumed.

"The work up town of the Salvation army will be taken up this summer and put on a running basis again." So said Col. John Sowton, of Chicago, the head of the Scandinavian branch of the Salvation army work in this country, who is in the city. "The movement here is not dying out, and although I cannot say much of the American branch of the army, as it is not in my province, I understand that the reason that they discontinued their meetings was because they could not procure a suitable hall in which to hold their services. The wife of Brig. Gen. Halpin, of Minneapolis, who looks after the work here, died a few days ago and that has prevented the immediate operation of plans for starting up the work here again."

Colonel Sowton has been in the Salvation army work for twenty years, eighteen of which he has been an officer, and has spent almost half of that time in Denmark, Sweden and Norway. He is a fluent linguist, and is in charge of the work at Chicago. The Scandinavian branch in the West End is in a flourishing condition—has about fifty members and a brass band of ten pieces. Colonel Sowton spoke yesterday morning at the Swedish Baptist church, and in the afternoon addressed the Swedish corps of the local Salvation army at their barracks, Seventeenth avenue west and Superior street.

The following dispatch from Flat Lick, Ky., appeared in the Cincinnati and Louisville papers of recent date: "About one mile from this place Milliken & French have just completed the first nitro-glycerine factory that has ever been built in Kentucky. Milliken & French are "oil well shooters" and have been employed by the Belle Oil company and the Blue Grass Oil company to "shoot" a number of wells in this vicinity. As nitro-glycerine is too explosive to be shipped, they decided, after looking over the territory, that it would pay them to erect a factory here." The No. 1 well of the Blue Grass Oil company was the first to be shot in Kentucky.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Memory of Rev. William Whipple is Honored.

A memorial service was held in the First Presbyterian church Sunday evening for Rev. William Whipple, who died May 3 at Hamadan, Persia, while in the mission field. All of the Presbyterian churches of the city participated in the services, and the speakers paid glowing tributes to the man who left home and family to take up the work of his master, in the far-off land.

The services were opened by Rev. O. H. Wilson. He was followed by Dr. Cleland, who gave a brief review of Mr. Whipple's life and work.

"Of all the missionaries that have gone to Persia from this country," he said, "there was none more widely or more favorably known than the man whom we, in this church, had the pleasure of knowing and loving. He received high favor at the hands of the shah and the good that he has done in his master's work can never be fully estimated."

Rev. John Wilson spoke saying that it was one of the greatest privileges of his life to have known Mr. Whipple. Hon. W. D. Edson said that he was a man whom no one could know without loving and admiring his purity and his high purpose. Rev. R. A. Montgomery closed with a fitting tribute to the work and life of the one who died as he had lived, in the service of his master.

GEN. MAY DEAD.

New Orleans, June 17.—Gen. Eugene May, a prominent wholesale druggist, died today from injuries sustained in a fall from a spirited horse last week. Gen. May served in the civil war with the famous Washington artillery, of this city, and at the time of his death was inspector general of the State National Guard.

Indians Ask For Injunction.

Progress toward the opening of the vast tract of land in Indian territory is suspended pending decision of the supreme court of the District of Columbia on the application for an injunction restraining the secretary of the interior from parcelling the land to homesteaders. The land was formerly owned by the Kiowa, Commanche and Apache tribes of Indians. According to a special act of congress this land is to be thrown open to settlement not later than Aug. 6. Lone Wolf and two or three other Indians called on the president the other day and urged him to stay the proceedings, alleging that they signed the treaty conveying the land to the government on misrepresentation and a misunderstanding of the facts. The president declined to interfere, and the application for injunction was filed. Thousands of persons are interested in the outcome of the case, which will decide whether or not the lands are to be thrown open. The territory affected is larger than that opened in Oklahoma some years ago and the interior department has been making elaborate plans for parcelling out the homesteads. There is not much doubt as to the result of the case. The lands will be opened and if any injustice has been done to the Indians they may or may not be recompensed. The red man stands but little show in these days. But the probability is that some scheming white man has stirred up the present trouble and prompted Lone Wolf and his friends to apply for the injunction.

The Search For the North Pole.

If the North Pole is finally to be reached by mere thoroughness of preparation, the honors are likely to be carried off by Evelyn B. Baldwin, for no Arctic expedition has yet set out with such an expensive equipment as that backed by William Ziegler, of New York, of which Mr. Baldwin is commander-in-chief. Mr. Baldwin has just been in Kansas to say good-by to his father, a farmer living near Edna, and while there gave some interesting particulars in regard to his journey. He plans to build the northernmost house in the world, on the extreme northern portion of land, and there spend the first Arctic winter. But that is not the only permanent shelter that will be built. Mr. Baldwin further says: "We are taking with us a large quantity of light building material known as ruberoid, with which to construct wind-proof shelters from point to point on our northward advance. These will remain as permanent structures along our line of march, and will greatly enhance the comfort of our party and ease the strain of Arctic sledge journeys. Ruberoid, being only one-quarter as bulky as light wood material, greater quantities of it can be more easily transported, and so we shall do what no Arctic expedition has ever before been able to do, that is, leave permanent shelters along our line." Mr. Baldwin is also taking with him one of the best balloons ever constructed, and it is his idea that, if he finds it impossible to reach the Pole on the ice, to resort to the balloon, not being deterred by the fate of Andree.

The Portland Telegram draws attention to the fact that the large importers who win suits against the government for the return of duties illegally collected, as some of them frequently do, have what, in vulgar parlance, is a soft snap. They were never out the duties paid, for they re-collected them, with a margin of extra profit besides, from their customers. But when the government repays these moneys, the importers do not refund them to the retail merchants nor the consumers who really paid it.

THE PARTY LASH.

Thorny is the path along which the Republican party is traveling nowadays, and weary will be the arms of those whose duty it is to wield the party lash to the end that the wolves in sheep's clothing are kept from associating with the party lambs. It is becoming evident to the party bosses that the supreme court will open the door of citizenship to the inhabitants of our insular possessions. They recognize the fact that the decision in the Downes case was but an expedient to allow the administration to adjust itself to the "plain duty" laid down by the constitution, and that the dictum of that decision will be reversed at the next sitting of the court. This all will bring after it the plagues which the Democratic press warned the people against last fall. We must have a colonial system outside of the constitution, or free immigration from our outlying territory. Already the officials of the government are running counter to each other in this fog of conflicting political theories. On instructions from Washington, Ambassador Choate issued passports to Filipinos, and during the last term of the supreme court a Porto Rican was admitted to practice before that august body. Now, none but citizens of the United States can receive passports from the government, and none but citizens of the United States can be admitted to practice in the supreme court. Notwithstanding these precedents, the custom house officers deported Filipinos who came to San Francisco en route to Buffalo, because they had not complied with the regulations governing immigrants from foreign countries.

Added to these troubles, growing out of a ridiculous policy dictated by the manufacturing interests and the sugar and tobacco trusts, another specter rises which promises more trouble than imperialism. It is the old question of the tariff. Whether right or not, the people have received the idea that the present tariff is responsible for the trusts and all that is to be charged up to them. A full half of the Republican party, counting the voters, believes that the present tariff should be so modified as to place all gods made by combinations on the free list. Another and still more potent reason for a tariff revision is the impending tariff war that is threatened against the United States by combined Europe. This war is the direct result of the foolish action of the senate in refusing to ratify the Kasson reciprocity treaties last winter. If the Dingley schedule is kept up, the markets of the world, which we are just entering, will be closed to us and sealed by retaliatory tariff measures.

The Republican press of the country has scented the smoke of battle, and has had the good sense to call upon the Republican managers to follow the lead of Babcock and take the initiative in this matter of tariff reduction, and thus take the wind out of the sails of the Democratic ship, which has been forging ahead while the Republican craft has been drifting into the shoals. This agitation has given the managers of the Republican machine many a bad dream. They have talked of reciprocity as a remedy, others have made light of the necessities of the case, but now they will be brought face to face with the issue. The manufacturers have issued a circular, no doubt inspired by the party managers, calling on the party to stand pat on the tariff for yet three more years. This is the first card that the stalwarts have shown, but it indicates their entire hand. It explains the candidacy of Fairbanks, of Indiana, a narrow pot-house politician, one who would make an admirable tool for the schemers.

NEGROES INCREASING.

The theory that the negro race in the United States was bound to become extinct in the not far distant future has been exploded. Although the figures of the census of 1900 are not yet complete, those that are in show that the negroes are gaining in numbers more rapidly in some of the Southern states than the whites. The increase of the black and white races in the South is a question which has attracted the attention of sociologists ever since the civil war. By the census of 1880, which by comparison with that of 1870 offered the first real basis for reflective study, the blacks seemed to be gaining in numbers much faster than the whites. This created considerable alarm. It was feared that in process of time the black race would out-populate the white or "Africanize" the South as it was called. Ten years later the census of 1890 gave quite a different showing; the black race seemed, on account of its heavy death rate, to be making less numerical progress than the white, and it was discovered that the sensational showing of ten years before might have been due in part, at least, to an inadequate count of the blacks in 1870. At all events, the returns of 1890 served to quiet apprehension on the part of those who feared that the black race would eventually possess the land. But returns of this character from a single census were not sufficient to settle the questions. Students of the problem have been looking forward eagerly to the count of 1900, whose findings are now in process of tabulation.

The figures for the races have already been made up for two Southern states—Alabama and Arkansas. In them for the decade just closed the increase of the colored race was slightly greater than that of the whites. The difference however, is so slight, running into the fraction of 1 per cent, that any definite conclusion as to the course of events will have to await fuller returns. If these states prove typical of the entire South the conclusion reached in 1890 will have to be revised, and it seems likely that this will be the case. Arkansas is one of the states to which there has been considerable white migration, and that the blacks should have kept up in ratio of increase is somewhat significant. It is probable that throughout the South the medical facilities at the command of the negroes are improving, and that the death rate in consequence is not so startlingly large as it was in the earlier years of freedom.

NEELY AND RATHBONE.

It is evident that the friends of Neely and Rathbone, the alleged embezzling postal officials of Cuba, are working on a systematic plan to have their cases postponed again and again. So far as can be learned, only the preliminaries have been touched on and then the matter hung up. The idea of the accused and their friends is to keep them from coming to trial until the military authorities have been withdrawn from the island and civil government established. It is their apparent belief that the chances of the accused men will be better under a full regime of Cuban officers than when the prosecution is partly in the hands of men like Gen. Wood. It is true that the present judicial system of Cuba is in the control of Cubans and Spaniards, but Gen. Wood is closely connected with the prosecution of the postal embezzlers. Every movement in the cases thus far indicates that the counsel of Neely and Rathbone are principally engaged in killing time.

In the meantime Neely is in jail and Rathbone is not allowed to leave the city of Havana. He is nominally at liberty, but is accompanied by a representative of the chief of police. Reeves is complaining of what he calls harsh and unjust treatment. He is held principally as a witness, having decided to turn turn state's evidence. He has no occupation that brings in an income, yet he is forced to remain in Havana. He has his family with him and is at considerable expense. It seems that he is allowed nothing for this by the court, and every day of delay means that much more outlay for him. The actions of some of the officials of the United States, whose duties involve the prosecution of government officials, is simply scandalous. It is seemingly almost impossible to convict a man with a "pull." It was years before Capt. Carter got his just deserts, and even now attempts are made to have him released, and they may some time be successful. His fellow-conspirators have secured a stay in their cases until fall, and there is no knowing whether they will be convicted or not after they reach Savannah. These cases, with the Cuban affair and no one knows how many others which have not become prominent or even public, cast a reflection that is not at all creditable to the administration of justice.

The Molineux murder case is still dragging along in the New York courts and the prospect is fair that the conviction of Molineux will be quashed and a new trial granted, in which event a verdict of acquittal would not be surprising. The case was to be argued today before the court of appeals by ex-Governor David B. Hill and John G. Milburn, of Albany, two of the ablest lawyers in New York state. Probably no case in the history of the Empire state, certainly not within the last quarter of a century, has attracted the attention that has been given the Molineux case.

The world's consumption of sugar has doubled in the past fifteen years. Great Britain consumes eighty-six pounds of sugar per capita annually, and the United States sixty-five pounds. An English medical writer claims high health-giving qualities for sugar, that it creates energy and maintains strength, and so that the large sugar consumption of these people is partly the cause of Anglo-Saxon superiority in physical and mental achievements.

The May production of gold in the Rand was only 7400 ounces—very small in comparison with the production of May, 1899, when it was 444,933 ounces. The miners around Johannesburg are doing little work, the war conditions not being very favorable. But the flow of gold from the new discoveries in America makes the loss of Rand gold scarcely felt.

A Wilkeson, Wash., man sold his 18-year-old daughter to a middle-aged man whom she hated for $300, and two days after the enforced marriage, she tried for the second time to poison her husband, and nearly succeeded. Of course, this was very wrong, but are not the father and husband more deserving of punishment than the girl.

The manufacture of steel was revolutionized by the Bessemer process, and now it is reported that a North Carolina man has invented or discovered a process that is much more economical and produces a still better product. Of course, the steel trust is after his secret, but if he is shrewd he may become one of the big boys himself.

The cost of the government in Great Britain shows an increase of $17,000,000 as compared with that of six years ago. This is aside from the cost of the war in South Africa. The Salisbury administration may be justly charged with extravagance.

It does not require very much courage in a man to incur the appellation of "a Benedict Arnold." Even Congressman Babcock has that awful name flung at him by the American Economist because he advocates taking tariff duties off trust-made goods.

Russell Sage, at the age of 84, claims that he is still a young man, because, he says, "a man is young just as long as he takes an active interest in his own life and the life of the world at large."

The first census of the British census returns shows the population of the United Kingdom to be 41,454,578, an increase in ten years of 3,721,656. England and Wales show 78.4 per cent of the total.

There is said to be an enlarged movement of pianos to the Western states this year. That looks like prosperity.

Science and Common Sense.

Baltimore American: Some scientists in a convention in Indianapolis advance the theory that suicide is not only allowable, but in some cases a duty. If the new century develops a higher, better and stronger standard of manhood and womanhood, a character of energy, perseverance and endurance, it will not be the fault of the fatalist and theorists, whose only idea of originality and thought is to upset established and tried beliefs. Science is an excellent thing, but some of its followers seem to find it exceedingly difficult to reconcile their ideas of it with common sense.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Brooklyn Life: She—So this is the end of our engagement?

He—It may be for you, but it will take me a year to pay the bills.

Detroit Free Press: Happy Father—We've got a new baby up at our house.

Friend—So? What do you call him?

Happy Father—We don't call him; he does all the calling himself.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Our pastor married two brothers to two sisters the other day, with only one ceremony."

"Well, you've got a preacher who knows how to put two and two together."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "It will be difficult to deceive any more girls in that neighborhood where a young woman married a man and then discovered he had a wooden leg."

"How can they tell about it?"

"With a few jabs of a hatpin."

Somerville Journal: Even when a man says that he is hungry enough to eat a horse his wife knows that he will find fault, in nine cases out of ten, if the dinner isn't all exactly right.

Philadelphia Press: Tess—Mrs. Gay is awfully economical. She burnt her fingers last night trying to light a piece of paper so as to save a match.

Jess—What was she lighting the papers for?

Tess—To light the gas in her boudoir so she could try on her new $25 hat.

TWO LETTERS.

"Dear Joe," she wrote, "I scarcely know
If it is kind of me to write
This bit of news to you. 'Tis this:
Jack Brown proposed to me last night!
Considering your feelings, this
May hit you rather hard, but pray
Let's still be friends, for I shall be
As ever, yours sincerely, MAY."

Perhaps you see the love-lornone
Perusing this most cruel note
And overwhelmed with grief. But no;
"Joe" smiply took up pen and wrote:
"Dear May: So glad! But was he not
The clumsiest you've ever seen?
He was when he proposed to me.
I wish you luck. Yours, JOSEPHINE."

NEVER MIND THE SCOFFER.

Whatever your work and whatever its worth,
No matter how strong and clever,
Someone will sneer it you pause to hear,
And scoff at your best endeavor.
For the target art has a broad expanse,
And wherever you chance to hit it,
Though close be your aim to the bull's eye fame,
There are those who will never admit it.
Though the house applauds while the artist plays
And a smiling world adores him,
Somebody is there with an emuled air
To say that the acting bores him.
For the tower of art has a lofty spire,
With many a stair and landing,
And those who climb seem small oftime
To one at the bottom standing.
So work alone in your chosen niche
With a steady purpose to nerve you;
Let nothing men say who pass your way
Relax your courage or swerve you.
The idle will flock to the Temple of Art
For just the pleasure of gazing,
But climb to the top and do not stop,
Though they may not be all praising.

PILLARS OF PROSPERITY.

New York Herald: The uselessness of Europe's carping at American prosperity and imagining how by some commercial or political league of all Europe it can be checked, is apparent by a reference to the pillars by which that prosperity is supported.

The United States has 7 per cent of the world's area and 5 per cent of its population, and its population is increasing faster than any other country's.

Its total wealth far exceeds that of any other nation—is at least $15,000,000,000 greater than Great Britain's—and it is distributed per capita more evenly than any other nation's.

Its money investment in colleges and schools of all grades and the number of pupils attending them are equal to those of any other two nations combined.

It has 41 per cent of the world's total railroad mileage, and 12,000 more miles than the trackage of all European countries put together.

It produces more gold than any other part of the world save Africa, more silver than any other country save Mexico, and coin annually about one-fifth of all the world's metallic money.

It manufactures every year a greater total product than England, France and Germany combined.

It produces 80 per cent of all the world's cotton, cottonseed and corn, 40 per cent of all its steel and other mineral products, 33 per cent of all its coal, 30 per cent of all its iron and all its grain, and 25 per cent of all its wheat.

These are the pillars of our Temple of Prosperity. Europe could not even shake them.

Educational Value of "Shingling."

Brooklyn Eagle: Vicious tendencies in children, if unchecked, develop alarmingly and the career that begins in mere loaferism and bullying and plaguing of neighbors is liable to end in prison. Corporal punishment may no longer be administered in the institutions of the state, but the law does not reach into the home, and a good spanking just at the right time and place may save a shooting later.

A World's Fair Dividend.

Chicago Tribune: Seven years ago the subscribers to the World's fair got back 10 per cent of their money. In a few months they will get back from 3½ to 4½ per cent more. This will not be a large dividend, but, being unexpected to many of the stockholders, will be peculiarly gratifying to them. The dollar which a man picks up on the street or which is paid him by a debtor from whom he did not expect to get a cent, gives him greater pleasure than several dollars earned by hard work.

Mighty Few of Em' Left.

Brooklyn Eagle: Another of George Washington's servants has died in Georgia. By and by there will not be any of that interesting collection of attendants left and then we will have to gather up the people who waited on Abraham Lincoln when he was a boy.

A Noticeable Difference.

New York Telegram: It was fear of defeat and not principle which impelled Gen. Washington to decline a nomination for a third term, says Representative Charles H. Grosvenor, of Ohio. And then he goes on to show the difference between the Father of His Country and Maj. McKinley, which many persons have noticed.

Trials of a Patriot.

Baltimore Star: From Cleveland comes the announcement that Mayor Johnson is willing to take the nomination for governor. Thus does the sense of duty and patriotic devotion to the public good always overcome the desire to remain an humble citizen and to take a back seat.

Preserving the Harmony.

Baltimore American: We venture to suggest that the Matanzas mule be placed on the reverse of the Sampson medal. This will harmonize with the kicking the bangle will occasion.

More General Than Governor.

Philadelphia Ledger: Luzon still furnishes evidence that if Judge Taft is made governor general he will have most use for the latter part of his title.

Reducing the Supply of Prayer.

Washington Post: King Edward is striving to make a record for economy and has reduced his personal expenses by dispensing with the services of twenty-four chaplains. This will leave him with a force of one dozen and the poor man will not have to do his own praying.

Danger, disease and death follow neglect of the bowels. Use DeWitt's Little Early Risers to regulate them and you will add years to your life and life to your years. Easy to take, never gripe. Max Wirth.

DAILY STORY.

Another Nell Gwynne.

BY DAVID STUART WAUTERS

(Copyright, 1901, Wm. R. Miller.)

Obviously she was waiting for a car. The rain pelted her remorselessly, and its wet fingers drew fantastic figures on the shiny smoothness of her dripping cloak.

Out of all the press of people passing in every direction there appeared never a face she knew, and the loneliness of her lot was but accentuated by the crowds of fellow beings that elbowed her, stranger-fashion, on all sides.

The prospective engagement in the summer stock company at the most popular theater in the great city, which had seemed so easy of attainment from the snug security of her home in a rural district, had not proven forthcoming, and with three days yet to be provided for from her slender purse the outlook into the future was not particularly charming to one of refinement.

For although her youth had been directed largely by the gentle influences of a country home, the more worldly forces of a boarding school education, which were brought to bear for the purpose of fitting her for the not entirely pleasant duties of a "schoolmarm," had done more than enough in giving to the innocent strength of character that necessary polish and apparent savoir faire which had led her to outgrow the opportunities and channels of village life.

And now, nearly three weeks of independence; free, unreasonably hearkening to the voice of unrelned fancy, the splendid air castles of her dreams, overflowing with lovable creatures of her ignorant impulse, were about to totter, as such things must, perhaps to fall, as they always may.

The manager had told her several days ago that he was at a loss to find a piece for her among the many who applied with credentials of former good work as their open sesame to the benefits of his favor.

And of the entire company she had but a speaking acquaintance with Mr. Goddard, the leading man. His interest in her had seemed aroused only when she looked up quickly into his face after that hurried introduction by the over-burdened potentate who reigned in the little office just off the stage.

Goddard had offered his services to her in various ways, none of which she had felt bound to accept, and now she recalled with pleasure the kindly expression only to be seen in the depths of his big brown eyes and the honesty stamped in the lines about his firm mouth.

Would that car never come, she wondered.

And as she wondered there appeared, straight ahead, carefully picking his way across the miry street, his umbrella held low, but tossing this way and that in the strong grasp of the sinful April blast, none other than Mr. Goddard himself—big, masterful, magnetic.

And the selfishness of his look, that was lent so industriously upon the lack of his bare spots where his immaculate shoes should tread, gave way to one of pleasant surprise when he raised his head just in time to prevent a collision with the little lady on the slippery curb.

"Why, good morning!" he exclaimed, extending his gloved hand in the warm clasp of her naked fingers; "and yet that form of salutation seems rather a misnomer on a day like this," he added, holding his umbrella as best he could to protect her from the driving drizzle.

"We judge the day by what it brings forth." She was smiling now, and the music of her look rose in tune to his above the surly growl of traffic around them both.

"Have you been up to Bailey's this morning?" he asked, in seeming rebuke of her irrelevant optimism.

"Yes. I am just from there," she answered, with a show of spirit; "and, as is usual with such men, he asked the impossible of a novice, claiming that he has nothing to offer me than the 'Nell' part, which, he says, Miss Ten Eyck is afraid of. He seemed to think he was holding out to me the prospect of rushing in where angels fear to tread."

"Come back with me to the theater," said Goddard, tentatively; "and perhaps we may arrange to have you win glory from doing that foolish trick."

"Oh, but do you think I could do it? I would have to play opposite you, you know, and I should not like to embarrass you in any way after all your goodness?"

He ignored the question and its accompanying expression, and, as they avoided a dropsical gutter, he helped her to the shelter of an abutting wall.

"Do you know these lines?" He suddenly turned full upon her the power of that look she liked so well.

"My humble desire for even crumbs has led me to memorize every line from the rounded periods of Mr. Charlie Rex to the babbling of my Lady Portsmouth."

"Good!" he returned, authoritatively. "Such industry deserves success, and we will prevail upon old Bailey to give you a rehearsal at once."

She scarcely breathed again until the ordeal was over, and when she left the building later in the afternoon, having accepted Mr. Goddard's invitation to lunch nearby, the clear, damp sunshine appeared to shout her mind with pregnant zeal.

Across the table, in the neat little cafe, his Charles II manners had their effect upon her again, and when he began by complimenting her on the success of her experiment, she caught up one of the oranges from the center dish, and, holding it toward him, asked archly: "If you are pleased with the fruit I offer, sire, surely my trade will feel the benefit of your royal patronage."

Falling in with her humor, momentarily, he smiled.

"True enough, perhaps, but every royalty must heed the clamor of popular opinion, and we are to be King and Nell for this one week, you know. These rehearsals are for but seven days in stock, remember, and it is your Camille next week that I am already trembling for. Not that I think you incapable of doing yourself justice," as she was about to interrupt him, "but because I simply cannot bear to see you besmirch yourself with such a role. And I will not," he added, masterfully. "Pretty squeamish for an actor, perhaps, but he must fall in love as a man, not as a king. So, on next Saturday night upon the stage or not, as you may like, there will be a wedding, if you will."

Her eyes questioned him closely.

"Nell Gwynne, who has today proved herself worthy the faith of a man, is now offered in marriage the hand of Charles II, king of England. What is your answer, Nell?"

She saw the palm stretched toward her and its open frankness compelled her. She placed her hand in his.

"You have done well, sire, and today's work has earned for you a faithful subject," and her lips touched his taut knuckles.

Science and Love.

You say that the rose on the vine
Has sprung from the dust of a star;
That the hills are but atoms—that Chance
Has erected all glories that are;
You tell me the beasts of the field
And the billows that break on the shore
Were fashioned by Time out of stuff
That floated at random before.

O, scientist, have it your way
Concerning the rose and the sea,
But Someone who rules from on high
Made a heart that is beating for me!
Ah, scientist, once I believed
In the doctrine you preach, but I know
Since her eyes have looked up into mine
That only God fashioned her so.

THE DAKOTAS.

The Northern Pacific Road Willing to Help Farmers.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—News has been received here that the agents of the Northern Pacific railroad are authorized to purchase cattle and sheep in Montana and deliver them to the farmers on a share basis. The new plan will be especially appreciated by the Russian, Swedish and Norwegian homeseekers who have come into this state in recent years and taken up cairns. Stock is given to them, the owners taking from them one-third to one-half the net profits as their share and interest on the original investment. The farmers are to be allowed to utilize the stock in whatever way leads to the most profit and are given a chance to start herds of cattle and sheep of their own.

One of the most severe storms of the wear struck this place about 4 o'clock Sunday morning. Rain fell in torrents. The sewers were unable to carry off the water, which stood to the depth of nearly a foot in the streets for some time. The precipitation amounted to nearly two inches.

The grand jury in the case of the state vs. Joseph Bassanella heard a part of the testimony Friday evening and the last witness was examined and the addresses made before noon Saturday. Within thirty minutes the jurors returned with a verdict for imprisonment for life. There were but two ballots, the first being ten for life sentence and two for hanging.

Jamestown—Judge Lauder has decided to dismiss the case brought against State's Attorney Peter M. Mattson, of Eddy county. Evidence was submitted a week ago and the judge has had the matter under consideration since. The evidence against Mattson was given almost wholly by men interested in the gambling houses and blind pigs. The trouble is really the outcome of a political row in Eddy county two years ago. Mattson issued a challenge a few weeks ago to his enemies to either verify their charges or quit talking.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen—Having signally failed with the referendum, the Pop-socialist leaders of the state, at Tacoma Park, the latter part of the present month, will endeavor to arouse their followers to the indorsement and submission of several laws through the medium of the initiative. Just what laws will be proposed is not disclosed, but it is stated positively that a number are in process of incubation.

Yankton—The quiet of this year's routine on College hill was broken Thursday night by several college lads out for "a time." The ladies' dormitory was entered at midnight, and a cord of wood thrown about. The noise, coming at the dead of night, when all were peacefully slumbering, was too much for some, and several of the young ladies were prostrated from fright and have been ill since. The boys were apprehended, and at the faculty meeting six were expelled. Two of these were to have graduated. Excitement over the affair is running high in college circles.

Deadwood—Baptiste Pourrier, the famous Indian scout in the early history of the Black Hills, and known then as "Big Bat," has been in Deadwood the past few days after an absence of nearly twenty-five years, and has been renewing old acquaintances. In 1876, "Big Bat" was scout with Gen. Crook in the battle of the Rosebud, and by a little timely advice, saved the command from annihilation. The route of retreat which was taken by the Indians, led down into the Rosebud canyon, which was alive with the reds, waiting to ambush Crook's command. Pourrier advised the general to alter his plans, which he did, and saved the command from destruction. "Big Bat" will be in Deadwood during the carnival week in July.

Spearfish—All the streams in the hills are being swelled by the continuous rains and bridges in many places have been washed away. Great damage has been done to the Wyoming & Missouri River railroad, between Belle Fourche and Aladdin, and it will require several thousand dollars to repair damages. The Belle Fourche river is nine feet higher than it has been in the past ten years, and Bay creek is almost three times its natural size. Many farmers living along the creek are expecting a washout. John Harney, mail carrier between this city and Belle Fourche, lost his team of horses in Bay creek Saturday by attempting to cross, and barely escaped losing his life. The mail sacks were destroyed.

IN MICHIGAN.

Cocaine a Successful Anaesthetic For Operation For Appendicitis.

Hancock—Miss Mary Prouleaux, of West Hancock, a little orphan girl, aged 14 years, who has been a patient at the St. Joseph hospital for some weeks past, can truthfully say that she is the first person in the copper country who ever successfully underwent an operation for appendicitis without the use of any anaesthetic other than cocaine injected into the spinal column. This is absolutely the first time that cocaine has ever been used in Houghton county as the sole anaesthetic under similar conditions for such an operation.

Houghton—Joseph Messier, of Wells & Messler, foundrymen at Kenosha, Wis., a brother of George Messier, who, while insane, struck down a fellow workman with a hammer, arrived and through the advice of his attorney, J. F. Hambitzer, the brother consented to the insane man being sent to Newberry for treatment. Drs. Wheeler and Scott examined the unfortunate one yesterday and pronounced it a case of acute mania. The man leaves a wife and two small children who are well provided for by the previous care of the husband.

Norway—A. J. Roeck, a merchant of Norway, fell from a tree while in quest of an eagle's nest and received serious injuries. Roeck left home early in the morning and as he did not return when expected a searching party was sent out. They found the man so seriously hurt that he could not walk. He had gone about a mile from the scene of the accident, crawling on his hands and knees.

Iron Mountain—While W. J. Moyle an Iron Mountain saloonkeeper, was enjoying a Sunday afternoon siesta, an unknown man entered the saloon and not seeing anyone around, stepped behind the bar and helped himself to $18. About this time Mrs. Moyle happened along and seeing the stranger, gave the alarm, which led to the capture of the thief and the recovery of the money.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

R. M. Kline, a well-known stockman, of Roswell, N. M., shot and dangerously wounded Marshal Maddox and probably fatally wounded the landlady with whom Mrs. Kline was living, who attempted to interfere. Kline then committed suicide. He was crazed by jealousy, his wife having deserted him.

President Ben Johnson, of the American Baseball league, in an interview, said that Hugh Jennings must play with the Philadelphia club if he plays in the American league.

Edward Whitmore, 35 years of age, a fireman on a Minnesota Transfer engine, was killed Sunday, the engine on which he was working jumping the track. The engineer jumped out of the cab and saved himself.

The chocolate factory of Runkel Brog. was destroyed by fire early Sunday at New York. One of the firm estimates the loss at $250,000, which is largely covered by insurance. The factory employed 150 hands.

C. W. Leatherbee's lumber yard at Boston was burned about 1 o'clock Sunday morning and is probably a total loss. It is though there were between 2,000,000 and 2,000,000 feet of dressed lumber, nearly all of which was destroyed.

Gen. William Montgomery Gardner, a veteran of the Mexican and civil wars, died at Memphis Sunday night, aged 78.

While out rowing in Small lake, near St. Paul, the boat in which Thomas P. Cronin and Miss Louisa Elwinger were, was capsized. Cronin was drowned, but the young lady saved herself by clinging to the bottom of the boat. The water was only three feet deep and Cronin's body was found with his head stuck in the muddy bottom of the lake.

The butchers' strike at San Francisco was formally ended Sunday. The striking journeymen butchers decided to withdraw their demand that a union card should be displayed in all retail shops.

A laborer known as "Charlie the wood chopper," stabbed and killed George W. Samson, a fellow laborer, and severely wounded Jonas Hallstrom, his employer, during a quarrel on a ranch near Ollala, Wash. A posse of ranchers are scouring the district for Charlie and threats of lynching are being made.

George Harris, a negro, was hanged by a mob in the northern part of Limestone county, Alabama, Saturday night. Harris was suspected of burning the barn of the farmer for whom he worked, having a grievance against a fellow farm hand who had stock housed in the barn destroyed.

READY AT BUFFALO

Minnesota Building Practically Completed For the Dedication.

Ceremonies to Take Place In the Temple of Music.

Procession Will Be Headed By Mexican National Band.

Buffalo, June 17.—Everything is in readiness for the formal dedication of the Minnesota building tomorrow. Capt. Alexander McDougall of Duluth, chairman of the Minnesota commission to the Pan-American exposition, and H. P. Hall, of St. Paul, secretary of the same body, arrived in Buffalo Saturday to complete the arrangements. Messrs. McDougall and Hall, with James McMillen, superintendent of the Minnesota exhibits on the ground, promptly inspected the Minnesota building and received the assurances of the contractors that the structure would be completed for the dedication day. The carpenters finished their work Saturday evening and the painters will be out by tonight.

The dedication ceremonies will take place in the temple of music, and, like fashionable weddings, they take place at high noon. The Pan-American officials, prominent Minnesota citizens and distinguished visitors who may be in the city will be among the invited guests. Mayor Diehl and other city officials will also be asked to attend. After the ceremonies in the temple of music, an adjournment will be taken to the Minnesota building, where, after sufficient time to inspect the edifice has been allowed, luncheon will be served. The guests at the building will be received by Messrs. Hall and McDougall, Superintendent McMillan, Assistant Superintendent J. E. Cooley, in charge of horticulture, agriculture and floriculture, and Capt. A. P. Woods, superintendent of Minnesota's mineral exhibit.

The adjournment from the temple of music to the Minnesota building will be taken in a body. The procession will be headed by the Mexican National band and the battalion of the crack First Infantry of Minnesota, which will encamp on the exposition grounds until June 22. The battalion will act as an escort to Governor Van Sant in the parade to the Minnesota building.

Governor Van Sant and a distinguished official party, and the members of the Minnesota Editorial association, arrived this morning. It is a very large party, every section of the state, almost every town where a newspaper is published, being represented. The party will reach St. Paul on the return trip next Monday. Governor Van Sant is accompanied by Mrs. Van Sant and a niece. The members of his official party are: Brig. Gen. A. A. Ames, Brig. Gen. S. S. Smith, Col. A. N. Odell, Col. Gustav Widell and wife, Col. Ira W. Bouck and wife, Col. C. L. West and daughter, Col. John Pengilly, wife and daughter, Col. E. D. Evans, Col. J. G. Miller, Col. Robert Seng, Col. James Elwin, Col. E. H. Hobe, Col. F. W. Betz, Maj. M. M. Gasser, Maj. J. C. Donovan, Maj. Hugh Longstaff, Maj. J. C. Jensen, Senator Moses E. Clapp, O. D. Kinney, of Duluth, and Peter E. Hanson, secretary of state.

PERFECTED.

Scheme For Community of Interests Will Be Realized.

Chicago, June 17.—The Tribune tomorrow says:

That the Harriman combine has secured control of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and that a composite agreement has been made to perfect a community of interests among roads with tracks enough to twice belt the globe is generally accepted in railroad circles.

The sudden departure of Mr. Harriman for the East, accompanied by President J. J. Mitchell, of the Illinois Trust & Savings bank, was announced in support of the statement that Mr. Mitchell and other bankers would furnish the funds for the completion of the Milwaukee & St. Paul transfer.

The meeting of Western officials with Mr. Harriman is believed to have been the result of the recent controversy over the control of the Northern Pacific, which drove short holders to cover at $1,000 a share. A few small roads out of Chicago are not parties to the agreement, but it is understood they will consent to do anything that will maintain rates and end the squabble that has been kept up in the past among the various Western lines.

It was asserted tonight that all the roads West, Northwest and Southwest from Chicago to the Pacific coast will be controlled in future by the following interests:

Lines west of Chicago to the Pacific coast, by Harriman, Kuhn, Loeb & Company, and the Rockefellers.

Lines Northwest from Chicago, by Hill and Morgan.

Lines Southwest from St. Louis, by Gould and the Rockefellers.

Lines Southwest from Chicago, by the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, to which will be added before long the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific.

J. P. Morgan and E. H. Harriman, however, will be the real dictators and direct the policy to be pursued by these combinations, thus establishing the "community of interests," which has been the dream of Mr. Morgan.

There is interested in the Harriman mileage the following: (Figures are to June 30, 1900.)

ENGLAND'S TROUBLES.

India Orders Material In Germany and Austria.

New York, June 17.—The London correspondent of the Tribune says that following on Sir Alfred Hickman's so-called revelations with regard to the use of American locomotives on Indian and Burmese railroads, another member of parliament, Sir Charles Gayser, has discovered that wheels, axles and other material for these railroads have been ordered from Krupp, in Essen, Germany, and that rolling stock has been ordered in Austria. He intends to put a question to Lord George Hamilton on this subject.

A Good Cough Medicine.

It speaks well for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy when druggists use it in their own families in preference to any other. "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the past five years with complete satisfaction to myself and customers," says Druggist J. Goldsmith, Van Etten, N. Y. "I have always used it in my own family both for ordinary coughs and colds and for the cough following la grippe, and find it very efficacious." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

Poisoned by Absorption

POISON OAK, POISON IVY, BARBER'S ITCH, LEAD AND BRASS POISONING, ETC.

Through the pores of the skin many poisons are absorbed into the blood, deranging the circulation and affecting the constitution as quickly and seriously as those generated within the system. Just under the skin are innumerable hair-like blood vessels, and connecting these with the skin are millions of small tubes or glands, through which the poison is conveyed to the blood system. During the spring and summer, while the skin is most active and the pores well open, we are much more liable to be affected by Poison Oak and Ivy and other dangerous plants. Workers in brass, copper, lead and zinc have their health impaired and the blood supply poisoned through the absorption of fine particles of these metals and the acids used in polishing and cleaning them. Inhaling the fumes of lead give painters that pallid, waxy appearance of the skin. Barber's Itch is another disease that reaches the blood through the skin, and is a most obstinate one when it becomes firmly fixed in the system. After the poison has reached the blood and been disseminated throughout the system it is too late to resort to local applications. In many cases the blood is affected simultaneously with the appearance of the rash or eruption on the skin, and all efforts should be directed to the purification and building up of the blood. Ugly eruptions and sores will continue to break out in spite of salves, washes, soaps or other external treatment.

S. S. S. is especially recommended for poisons of this character. So completely does it destroy the effects of the Oak and Ivy that there is no possibility of its reappearance, and it is equally as efficacious in brass or lead poisoning or Barber's Itch; building up and purifying the blood and driving out of the circulation impurities of every kind, and removing every blemish, sore or eruption from the skin. There is no substitute for S. S. S.; it is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known, and the safest and best in all constitutional or blood diseases.

Our Medical Consultation Department.—If you desire any special information or advice about your case, write our physicians, explaining your condition, and they will carefully consider what you have to say and you will receive a prompt reply. Our physicians have made a study of blood and skin diseases, and you can have the benefit of their experience and skill without any cost to you whatever. Don't hesitate to write fully about yourself, as nothing you say goes beyond our office. We have a very interesting book on Blood and Skin Diseases, which we will be glad to mail free.

FIERCE TORNADO

Visited South Dakota Doing a Great Amount of Damage.

An Entire Family Was Badly Cut and Mangled.

Several Farmers Lose Houses, Barns, Machinery and Stock.

Huron, S. D., June 17.—Dr. Foxton returned from the scene of Saturday evening's tornado in the extreme southeast corner of the country, thirty miles from this city. He reports finding a sad condition of affairs in the path of the storm.

The first house destroyed was that of Mr. McCormack. It was a 2-story structure twenty-four feet square, strongly built and comfortably furnished. The family consisted of Mr. McCormack and wife and three children, all of whom were seriously injured.

The storm was preceded by a heavy downpour of rain and dense darkness. There was no indication of a tornado till a balloon-shaped cloud suddenly formed, and in an instant the McCormack house with the entire family was picked up and carried several rods, then tested into a kindling. So complete was the destruction that a wagon load of fragments could not be gathered up.

The family was thrown against a barbed wire fence and all were fearfully cut and mangled. Mrs. McCormack and the 7-year-old son were most severely injured; the child cannot live and the mother is in a critical condition. Mr. McCormack and the other children, both girls, are seriously hurt; Mr. McCormack's collar bone is broken and he is badly cut about the head, while the two daughters sustained internal injuries that may prove fatal. Physicians give little hope of saving more than two of the five injured at the McCormack home.

Besides the loss of the dwelling and all its contents, all the stock sheds, outbuildings and machinery on the farm are destroyed. A mowing machine and wagon were carried from the McCormack farm and deposited half a mile away. Every spoke was broken from the wheels of the wagon and the mower was bent and twisted into a shapeless mass, the woodwork being almost entirely torn away.

Nearly two hours elapsed before neighbors discovered the whereabouts of the McCormack family. When found they were unconscious and covered with mud. The rain fell in torrents and a heavy wind continued long after the cyclone had disappeared. The unfortunate family were taken to the farm house of Pat Finlay and physicians sent for and where they are now being cared for.

A school house a half mile from the McCormack home was totally destroyed. Scarcely a board two feet long can be found. The residence of Mr. Gardner, five miles from McCormack's, was next lifted by the storm and completely destroyed. Mr. Gardner was somewhat injured, but his wife was severely hurt. Their loss includes about all their household goods and much farm machinery.

From this place the third house to be struck was that of the Palmer farm, where one person was seriously hurt and much property destroyed. The Gillispie home was partially destroyed and two persons more or less injured, one man having his leg broken.

Other farmers suffered losses and many cattle and horses were killed by lightning. The rainfall is estimated at about three inches in two hours' time.

DISAGREED.

Third Trial of Dr. Kennedy Proves of No Avail.

New York, June 17.—The twelve men, who since 12:15 o'clock Saturday afternoon, at the conclusion of the judge's charge considered the evidence in the third trial of Dr. Samuel J. Kennedy for the murder of "Dolly" Reynolds, reported to Judge Newburger, at 10:25 o'clock Sunday morning, that they were unable to agree on a verdict. The judge at once discharged the jury from further service and remanded the prisoner to the Tombs. When the foreman of the jury announced the inability to agree, Dr. Kennedy seemed unable to comprehend the situation. Then the tears came to his eyes and his face showed the effort he was making to control himself and crush his disappointment. But the smile that had been marked throughout most of the trial came back and grew brighter as he caught thee ye of Mr. Moore, his attorney.

Immediately after the adjournment of court the attorneys for the defense saw Judge Newburger in regard to their next step in behalf of Dr. Kennedy. The judge said that they should see District Attorney Philbin as to whether he would agree upon the course to be pursued. He said that he (the judge) would be out of town Monday, but that they could appear before him on Tuesday to make whatever motion they desired.

Mr. Moore will ask District Attorney Philbin to move the quashing of the indictment, and if the latter does not take this step to free Dr. Kennedy, Mr. Moore himself will make that motion, arguing that the state has shown twice its inability to convict his client of the charge named, and claim that this was tantamount to an acquittal, and ought to end the case.

"On the first ballot taken the six who were willing to vote in advance of a discussion of the case stood: For acquittal, 2; for conviction of murder in the first degree, 3; for a second degree 1. The other six put in blanks. The first formal battle resulted: For acquittal, 6; for conviction, 6. The next ballot stood: For acquittal, 7; for conviction, 5. Thus the jury stood until the sixth ballot was reached, when the result was: For acquittal, 8; for conviction, 4, and four more ballots resulted the same way, ten in all being taken.

FILIPINO BANDITS

Many of Them Convicted of Murder and Other Crimes.

Members of Oath-Bound Band Known as Sandatahans.

Base Treachery of Native Officials Brought to Light.

Washington, June 11.—A Philippine mail brings to the war department the records in eleven cases wherein Filipinos were tried by military commissions on charges, including murder, rape, kidnaping, assault and battery, burglary and violation of the rules of war.

An especially notable case arose out of the operations of a famous oath-bound band of Filipinos, called the society of the "Sandatahans." The principal officers of this society, next to a triumvirate of chiefs, are a chief executioner and assistants, and a requisite number of grave diggers, who participate in the self-appointed work of the band. The leaders select their victim, capture and carry him away in the night to a secret rendezvous, on a sandy beach covered with very tall grass, where the diggers already have prepared the grave. Here, in the presence of the assembled band, helpless men and women from time to time have been stabbed to death and tossed into the graves. The members of the band then disperse and trust to the rise and fall of the nearby waters to hide the evidence of their ghastly work. Ten members of the band, including two of the chiefs, were tried before a military commission, and eight of them were sentenced to be hanged. In approving the sentences, Gen. MacArthur says:

"To the reviewing judge it is evident that there can be no hope of peace for the Filipino people, nor security for their lives and property, until they shall learn to unite against all bands of murderers and assassins, under whatever names they shall assume, and come to the assistance of the officers of the law in their determination to bring them all to justice.

In another case an armed band of about twenty-five Filipinos carried away nine of the inhabitants of the barrio of Casanthulan, and by repeated blows from the butts of their rifles, drove them to the presidencia of Cabaruan. Here all hands drank freely of vino kinovo, and the prisoners were made drunk. Then, according to the testimony of two of the prisoners who escaped, the other seven were led off in the direction of a grove of trees, where, two days later, their beheaded bodies were discovered. The members of the band who were captured received sentences of death in some cases, and imprisonment at hard labor for varying terms in others.

Four native policemen who had been sent to gather wood for a detachment of American troops were set upon, one of their number was killed and another lost his arm. A member of the band which attacked them was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment.

A native, named Miranda, was tried on four charges. A band under his leadership ambushed, robbed and killed two native brothers. Later the accused led his band against the country house of a native, set it afire, looted its contents and carried off into the fields three daughters of the owner, robbing them of their jewelry. Three days later his band attacked the town residence of the same native and thoroughly sacked it. His last crime was the murder of a native, named Abelino, who frequented a gambling house kept by his inamorita, for the sole reason that Abelino had not paid a gambling debt. Miranda was sentenced to be hanged. Three natives were tried, charged with the murder of Private Henry Shafer, Company L, Seventeenth infantry. They were sentenced to be hanged, but this was commuted by Gen. MacArthur, in the case of two of them, to imprisonment for life, and in the case of the other to imprisonment for twenty years.

Jose Ballgod, the president-elect of the Pueblo of Tuao under the system established by the American government, while exercising the functions of his office, became cognizant of the organization of a band in a neighboring barrio for the purpose of attacking the small garrison of nineteen American soldiers stationed at Tuao. He traitorously cooperated with the leader of the band, advised him as to the most auspicious time to make an attack, intercepted a messenger sent to warn the Americans, and otherwise treacherously abused the trust of his office. He was sentenced to be confined at hard labor for twenty years.

Severino De Guia, vice president of Bacoor, while returning in a carromata (a native vehicle) from San Nicholas, Cavite province, was set upon by a native band. They struck the coachman senseless, and carried off the vice president and his two young sons, who were with him at the time. Some distance off they shot him dead before the eyes of his children and flung his body in a pile of rocks. A member of the band who was captured was sentenced to be hanged.

Three natives were tried jointly on a charge of being a part of an armed band of robbers which forced an entrance into the home of a native, robbed it of money, jewelry and other valuables, forced the inmates to come from the house, bound and maltreated the men, and brutally assaulted the women. Two of them were sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor for twenty years and the other to imprisonment at hard labor for a term of ten years.

HIS LIFE SAVED

By Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"I am sure that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at one time saved my life," says A. E. Lafalette, of Gregory Landing, Clark county, Missouri. "I was in such bad shape that the doctors said I could not live. When I was at the ebb, one of my neighbors brought in a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and I took it and got instant relief. I soon got up and around. That was nine years ago and I am still in good health. Since then that medicine has always been in my house and always will be. It is the best on earth." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

ORDER FOR HEARING PROOF OF FOREIGN WILL.—State of Minnesota County of St. Louis—ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, June 3rd, 1901.

In the matter of the estate of William D. B. James, deceased:

Whereas, certain writings purporting to be duly authenticated copies of the last will and testament of William D. B. Janes, late of the city of Montreal, province of Quebec, Canada, deceased, and the probate thereof in the superior court for the province of Quebec, in the district of Montreal, Canada, have been delivered to this court;

And whereas, Mary C. Janes has filed therewith her petition, representing among other things that said William D. B. Janes lately died in said city of Montreal, province of Quebec, Canada, testate, possessed of certain real estate situated in said county of St. Louis and that said petitioner is the executrix named in the last will and testament of said William D. B. Janes and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate and that letters testamentary be to said Mary C. Janes issued hereon;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this court, at the probate office in said county, on Wednesday, the 26th day of June, A. D. 1901, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at the city of Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., the 3rd day of June, A. D. 1901.

By the Court,
W. G. BONHAM,
Judge of Probate.

(Seal Probate Court, St. Louis County, Minn.)
Duluth Evening Herald, June-3-10-17-1901.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the payment of ten hundred eighty-four dollars, which is claimed to be due at this date upon a mortgage made by W. D. B. Janes to Neil McLachlan, dated March 30th, 1891, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds, of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on April 15th, 1891, at 2:40 o'clock p. m., in Book 71 of mortgages, on page 276; which mortgage was thereafter duly assigned by said mortgagee to W. M. Wells and E. Wells, and subsequently by them to the undersigned James F. Jackson, by written assignments heretofore duly recorded. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that pursuant to statute and by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage and situate in said county, to-wit:

Lot two (2), of section eight (8), and lot five (5), of section nine (9), in township fifty-two (52), north of range fourteen (14) west, which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said county at the front door of the county court house, in Duluth, Minnesota, on Wednesday, the 17th day of July, 1901, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest and thirty dollars attorney's fee as therein provided and the disbursements herein.

SLIGHT CHANGE

Wheat Fluctuates Somewhat But Closes With Little Change.

Cables Were Higher and the Northwest Receipts Light.

Decrease In World's Shipments and Amount on Passage.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 17.—The wheat market opened steady this morning and advanced on bullish news. The cables showed a better tone Liverpool closing unchanged to 3d higher. There was a decrease of 1,136,000 bus in the amount of wheat on passage and the world's shipments also showed a decrease being 8,135,000 bus for the week, against 10,829,000 bus the previous week. From Kansas came reports of dry weather and crop damage in consequence. The visible supply showed a decrease of 162,000 bus. The St. Louis crowd were lively buyers too and ran the shorts to cover. Later the market turned weak and there was heavy selling at Chicago.

The weather in the Northwest is getting pretty wet and there is now fear of too much rain where there was a short time ago a fear of drouth. Advices have been received from the Red River valley that early sown wheat will be heading out in ten days or so.

Primary receipts of wheat were 682,070 bus, last year 872,068. Shipments 676,000, last year 414,000.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 396 cars, against 561 last week and 699 last year. Chicago receipts, 74 cars, 6 of contract grade.

Trading in futures was dull on the Duluth board. July wheat opened ¼c off at 69½c, advanced to 69⅝c at 10:55, and declined steadily to 69¼c at 12:40 and closed at 69¼c, a decline of ⅜c. Chicago declined ¼c and Minneapolis closed practically unchanged. The changes in September in all markets were less than in July.

Cash sales of wheat were 50,000 bus at July price.

The flax options were weaker and cash flax stronger. The latter closed 3c up. September closed ½c off and October ¾c off. Other coarse grains were unchanged in price.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 72¾c; to arrive, 72½c; September, 69¼c; July, 72½c. No. 1 northern, cash, 68½c; to arrive, 69¼c; September, 68¼c; July, 69½c. No. 2 northern, 64⅝c; No. 3 spring, 60⅜c.

Oats, 27¼@27c; rye, 47½c; flax, cash, $1.75; to arrive $1.75; September, $1.30¼; September northwestern, $1.31½; October, $1.27⅜.

Shipments—Wheat, 120,958 bus; corn, 118,000 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Held Steady From Various Causes.

Chicago, June 17.—Improved cables, a decrease in the world's shipments and the quantity on passages and light Northwest receipts induced a steady opening in wheat today. July opened unchanged to ⅛c lower, at 70¼ to 70½c, declined to 70¼@¼c and on buying for export, rallied to 70⅝@½c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 396 cars, against 561 a week ago, and 699 last year. Local receipts were 74 cars, 6 of contract grade.

After touching 70½c July eased off to 69¾c. Report of crop damage in Europe caused a rally, and the market closed steady, ¼c lower at 70¼c.

Dullness ruled in the corn pit. July opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 43⅝@43½c, declined to 42⅞c and rallied on covering to 43¼c. Receipts were 261 cars, 16 of contract grade.

Corn on liquidation. July fell to 42¾c, but rallied on buying by the elevator brokers to 43⅛@¼c, closing fairly steady down at 43⅛c.

Oats were heavy. July opened ¼@¼c up at 28⅜c, and slumped to 27¾. Receipts were 164 cars.

Provisions were easier on lower hogs. July pork opened 5c down at $14.70, and declined to $14.62½. July ribs opened 5c lower at $8.00. July lard was not quoted.

Closing: Wheat, June, 69¾c; July, 70¼c; September, 68¾c. Corn, June, 42¾c; July, 43⅛c; September, 44⅛@¼c. Oats, June, 28c; July, 28⅜c; September, 26½c. MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, June 17.—The tone of the wheat market has been rather heavy. While there has been no great selling pressure the buying is scattered and unimportant. Weather continues favorable both for making and harvesting the crop. So far as domestic conditions are concerned, the situation is bearish and the feeling is weak. Foreign markets are fairly steady.

Reports from the French crop are unfavorable and the continent seems accumulating wheat in this market. Reports come from Russian crop less favorable. These conditions give a check to the otherwise bearish feeling. Shipments 670,000 against 414,000.

Weather continues favorable for the corn crop. Corn has been manipulated so long and so successfully that holders are hopeful of further manipulation and short sellers are timid. With continued favorable weather for the crop we see very little that is bullish in the situation.

The oats market was quiet and steady and in a speculative way much in the same position as corn. The short sellers are afraid of manipulation.

Provisions were a shade easier. Receipts of hogs at primary markets, 61,000 against 48,000. The market is dull and general tone steady. Shipments of meat 1,882,000 against 2,989,000; lard 1,247,000 against 1,903,000.

Note—The average maximum and minimum temperatures and the average rainfall are made up at each center from the actual number of reports received. The "state of weather" is that prevailing at time of observation.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

At the Opening and St. Paul Led the Advance.

A Violent Rise of Five Points In Illinois Central.

Trading Animated During the Rise But Became Slack.

New York, June 17.—St. Paul led the advances in a strong market at the opening. There were 15,000 shares of that stock changed hands at 181½ to 184, compared with 184¾ on Saturday. There were gains of 1 to 1½ besides among the grangers, Pacifics, Southwesterns, trunk lines, coalers and leading industrials. The dealings were large and well distributed and there were no exceptions to the higher prices.

The almost invariable setback after a high opening on a Monday was less than usual, and did not reach a point, except in Tennessee Coal, and was principally in stocks which made exceptional gains at the opening. Steady absorption of St. Paul practically sustained the market, the stock rising quickly after every decline and reaching 183¾. Gains of 2 or more points were made here and there and Colorado Fuel gained 5⅜ to 133½. Northwestern and the preferred 2⅝. The market was quieter and prices generally were below the best at 11 o'clock, but St. Paul and Union Pacific were firm.

Except in isolated cases prices tended downward, the declines reaching 1 point and over in some of the high-priced stocks. The large gold engagements and heaving selling of United States Steel induced realizing and short selling by the professionals. Trading had been very animated while prices were rising, but business contracted generally when the turn was reached. Coal and Iron and Republic Steel were exceptionally strong, the former ruling 7½ above last week and the latter 3½. Colorado Fuel on the other hand fell 4½ from the best. North American and Union Bag also made large gains. Illinois Central alone of the railroad list advanced 1¼. Bonds were irregular.

A violent rise of nearly 5 points in Illinois Central and an improvement of 1⅜ in Atchison and 1½ in the preferred were withstanding exhaustion and had little effect on the general market. Missouri Pacific rallied quite strongly, but the speculation in general was spotty. The Chicago Terminal Transit stocks, the Wisconsin Central stocks and Lackawanna rose from 2 to 3 points and St. Paul reacted to below 184.

There were belated upward movements in American Cotton Oil of 4¾, North American 4¾, New York, Chicago & St. Louis 2, and the preferred 3. Tennessee Coal yielded 4, St. Paul 2⅞ and American Tobacco 2⅝. There were many declines of from 1 to 2 points from the best. Amalgamated Copper spurted to 130 in the late dealings and the market hardened moderately in response. The closing was irregular.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 17.—Cotton opened firm 4 to 7 points higher, and ruled steady on room buying, support from the South and light investment buying. Much better English cables than expected, wet weather news from the South Atlantic states and reassuring cotton goods reports combined to tone up the market.

Cotton spot closed dull ⅛ higher; mid ups 8½; mid gulf, 8⅝; sales, 1900 bales.

Cotton futures closed steady. June, 824; July, 828; August, 772; Sept., 746; Oct., 728; Nov., 733; Dec., 736; Jan., 739; Feb., 739; March, 742.

BIT OF BRONZE.

Speaks For the Gallant Act of Trooper.

Thomas Cruse, quartermaster's department, United States army, got another step the other day and once more changed the little image in his shoulder strap, says the Chicago Record-Herald. Col. Cruse has been a long time in the staff department, which has to do with army mules, tents, canteens and haversacks. When he first left the line for the staff friends said he couldn't stand it, but when a man has fought more than most men and licked all that he fought, it's not overhard to urge him to take the soft side of a pillow. They say in the army today that Tom Cruse can't pick up a sample shovel that some contractor has submitted for inspection without coming to an "advance carbine" with it and later trying to cock the thing. Cruse for years was an officer in the Sixth cavalry. Out at Fort Sheridan, the other day, a retired enlisted man who had served with Cruse some years ago, told the story of how the quartermaster officer won the little bit of bronze, which on certain occasions he wears pinned to his blouse.

In the early summer of 1882 Cruse was a second lieutenant in K troop of the Sixth cavalry. He was out scouting after a raiding band of Apaches down in the very hottest part of Arizona. The command had trailed along till it came to the rocky basin known as the Big Dry Wash. Cruse had something less than a corporal's guard with him. The little band had not seen a sign of an Indian since it set out, but then Apaches are not given to making signs nor do they wait for formal introductions before extending warm greetings to those who would cross the threshold of their rocky fastnesses. Beyond the basin of the Big Dry Wash was a natural fortification of rocks. Cruse sent a man by the right flank to take a peep behind the bowlders before the command, the trooper returned and reported there was nothing there. Then the little command pushed down into the basin and hell opened from behind the rocks to their front. The fire was concentrated and terrific. Two of the six saddles were emptied and the mounted command gave way and sought the shelter of the rocks to the rear. Under the thumping hail of bullets, Cruse lifted a wounded trooper to his saddle and bore him back to shelter, where the men dismounted and took what count they could of their hidden enemy across the basin.

It was supposed that the second trooper who had fallen in the open was dead. While looking across the waste between him and the ambushed savages Cruse saw the fallen trooper move. Then there happened one of those things which a single line in the medal of honor list tells about, but to which a whole volume cannot do justice. Cruse, carbine in hand, stood straight up, a fair and easy mark for a bullet. A tawny face showed beyond and an eye glanced along a rifle barrel. Before the weapon spoke Cruse's carbine sent a bullet straight through the Apache's head. Then he rounded the rock in front and strode across the open toward the wounded soldier. At every third stride he fired. He was one of the crack shots of the army and the bullets scarred the rocks close to the heads of the lurking reds. They had seen their comrade's head split clean at 150 yards. They dared not expose themselves enough to take careful aim, but they answered the officer's carbine's challenge with a scattering volley. He reached the moaning trooper. Behind him had come two of his men. "Pick him up, boys," said Cruse, "and I'll cover the retreat." He stood there facing the enemy's lurking place. A savage braver than the rest stood up and fired. The bullet scratched Cruse's arm, but an ounce of lead crashed into the Apache's head. Cruse walked backward, while behind him his two devoted men bore their stricken fellow. Bullets tore up the sand, but the magnificent nerve and courage of the soldier who sent back true a shot for every volley palsied the Apaches' aim.

Back to their breast works the soldiers went with their burden. Cruse standing erect and sending one last shot before sinking to cover. Then reinforcements came and eighteen savages were put to flight. Today it is nothing but two cents' worth of bronze and a bit of ribbon that reminds one of the galantry on that July day in the basin of the Big Dry Wash.

HE CAUGHT 'EM.

"I was up in Mississippi a short while ago," remarked a gentleman at the Grunewald yesterday to the New Orleans Times-Democrat, "and with a party of friends went out a short distance from the little town to a negro church, where a protracted meeting was being held by a negro evangelist, who was making the rounds in that section of the country. He was a big, black fellow, and wore the garb usually worn by the men of his color who scramble up into the pulpit. I had never attended a negro church service conducted by a negro preacher, so the event announced that he was badly in need of $20 and ,while it was a small amount, the need of it greatly embarrassed him, and he hoped the congregation would help him out. The request staggered his audience. He was quick to discover this, so he told the brethren that he certainly needed $10, dropping to the amount without any sort of explanation. The audience was still paralyzed and made no response. 'I sho must have that $5,' he said, still making no explanation of his slide from the twenty dollar mark. The audience warmed up to the extent of about $1.60. The preacher whispered to the negro who held the hat, and then turning to the audience he said: 'Brother Jones gives an extra dollar. Who'll match him?' The vernacular caught his audience, and Brother Jones was matched and 'faded' from various quarters, and the negro must have secured more than he asked for originally, and it was all due to the fact that he used a gaming expression and stirred up the gaming spirit of his auditors."

NEWS OF THE LAKES

North Star Will Be Docked at Buffalo For Examination.

Line Boats Are Taking Nearly All the Chicago Grain.

Two Cargoes For Every Vessel on Market at Cleveland.

Detroit, June 17.—(Special to the Herald.)—The steamer North Star, which struck a rock at the Canadian Soo on her way down, arrived here today with her forward compartments full of water. A part of her cargo has been removed and she will proceed to Buffalo, where she will be docked for an examination.

LINE BOATS TAKING GRAIN.

Chicago, June 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The line boats are taking from 75 to 90 per cent of the grain offered on change and there were more line agents in vesselmen's aisle this morning than vessel brokers. Rates are 1⅞ and 1½ cents on corn to Buffalo, according to loads and elevators.

BOATS ARE SCARCE.

Cleveland, June 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Coal shippers expected more boats for Lake Michigan with the opening of another week, but they are not much better off than they have been for the past two weeks at both Ashtabula and the head of the lakes. Two cargoes are offered for every vessel on the market.

PRICES THAT WERE PAID.

It is said that $705,000 was paid in all for the four Whitney steamers purchased a few days ago by J. C. Gilchrist and associates of

RECRUITING

Party of Naval Officials Open Temporary Office Here.

A recruiting party representing the United States navy, is in the city. The detail is from the receiving ship Vermont, now at the navy yard in Brooklyn. An office has been opened in the federal building and recruits will be received until Saturday. Two men enlisted as landsmen today and one aspirant was rejected. Men for all branches of the naval service are desired and machinists and carpenters are needed badly. Machinists, in addition to clothing, rations and medical attendance, receive from $40 to $60 per month. Carpenters get $25 per month the first year they appear on Uncle Sam's list. The chances for advancement in the naval service were never better than at present. There is a great demand for desirable men as new ships are constantly going into commission and the vessels must have the crews to man them.

Since January last the detail now in Duluth has added 1400 men to the navy. The recruits accepted here will leave on Saturday morning on the steamer Miami for Mackinac, from whence they proceed by rail to Brooklyn. The office hours are 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. It is expected that the navy will receive many additions from Duluth.

Lieut. D. W. Blamer is in charge of the recruiting party. He was on board the Charleston when she was wrecked on the shores of Luzon last year. He has been engaged in the recruiting service since his return to America and has not as yet been assigned to another ship for sea duty.

Surgeon R. Percy Crandall passes upon the physical qualifications of applicants. Surgeon Crandall served under "Fighting Bob" Evans on the battleship Iowa during the war with Spain. He was in that memorable engagement July 3, off Santiago, when Spain's fleet was demolished.

Chief Boatswain Killin has been a wearer of Uncle Sam's blue for thirty years and is proud of it. He has sailed every sea from the Spanish main to the Bay of Bengal.

Warrant Machinist C. H. Casey was chief machinist on the Texas under Admiral John Philip during the Spanish war.

Yeoman Homer Ashby was on the Baltimore when she steamed into Manila bay on the morning of May 1, when Admiral Montejo's fleet was annihilated and Spain's sea power in the Pacific crushed. At the bombardment of Manila on Aug. 13 he was serving on the same vessel.

Hospital Apprentice Harry C. Graham was on the Nashville in 1898. His vessel was the first to take a prize after war was declared.

Head Nurse John White was with Schley on the Brooklyn at the battle of until November, 1898, when he was Santiago and remained with that vessel transferred.

FEDERATION

Of South African States Is Predicted By Cecil Rhodes.

Capetown, June 17.—Cecil Rhodes, in his speech at Bulawayo, Rhodesia, June 15, when he predicted that the federation of the South African states will come in three or four years, made what is regarded in some quarters, as a bid for the premier of Cape Colony. After eulogizing the action of the Rhodesians and Natalians he said the only state he pities the mother state, Cape Colony, whose political and religious beliefs incited rebellion. When federation came none of the other states would have anything to do with her and he was afraid the people of his old state, who are running about like sheep without a shepherd are coming on worst. Mr. Rhodes was glad of the opportunity of saying a few words which, he hoped, should be to their good.

Commissioners Speak of Sentiment on New Court House.

Present Time Not the Right One For Building.

Talk Is Already Beginning to Interest Bond Dealers.

County Commissioner R. F. Berdie, of Hibbing, was in the city today on committee work in connection with the county business. He said to a Herald reporter this morning that he had been at some pains to look into the sentiment on the western Mesaba range as to the building of a new court house.

"Our people do not object very strongly to such a scheme," he said, "providing the county does not go too far in the amount. Still, it is a very ticklish proposition, and it is hard to make up one's mind upon it satisfactorily. There is more than one consideration to be settled. In the first place, it is to be decided whether or not the county can afford it just at present. If that is settled in the affirmative, then comes the question of location. If the present location is abandoned, the county loses the court house property and has to buy a new site. On the other hand, a down-town site would be more convenient, and in this I speak particularly for the range people. It does not make so much difference to Duluth people, who can go to the court house whenever they desire. But to range people the location is more important than many might imagine. If the court house were down town it would be an easy matter for anybody to come in at noon, get his business transacted, and get out on the 3:15 o'clock train. With the courthouse where it is now it is not so easy, and in many cases it would be impossible. The court house is closed during the noon hour, of course, and that shortens the time at the disposal of the range visitor."

Commissioner E. M. Patterson, in accordance with the resolve of the board at its last meeting, has been looking into public sentiment on the matter some, and he has been using his own sturdy common sense as well, and he has come to the conclusion that the time for issuing bonds is not at hand.

"My opinion is," he said this morning, "that the people are paying about as much taxes as they care to just now, and that a scheme to make them larger would not be popular at present. The court house is a pretty unsightly old thing, but it is doing the business in some shape, and it can keep doing it for a while longer."

County Auditor Halden had not given the matter much consideration, but he expressed himself as against the proposition, for the present, at least.

"The county must levy a tax this summer to take up an overdraft of $40,000 in the poor fund, besides providing for current expenses, and I will be more interested in a measure to reduce expenses than one to add to them. When the matter is finally taken up I do not know that I shall be in favor of issuing bonds. I would like to see the county make a levy of a certain amount each year until enough was on hand to build a court house with, and then expensive interest payments would be avoided."

The news that the new court house was being considered to some extent has got abroad among the bond men, and they are flooding the county officers with letters about the bonds. Some individual with a wide imagination published somewhere—not in Duluth—that the bonds were to be $300,000 to $500,000, and this has attracted the attention of the bond buyers. Clerk of Court Johnson has received two letters, Treasurer Whipple has received three letters, and Auditor Halden has had three or four. The writers ask for information about the county and its bonds, and for a chance to bid on the latter when they are offered for sale.

IT MOVES NOT.

Lerch Barn Still Rests Unmolested On First Street.

Some days ago The Herald had something to say as to the outrageous blocking of East First street by the Lerch barn. The following day the building was moved to the other end of the block and has now rested at the corner of Fourth avenue west for about two or three days without being moved an inch.

The general comment of citizens on this matter is anything but mild. The accommodating spirit of the board of public works is pronounced marvellous. Mr. Lerch had to get the barn off the property where it was. He had secured a new location on West Second street and immediately got a permit to move the building onto the street. The board had already given a permit for the contractor to occupy some of the street in front of the Chase building and found when the barn got there that the two permits conflicted. The contractor had to move the stuff and in the meantime the building stood there.

Now it develops that the property to which the building is to be removed is not clear. While this immense building stands in East First street obstructing all traffic, three buildings repose calmly on the lot to which it is to be moved and this morning not a thing had been done toward moving them off. Is the barn to be left there until the buildings are moved and when will they be moved, is now the question.

The street railway company has now taken the stand, too, that it will not raise its wires to let the second half of the building across unless Mr. Lerch gets an order from the council. When the first half was moved there was a delay of more than an hour next morning because the building was not across in time.

The Miami Coming.

The steamer Miami, which is to handle the Northern Steamship company's passenger business on Lake Superior this summer, connecting with the North West and North Land at Mackinac island, will arrive in port for the first time tomorrow night. She will not remain here long, however, but will leave at midnight tomorrow night on her first trip down. She will make two trips a week thereafter.

MANY ARE INDICTED

Wm. Randolph Charged With Murder in the First Degree.

Present And Former Officials of Deer River Indicted.

They Are All Charged With Malfeasance In Office.

Grand Rapids, Minn., June 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—At 10 o'clock this morning the Itasca county grand jury made their final report with twelve indictments. William Randolph was indicted for murder in the first degree and Sheriff Tyndall went to Duluth after him.

Indictments are returned against Recorder W. A. Everton, Treasurer James Everton and President W. J. Coffron and former Recorder C. W. Robinson, of Deer River, for malfeasance in office.

Justice of the Peace John L. Barnard of Grand Rapids is indicted for malfeasance; ex-Marshal Bailey of Deer River for assaulting Editor Taylor, of that place, second degree. F. L. Churchill, former president of Deer River village council, is also indicted for malfeasance. Churchill is now in Montana. Joe Hacks and Amos Reilly are indicted for burglary. The grand jury requested the court to appoint an assistant county attorney to prosecute the indictments returned.

DO SOME RACING.

Hunter and Bradshaw Have Two Spurts.

The steamer Mabel Bradshaw, of the White Line Transportation company, and the steamer Hunter, of the Booth line, made a little test of their speed yesterday afternoon in going to Two Harbors and return. They happened to leave Duluth at the same time going out, and they kept pretty well together, but when Two Harbors was reached the Bradshaw was four minutes in before the Hunter arrived, and the crew of the Bradshaw carried a broom to express their victory. When it came to the return trip the crew of the Hunter were anxious for revenge, and the two boats left Two Harbors at the same time. The race in resulted in another victory for the Bradshaw, the only difference being that the lead was doubled, the Bradshaw getting in eight minutes before the Hunter. Then the crew of the Bradshaw carried two brooms.

THE COUNCIL MEETING.

Alderman Barnes' Ordinance to Come Up.

At the council meeting this evening it is expected that the ordinance amendment introduced by Alderman Barnes last week will be taken up. This cuts down the West Duluth fire limits two blocks on Central avenue and it also provides for the erection of frame buildings on Central avenue between Gosnold and Ramsey streets, providing a frame building is not within twenty-five feet of any other frame building. This is quite an important amendment and may cause some discussion if brought up.

The board of public works will recommend an increase of wages for street foremen and high class laborers not effected by the raise in wages last week. The foremen are now receiving $65 and the board will recommend an advance of $5. Sewer men and others may be increased from 22½ cents to 25 cents an hour, of the board's recommendation goes.

The board will also recommend a fractional cent raise in the wages of other laborers. The council in raising the wages fixed $1.75 a day, but this makes 21 cents an hour and the average street foreman has to work more than eight hours in trying to gure out the time of his men on that basis.

Bids Are Opened.

The board of public works this morning opened bids for the structural steel to be used in the Tenth avenue viaduct. The only bidder was the American Bridge works through the Gillette-Herzog company, of Minneapolis. This bid is about $8000 and calls for the completion of the viaduct on or before Sept. 19.

The contract has not been let to the American Bridge works as it had been previously agreed that the bids should be received and the plans approved by the Great Northern interests before the contract should be let.

KENNEDY CASES.

Those of Father and Brothers Continued.

Kansas City, June 17.—The case against W. C. Prince and Will and Bert Prince, father and brothers of Mrs. Lulu Prince-Kennedy, charged with conspiring with her to kill Uhlip Kennedy, contracting agent of the Merchant's Dispatch Transportation company, was today postponed to the September term. Papers in appeal from the decision in the case of Mrs. Kennedy, are being prepared. Pending a decision of the higher court, Mrs. Kennedy probably will be released on bail.

COL. BRYANT DEAD.

Wichita, Kas., June 17.—Col. M. Bryant, U. S. A. (retired), died at his home in this city today. Col. Bryant entered the army in 1857. He was in command in the 13th infantry at Fort Sill when he retired.

WILLIE ANDERSON WINS.

Hamilton, Mass., June 17.—Willie Anderson, of Pittsfield, Mass., won the open golf championship of the United States, eighteen hole play on the Mycopia course, here this morning, playing against Alex Smith of Scotland. Anderson beat Smith one stroke in the eighteen holes, the totals being eighty-five to eighty-six.

A FARMER IS KILLED

Struck By Lightning While Standing at His Door.

A Gasoline Launch Was Dashed About Like a Cork.

Was Ready to Sink When It Struck a Bull Pen.

St. Paul, June 17.—An Oshkosh, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: William Fitzgerald, a farmer, 40 years old, living five miles southwest of Oshkosh, was struck by lightning while standing in the door of his barn last night during the violent electrical storm and instantly killed. His wife and two children survive. A cow in the barn was hit by the bolt, and James Fitzgerald, father of William, engaged in milking, was pinned under the animal when it fell over. He was not seriously injured.

The barn of J. J. Hatten near St. Ann, on the east shore of Lake Winnebago, was struck by lightning and destroyed, with some horses. Ryan Ranson, of the town of Oshkosh, lost two cows by lightning. Farmer Lipke lost a barn by lightning. Charles Doemel had 300 chickens and turkeys killed.

A gasoline launch containing a party of six, including F. Van Houten, C. Van Houten and wives, broke down in the middle of Lake Butte Des Morts. The big storm dashed the craft about like a cork. It was half filled with water and ready to sink when it struck against a bull pen, and the occupants saved their lives by clambering onto piles.

CONFIRMED.

Gen. Sumner Says Gen. Cailles and Men Will Surrender.

Manila, June 17.—Gen. Sumner has returned here from Santa Cruz province, where he had been negotiating for the surrender of Gen. Cailles. He confirms the dispatch of the Associated Press on Sunday, June 16, announcing that the preliminaries of the surrender of the insurgent leader have been arranged. Cailles is collecting his scattered troops. Of these 147 will surrender Wednesday, and the rest will give themselves up next Monday. Cols. Guvera and Infante, the representatives of Cailles, assured Gen. Sumner that Cailles was acting in good faith. Infante was previously an irreconcilable, and, though he was the last to advise surrender, he told Gen. Sumner of his determination to bring in every man. There have been several sharp skirmishes in Bohol since the departure of the Forty-fourth regiment. The conditions in Cebu are still backward.

It is officially reported that insurgent bands, with American deserters, are going to Mindoro.

TWO POINTS

Cause Much Discussion Among the Ministers at China.

Paris, June 17.—Dispatches received at the foreign office here from Pekin say that at the end of the meeting of the foreign ministers Saturday, two points remained to be settled—first, fixing the value of the tael, which is tending to depreciate, and is now reckoned at 4 francs 7 centimes; secondly, the claim advanced by countries whose credit is low, such as Russia and Japan. They wished to be allotted, proportionately, a larger number of bonds than the others, because they are obliged to pay a higher rate of interest. This suggestion did not evoke enthusiasm among the representatives of the other powers, and may give rise to considerable discussion.

AGAINST CLAIMANTS.

The Itata Case Has Been Decided.

Washington, June 17.—The Itata case was decided by the United States Chilean commission this afternoon. Although the decision will not be announced until later it is understood to be adverse to the claimants and the case is dismissed. The claim was filed by the South and Central American Steamship company against the United States for $250,000 for the seizure by the United States ship Charleston of the Itata with a cargo of arms.

JOHNSON LOSES.

Grand Jury Fails to Indict Publishers.

Cleveland, June 17.—The grand jury today reported no true bills in the case of Augustus Hubbell and the officials of the Cleveland Leader Publishing company, who were charged with libel. Their arrests were made upon warrants sworn out by Tom L. Johnson, as a result of an affidavit made by Hubbell and published in the Leader, during the recent mayoralty campaign, charging the former with obtaining money unlawfully in connection with his canvas.

WANT MORE WAGES.

Railroad Employes of Providence to Meet.

Providence, R. I., June 17.—The conductors and motormen of the Union Railroad company, which controls nearly all the electric lines in and about this city, have issued a call for a mass meeting at midnight, to take action on the matter of an increase in wages. The meeting is called, notwithstanding the order of the railroad officers that any such action by the men would be deemed cause for their dismissal.

RUPTURE.

The weakest spots in the human body are those first to become the seat of disease. The construction of the groin in the male, which is so formed as to permit the passage of nerves, veins and arteries, from the abdomen to the scrotum, renders this part of the anatomy the weakest spot. It frenquently happens that when these tissues are put on the stretch the bowels escape and form RUPTURE.

MASTER SPECIALIST.

I do not treat all diseases, but cure all I treat. I treat MEN ONLY, and cure them to stay cured.

To cure this dangerous trouble we apply our special treatment, which causes new tissue to be formed, uniting the breaks and strengthening the muscles and tendons that guard the openings and canals which transmit the nerves and blood vessels, so as to prevent the bowels from slipping out under the skin and passing down into the scrotal sac.

The history of a great many cases of this trouble is that they either neglect the condition or waste precious time with unskilled treatment until their lives are destroyed by the bowel becoming strangulated, or they lose the tone of their reproductive organs and become miserable, impotent wrecks.

Truss Tortured Men, whose lives are burdened with their affliction or whose powers of vitality and manhood are waning, should consult the best of modern specialists in all that pertains to diseases which afflict men, endanger their lives or enslave and destroy their manhood. We also cure to stay cured:

Contagious Blood Poison, Nervo-Sexual Debility, Stricture, Varicocele, Hydrocele, Kidney and Urinary Diseases and all Associate Diseases and Weaknesses of Men.

One personal visit is preferred, but if it is impossible or inconvenient for you to call at our office, write a full and unreserved history of your case, plainly stating your symptoms. We make no charge for private counsel and give to each patient a legal contract to hold good to our promises.

Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men? If you cannot call today, write.

PREACHERS HORSES.

The late Father Dowling, of Westchester county, N. Y., was not the only minister who provided for his horse in his will, said one of Washington's preachers to the correspondent of the New York Sun. "For instance, Bishop McKendree, one of the earliest and most esteemed among his people, made in his will ample provision for his horse so long as it might live and for a sufficient sum for its decent burial.

"I believe that if the records were hunted up it would be found that more ministers had made testamentary provision for their horses than any other class of people. It is simply natural that we old-time Methodist preachers should feel very kindly toward horses when we remember what good and faithful friends they were to us in the days when we had to ride the circuit.

"Those were trying times for both man and beast, for we went through many hardships. I once heard Brother Sam Jones, the Georgia evangelist, say that it was a fortunate thing for he owned blooded horses; that he wouldn't own any other kind; that when he got behind a pair of horses he wanted them to burn the wind, and that was the kind he owned. He said that admiration for fine horses was the only redeeming trait of a rum seller, and that a Methodist preacher who didn't love a fine horse was a scrub preacher.

"Away back in those good old days there were few better judges of horseflesh than the itinerant preachers. From the very necessities of their calling they were constantly dependent upon their services, and thus naturally became acquainted with all their good and bad qualities. Many of these circuit riders were indifferent as to personal comfort and personal appearance, but they insisted on being well mounted and seemed always ready to run the good race.

"In the simple biography of one of these primitive men who went about preaching the gospel we read that it was his habit in sparsely settled communities when night overtook him in a strange place in the forest to give his horse the rein and take up his lodging in the first house the faithful animal stopped at. He records with faithful simplicity that his quarters thus providentially selected were the best in the neighborhood.

"A circuit rider on a dark and stormy night presented himself at the door of a country home and asked for lodging. He was questioned as to which way he came, and when he told the man of the house almost fainted with terror. The faithful horse had walked with safety the stringpeice of a long bridge which spanned the largest river in the community. The stringer was not more than ten inches wide, and a single misstep of the animal would have precipitated both itself and its rider into the water, the rest of the bridge having been swept away by a storm of the day before.

"Another circuit rider in South Carolina, by the name of Tolliver Robinson, a preacher who at the time of his death had married more couples than all the other ministers in that state combined, had a horse which one night discovered that the residence was on fire, broke out of his stall and the barn and tearing down fences reached the house and with neighing and kicking succeeded in alarming the household in time to prevent the entire destruction of the building. Mr Robinson was another preacher who provided for his horse."

HEAD DOWN

People Will Travel Ninety-Five Miles an Hour.

New Amusement For Pleasure Seekers at Atlantic City.

Riding head downward at a rate of 95 miles an hour, while suspended in the air at a height of thirty feet, is one of the novelties offered amusement-seekers this year at Atlantic City, but it is only one of many startling features provided by the construction of the new centrifugal railway which has been added to Young's pier, says the Chicago Tribune.

Another experience which awaits the patrons of this enterprise is to be hauled up an incline to an elevation of forty-four feet, round a curve at this dizzy height, and then plunge down, making the descent to the level of the pier—a distance of 200 feet. It is the speed thus attained on the down grade that sends the car around the compound curve forming an egg-shaped loop at this point of the track, and at the highest point of which the passengers ride head down. Additional speed is gained on the return, and this is sufficient to drive the car to the end of the pier, a distance of 1000 feet, and enable it to mount an elevation, which in turn gives it another impetus sufficient to drive it back to the original starting point.

It is believed that the novelty and excitement attending this trip and the element of danger injected by the rounding of the loop will satisfy the most venturesome spirits, although it is not claimed that any pleasureable sensation is afforded. On the contrary, it is believed that the experience will be far from pleasant, and persons afflicted with weak hearts and shattered nerves are warned against indulging in this pastime.

The engineers claim that there is absolutely no danger in operating this road, and that the sensation will be one of mild excitement—an exhilarating effect—but in no degree dangerous. The high rate of speed attained, 95 miles an hour, will insure the safety of passengers in rounding the loop. If the cars were to run slower the occupants would be dropped out in passing the highest point when the cars hang from the structure. This was proved conclusively in the preliminary tests the other day, when bags of sand for dummies were placed in the cars, which had been hauled to the top of the trestle by hand and allowed to run down the other side without any assistance. Of course the rate of speed attained was not as great as if the car had been going at twelve or fifteen miles an hour when the descent was begun. When the car reached the top of the loop the sand dropped out. It is claimed that this was foreseen by the engineers, and that the trials were intended merely to discover defects in the structure and the track. Great care has been exercised throughout the construction of the road to insure absolute safety, and so far as the structure itself is concerned no fear need be felt. The engineers have carefully calculated the strains at all points and made ample provision for much greater loads than it is at present intended to carry, thus giving a large factor of safety.

The plans are based upon well-established scientific principles, chief among them that of centrifugal motion, from which the railway takes its name. Every schoolboy has employed this scientific discovery for his own amusement and the amazement of younger companions by swinging a pail filled with water and increasing the velocity until he is able to give the vessel any position without spilling the water. The same principle is applied in a magnified form in driving a car around the loop in the railway without "spilling" the occupants. Of course a high rate of speed must be maintained, and this is assured by the abrupt drop of 44 feet in 200 and the great weight of the car, 400 pounds, which, with four occupants, it is believed, will approximate 1000 pounds.

Other conditions lend sensational and spectacular features. The railway is constructed along the edge of the pier, and it requires no great stretch of the imagination to predict disastrous results in case of a slight mishap. Every precaution that engineering skill and ingenuity can devise has been employed to prevent the cars leaving the track. The trucks upon which the carriages are supported are of special design and are carefully constructed. They employ center bearing wheels which travel in the groove formed by placing two rails side by side in the center of the ties. There are four guard wheels also to each car on a frame which extends below the roadbed, enabling the wheels to engage rails secured underneath the outer edges of the ties. This feature of construction, which will be readily understood upon examination of the cars shown in the photograph, provides a safeguard against the car leaving the track while rounding the loop, and makes it impossible for the car to jump the track in rushing down grade at the perilous rate of 95 miles an hour.

In many respects the road is entirely different from any other undertaking in the country, and it has attracted considerable attention during the period of its construction. The site selected for the experiment was the end of Young's pier, which is an immense structure, 2800 feet long, extending from the board walk into the ocean, thus occupying the most conspicuous position available in Atlantic City. The structure itself is a double-track road about 1200 feet long, making a half mile run when the curves, etc., are included. One end of the road is a trestle work rising 45 feet above the pier. This trestle forms a 36-foot curve, and most people would be satisfied with the excitement of a whirl around the curve at a high rate of speed. At the other end of the road, 1200 feet away, there is another rise of about twelve feet. This serves the double purpose of slacking the speed of the car before striking the curve, and the descent on the other side affords sufficient impetus to send the car back to the starting station at a lively rate. The immense trestle work and the double loop, which form the principal features of the road, loom up conspicuously, and can be seen from the board walk for several miles.

Great strength and rigidity is secured for the roadway by the form of track construction adopted. The ties are in some places only three inches apart, and they are securely fastened to a substantial foundation. Along the center of the ties is laid the grooved track. It is formed by placing two ordinary rails side by side. A rail is also fastened along the edge of the ties on the under side for the guard wheels. The weight of the car rests upon the wheels running in the grooved track on top of the ties, excepting when the car is passing around the loop and during a short distance on the descent from the elevated curve. Then the weight is shifted to the guard wheels.

The cars are odd looking vehicles with two seats for four persons, back to back. They are nicely upholstered, but are not provided with springs, and consequently the jar sustained by passengers is severe. It has been decided to strap the passengers into their seats as an additional precaution against hurling them out. This concession is made to remove any fears that timid visitors might have, but the engineers do not consider it necessary.

Provision has been made for hauling the cars to the top of the "incline." This, it is believed, will make a collision impossible, as the track from the "incline" to a point beyond the loop will be cleared before another car will be released.

Many interesting problems were met by the engineers, especially in laying out the loop and the angle of the road on the trestle. It was necessary to provide sufficient speed in the descent to send the car around the loop fast enough to insure the safety of the occupants, and at the same time guard against impairing the life of the structure to putting too great a strain upon it. Then, too, the loop had to be constructed so that in coming down the car would regain enough speed to shoot it down a level track 1000 feet to the end of the pier, and mount the elevation there, which in turn was to send it back to the starting point. The engineers claim that the preliminary tests have shown that their figures were correct.

In any event, visitors at Atlantic City seem to have perfect confidence in the ability of the builders, and many are clamoring for the distinction of taking the first ride when the railway is opened to the public.

THE WAITER'S VERSION.

"If you want to know what pride is," said a Southern woman to the New York Sun, "you ought to see the colored house servants down South lording it over the field hands. The house servants form an aristocracy which for monumental haughtiness can't be surpassed anywhere.

"They take the place of newspapers to the other negroes, retailing to them the scraps of information they get from listening to the conversation of 'the family' and the guests. Some of these pieces of news come back to us occasionally and the sidelights they give us on current events are truly remarkable.

"We have had a negro waiter for some time and I fancy that his company is always in demand among the other darkies, because he has the dinner table conversation to draw upon. My husband, of course, always talked about public events when we had guests for dinner, and old Gable has picked up a few facts, or impressions at least, as he waited.

"He had heard a good deal of talk about President McKinley and Senator Hanna, especially about Mr. Hanna's ability to make and spend money. Gabe was much impressed and went out to the kitchen one day shaking his head disapprovingly. He had already told the kitchen servants several interesting things about 'President McKinley an' his lady, Miss Hannah.' This time he said:

"'Well, Marse McKinley, he's all right; but dat Hannah, she sho' does spen' money.'

"Another time he heard us talking about Admiral Dewey and how people were so down on him for the transfer of the house that was given him. Finally Gabe sighed a big sigh and said:

"'I reckon Admiral Dewey's sorry now he done blowed up dat Maine and all!'

IN CONTEMPT

Denver Clergymen Criticised the Court.

Summoned to Appear to Answer Charges.

Denver, June 18.—Rev. M. A. Rader, pastor of Grace M. E. church: Rev. W. H. Talmage, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, and Secretary Walter D. Wynkoop of the Christian Endeavor society, of Denver, were summoned to answer today, on Judge Palmer's division of the district court, to the charge of contempt. I. P. Stauer, secretary of an oyster house, swore to the charges. The case grew out of a temporary injunction, granted by Judge Palmer, restraining the movement to stop liquor selling on Sunday.

Dr. Rader is cited for contempt on account of having made a statement from his pulpit, in which he is quoted as saying, among other things:

"I suppose we will soon be informed that a judge will grant injunctions against the enforcement of the laws against thieves and sluggers and murderers."

Information against Dr. Talmage says that in an interview he declared in substance: "That the said Peter L. Palmer was under the control and influence of the saloon men of the city of Denver and that the said injunctions were issued by him at their behest and that it would be worth while for the saloon men to pay Judge Palmer $20,000 to make the injunction permanent, but that if it were accomplished it would result in a great upheaval of the Christian people of Denver."

Mr. Wynkoop is cited in consequence of a notice issued to the members of the Christian Endeavor society calling a mass meeting to protest against the granting of injunctions.

NO HOPE FOR PINGREE

Condition of Ex-Governor of Michigan Grows Worse and Practically No Hope of His Recovery Is Entertained.

London, June 18.—Increasing anxiety is felt regarding the condition of ex-Governor Pingree of Michigan. Mr. Pingree this morning is considerably weaker than he was yesterday.

Detroit, June 18.—Ex-Governor Pingree's son Joe cables the News from London today the following bulletin on his father's condition:

"Much weaker. Doctors do not think there is much hope of recovery. Strongest remedies apparently have no effect."

A special cablegram to the Journal from its London correspondent says of the condition of ex-Governor Pingree, who is seriously ill in that city:

"Pingree is constantly asking when he can start home. Joe (his son) evades an answer, but he now knows there is no hope. The doctors say it is foolish for Mrs. Pingree to come. The ulceration of the bowels continues. No food can be retained. A change is expected in twenty-four hours. I am notifying the ambassador."

Dr. Mills said this evening that Mr. Pingree's condition was becoming most critical. He was partially unconscious and is growing weaker and weaker. The doctor added:

"It seems too bad that the serious nature of his ailment was not discovered earlier. He ought never to have been allowed to travel on the continent. Mr. Pingree is receiving every care and is making a gallant fight; but the ulceration of the stomach is only one symptom of a complicated disease which it seems impossible to check."

Mr. Pingree is attended by three physicians and two nurses.

PATTI DID NOT SELL

Was Offered Only Forty-Five Thousand Pounds For Her Castle While Her Reserve Price Remained at Fifty.

London, June 18.—Craig-Y-Nos castle, the residence in Wales of Adelina Patti (Baroness Rolf Cederstrom), was put up at auction this afternoon at the mart, this city.

Craig-Y-Nos was bought in for £45,000 after a dramatic scene caused by a false bid of £50,000, which was the reserve price.

The auction room was packed with influential people and agents. Among those present was Baron Cederstrom.

The bidding opened with an offer of £50,000, made by a prominent London auctioneer. No other offer was heard, and Auctioneer Lumley declared Madame Patti's castle sold at that figure. Simultaneously the bidder rushed up and told Mr. Lumley he had not meant his offer to be taken seriously. Long conferences followed. Mr. Lumley went out and consulted Sir George Lewis, the well known lawyer. Excitement reigned throughout the auction room. The bidder, who was very pale, perspiring, with the eyes of all placed upon him. Sir George Lewis said that no proceedings will be taken, and Mr. Lumley reopened the sale at £20,000, by thousands the bidding quickly advanced. At £45,000 a deadlock was reached, and Mr. Lumley announced that he must buy in the property for Madame Patti, the reserve price being £50,000.

Madame Pattis' reasons for disposing of one of the most beautiful country seats in the United Kingdom are said by her agents to be two-fold. In the first place, she desires to spend a good part of each year in Sweden with her husband's relatives, and in the second place, she finds that the Welsh climate does not thoroughly agree with her. Her life, in the future, will be spent in the country of her husband's birth.

BY A JURY OF HIS PEERS

In Case Earl Russell Is Indicted For Bigamy His Case Will Be Heard By the House of Lords.

New York, June 18.—Commenting upon the case of Earl Russell, who is charged in England with bigamy in having married Mrs. Somerville in Reno, Nev., when he already had a wife in England, the London correspondent of the Tribune says:

"But the most interesting element is the function of the house of lords. If the grand jury indicts Earl Russell for bigamy, he will not be tried by an ordinary criminal court, but by the house of lords, since that is his privilege. The last instance was the case of a peer on trial in a criminal charge, forty years ago, when Lord Cardigan was charged with duelling. This was a criminal offense and he was tried by the house of lords. The procedure is so unusual that veteran British lawyers forecast that it will be the last instance of the kind. If the case actually reaches the upper house on the question of privilege, this bigamy trial in its broadest aspect brings up the whole question of the validity of American divorces when Englishmen cross the Atlantic for the purpose of evading law and return with an American decree as a defense. It is evident that the prosecution has prepared itself for a hard fight and that it has obtained possession of all the facts respecting Earl Russell's marriage and divorce in Nevada, and also full information concerning recent decisions of the United States supreme court on the subject. Judge Currier, who performed the marriage in Nevada, has nothing to say respecting the Russell case, in which he will be an important witness. He is a bright and jovial American lawyer, who has enjoyed his journey across the continent and the voyage from New York."

COUNCIL SUMMONED.

Judge Wants to Know Why They Do Not Settle.

Detroit, June 18.—Judge Brooke of the Wayne county circuit court today cited the thirty-four members of the common council of Detroit to appear before him June 22 and show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court. June 10 the council was served with a mandamus ordering them to pay a claim against the city of $1750 for injury to property owned by the Ralph Phelps estate owing to the building of the Fourteenth avenue bridge. The council failed to obey this mandamus.

BATES TO COMMAND.

Washington, June 18.—Brig. Gen. John C. Bates, who recently returned from the Philippines, has been ordered to command the deparement of the Missouri, with headquarters at Omaha. The deparitment has been under the command of Gen. Merriam, who is in permanent command of the department of Colorado.

BUILDING DEDICATED

Minnesota's State Edifice at Buffalo Opened With Ceremony.

Governor, Editors, Militia and Civilians Take Part in Event.

Presented By Capt. McDougall and Accepted By Governor.

Buffalo, June 18.—The Minnesota state building at the Pan-American grounds was dedicated today. Governor Van Sant, with his staff, the Second battalion of the First Minnesota regiment, many members of the Minnesota Editorial association, with their families, and many citizens of that state were present. A light rain was falling, but this did not prevent the crowding of the temple of music, where the dedication exercises were held. Previous to the dedication, the governor and his staff, the Minnesota commissioners and the Minnesota Editorial association met at the Minnesota building and marched under escort of the Minnesota Guardsmen and a band to the temple of justice.

The program included prayer by Rev. A. B. Meldrum, of St. Paul; addresses by Mayor Diehl, of Buffalo, and Director General Buchanan, of the Pan-American exposition; the presentation and acceptance of the building by Capt. Alexander McDougall, president of the board of Minnesota managers and Governor Van Sant, of Minnesota, respectively; and further addresses by H. P. Hall, of St. Paul, representing the Minnesota press; Herbert P. Bissell and Rowland B. Mahaney, of Buffalo; United States Senator Moses E. Clapp, Representatives Stevens and Tawney, of Minnesota, and Dr. George H. Bridgeman, president of Hamline university, of St. Paul, and others.

The editors will remain here until Friday morning, when they will go to Niagara Falls. Saturday will be spent in Toronto, as guests of the city and of the Canadian Press association.

DEAL CLOSED.

Colorado Fuel and Iron Company Into Steel Combine.

New York, June 18.—The Tribune says: At a meeting held at the Waldorf-Astoria negotiations were brought to a close which will result in the absorption of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company by the United States Steel corporation. Those who attended the meeting were John J. Mitchell, James C. Hitchins, John Hutchings, Isaac Elwood, representing the Colorado concern, and representatives of J. P. Morgan for the steel combine. The meeting lasted several hours and at its close not one of the conferees was willing to speak concerning the transaction.

From other sources it was learned, however, that the deal was practically closed and that the offer of the steel combination to buy in Colorado Fuel at a price not far from 170 was accepted. The culmination of the transaction is regarded with great satisfaction by John W. Gates and his associates, who have been largely instrumental in the deal.

MINISTERS DECLINE

To Allow Chinese Troops to Come to Pekin.

Pekin, June 18.—The foreign ministers have declined to assent to the request to allow 3000 Chinese soldiers to come to Pekin now. They consider that it would be inadvisable to permit such a step to be taken before the latter part of August. By which time, the international troops, with the exception of the legation guards, will have left the city.

The ministers also declined to permit international troops to guard the forbidden city until the Chinese soldiers shall arrive.

RAILWAY AGENTS.

Begin Their Annual Session at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, June 18.—About 200 delegates were in their seats this morning when President W. H. Mills, of Ohio, called to order the fifth annual convention of the National Association of Railway Agents. The first session was devoted to addresses of welcome by Recorders Brown, of Pittsburg, and Murphy, of Allegheny, and the responses by C. G. Goss, vice president of the association. The convention will be in session several days. There are many ladies accompanying the delegates and their entertainment has been made a special feature of the local work.

QUIET ELECTION.

No Trouble From Negroes at Jacksonville.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 18.—Election today is progressing quietly, and no trouble from the negroes is apprehended. Owing to the disturbance created by a crowd of colored men, who captured two street cars and caused other disturbance at a political meeting last evenign, in the Sixth ward, serious disturbance had been feared about the polls today, but so far nothing of such a nature has been reported.

HEAVY SNOW FALLS.

Berlin, June 18.—There have been heavy snow falls in the Bavarian and Tyrolean Alps and railroad communication between Munich and Italy are interrupted.

MINERS STRIKE.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 18.—The five hundred employes of the Keystone colliery at Hudson, near here, went on strike today because the company "docked" the outside men for the time the brakes were temporarily out of use.

RASH DEED

Episcopal Minister Shoots His Friend.

Was Protecting Daughter From Injury.

Berkeley, Cal., June 18.—Dr. J. G. Jessup, a dentist, was shot and fatally wounded last night by Rev. Charles Adams, formerly an Episcopal minister. It is stated that Adams' daughter called Jessup by telephone and asked him to come to her home and prevent her father from whipping her. When Jessup arrived at the Adams house and remonstrated with him, Adams drew a revolver and shot the dentist through the breast. Adams is in jail and Jessup is dying.

San Francisco, June 18.—Rev. Charles G. Adams, who shot and probably fatally wounded his friend, Dr. J. G. Jessup, when the latter remonstrated with the former clergyman for abusing his daughter, is well known throughout the East. He was born about fifty years ago in Delaware county, N. Y. He was ordained as a deacon in the Episcopal church in 1872 at Gambier, Knox county, Ohio, and as a priest in 1875 at Catskill Greene county, N. Y. He held the pastorate of St. Mark's chapel in New York city, also of the Church of the Incarnation in the same city. He also filled pulpits in Fremont and Cincinnati, Ohio. His last charge was St. Andrews in Oakland, from which church he was dismissed on account of intemperance. Dr. Jessup and Adams had long been friends. Adams says he was drunk when he did the shooting. Jessup is still alive, but his condition is considered hopeless.

SAGE HAS HIS "PUTS"

New York Man Sues Uncle Russell For Twenty-Five Thousand on a Deal During the Recent Wall Street Panic.

New York, June 18.—In the supreme court of this state a suit for $25,000 has just been brought against Russell Sage, who introduced the business of trading in "puts" and "calls," by Robert D. Vroom, who for years has been accustomed to buy these privileges from him. The action is an outgrowth of a difficulty which occurred on May 9, the day of the panic. Mr. Vroom came into Mr. Sage's office on the morning of that day holding among others "puts" sold by the later on 500 shares of Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific. The stocks in which Mr. Vroom had the privileges were then selling so low, acording to the tape, that if he could buy them about those figures, he could then deliver them to Mr. Sage at the figures named in his "puts" and make a net profit of many thousands. He handed his privileges over to Mr. Sage (who has them yet), and asked the former to buy in the stocks for him as a broker, whereupon he would then sell them to Mr. Sage at the "put" price.

From this point the stories diverge. Mr. Sage recently, in discussing the meeting: "Rock Island was selling at 130, when Mr. Vroom, who held my puts on 500 shares, at prices rangign from 100 to 103 gave me orders to buy it at the market. I turned the order in to my brokers. But the tape was twenty-five minutes behind time, and the price they had to pay was 155. Of course this showed no profit to Mr. Vroom, but I could not help it."

J. H. Miller, the plaintiff's attorney, said in the course of an interview explaining his client's side of the case: "Mr. Vroom demanded back the privileges, but did not get them. Now the privileges were worth more than the actual profit that could have been made on them in the transactions he authorized Mr. Sage to make. We think we have a good case."

Mr. Sage, through his counsel, has obtained an extension of time till June 20 in which to file his answer.

MYSTERIOUSLY KILLED

Daniel Richards Found Dead on the Doorstep of His Intended Bride on the Eve of the Wedding.

Shamokin, Pa., June 18.—Daniel Richards, aged 20 years, of Green Ridge, was found dead on the porch of the home of his intended bride at Mt. Carmel today, with a bullet hole in his right temple. Young Richards was to have been married today to Miss Elizabeth Walters, daughter of Harry Walters. The young man called at the Walters house last night and shortly after 10 o'clock started for his home in Green Ridge, a distance of three miles. That was the last seen of him by any member of the family, until his body was found on the porch this morning. The weapon from which the fatal shot had been fired has not yet been found, and the police officials are working on the theory that Richards was murdered and his body carried to the Walters home.

Miss Walters said there had been no quarrel between them, and that Richards appeared to be in unusually good spirits.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

After Consultation Dr. Johnston Pronounces Mrs. McKinley Out of Danger But Dr. Rixey Fails to Concur.

Washington, June 18.—Doctors Johnston and Rixey held a consultation at the White House this forenoon, at the conclusion of which Dr. Johnston pronounced Mrs. McKinley out of danger and convalescing. He said there may, of course, be a recurrence of her trouble, but for the present the danger is past. Dr. Johnston said that the blood infection had disappeared entirely.

Dr. Rixey, although evidently encouraged by the improvement in Mrs. McKinley's conditon, was somewhat more conservative in his statement than Dr. Johnson. He thought it scarcely safe to say that she was entirely out of danger, as her weakness might precipitate a relapse, but her condition was quite satisfactory, her improvement being steady, and seemingly certain of continuance.

It is expected that President and Mrs. McKinley will be able to leave for Canton by July 1.

JINGOES.

Bad Thing For Any Country, Says Sir Redvers Buller.

New York, June 18.—Sir Redvers Buller and Lord Strathcona were the principal speakers at the annual banquet of the Colonial club in London last night, says the London correspondent of the Tribune. Replying to the toast of "The Imperial Forces," Gen. Buller said in his blunt way that the worst thing that could happen to any country was what was known as the jingo feeling. Expenditure on the forces of the crown should not be for conquest or oppression. Lord Strathcona, who presided over the banquet, in proposing "The Colonial Club," referred in felicitious terms to the attachment of the people in the colonies to the institution of the mother country. The colonists knew, he said, that in fighting to help England they were fighting for their own best interests. The Canadian high commissioner was loudly cheered on retaking his seat.

ANASTASIA.

Another Grand Duchess Added to the Czar's Family.

St. Petersburg, June 18.—The czarina today gave birth to a daughter. The child will be named Anastasia.

The other children of the czar and czarina are: The grand duchess Olga, born Nov. 15, 1895 (new style).

The grand duchess Tatiana, born June 10, 1897.

The grand duchess Marie, born June 26, 1899.

APPOINTMENT RATIFIED.

Rome, June 18.—The pope has ratified the appointment of Dr. Thomas F. Kennedy, of Philadelphia, as rector of the American college as successor to Mgr. Connelly appointed bishop of Portland, Me. The appointment of Dr. Kennedy was recommended by the congregation of the propaganda Sunday.

Sunday Closing Law Enforced at Houghton By Sheriff.

Houghton—For the first time in ten years or more Houghton had a dry Sunday. Sheriff Wills got on his war paint a week ago, when he stopped the proposed Croke-Beauscholte prize fight. Last week he stopped all the slot machines and regular gambling games. Sunday the closing law was enforced for the first time in a decade.

Menominee—Eastern capitalists are corresponding with Menominee business men with a view to locating a beet sugar factory in this city. The syndicate interested in the deal will send a representative here in a few days to look over matters. The company will want 20,000 acres of sugar beets, it requiring the quantity such an acreage would afford to supply the factory. The parties, whose names are withheld, are favorably considering Menominee, and if they locate here will build one of the largest beet sugar factories in the state.

Sault Ste Marie—Robert Thorn, of Raber township, was in the Soo seeking information relative to the whereabouts of his 10-year-old son who had been missing since last week. He was last seen on that day near his home, three miles northwest of Point au Frene. He was alone playing. As soon as he was missed search was instituted, but at a late date last week it had proved unavailing. The boy's disappearance is a great mystery. Mr. Thorn thinks he is lost in the woods or has been kidnaped, not believing as some do that he has been drowned in the bay.

Iron Mountain—David Long and William Shay, of Iron Mountain, encountered a bear about a mile northeast of Sagola. They fired twelve shots at the animal and wounded it, but owing to the darkness they were compelled to give up the chase until morning, when they found the bear within half a mile of the place they had first sighted it. One shot finished the animal. The carcass weighed 400 pounds. Laing and Shay are noted bear hunters, they having succeeded last year in killing the largest animal of the species ever seen in this section.

NATIONAL MEETING

Swedish Evangelical Mission Covenant Here This Week.

Several Hundred Visitors From All Over the Country.

Program of Services and Sessions---Public Meeting Wednesday.

Duluth will be the meeting place of a notable convention for the next week, the seventeenth annual conference of the Swedish Evangelical Mission covenant being held here beginning tomorrow and lasting until Monday afternoon.

Tomorrow morning, at the Mission church, Twenty First avenue west and Second street, the seating of delegates will take place and reports of the various committees and officers will be received. Talks by foriegn missionaries will be heard morning and afternoon during the conference. In the evening at the same place a public meeting will be opened at 7:30. A good program has been prepared for the occasion and an address of welcome will be delivered on behalf of the city by Mayor T. W. Hugo.

Professor D. Nyral, of Chicago, and Rev. Dr. Skoogsberg, of Minneapolis, will be the principal speakers of the evening, while the large chorus choir of forty-five voices, under the leadership of Professor A. S. Skoog, of Minneapolis, will furnish sweet music.

In the Norwegian M. E. church, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, public services will be held at 11 o'clock each morning and 3 o'clock each afternoon.

Saturday morning services will be held at the Norwegian church at 11 o'clock.

In the Swedish Mission church on Sunday, meetings will be held at 10 a. m., 3 p. m. and at 7 p. m. Special music has been arranged for each service.

Monday the mid-summer day will be observed in gala style. The steamer Bloomer Girl has been chartered by the members of the church to carry the visitors to and from Zenith Park. Trips will be made at 9 a. m. and at 1 p. m. A program has been arranged for 3 o'clock at which some of the most prominent sepakers and singers here will take part. Dinner and supper will be served at the grounds and the return trip will be made at 5:30. During the convention dinner and supper will be served in the basement of the church.

The conference is especially important to the Scandinavian population of Duluth as it is the highest one in the Swedish church, all rules and laws being made by it. It is expected that there will be between 400 and 500 visitors here as each parish is entitled to one clerical and one lay delegate.

CHANGES.

Manager Hansell Makes Some---Young Cummings Signed.

The Duluth ball team has had its first shaking up. Other shakes are coming unless the team settles down to faster playing, but the earthquake season began unusually early this spring. Cameron, the second baseman has left the team to accept a position in Milton, N. D. He couldn't stand the blithesome weather and sundry other little annoyances.

Cummings, the star high school twirler who held Superior down to three hits recently, will pitch regularly. His second game will be against Ashland next Saturday afternoon out at Oneota Park. Glenney will take Cameron's place at second. The Itasca twirler is a much faster infielder than Cameron, and the change should strengthen the team. McLaren, formerly of Eau Claire, will play third base. He is said to belong to the fast division. There may also be another change for the Saturday-Sunday games in Ashland, as Manager Hansell has all but skewed a hard-hitting outfielder who can take a turn in the pitching department if occasion demands it.

The club has been decidedly off in team work, but tomorrow afternoon the players have been notified to report at Oneota park for practice in this respect.

The Ashland series should be more interesting than the moth-eaten stunts between Duluth and Superior. Ashland has secured several of the best players of the University of Chicago and it will be a very different combination of ball talent, from that which appeared here during the early part of last season.

JEWELRY.

Seven Thousand Dollars Worth Stolen By Adams Express Clerks.

New York, June 18.—It became known today that three clerks charged with the theft of $7000 worth of jewelry from the branch office of the Adams Express company, at Forty-ninth street and Madison avenue, on Sunday night, were arrested last night. The men were arraigned today. The prisoners are Robert Pentecost, Christopher M. Brown and Thomas McCarthy. All have been in the employ of the company for several years. The theft was discovered yesterday by the manager of the branch office, who observed that the seals on two packages had been tampered with. This led to a checking of the packages by the receipt book, disclosing the fact that there were twelve missing, the aggregate valuafflition on which by consignors was $7000.

$5.75 St. Paul, Minneapolis and Return.

June 18 and 19 the Northern Pacific railway (Duluth Short Line) will sell tickets to St. Paul and Minneapolis and return for $5.75. Good returning June 22. THE CREED.

Revision Committee of Presbyterians Gets Down to Work.

Pittsburg, June 18.—The creed revision commission appointed by the last general assembly of the Presbyterian church at Philadelphia, met here today behind closed doors with a full attendance of members. It is expected that the assembly will be in session all week.

The meeting was opened by prayer, after which the action of the last assembly, constituting the committee, was read by the Rev. Dr. William Henry Roberts, of Philadelphia, secretary of the committee. All action of the assembly as to revision was read and discussed with some difference of opinion as to its meaning.

The committee decided to get down to business at once and make every effort to do something at the first meeting. Three or four other meetings will be held during the year, probably in New York Chicago and Washington city.

HEAVY LOSS.

Fire Sweeps Squaw Island, Buffalo, Out of Existence.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 18.—Fire early today swept out of existence all the buildings on Squaw Island fronting on the Niagara river from the foot of Ferry street to a point three quarters of a mile north. The loss is in the neighborhood of $260,000. The principal buildings destroyed were the Frontier mill, owned by the Scoellkopf estate, valued at $50,000; the Ryan elevator, the property of Stephen M. Myan, $75,000; the Queen City mills, $100,000; Fort Erie Ferry company's ticket office and waiting room and a part of their dock, $5000. Besides these buildings a dozen naphtha and steam launches, canal boats and house boats anchored in the harbor, valued at about $15,000; the dock itself worth $25,000 and scores of shantles and boat houses occupied by squatters, stretching along the shore of the river for nearly a mile, added fuel to the flames.

MOLINEUX.

Arguments Continued By Attorneys Before Court of Appeals.

Buffalo, June 18.—John G. Milburn, attorney for Roland B. Molineux, resumed before the court of appeals today his argument for an appeal on the conviction of his client for the murder of Mrs. Katherine J. Adams, in New York, in December, 1898. It is probable that the argument will occupy all of today's session and possibly it may not be finished until tomorrow.

ON BAIL.

Judge Newberger Will Grant Dr. Kennedy His Freedom.

New York, June 18.—Judge Newberger agreed today to release Dr. Samuel J. Kennedy, who has been tried three times for the murder of Emeline Reynolds, on $10,000 bail. Robert M. Moore, Kennedy's attorney, said that bail would be furnished at once.

THE DAKOTAS.

But One Will Die as a Result of the Tornado.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Huron—Messages from the tornado striken district say that all the injured except the seven-year-old son of Mr. McCormick, are resting comfortably. The child, it is thought, will die. Mr. McCormick has regained consciousness and his wife is able to move about a little. One of the daughters whose legs were lacerated by a barbed wire fence is in a serious condition, as blood poison is feared. Neighbors and others are doing everything possible for the comfort of all the sufferers. Arrangements are being made to erect new homes in the place of those destroyed.

Madison—Returns from Saturday's storm show the tornado prevailed over a strip one mile wide and ten miles long, southwest of this city. James Lyons' dwelling was demolished. Only two children were at home and they took to the cellar and escaped. John Boyd's barn, including machinery and grain was desroyed, causing loss of $3000. Abel Mitchell, D. Williams, Henry Roher, Dan Rounds and A. Zabel, each had barns and windmills demolished, and many farmers sustained smaller damage. No crops were injured.

Lead—While the train crew of the Black Hills & Fort Pierre Railway company were letting a carload of machinery down to the end of the track, where it was to have been unloaded for the new steam hoisting plant at the DeSmet mine, the car broke away and started down the grade. Before it could be stopped it went over the end of the track and fell 200 feet into the DeSmet open cut. The car and machinery were completely demolished. Superintendent Grier immediately telegraphed for a duplicate order of the machinery.

Watertown—Joe Boucher, a prominent citizen of Clark, was killed here Sunday. Four crowded excursion trains on the North-Western road were just pulling out. Boucher ran for his train just as it was passing the platform of a machinery warehouse. He slipped, and before he could help himself was caught between the coach and the platform, his body being ground to a pulp before many people. He left a wife and family at Clark.

Deadwood—The friends of Odo Reder, who have been working for a pardon for him since his conviction at Sioux Falls for timber stealing, are disappointed in in the refusal of Judge Garland. Petitions had been freely signed in all of the towns of the Black Hills. Judge Carland says it is out of his power to grant such a pardon and that it is a matter for the president to act upon. The petition will now be sent to President McKinley.

There has been a question raised by the leading attorneys of this city concerning the sentencing of Peter Carberry, convicted of perjury. Judge Moore has set the day for July 1. The new law goes into effect on that day, and the question is raised whether or not a penalty can be imposed on a person under a new law for a conviction found under an old law.

Pierre—The question of oil possibilities there has been under discussion ever since the discovery of gas. The indications now are that a test will be made this summer. A project is forming to sink through the artesian basin and, after shutting off the flow of water, to go at least 1000 feet further, if nothing is discovered before reaching that depth.

Aberdeen—Some controversy having arisen over the question whether the several school districts of the state should elect a new set of officers this spring, owing to the change in the law, the county superintendent and state's attorney have ruled that this is not the intent of the statute, and that but one officer should be elected in each district, a chairman, the same as though no change had been made in the law in any particular.

Judge Gaffy has decided in favor of Leola in the suit brought by Eureka to secure the removal of the county seat of McPherson from the former to the latter place. Eureka depended chiefly upon the allegation that the county seat had never been regularly located at Leola, because all the territory then and now embraced within the county had not participated in the election.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Wahpeton—Hail struck here Monday afternoon, badly injuring crops. Flax and gardens suffered the worst. The track was narrow across the east of Richland county, passing to Wilkin county, Minn.

Neche—The commencement of the first graduating class of the high school was held last week. Professor W. L. Stockwell, superintendent of the Grafton schools, delivered the address.

Jamestown—F. S. Brown has secured a contract from the Northern Pacific to plow fire breaks along the line from Oriska to Bismarck, a distance of about 160 miles. The work will take several months.

Miss Sara Roberts, principal of the North Side school, has resigned and will attend school in the East.

A. O. U. W.

Rice's Point lodge, No. 80—All members are requested to be present at our meeting Thursday, the 20th, at 8 o'clock, sharp. M. GOTTSCHALD, Recorder.

Before exposure to wind, sun or cold, apply Satin-Skin Cream; then use Satin-Skin Powder. Faces so protected never tan, burn or roughen. 25c.

THE MIAMI.

The Steamer Will Be Here Only About Two Hours.

The Miami, the passenger steamer chartered by the Northern Steamship company to make Lake Superior connections with the North Land and North West at Mackinac during the present season, will arrive in Duluth on her first trip shortly after 10 o'clock tonight. According to her schedule, the Miami will leave again at midnight, making a stay of less than two hours.

The Miami is a Plant line steamer, brought to Lake Superior from Florida. She has a gross tonnage of 1741, and a net tonnage of 1311. Her length over all is 239 feet and her breatdth 40. She d ■ vs 21 feet 8 inches of water. The Miami was built by the Cramps at Philadelphia in 1897, and her home port is St. Augustine, Florida.

After Canadian Lands.

J. H. M. Parker, immigration agent of the Canadian government, leaves tonight on the United Empire with a party bound for Western Canada to inspect land with a view of purchase and settlement. At Port Arthur the party leaves the steamer for a special car on the Canadian Pacific, which is to be their migratory home for at least six weeks. When completed the party will number twenty-seven.

H. W. Coffin, Robert Coulton, David Mier and W. J. Richardson, of Duluth, and Mr. Shirk, of Mankato, Minn., sail on the United Empire from this port, while the remainder of the land seekers join Mr. Parker at Winnipeg. Men from Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin comprise the party, together with the local people. The special car will stop at every place of interest from Winnipeg to the Rocky Mountains. Among the stops scheduled are Edmonton, Calgary and Medicine Hat.

Homeseeker's Rates.

June 18 the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets to all points South and West at one fare, plus $2, for round trip tickets, good returning twenty-one days from date of sale. Call at city ticket office, 332 West Superior street, or Union depot.

THE BOARD CAN MOVE

Case In Which Street Obstruction Was Quickly Stopped.

Brings a Pertinent Query as to the Lerch Barn.

No Work Done Today on Moving the Building.

The board of public works can move when the proper pressure is brought to bear upon it. This statement is made for the benefit of those people who have been asserting during the past few days, as they contemplated the manner in which the Lerch barn is allowed to remain on First street to the complete obstruction of that thoroughfare, that the board was composed of men who had not the backbone to make anything move. Those persons will be interested to learn that in a recent instance the board did force a removal.

Some time ago Charles Lawrence, who has maintained a residence and small store at O-at-ka beach, found himself without a site for a store for the Interstate Traction company had secured a lease of the lot on which he was located. He secured a lease of a lot across the avenue from where he was located from Mrs. Morris Thomas, who claimed to be the owner. He started to move his building over and got it as far as Minnesota avenue, when he was notified that the Interstate Traction company had a lease of the lot to which he was going. It developed that there is a flaw in the title and that Mrs. Thomas may not be the owner of the lot. An injunction was secured to prevent its removal. Mr. Lawrence found himself with his building on the avenue and no place to go to.

Now Minnesota avenue at that point could probably only be located by a surveyor with instruments, but the board of public works discovered that a highway was being obstructed and promptly ordered Mr. Lawrence to vacate. He endeavored to explain that he could not move without being in contempt of court, but three days ago Mrs. Lawrence walked into the office of their attorney and told him that about June 7 or 8 the board had caused their building to be torn down and that the lumber was piled up down there on a vacant lot.

Now, this is not recited with any view of censuring the board for its activity, but to invite the inquiry as to why, if the board could move with such determination and summary effect in the case of Mr. Lawrence way down there on an avenue over which a team never travels, it cannot get the Lerch barn, which reposes peacefully on an active street, out of the way.

Possibly the Interstate Traction company can give some enlightenment upon the subject of how to make the board move.

Not a stroke of work was done today on either section of the Lerch building up to this afternoon. Nor has anything been done toward getting the property to which the building is to go in shape to receive the buildings. If the owners of the building now on the property fgat removal, how long may they tie up the barn in its present location?

Mr. Lerch's situation is unfortunate, without doubt, and that is generally admitted, but it is at the same time the general expression that his interests are not paramount to all others, and that there is a limit to which streets may be obstructed. That that limit has been passed there is little question.

SIX ARRESTS.

Attempt to Blow Up Cedar Island Lake Dam.

Word was received today that another attempt had been made to blow up the dam of the Cloquet Lumber company at Cedar Island lake yesterday, and that six men had been arrested charged with the attempt. The effort was unsuccessful, the men having been prevented from carrying out their intention.

No details of the matter had reached Duluth up to a late hour. County Attorney McClintock said that he had received notice of the arrest of the men, and that his presence would be necessary at the hearing, but he received nothing further, and the names of the men arrested are not known. Later in the day he received word that the men would be arraigned Saturday morning at 11 o'clock before Justice Anderson, of Sparta, and he will be there to represent the state.

This is another outgrowth of the trouble over the title to the Cedar Island lake lands. The United States court has upheld the title of the Cloquet Lumber company, but the settlers seem to be clinging to their claim. The report which reached Duluth was from Eveleth, and it was stated that the attempt to blow up the dam was made by men in sympathy with the settlers. The attempt has been made before during the controversy.

FINE CROPS.

Manager Searle of Peavey Company Says Reports Are Rosy.

A. L. Searle, manager of the Peavey Elevator company, is in Duluth today and was on the board of trade today. Mr. Searle says the reports which his company receives from the wheat-growing sections of the country are all excellent and predict a great crop. It is true that in some of the low sections there has been all the rain that is needed, but even should there be damage there it will not be enough to affect the general crop. The condition on the higher lands is so fine that it will offset any damage to lowland wheat 100 times over.

Jones, a young lawyer of Wautoma, who was shot in a fight with his brother-in-law, William George Thomas, here June 12, died today from the effects of his wounds. Thomas has been arrested charged with murder. He will plead self-defense.

BURNED THE TOWN

Capt. Rowan of Nineteenth Under Arrest For So Doing.

It Caused an Active Renewal of the Native Insurrection.

Complaint Made Against Arbitrary Action of Civil Service Board.

Manilla, June 18.—Capt. Andrew S. Rowan of the Nineteenth infantry, is under arrest for the destruction of a town and thereby causing active renewal of the insurrection in the island of Bohol. A native who has assassinated a corporal was caught and killed. Capt. Rowan, then burned an adjacent town, and the people inflamed with rage, rejoined the insurgent chief, Sampson.

One hundred and fifty former United States soldiers, a majority of them being capable employes of the civil departments, have protested to Gen. MacArthur against the alleged arbitrary exercises of discretionary authority on the part of the civil service board. The law gives the board discretion to make a rule requiring the examinations of old employes and the board has not announced whether it will or will not require these examinations. All the petitioners agreed to resign, rather than submit to examinations, and will accept private employment unless the matter is settled quickly. The members of the board say that since no action has been taken there is no grievance. Gen. MacArthur has requested the board to transmit to him a rule covering the point, for promulgation, according to law.

The members of the civil service board say they have taken no action on the question involved, but have notified Lieut. Col. Crowder, the military governor's secretary, to send his clerks for examination. Col. Crowder, in reply, asked for the certification of the rule under which the examination was required. Col. Crowder says that it will be inconvenient to spare the men, and that the requirement is unduly stringent at the present juncture.

The correspondent of the Associated Press asked Judge Taft what the attitude of the United States commission will be. He replied that, officially, he was not aware that a remonstrance had been made. The board is authorized to determine the question on general principles if the men threaten to resign rather than stand a reasonable examination, not competitive, he was in favor of letting them resign.

Calles' insurgent troops are beginning to rendezvous at Pagasjan, Laguna province, when they will proceed to Santa Cruz on Laguna de Bay, to surrender. The Americans are evacuating Pagasjan at Calles' request. Meanwhile the saloons in Laguna are closed.

MAY LYNCH.

Cold Blooded Murder Stirs the Citizens of Union, Ia.

St. Paul, June 18.—A Marshalltown, Iowa, special to the Dispatch says: A cold-blooded murder occurred at Union, just across the line in Hardin country, last night, the particulars of which have just been received here. Mel. Clemons and Will Burguff, two young men of that town, have been bitter enemies for some time.

Last night about 8 o'clock while Burguff was sitting on a box on the street of the town, Clemons came up to him and struck him on the head with a steel bar, knocking Burguff off the box. Clemons then threw himself upon the other and stabbed him in the eye with the bar. His skull was fractured and his brain penetrated by the bar. The victim lived only about two hours.

In a short time a mob formed and attempted to take Clemons from the officers, but he was finally placed safely in the county jail at Eldora after an exciting ride across the country. It is said Clemons had threatened to kill Burguff. Lynching is feared and the jail is carefully guarded.

END NEAR.

Ex-Governor Pingree Can Live But a Few Hours.

London, June 18, 7:25 p. m.—Dr. Sir Thomas Barlow, Dr. Sir William Broadbent and Dr. Mills had a consultation this evening regarding the case o Mr. Pingree. A representative of the Associated Press was afterward informed that the malignant ulceration of the intestines was so pronounced that the recovery of the patient was practically impossible. The frequent administration of stimulants alone prevents his collapse.

8:05 p. m.—Mr. Pingree is sinking fast. Dr. Mills says teh end is only a question of a few hours.

CUT OFF.

Last Reports From Greenville, S. C., Indicated Bad Fire.

Atlanta, Ga., June 18.—It is reported here that a large portion of the city of Greeneville, S. C., has been swept away by fire. Communication has been cut off since 3 a. m., when the telegraphers at Greenville wired that buildings all around the telegraph office were on fire.

WISCONSIN G. A. R.

Annual Encampment Held at Sheboygan.

Milwaukee, June 18.—A Journal special from Sheboygan, Wis., says: The thirty-fifth annual encampment of the Wisconsin department of the G. A. R. opened today before a good attendance. The encampment will continue through to Thursday. Among those mentioned for next department commander are ex-Governor Edward Scofield, of Oconto; John De Groff, of Alma, and Col. Copeland, of La Crosse. Mr. Schofield says he is not a candidate. Maj. Leo Rassieur, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., will speak at a big camp fire on Thursday night.

A FISH FARM.

Farmer Josiah Massey is conducting an experiment in fish culture on his farm, near Chestertown, says the Baltimore Sun. He calls himself a "fish farmer," and his "fish farm" covers about two acres of clear water. It is alive during these warm spring days with black bass, ranging in size from tiny "fry" to great gamy fellows twelve to eighteen inches long. Farmer Massey received 100 small fish last December, one year ago, and from this stock comes his present supply of fine table fish. He dammed a small stream, and in that way has secured his lake of pure, sweet water. The fish are kept from passing out with the flowing water by a large tubular boiler placed on the dam, through which the water flows out. The larger fish cannot pass through, and the enthusiastic fish farmer says that so far as he can see the smaller ones make no effort to follow the current. The fish are fed like turkeys or chickens, on old-fashioned Eastern Shore corn pone. They devour the crumbled corn-bread ravenously, and swarm toward the spot where feeding is done. Recently Mr. Massey picked the feathers from a large rooster, which had been injured and was unfit for table use, but as an experiment he threw it into the fishpond. The fish attacked the carcass and speedily picked the bones clean.

CULTURE OF IDIOTS.

There is today in Aosta, in Northern Italy, an asylum for the care and culture of idiots, says the Popular Science Monthly. HTe cretin and the goitre are assembled there, and the marriage of those who cannot take care of themselves insures the preservation of their strains of unfitness. By caring devotedly for those who in the stress of life could not live a week and by caring for their children, generation after generation, the good people of Aosta have produced a new breed of men, who cannot even feed themselves. These are incompetent through selection of degradation, while the "man of the hoe" is primitively ineffective.

The growth of the goitre in the valleys of Savoy, Piedmont and Valais is itself in large part a matter of selection. The boy with the goitre is exempt from military service. He remains at home to become the father of the family. It is said that at one time the government of Savoy furnished the children of that region with lozenges of iodine, which were supposed to check the abnormal swelling of the thyroid gland, known as the goitre. This disease is a frequent cause of idiocy or cretinism, as well as its almost constant accompaniment. It is said the mothers gave the lozenges only to the girls, preferring that the boys should grow up to the goitre rather than to the army. The causes of goitre are obscure, perhaps depending on poor nutrition, or on mineral substances in the water. The disease itself is not hereditary, so far as known, but susceptibility to it certainly is. By taking away for outside service those who are resistant, the hereditary of tendency to goitre swelling is fastened on those who remain.

Like these mothers in Savoy was a mother in Germany. Not long since a friend of the writer, passing through a Franconian forest, found a young man lying senseless by the way. It was a young recruit for the army who had got into some trouble with his comrades. They had beaten him and left him lying with a broken head. Carried to his home, his mother fell on her knees and thanked God, for this injury had saved him from the army.

INTELLIGENCE OF FISHES.

"Here is a curious thing that fishes do and one that seems clearly to show great intelligence," said an old fisherman. "It might be that two fishes same feet apart saw the same object of prey, maybe a smaller fish, at the same instant and they might both dart for it at once and come violently into collision while their prey escaped. Now that would be when they had each the same chance of capturing what they wanted; they would both make a dash for it. But often I have seen something very different happen. Of two larger fishes following along side by side and pretty well closed up together pursuing a minnow, I have seen the rearmost sheer off and let the other fellow have it; apparently, either because he knew he couldn't reach it, and there was no use of his trying any more, or because he knew that if he kept on and mixed in he would make the fish ahead lose the game, as well as himself. This last would seem to indicate, besides intelligence, unselfishness on the part of fish No. 2; but the action of sheering off when he saw he couldn't get it, showed intelligence anyhow.

Phil May, who makes humorous sketches, was 37 years old on April 22. Simple as his sketches look, produced with the minimum number of lines, the result is obtained only by hard work and the persistent elimination of each superfluous stroke of the pen until the finished result is obtained. Mr. May has seen many sides of life, for at one time he traveled with a theatrical company and played many parts, for a salary of $2.75 a week.

In the famous cellars of the Hotel de Ville, at Bremen, there are a dozen cases of holy wine, which have been preserved for 250 years. A merchant figures that if the cost of maintaining the cellars, payment of rent, interest upon the original value of the wine and other incidental charges are considered, a bottle of this choice Madeira has cost no less than $2,000,000, each glassful $270,000, and a single drop could not be sold without loss under $200.

RETALIATORY ACTION

Russia Imposes a High Tariff Rate on Several American Imports to Offset Recent Restrictions on Petroleum.

Washington, June 18.—The Russian ambassador, Count Cassini, has communicated to the state department that in consequence of the action of the American government, through a treasury order of March 9 last, applying tariff restrictions against Russian petroleum imported into this country, the Russian minister of finance, M. De Witte, has issued an order, dated June 7, imposing the high tariff rate of the Russian schedule on American white resin or calafin, galapot and white resin, under article eighty-two of the Russian tariff law, and increasing the rate on American bicycles under article 173 of the Russian laws.

This action is entirely apart from that taken in connection with Russian sugar, and is a new development in the discriminatory duties imposed by this government and the retaliatory duties imposed by Russia. The order of the Russian minister is to take effect next Friday, or two weeks from the date of its issuance.

CABINET.

Situation in New Possessions and In China Was Discussed.

Washington, June 18.—The cabinet meeting today was without important feature. There was desultory discussion of the Chinese settlement, the situation in the Philippines, Cuba and Porto Rico, but nothing of moment developed, and no action was decided upon.

The president is prepared to issue his proclamation declaring the abolition of duties between the United States and Porto Rico if the insular legislature, at the extraordinary session called for July 4, present facts to him to sustain the claims that the revenues under the Hollander tax law makes the island self-sustaining.

The cabinet believe that the Chinese settlement is close at hand. In talking of this settlement, Secretary Hay suggested that the amounts voluntarily paid the American missionaries by Chinese provinces should be deducted from our aggregate claim of $25,000,000. The sentiment of the cabinet seemed to favor this course, but no action was taken.

Secretary Hitchcock reported that a decision of the courts in the suit to enjoin him from proceeding with the opening of the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache reservation, in Oklahoma, probably will be rendered in a few days. Until the court acts nothing further will be done.

WILL REOPEN.

Cash Register Company Strike Is Settled.

Washington, June 18.—President Gompers of the National Federation of Labor today stated that a conference practically had been arranged between officers of the Cash Register company, of Dayton, Ohio, and the representatives of the various labor unions engaged in the strike in the works of that company, with a view to arranging a settlement of differences. About 2600 persons are engaged in the strike.

Dayton, Ohio, June 18.—It is announced here that the registry works will reopen tomorrow morning, the strike having been settled.

AN IRISH EXHIBIT.

Will Be Arranged For Louisiana Purchase Expo.

St. Louis, June 18.—At a meeting of the Irish National World's Fair association steps have been taken toward forming a permanent organization to arrange an Irish exhibit for the Louisiana purchase exposition, to be held here in 1903. A committee appointed at a previous meeting, reported in favor of a plan for the raising of $600,000 by popular subscription from the Irish throughout the country.

SALE NEXT MONDAY.

Forfeited Tax Sale to Come Off Then.

The first forfeited tax sale of the year will be held next Monday, provided the supreme court does not sustain the finding of Referee Phelps in the McHarg case. It will be a resale of the property that was sold in 1899, under the forfeited tax law of 1897, and it will much larger than the one that will be held in September, which is only of property sold in 1900 under the law of 1899.

The McHarg case was argued in the supreme court yesterday, and a decision is expected any time. It will surely be handed down before the sale takes Monday, and it is looked for today or tomorrow. If the supreme court upholds the finding of Referee Phelps, which is to the effect that the payment of money under the sale of 1899 settles the tax, regardless of the finding of the supreme court that the sale was void, then there will be no sale Monday, and it will amount to the supreme court's reversing itself and declaring the forfeited tax sale of 1899 valid.

So far as the decision of the court can be forecasted, it is likely that the Phelps' decision will be reversed and that the sale will go forward as advertised.

MIDGETS COMING.

M. S. Burrows Arranges For Unusual Attraction.

It is something else new. M. S. Burrows is nothing if not original in his desire to please his hoast of customers, and as it is said that the surest way to please the old people is to please the young ones, the latest stroke of work of this great clothing merchant is to bring here for the benefit of the children, the world's greatest midgets, Maj. N. G. W. Winner and wife, who are know all over the globe. The major is 36 inches in height and weighs but 42 pounds, although he is 31 years of age, while his wife is one inch shorter, two pounds lighter, and nine years younger than her husband. They can be seen at M. S. Burrows' store on the second floor, all next week, commencing Monday morning. Mr. Burrows has gone to great expense in securing this attraction, but will doubtless be fully repaid in the pleasure that his visitors will receive.

Buys Some Property.

Henry F. Davis has purchased four lots at the southwest corner of Michigan street and First avenue east for $10,000 from Charles G. Delitzsch, of Superior, the deed having been filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds. The property is described as lots 18, 19, 20 and 21, block 13, Central division. Another deed filed at the same time indicated the conveyance of lots 18, 19 and 20 from Amelia Baldwin to Delitzsch for $5000.

ANNUAL SESSION

Sixth Convocation of Episcopal Missionary District of Duluth.

Evening Missionary Meeting With Address By Bishop Williams.

Annual Meet of Women's Auxiliary on Thursday.

The sixth annual convocation of the Episcopal Missionary district of Duluth will be held at St. Paul's church, commencing tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, when the opening service will take place. The celebration of the holy communion will follow and will be conducted by Bishop Morrison, assisted by the president of the standing committee, Dr. Ryan and other clergy. The sermon will be "The Bishop's Charge."

Immediately after the service the convocation will be called to order and the regular committees appointed. The business will be carried on during the day. An adjournment will be taken from 12 to 2 p. m., the afternoon session adjourning at 5 o'clock. Should the business not be completed by that time, the session will resume at 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

In the evening at 8 o'clock a missionary service will be held in the church. Addresses will be made by Right Rev. Dr. Williams, the bishop of Marquette, Rev. R. J. Mooney, rector of the Episcopal church of Brainerd, and by one of the Indian clergy. Rev. Frederick Smith. Thursday evening tneere will be a reception. Thursday evening there will be a reception at the Episcopal residence, 2131 East Superior street.

It is not definitely known just how many visitors will attend the convocation, there being about forty clergymen and sixty parishes to send delegates.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the district of Duluth, will be held at St. Paul's church Thursday. Bishop Williams will deliver an address in the morning when the reports will be received. In the afternoon an address will be delivered by Arch Deacon Appleby and Mrs J. D. Morrison, the president of the auxiliary will speak. Papers will be read on the "Junior Auxiliary as a Power in the Parish," "How to Enlist Young Women in Missionary Work," "Work in Lumber Camps," and "Do Missions Pay?" The meeting will close with an address by the Right Rev. J. D. Morrison, the bishop of Duluth.

EXTENDS WESTWARD.

Wright-Clarkson Co. Purchases Western House.

Within the past few days arrangements have been completed whereby the Wright-Clarkson Mercantile company, of this city, purchases the stock and business of the Ray Mercantile company, wholesale grocers, of Crookston, Minn.

The object of this purchase has been to largely increase the business of the Western concern, and by being on the ground to handle to a better advantage the immense trade of the Western states.

The business of the Duluth house has increased very rapidly since its organization, and from time to time the capital has been increased until at the present time the firm's capital stock of $150,000 is entirely paid up. It is not the intention of the Duluth house to further increase its capital, but a new firm will be organized, which the Wright-Clarkson Mercantile company will control. Articles of incorporation of the new firm have not been filed, but will be within a few days.

It is the intention of the new company to solicit the Western business thoroughly and to largely increase the output of the Crookston house, and that it will be a pushing, energetic firm, backed with ample capital, is assured.

The Ray Mercantile company already has a large trade and travels several men, but with the largely increased capital which the new firm will bring along, the business will be rapidly extended, and the house becomes a credit to the city of Crookston and to the enterprise of Duluth jobbers.

The Herald is the business man's paper, because it gives him the latest news—the news of today, not yesterday. Hence, to reach him, advertise in The Herald.

AFTER THE HACKMEN

City Authorities to Stop Fast Driving at Night.

Many Complaints By Pedestrians Telling of Narrow Escapes.

Present Ordinance Full of Holes---After Bootblacks, Too.

The ordinance department of the municipal government may soon train its heaviest guns on the low rakish crafts that cruise Superior street after dark.

Dangerously fast driving by hackmen must come to a sudden and an abrupt ending, says the mayor.

Complaints have been made in great stress of mind, by a number of pedestrians that have been nearly run down at night. One or two have had the narrowest of escapes and the wonder is that serious accidents have not occurred.

Alderman Edward Eswenson, of the Eighth ward was nearly run down by a hackman recently. He says that it was the most reckless kind of driving, and when the mayor and chief of police get their campaign mapped out they can probably rely on some strong and enthusiastic support from Mr. Swenson.

To remedy this danger, it is proposed to have every hack registered and fixed up with lamps which must be kept burning brightly when the hacks are in commission at night. On the glass of the lamp must be placed the number of the hack so that in case of accident the number can readily be seen and properly reported.

In connection with the proposed hack ordinance the hackmen have a counter proposition against the general public, which may account for the apparent efforts to run some of the public under wheel. The present city statutes provide that the hackmen shall not charge exorbitant rates, but it neglects to make provision whereby the hackmen can collect his legitimate fare if the passenger refuses to pay.

In fact, the present hack ordinance is a sort of sieve. It is full of holes and hopelessly inconsistent. There are openings big enough to drive a funeral through.

It is probable that in regulating the driving of hacks, steps will also be taken to give the hackmen protection from the general public.

Another matter which the city officers have under consideration is the licensing of boot blacks. Little urchins, born under sunny Southern skies, seem to be under the impression that the Bowery is the next best place to Italy. However, the police refuse to let them overrun the Bowery, swearing at ministers and woodsmen without respect of person or previous conditions. The officers have been so successful in stopping this nuisance that the parents of the boot blacks are urging the authorities to license their children and let them ply their juvenile vocation.

MAKES HIS REPORT.

Receiver Webber Makes His Statement to Court.

Frank R. Webber, receiver for the Syndicate Land company, this morning made a report to the district court of his receipt and disbursement, and secured an order permitting him to distribute $5000 among the stockholders. He also secured permission to sell lands in section 28, 64-15 to the Crown Lumber company for $1131.25, which is at the rate of $1.75 for the Norway pine on the land and $2.50 for the white pine.

Receiver Webber's report shows that he had received $6957.77 since his appointment and paid out $988.17, leaving $5856.60 on hand. He asked to pay a dividend of $5000 to the stockholders and keep the rest for taxes and other necessary expenses, and Judge Cant signed an order granting his request.

FIRE IN LUMBER.

Blaze With Dangerous Possibilities Suppressed.

What came near to being a disastrous fire occurred this morning ust before noon at the Scott-Graff lumber yards. A pile of seasoned pine lumber was ignited by a spark and there was a great fear that the yard men would not be able to cope with it until the fire department came, the wind being strong. However, the fire was kept inside the pile and was soon extinguished by the department. The loss will be very small. It is said at the mill that the fire caught from a spark from a small sawmill operated by Martin Bros., as the smoke from the mill was blowing directly over the burning pile. Martin Bros. make cedar posts and burn the sawdust and the slabs. The Martin mill was destroyed in the fire which ravaged the Scott-Graff yards some weeks ago, but has since been rebuilt.

This morning there was about 1,500,000 feet of lumber in the yard, most of which belonged to Richardson & Avery. Insurance to the amount of $40,000 was taken off this yesterday as they expected to ship it last night, so the loss, had it all been burned, would have been total.

Is Found Insane.

Carrie Halvorson was found to be insane in probate court yesterday afternoon, and Judge Bonham ordered her sent to the asylum for the insane at Fergus Falls.

Whisky is the cause of her mental trouble, and her case is one where the detention place provided for by the last legislature would come into play. The physicians who examined her say that she will probably be all right in a couple of months, and that she will be discharged from the insane hospital by the end of that time. There is no place to keep her in Duluth, and until a place of detention is provided the only course is to send her to the asylum.

The Sun Becoming Extinct.

An eminent scientist has startled the world with the declaration that the heat of the sun is being exhausted. He assures us, however, that it will be many centuries before it takes place. In the meantime we should try and make the best of life and enjoy it while we have the opportunity. This, however, is impossible unless you have good health, and especially a strong stomach. Use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to keep the stomach in order and you will be happy. It cures dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, aids digestion and keeps the bowels regular. It has been the standard medicine of the American people over fifty years. Insist on having the genuine with our private revenue stamp over the neck of the bottle.

WIFE AND ACTRESS

Railroad Official of Colorado Is Involved In a Scandal.

His Wife Jealous of His Attentions to Chorus Girl.

Claims He Is Misjudged ---Has Had Checkered Career.

Chicago, June 18.—A jealous wife and her 15-year-old son waiting for a husband and father near the room of an actress in the Wellington hotel at 2 o'clock in the morning, discovery by the actress of their preence, a war of words in the hall and the forcing of a door, with demands for an explanation—these things bid fair to strain the bonds of affection between Edward G. Davidson, general traffic agent of the Colorado Midland railroad, and pretty Mrs. Davidson. The actress is Miss Frankie Palmer of the chorus in "The Casino Girl," and a daughter of Frank A. Palmer, assistant general passenger agent of the Wabash railroad.

Mrs. Davidson appeared at the Wellington hotel with her son at 11 o'clock Friday evening. Mr. Davidson had informed her that morning that he intended to leave the city. Mrs. Davidson asked the clerk for room No. 429. Room No. 430 was occupied by Miss Palmer. After some time spent in convincing the clerk that her intentions were peaceable, Mrs. Davidson was given the room she asked for. Her son was placed in a room across the hall.

About 1 o'clock in the morning Miss Palmer arrived at the hotel and sought her apartments. Whether the clerk below had informed her of certain remarks made by Mrs. Davidson a few hours before or whether she had learned in some other way of the presence of the lady in the building, Miss Palmer lost no time in entering into communication with her. The way in which Miss Palmer pounded on the door of room No. 429 was calculated to arouse every occupant of the building. Mrs. Davidson hastily opened the door.

"Get away, you wretch!" she screamed.

"What do you mean?—" cried Miss Palmer; but the door was closed before she could finish her sentence.

Then Miss Palmer crossed to the room occupied by Mr. Davidson's son and knocked loudly upon the door. The boy came to the door in a night robe. When he saw who was without, he attempted to close the door, but Miss Palmer was too quick for him. Matching her strength against that of the youth, she forced an entrance. Then seating herself, she talked of the disposition of Mrs. Davidson and gave her personal opinion of her. At times her voice rose to a shriek and her gestures were more like those of a tragedienne than a chorus girl. Finally, she retired to her room.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson were seen at their home in Glen Ellyn. They freely discussed the incident at the hotel. Mrs. Davidson's story was interspersed with bitter reproaches addressed to her husband and was related in tears. Mr. Davidson entered a complete denial of any unfaithfulness and explained that the whole trouble was born of his wife's intense jealousy. Davidson admitted that in the past his conduct might not have been all that might be desired. While living in Zanesville, Ohio, he first attracted attention by becoming engaged to three girls at the same time. He was living there under the name of William Conn. Today he said he had discarded this, his real name, for business reasons.

Last year Davidson and his wife caused excitement in the village of Glen Ellyn by a family quarrel which resulted in threats by Mrs. Davidson to horsewhip and shoot a 15-year-old girl. A brother of Mrs. Davidson threatened to interfere and Davidson announced that he would kill him if he ever came to the house again.

"Either of two things would satisfy me," said Davidson. "One would be for my wife to admit she has misjudged me, which is not probable and the other would be for her and Frankie Palmer to get into a quarrel and kill each other."

Miss Palmer was married some years ago to a man named Miller, and the couple made their home in the East. A daughter was born in the family. Strained relations with the latter led to her departure. She then traveled extensively about the country. She has one child, a girl about three years old. Miss Palmer, when seen at the Wellington hotel, was not inclined to discuss her encounter with Mrs. Davidson, remarking that she thought the account of the meeting had been exaggerated.

CASH BOND

Furnished By Montana Ore Company By Court's Ruling.

Salt Lake, Utah, June 18.—A special to the Tribune from Helena, Mont., says: The suprmee court today granted the motion of the Montana Ore Purchasing company to substitute a bond in place of that furnished it through the Delaware Surety company, provided it furnished a cash bond of $250,000, which was done. It was alleged the surety company was organized by Heinze for the purpose of putting up a straw bond. A commissioner was authorized to take evidence in New York as to the liability of the company, but he was unable to locate any of the company's officers.

Chief Justice Brantley in dissenting, said he believed the defendants were guilty of contempt and deserving of no further consideration by the court.

CYCLONE.

Delaware, O., Visited By Terrific Gale Doing Great Damage.

Cleveland, June 18.—A special to the Evening Plaindealer from Delaware, Ohio, says: A terrific cyclone has swept this place. Buildings were blown over, lumber driven into houses and carriages carried 500 feet. It is not yet known whether there have been casualties.

ONCE MORE A HAPPY WOMAN.

Completely Cured of Catarrh By Peruna. General Health Also Improved.

Miss Ida Murray writes from 2537 Polk street, Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"I had chronic catarrh of the head, which made the slightest cold so much worse, I am completely cured of my catarrh after four months' faithful use of Peruna, and my general health is greatly improved. I always speak a good word for Peruna."—Ida Murray.

Miss Anna Bryan, a favorite cousin of William Jennings Bryan, writes from 1459 Florida avenue, Washington, D. C.

"At the solicitation of a friend I began some weeks ago to take your Peruna and I now feel like a new person. I take pleasure in recommending it to all who want a good tonic, and a permanent cure for catarrh."—Anna Bryan.

Catarrh Generally Thought to Be a Disease of the Head Only.

Wherever there is a mucous membrane there catarrh may exist.

The only reason that catarrh is more frequent in the passages of the nose and throat is because these passages are more exposed to cold than the other portions of the mucous membrane. But one is liable to have catarrh of the lungs, or kidneys, or stomach, or liver, or bowels, and especially the bladder and other pelvic organs.

Peruna is a specific in cases of female weakness or pelvic catarrh and is heartily endorsed by all the women.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, president of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

AT WEST DULUTH

At the council meeting last night provision was made for the sprinkling of Central avenue and the streets adjacent. Street Commissioner Meldahl of that district will have charge of the work until the contract is given to some one not connected with the city government. H. R. Patterson presented the lowest bid for doing the work, and the board of public works accepted his proposal, but the city council could not ratify the agreement. Mr. Patterson was recently appointed a member of the board of health, a position in which he serves without salary or fee, but the council decided to keep the matter in abeyance until the next meeting. Bids for doing the sprinkling will be advertised for, although it is not positively settled that Mr. Patterson's offer will have to be rejected owing to the wording of the new charter. The high wind blowing today is causing a dust storm at intervals on Central avenue, and the people were watching expectantly for the sprinkler this morning. As soon as Street Commissioner Meldahl is notified of the action of the council he will begin on the work.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Alderman Barnes' ordinance cutting off the fire limit at Gosnold street did no come up at the council meeting last night. The proposed ordinance is in the hands of the committee.

The Senate club's party at Gilley's hall last night was probably the most thoroughly enjoyed of any that have been given by that organization. Sixty couple were in attendance, and the hours flitted too rapidly away. The ladies of the party furnished delicious refreshments. Music was rendered by the Columbian orchestra.

Arrangements are nearly completed for the meeting of the Lake Superior Baptist association, which commences at West Duluth Baptist church Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Newman, of Eveleth, are greeting their many friends about the city.

Yesterday was the 33rd birthday anniversary of O. J. Petrushke, and in the evening he was surprised by a company of friends at his home, 204 Fifty-third avenue. Several merry hours were passed in dancing, after which came refreshments. In the party were: Mr. and Mrs. G. O'Brien and daughter Bessie. Mr. and Mrs. William Seguin, Mr. and Mrs. P. Foucault, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gray, Miss K. Peterson, Mr. C. Parsons.

Mrs. James Lockhart, who died at her home in New Duluth last Saturday morning, was buried at Calvary cemetery this morning. The services were held from St. James' church.

Capt. Holmberg, late of the Fourteenth Minnesota U. S. V. infantry, has received a letter from the treasury department at Washington which will greatly interest the men who were members of that regiment. The men have a claim against Uncle Sam of about $10 each back pay, and from the advice received by Capt. Holmberg it appears that the government has given the matter its attention and is preparing to pay all proved claims.

The ladies of St. James' church give a lawn social on the church grounds Thursday night.

Mr. Hartley is home from Minneapolis.

Dr. Robert Forbes, presiding elder of this district, is home from a trip over his circuit.

Rev. R. A. Saunderson is expected home Saturday after a long tour doing church work in towns between here and St. Paul.

O. Oleson is home from Eau Claire, Wis., where he has been visiting relatives. Mr. Olson is thinking of making the Wisconsin city his home in future.

John Cashin is having some improvements made in his lumber office.

The Hibernians meet tonight at Gilley's hall.

J. J. Laurmann left this morning for Long Prairie and other Minnesota points. He will be gone a week.

St. Clement's Choir and Dramatic club gave a banquet last night for Father Alford, of Twentieth avenue west, who leaves soon to take up new work down in Dixie.

Attorney H. W. Launers is home from St Paul.

A daughter came this morning to gladden the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Holter, 5819 Redruth street.

A small party of young people enjoyed a trip on the gasoline launch Marie last night. The party had lunch on Big Island.

A party of West Duluth young people enjoyed an outing under umbrellas at Oatka Sunday afternoon. In spite of the bad weather an enjoyable time was had. Those present were: Mrs. Lena Otto, Minnie Jacques, Celia Berg, Clara Berg, Alice Tiess, Laura Tina, Lea Laesse, Condy Hines, Fred Toldzin, William Dodsrey.

LOOMIS PLEASED.

Considers His New Position a Promotion.

Paris, June 18.—Francis B. Loomis, until recently United States minister to Venezuela, in an interview today with the correspondent here of the Associated Press, said he was very much pleased at his appointment to the post of minister at Lisbon. His health had suffered by his stay in tropical Venezuela, and he considered his transfer to a European legation, as being not merely an agreeable change, but a promotion. He thought he was entitled to regard the appointment as an open expression of confidence on the part of the administration, which had unfalteringly supported him in the Venezuela trouble. Mr. Loomis did not forsee ground for any renewal of the unpleasantness. On the contrary, he looked forward to an era of the most friendly relations between the two countries under Herbert W. Bowen, his successor.

Mr. Loomis will take a trip to Switzerland and thence he will probably return to America, before taking up his post.

TO HAVE DOUBLE MOTORS.

Paris, June 18.—The Petit Parisian says the new French submarine boats building, will be furnished with double motors—steam and electricity—similar to the fittings of the Holland, thus increasing their sphere of action and enabling them to plunge quicker then the Narval. The latter's recent experiments were unsatisfactory. The crew suffered greatly and navigation on the surface was also defective.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST?

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY— It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN— It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE— As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP— By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

CHARTER PREVENTS

Business Men Up Against One of Its Provisions.

Cannot Hold Honorary Offices and Get City Business.

Council to Place Fire Hall Insurance In Future.

At the council meeting last night:

It was demonstrated that business men cannot serve the city and themselves at the same time.

The aldermen decided to place fire insurance on fire halls instead of having fire commissioners do it.

Alderman Cromwell introduced an ordinance amendment providing against rebuilding of plank walks.

Action on the Michigan street drinking fountain dispute was deferred one week. Fountain may not be placed.

The recent "raise and cut" in salaries of the engineering department was approved by party vote.

The building inspector was authorized to employ an assistant for the next six months at $75 per.

The Duluth-Superior Traction company was ordered to remove Third avenue wires for Lerch barn removal tonight.

The board of public works was authorized to advertise for bids for improving East First street.

A new stairway was ordered built from Railroad street to the east side of the Lake avenue viaduct.

The mayor's appointment of Joseph K. Persons to succeed Herbert Martindale on water board, received.

The board of fire commissioners was ordered to investigate the bills for fire hydrant rentals.

All bills against the city for the month of May were allowed and orders can be cashed Wednesday.

The predicament of business men who serve the city in an honorary capacity at the expense of their own private interests is certainly far from pleasant.

Just because the new charter says that a city officer shall not have a contract with the city, two business men who have given up valuable time and experience to the city were deprived of small contracts at the meeting of the council last evening.

The bill of Little & Nolte for a small amount of fire insurance was not allowed because Mr. Little is a member of the board of civil service commissioners. The West Duluth street sprinkling contract awarded by the board of public works to H. R. Patterson, was turned down because Mr. Patterson was so unfortunate as to have an unremunerative office on the board of health.

Within the last year the municipal government has become a government very largely of boards. The fear is that unless this charter provision can be remedied there will be considerable difficulty in securing good, reliable business men to serve the city on these various boards. In fact, it is even now intimated that a number of resignations may be forthcoming.

From this time on the council and not the board of fire commissioners will order the insurance on buildings of the fire department. For over a year past there has been slight differences between the aldermen and the fire commissioners on this subject, but the city attorney holds that it is clearly within the council's right to place the insurance.

The council's decision in this matter was accelerated by the fact that at one time the board of fire commissioners placed $9400 out of $13,600 worth of insurance with Julius Abrahamson, a relative of William Abrahamson, of the board of fire commissioners. Subsequently the Abrahamson insurance was reduced to $6700, but several of the aldermen claimed that this was too unequal, especially in view of the fact that good insurance had been turned down when offered by agents that were heavy taxpayers.

Alderman Cromwell of the Third ward caused general excitement for a moment by introducing an ordinance amendment providing that no more wooden sidewalks should be built on any street in the city where the grade was less than 2 per cent. The resolution was not acted on, but the indications are that when it does come up, the action will be somewhat violent and damaging to the resolution.

The objection of certain merchants along Michigan street to the new drinking fountain at the corner of Michigan and First avenue west may result in the people of that street not getting a fountain.

Alderman Tessman of the Fourth ward introduced a resolution implying a censure on the board of public works for placing the fountain at First avenue west instead of under the Lake avenue viaduct, as ordered by the council.

President Wilson of the board of public works explained satisfactorily that there was no intention to disregard the instructions of the council, but the supports of the viaduct made Michigan street too narrow at that point, and that if placed under the viaduct the drinking water would be contaminated by filthy water that dripped through from Lake avenue. Mr. Wilson also referred to the fact that the rumble and noise of teams passing over the viaduct would frighten horses under it, and after considerable deliberation the board had decided on First avenue west as the most convenient place.

H. F. Davis, who owns about 125 feet of property at the corner mentioned, made a protest against the placing of the fountain in that locality, but he was the only "commission man" that took enough interest in the dispute to appear before the council.

Alderman Neff suggested that the council rescind the resolution placing the fountain down there, saying that the commission men did not appear overly anxious to have a watering place. Action, however, was deferred for one week.

Alderman Rothermal of the First ward introduced a resolution for the opening of Jefferson street, from about Twenty-sixth avenue east to Forty-second avenue east. From Thirty-ninth avenue to Gallitat, and Forty-second avenue it is proposed to condemn a strip sixty-six feet wide, but from Twenty-sixth to Thirty-ninth only a 40-feet strip is asked. The matter was referred to the committee on streets alleys and sidewalks.

Alderman Moore introduced an ordinance amendment providing for a regularly established pound district for Lakeside and Lester Park. Pending the consideration of this ordinance, a resolution was adopted instructing the street foreman at Lakeside to act as poundmaster.

There was some discussion on the question of approving the recent scale of salaries fixed in the city engineer's office. Under the new arrangement several new and high salaried men have been added to this office, while chainmen and other low-salaried men have been reduced $15 a month.

Alderman Neff of the Fourth ward was very decidedly opposed to a reduction in the salaries of the low-priced men. He said that the men most affected were Democrats under the civil service protection, and that the object of the reduction was to persuade them to resign. Mr. Neff brought out the fact that one of the men who had been reduced $15 a month was the only member of organized labor employed by the city.

Notwithstanding this protest the new schedule of salary for the department was approved by a strictly party vote. The Republicans voted in confirmation and the Democratic members against it. The new schedule is:

Engineer in charge of construction	$125
Engineer in charge of survey	100
Draughtsman	100
First-class inspector	100
Subordinate engineer	75
Second-class inspector	75
Third-class inspector	65
Rodmen, chainmen, etc	50
Cement inspector	25

A resolution was adopted giving the building inspector the right to employ an assistant for the next six months at a salary of $75 a month.

The action of the board of health in awarding the city ambulance contract to the Stewart Livery company for the ensuing year was approved.

The Duluth-Superior Traction company was ordered to remove wires at Third avenue west and First street between midnight and daylight tomorrow morning, in order to get the second section of the Lerch barn across Third avenue. The contractor moving the barn was ordered to have it moved at least 200 feet from Third avenue by 5 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The board of public works was instructed to advertise for bids for the narrowing and improving of East First street from Sixth to Twenty-first avenues. The estimated cost is $13,044.

The action of the board of fire commissioners in fixing the salary of the city electrician at $100 per month was approved after a little debate.

A resolution was adopted ordering the department of public works to build a stairway on the East side of the Lake avenue viaduct down to railroad street, replacing the old stairway from Michigan street, which was recently torn down.

The bills of the water and light department for hydrant rentals was referred to the board of fire commissioners for investigation, and the bills for the month of May in all other departments were allowed.

The mayor announced the appointment of Joseph K. Persons to succeed Herbert Martindale as a member of the board of water and light commissioners.

A Lively Abductor.

J. D. Doucette had a hearing in municipal court at Superior yesterday on the charge of abduction. His trial was fixed for June 27, and bail for $500 was asked, which he could not produce. Doucette recently made a hegira with the entire family of a Week's avenue resident. eHwent West with the wife and three daughters of Joseph Grant, and further journeying was prevented by the police of Missoula, Mont. Mr. Grant was happy to greet his wandering family, and met them at the depot upon their arrival in the city. Mrs. Grant refused to accompany her husband, but the three children are at home with their father.

Fatally Injured.

Harry Miller, a section hand on the Northern Pacific railway, was fatally injured while riding on a hand car yesterday between Poplar and Wentworth, Wis. He was struck on the head by a walking beam. He was taken to St. Francis hospital, Superior, where he died late last night. Miller was a young man and unmarried and leaves a mother at Iron River, Wis.

Dental Society Meeting.

The Duluth-Superior Dental society met Saturday, at Superior, at the West Superior hotel. In the afternoon there was an interesting clinic, and in the evening a banquet, followed by the reading of papers. Dr. Finley, of Superior, and Dr. Catherall, of Duluth, read the papers.

American Mining and Investment Company Caught Suckers Here.

Company Did Not Even Own Its Office Furniture.

The news that the American Mining and Investment company, of Minneapolis, has been forced out of business, will not be without interest to Duluth people, for, sad to say, many Duluthians are numbered among its victims. The company engineered the sale of stock of a number of mining companies that issued incredible millions of stock and sold it at incredibly small prices, from as low as .3 of a mill up as high as 3 cents, the par value of the stock being $1. There was so much stock in the various companies that it would have taken several Homestake mines to pay dividends that would cut much figure, but the cheapness of the stock and the glittering promises of the promoters attracted many people, including a number of Duluthians.

Many of them bought rather sheepishly, knowing that the promises of the company would be hard to realize, and that even if it did find some mines they would have to be veritable Golcondas to produce enough to make much impression on the enormous number of shares among which the dividends would have to be shared. But it was a cheap chance, and there might be one chance in a hundred million or so that they would win out on it, so they bought. Others accepted the promises of the promotors in good faith, not being familiar with the breed, and today their eyes are opened to the faithlessness that mining promotors have been sometimes known to exhibit.

The result of the proceeding to cancel the charter of the company has awakened them out of their golden dream of riches. The hearing disclosed that the company did not even own a godd title to its luxurious and imposing display of office furniture. The subordinate companies whose stock was sold by the American Mining and Investment company are still in existence, and it is said that nearly all of their tremendous stock issues have been sold at a profit of $250,000. That is enough to bring in large dividends to somebody, but so far it has not been ascertained that any of the outside buyers have profited from it.

The St. Paul papers say that the grand jury will probably look into the matter and learn more concerning the company's deeds than is now known.

FIELD DAY.

Duluth Athletes to Compete With Ashland July 4.

Last week the Y. M. C. A. athletes here received a challenge from the Ashland Y. M. C. A. to a field day to be held at Ashland July 4. The Duluth men have decided to accept and are getting into vigorous training for the fray. The men up here do not think the Ashland people will be able to take first place in any of the events, as all of the crack athletes of the city are in the team. Some of the men are as good as, if not better than any in the state. It will doubtless be an exciting event as the greatest rivalry has always existed between the two associations.

The events that will probably be contested are as follows: 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880-yard dash, mile run, 120-yard hurdle, 220-yard hurdle, 440-yard bicycle, mile bicycle, 2-mile bicycle, hammer throw, shot put, pole vault, running high jump, running broad jump.

About ten men will be taken down. Those that will probably do the killing are: Al Olson, Joe Pierce, Frank Prescott, Arthur Mallet, Fred Mallet, Dennis Deighton, Bruce Ellis, Ed Smith, Earl Briggs, Ed Olson and Hans Haroldson.

Delivering the Rails.

The Duluth-Superior Traction company had six carloads of rails delivered at Central Park, Superior, yesterday. This is on the route between the East and West Ends, and is the line which has caused the agitation in that city. The work of laying the rails is expected to commence early in the week. It is announced that Mr. Lowry will meet the officials of Superior again today.

PENSION AND PATENT.

Washington, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A widow's pension of $8 monthly has been granted to Abbie E. Wheeler, of Anoka.

A patent for a coffee boiler has been issued to Charles O. Nelson, of Duluth.

THEY DO IT.

People Quit Coffee and Get Well on Postum Food Coffee.

A man in Milford, Ind., says he did not quit drinking coffee because he thought it hurt him, but because he found a morning beverage he liked better in Postum Food Coffee, but to his wonder and surprise he found in a few weeks all of the old symptoms of sickness had left him.

He had been greatly troubled with his stomach and heart, also with what is called "water brash," and dull headaches "which made him very irritable and quick tempered."

All of these symptoms disappeared and he discovered, in spite of all his previous theories that coffee was really the cause of his troubles, and the leaving off of coffee and taking on Postum Food Coffee brought about a perfect cure.

He speaks, also, of Mrs. Josephine Kelly, living at Elkhart, Ind. She says she was afflicted much as he was, but had become more emaciated than he. So she quit drinking coffee and took on Postum Food Coffee. She is now a healthy and robust lady and willing to make affidavit that Postum Food Coffee saved her.

The gentleman from Milford also speaks of Thomas McDonald as having recovered by using Postum. It can be had at all grocers. A good cup of Postum cannot be made unless it is boiled long enough to bring out the flavor and food value. Then it is delicious.

AMUSEMENTS.

"SAG HARBOR."

An evening with James A. Herne's "Sag Harbor" is almost as good as a vacation down on the old place, among the simple characters that fill one's memory of the old home. The dead writer and player of plays managed to breathe into his output the breath of real life, and his characters hands his plays are full of reality and nature. And "Sag Harbor," as it was played at the Lyceum last night before a large house, is in eminently competent hands. There is no playing, even including Herne's former work, that can provide so wholesome and delightful an evening's entertainment. It is life, and such life as those familiar with the life of New England will recognize as intimately as though instead of sitting in the upholstered seats of a theater they were sitting in a horse-hair covered chair in that holy of holies, a New England parlor.

Though along the same general lines, "Sag Harbor" is far superior to "Shore Acres." It is nearer the truth, if that were possible, and the story is sweeter and more wholesome. As a picture of the men and manners of the time and place portrayed, it is a complete and finished work. There is not a hair's breadth too much color, and there is enough to touch the heart of everybody with a sense of the charming simplicity of the customs and characters included in the play. The story is not involved in the least. It is as simple as the people among whom it took place. There is not even a villain. There is no claptrap, no appeal to the fulsome and mushy of art. Its author is gone, but if it is any claim to immortality to have caught from the fleeting show of life's stage a complete and rounded picture of a place and period and set it down where it cannot fade, "Sag Harbor" will be an everlasting monument to the memory of James A. Herne.

The least that could be said of the members of the cast is that in so delicate a bit of art one jarring feature might spoil the effect, and there is no such false chord. From the greatest and most prominent character to the least, every man and woman in the play is just what he or she should be. The large-hearted, noble old Capt. Dan Marble, the part that the author of the play created, is in excellent hands, George Woodward filling it in a manner that leaves nothing whatever to be desired. Fanchon Campbell, as Martha Reese, treats her role in a refreshing manner and makes it a being of flesh and blood. Marion Abbott as Elizabeth Ann Turner, Mrs. Sol Smith as Mrs. John Russell, W. T. Hodge as Freeman Whitmarsh, Frank Munroe as William Turner, all were so uniformly excellent that it is impossible there is no reason why anyone of the three is no reason why any one of those mentioned should have been placed above any unmentioned, except that their relative importance in the cast seemed to call for it. The work of the lesser characters is as necessary to the success of the picture as that of the principals, and in proportion it is as well done. And while the members of the cast are being named, mention should not be neglected of a very charming baby that plays a prominent part in the story.

"Sag Harbor" will be repeated tonight.

Paul Quandt's Funeral.

The funeral of Paul Quandt was held yesterday afternoon from the family residence. The services were in charge of Fidelity Lodge, A. O. U. W., No. 95, of which he was a member. Dr. A. W. Ryan preached the funeral sermon and the body was interred at Forest Hill cemetery. The pallbearers were John Ritchie, J. C. Walker, S. Palmer, J. Barker, O. Hoffman and F. Jellnack. Mr. Quandt was 23 years of age, a candy maker by trade and leaves a wide circle of friends to mourn his loss.

A DOUBLE WEDDING.

Duluth Young Man One of Parties.

Last evening a pretty double wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson, of Rush Point, Minn., the contracting parties being Miss Josephine Peterson and John E. Laurence, and Miss Minnie W. Peterson and Olaf Lindstrom. The maids of honor were Misses Emma, Lydia and Nellie Peterson, sisters of the brides, escorted by Eric Wahlstrom and A. J. Mitchell and Alphie Peterson.

About 200 invited guests were present at the ceremony which was performed on the lawn in front of the residence by the Rev. C. A. Jackson, pastor of the Lutheran church of Rush Point.

The brides were very tastefully attired in dresses of white Persian lawn trimmed with Swiss and Valenciennes lace, and each carried a bouquet of American Beauties and Marchal-Neil roses.

Miss Josephine Peterson is the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson, of Rush Point, and until recently had charge of the public school at Center City, Minn. John E. Laurence is a resident of Duluth, engaged in the grocery busines here and lieutenant of Company C, Third regiment, N. G. S. M.

Miss Minnie Peterson until recently occupied a position in the dressmaking establishment of Miss Lindgard, of this city. Olof Lindstrom is a farmer of Rush Point, and has a wide circle of friends both in Duluth and in the Twin Cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence will be at home at 526 West Fourth street after July 1.

Avoid the heat and dust of the midday by taking the "Twilight Limited" over "The Northwestern Line" for St. Paul, Minneapolis and Stillwater. This train of fame leaves Duluth daily at 4:30 p. m. and arrives at destination at early bed time. Without question it is the most pelasant train from Duluth to the Twin Cities.

Fractured Knee Cap.

The danger of attempting to board a moving street car was evidenced last evening by an unfortunate accident of which Calvin F. How of the Duluth Trust company was the victim. He tried to board a Lakeside car passing the switch at Third avenue west, and though the car was not moving very rapidly, he fell and fractured the knee cap of his left leg. He was removed to St. Mary's hospital and the broken bone was wired together. The accident is a serious one, and it will be some time before Mr. How will be able to use his leg.

Cable to Hawaii and Manila.

There is one particular in which the United States is sadly behind other nations, and that is ocean cables. Attempts have been made from time to time to improve upon existing conditions and it looks now as though something might be done by congress next winter authorizing the construction of a Pacific cable connecting the Pacific coast with Hawaii, Guam and the Philippines. Representative Hepburn, of Iowa, chairman of the house committee on interstate commerce, says: "The necessity for such a cable is growing every day and it is mere a question of time before it will be laid. I still favor the construction of a cable by contract rather than have the government build and operate it. I do not believe in government ownership of utilities of this kind. I think that the laying of such a cable should be under government direction, however, and favor authorizing the postmaster general to award a contract for the work under such restrictions as he may see fit to impose." Mr. Hepburn is inclined to doubt the authenticity of a report received at the state department the other day that the British government had contracted for a cable to connect Victoria with her Eastern possessions 7,000 miles away at a cost of $10,000,000. "A cable of that length," he said, "could not be built for $10,000,000 at the time that gutta percha was only half as costly as it now is. Since the big advance in the price of that commodity the cost of cable construction has gone up materially, in spite of the cheapening influences of inventions and improvements."

Population of the Philippines.

The number of people in the Philippines under the dominion of the United States is an unknown quantity. The Spanish censuses have been but little more than a compilation of local estimates and leaves accurate information a thing very much desired. It is desirable that the United States should give the number of inhabitants as a basis for future comparisons. By 1910 it is expected that a census of the Philippines will be taken by the general census office, just like any other part of the United States. This at least is the view of Director Merriam. It has an important bearing upon the permanent census office project which has long been under discussion. It has been possible to summon a force on the spur of the moment, for taking a census of the United States, but it will not be possible, it is maintained by statistical experts, to do this by Porto Rico, the Philippines and other tropical regions. At least two years' advance work would be needed to be done in the Philippines preparatory to sending out a force of enumerators. If, therefore, the United States, as a great colonial power, is going to pursue its present elaborate methods of census taking, it will be necessary to keep the organization of the office in permanent operation. It required very rapid work this time to get a census of Alaska, and the difficulties of penetrating that region are probably less than in the Philippines. Just at present the task of enumerator for a United States census would not be an agreeable one in all parts of the Philippine islands. As an occupation it would be regarded as extra hazardous and at the conventional rate of $3 per day would not attract many seekers after employment. In fact it would be a pretty expensive operation even by 1910 to take a Philippine census. It was necessary to pay the Alaska enumerators $10 a day.

THE CLOVEN FOOT.

A report comes from Washington that since the Cuban convention accepted the Platt amendment without any "ifs" or "buts," there has been a decided change in the tone of the cabinet. In fact a division well marked has occurred as to whether Cuba shall be allowed to have an army or a navy. Secretary of War Root is credited with the advocacy of the scheme to prevent the organization of a Cuban army, claiming that a Cuban army would be of no benefit in case of war and from its very nature would be a menace to the peace of the island; that it would be used to stir up insurrections and would afford no protection to the lives and property of the citizens; that when any fighting is necessary the United States will do it, and when any riots occur there will be on hand United States troops to put it down; that to make this arrangement effectual we will keep the important forts and harbors.

Opposed to this scheme is the party which sides with the president in the opinion that the Teller resolution pledged this country to grant Cuba independence, not in name, but in fact; that the Platt resolution goes as far as we can go with honor; that to prohibit Cuba from organizing and maintaining an army and creating a navy would be to rob her of one of the attributes of sovereignty most essential to her existence as an independent nation; that this act would be reprobated by the world and denounced by the people of the United States as a gross breach of faith; that it might lead to armed resistance on the part of the Cubans themselves.

This report is put out evidently as a feeler of public opinion. There is an evident desire on the part of the administration to place Cuba in the class with the Philippines; to secure it as dependent territory without political rights. The Cubans may be unable to govern themselves, but they are evidently as capable as the people of Pennsylvania, who have evidently given up the job as a failure. Cuba cannot fall into worse hands than those of Matt Quay, and yet there seems to be no disposition to take from the Keystone state the empty honor of being supposed to have a free local government by the people.

If the administration were not afraid of the wrath of the people it would not hesitate to demand of congress at its next session an act formally annexing the island of Cuba as American territory of the colonial class. Annexation as a state is not wanted. The opening of our ports to Cuban sugar and tobacco would interfere too much with the "invested interests" of a few who hold the purse strings to allow of such an act.

If the Cubans were familiar with American politics, they would inaugurate a flank movement by appearing before the next congress with a constitution modeled after one of the United States and request to be admitted to the Union as a state. This would turn the tables on the interests which are endeavoring to exploit the island. Then the United States would, in the language of the small boy, have to fish or cut bait. Congress could not refuse to act favorably upon such an application without giving the lie to all the pretenses of the past two years. And yet The Herald believes that it would be impossible to secure a majority in either house to vote for annexation. No movement since the treaty of Paris has served to expose the cloven foot of the American exploiter as this last scheme attributed to the secretary of war to prevent Cuba from maintaining an armed force to carry out her laws and to defend the nation from invasion.

THROWING DUST.

The agitation for a revision of the tariff is becoming so universal that the G. O. P. has become alarmed and has called on the pampered pets to come to the front and head the movement off before it is too late. To this end the manufacturers who are receiving a substantial gift from the people have organized to down and drown any movement looking to the modification in any way of the present tariff schedule. They bring up the same old story of prosperity and let good enough alone. The request made to the cabinet that information regarding the sale of American goods abroad for less than the home price be investigated through our consuls has been turned down with neatness and dispatch.

From Washington and New York come inspired interviews with officials, telling of the dire results which will follow any disturbance of the status of the trusts. A long interview with a "treasury official," published recently, told of the inability of American shipyards to compete with those of foreign nations, arguing the necessity of a ship subsidy to retain our trade. All this was put out to catch the eye of the groundlings, those who do not know that within the last two years the American shipyards have been able to underbid the European competitors; that the Clyde buys its steel plates from America.

Some hope has been entertained that the sixteen reciprocity treaties which were turned down last winter by the senate of the Fifty-sixth congress would be revived and ratified next winter, thus assisting somewhat to relieve the burden of taxation on the people. The treaties have lapsed twice and have been twice renewed, but there is slim chance that the senate will so much as notice them. The word has gone out that the senate and the executive department have no constitutional power to modify the tariff by treaty stipulations, notwithstanding the fact that there was a reciprocity clause in the Dingley tariff bills; that inasmuch as all bills for the raising of revenue must originate in the lower house, any act of the senate or the president modifying what has been done by the house of representatives in the way of establishing a tariff schedule is void.

While there is no doubt that the reciprocity clause in the Dingley bill would be sustained by the supreme court, there is no power to compel the senate to act. The senators are perfectly willing to hide under that cover. It would be difficult to find a senator or a representative either who would avow himself to be against reciprocity, yet it would be equally difficult to find any senators on the Republican side who would vote for a reciprocity treaty. Why? O, they would each find some item to which they would object, the combined objections making a clean sweep of the schedule.

To all this the Democrats as partisans probably have no objection. As citizens, however, they must object, because it means the ultimate ruin of our present prosperity. So far as politics is concerned, the Republican machine is playing into the hands of the opposition as completely as it could if guided by Andrew Jackson himself. Since last November the Republican party has made one blunder after another in such rapid succession that one would think it was bent on suicide.

A LOOTER'S CONFESSION.

Rev. Dr. Milne says he is grieved on account of The Herald's criticisms of the looting by missionaries and others in China, and denies that the opinions expressed regarding the miserable business are justified. Dr. Milne's letter will be found in another column. Much has been published on both sides in regard to alleged looting by missionaries in China, and Dr. Ament has explained to the satisfaction of the missionary board and the churches, at least, what was done, and how, and why. But there are others who do not believe that Dr. Ament has explained satisfactorily and who believe that looting is the proper word with which to describe his operations. But Dr. Ament is not the only sinner in that respect—if he was a sinner. There were others, and some of them have not denied that they looted right and left. For instance, Rev. Gilbert Reid, a missionary in the neighborhood of Pekin, has written a communication to the North China Herald, in which he says:

"I confess I looted, and in good company. We entered the palace of Prince Li and found there French soldiers and a French priest surrounded with vast wealth—iron safes containing nearly 300,000 taels in silver, trunks laden with magnificent furs, silks and satins, and rooms adorned with the finest Chinese art. For a moment I forgot the tenth comandment. I had no house, no art, no books, no silver, no clothes, except a suit made for me by missionary ladies while I lay in the hospital. The only trouble was the French were there, and were not kind enough to leave. The French general came in and told us that on that morning that section of the city had been voted to the French. Seeing our downcast countenances he magnanimously said, 'I am very sorry, gentlemen, but each one may take a memento.' I secured two elegant furs and moved on."

For weeks Mr. Reid, who was sent over to China to teach "the heathen in their blindness," who "bow down to wood and stone," the right way of life—for weeks, according to his own statement, he "was very busy discriminating between the places that should be looted and those that should not. Now and then I branched out to loot from those who were our enemies, and I only regret that I did not have more time to loot from such despicable wretches. It has also grieved me that so many really good people think that my loot is good enough for them to want. The friends of looters are beyond calculation."

This is from a man who was supposed to teach, by example, as well as by precept, the injunction, "Love your enemies," "return not evil for evil, but overcome evil with good." Dr. Milne will note that, unlike Mr. Ament, Mr. Reid does not pretend that he looted, or desired to loot, to relieve the distress of foreign or native Christians, but for his own personal profit. He forgot one commandment; he would as readily have forgotten them all—or all that it would have been safe to forget—if he could thereby have secured a goodly share of the treasures in Prince Li's mansion. But other looters—soldiers militant, not soldiers of the cross—were there ahead of him, and he had to content himself as best he might with "two elegant furs;" and can it be doubted that so covetous a man, in his weeks of "discrimination between places to loot," generally decided that it was God's will that the places where the most valuable possessions were found should be most thoroughly looted?

The municipal council of Paris and the ministry of fine arts are working together to form a Victor Hugo museum in the house in the Place des Vosges where Hugo wrote "Marion Delorme," "Hernani," "Notre Dame de Paris" and "Les Feuilles d'Automne." There will be preserved here objects which belonged to Hugo, and a collection of first editions of his works, his sketches and pictures, and portraits of him. This is well, for Hugo's great Gothic genius, though now under something of a cloud in the literary judgment of the world, will have its renascence, and take its place among the permanent glories of France.

It is not often that people celebrate a failure, but that is just what some of the residents of Maine are doing. They are said to be celebrating the semi-centennial of the suppression of the liquor traffic in the state. The purpose of the Maine prohibitory law has never been accomplished and never will or can be by legislation as long as public sentiment remains what it is. The misguided ones, however, are honest in their belief and if they get any pleasure out of it, why let them enjoy it.

There is a Filipino boy named Estilian Glori in Atlanta, Ga., who was brought to this country by an army officer to be educated. The other day a soda fountain clerk refused to sell him a drink, on the ground that he was a "nigger." "The Filipino," it is reported, "while angry at the imputation that he was a negro, was exceedingly courteous and walked away quietly." His first impressions of America will be of interest to the folks at home, says the Springfield Republican.

A soldier in the Philippines is reported to have written home as follows: "I wish I could be at home once more to go to church. I haven't heard a good English sermon for nearly two years. I try to live up to my religion, but I do long to hear a good sermon once more." What is the matter with all those well paid chaplains the government is employing to minister to the souls of its soldiers?

Tom Johnson has adopted the McKinley fashion promptly, and declares that he would not accept a nomination for governor of Ohio, and even goes so far as to say he would not accept the office if elected to it. What's the matter with all those Ohio people? Heretofore Ohio men were never known to decline anything with a salary attached.

Judge Taft says if no duties are imposed upon trade between the United States and Philippines the increase in commerce will advance land values in the islands enough to pay the expenses of government by direct taxation. Whereupon the Pittsburg Dispatch asks: "How would this benefit the United States?"

The Washington Post observes that so many government officials are engaged in writing for the magazines and newspapers that the people will soon begin to wonder when they find the time to attend to the duties for which they are paid out of the public treasury.

Vice President Roosevelt won out for his candidate for governor of New Mexico, the president having re-appointed Governor Otero. Politicians will do well to keep an eye on Roosevelt. He is likely to be a power in Republican politics yet.

A Canadian newspaper wants the Dominion's frontier fortified against the United States. It cannot have heard that Company G has disbanded.

The Topeka State Journal says that "probably Charles A. Towne feels that he has 'struck oil' whether his company ever does or not."

Senator Allison, of Iowa, says he will not be a candidate for president, but that Iowa will present the name of Governor Shaw. Oh, pshaw!

The colored man who cooked for Gen. Grant has just died. But the body servant of George Washington is still in good health and numerous.

There is a postoffice in Roseau county named Boobar. Thus the name of Judge Morris' former private secretary is immortalized.

Senator Depew has not yet declared in favor of Hanna for president. And yet he talks in favor of a third term.

Mr. Root seems to be secretary of war, and Gen. Corbin has dropped back to his proper place.

A Norse Love Song.

Breezes low
To and fro
Over the Northern sea;
Sweet and low
Through the snow
Thirma is calling for me.
Now strong her voice through the darkening distance—
Now madly resonant—baffling resistance!
Wails with the wind, rises fierce in its pleading!
Talkeid is coming, nor elements heeding,
While thou, sweet, art calling—calling!

Breezes low
To and fro
Over the Northern sea;
And I know
Sweet and low,
Thirma is calling for me.
Wind-riven rocks rib the coast of the ocean—
Thor's mighty hand guides the sea's wild commotion—
Viking shades plunder 'mid lightning and thunder—
Grim terrors ride on the flood and the tide,
And Thirma is waiting—waiting!

Back! Move back,
Death-strewn track!
Think not to frighten me!
Naught appals
When Thirma calls—
Demons or raging sea!
Back, all ye elements—back, nor prevent me!
Love hath its mightiest armament sent me!
On through your menacing terrors I'll go—
On to the land of the midnight and snow—
For Thirma is calling—calling!

Lucky Fellows.

North Dakota Record: What a nice thing it is for the Republican candidate for office to be defeated. They are sure to get some thing "equally as good" and generally better—by appointment—than what they were candidates for. For instance, take Tommy Faus and Tommy Millham. They won't have to go around among the people in two years. They are under no obligations to the people for the appointment or for the conduct of the office. If you want a good fat office for four years, go before the people who know you and get defeated. It is said that every Republican candidate for congress last fall who was defeated has been rewarded with a better offic.

A Parallel Case.

Buffalo, N. D., Express: The trouble between Jeptha, judge of Israel, and the Ephemites in ancient times, which culminated in a dreadful battle near the river Jordan, in which the men of Israel killed 45,00 Ephemites, doesn't hold a candle to the mighty strife now going on between the Fargo Forum and the Mandan newspapers. The latest from the Mandan editors is that Maj. Edwards is a knave and an old whelp. To this the mayor replies that the Mandan editors are a pigmy lot of time-serving law violators. We regret to see this dissension among the brethren, and as the saloons of Mandan have been shut up tighter than a drum, it seems to us—that the slaying of the Ephemites has been sufficiently well duplicated, so to speak, to insure peace and tranquility in the historic city by the Big Muddy. As for the major—he doesn't appear to be damaged much by cheap abuse.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Pride goeth before a gall.

Sometimes the women with the smallest mouth have the largest size kisses.

If I were a married man, probably the editors of this paper wouldn't dare print these reflections.

The way a woman talks about "breaking" her heart, you would think it was made out of old china.

New York Press: Brevity is the soul of wit; wit is the levity of the soul.

The women may look at a wicked man with horror, but there are a lot of good men that they never look at at all.

If all the advertisements dealers send out to women were engraved instead of printed they would all have to build bigger stores.

The female mosquitoes do all the biting and the male mosquitoes have to eat grass. But, then, nobody expects decency from a mosquito.

No woman will ever believe a man isn't all right if he only keeps some stories to tell her about what one of his little children said the other day.

The Favorite Sucker.

TART TRIFLES.

Judge: Visitor—Don't you think it's hard on your daughter to run that grain drill out on the prairie every day?

Western Farmer—Why, I didn't think it was anything unusual for a girl to do plain sewing.

Boston Transcript: Bertha—Fred Hart is going to marry Bessie Light.

Edith—You don't mean it! For mercy's sake, what could he have seen in her?

Bertha—That's what I say. Do you know, I suspect he must have courted her over the telephone.

Detroit Free Press: Parke—After twenty years of married life, how do you manage—as well as ever?

Lane—Yes, about as well. I understand my wife almost as well as the first three weeks we were engaged.

Philadelphia Press: "Who was that woman?" asked the editor.

"The president of the Woman's Rights club," replied his assistant. "She was making a kick because we referred to her as a 'strong-minded person.'"

"All right. Be careful to call her a 'weak-minded person' in the future."

Chicago Post: "Father," said the small boy, "what is polygamy?"

The old gentleman made sure that his wife was listening before he answered. "Polygamy," he said, "is the name given to a method of acquiring trouble by wholesale."

Second Rural Visitor—Yes, indeed! The fust thing I learned was the meanin' of Pan-American.

Philadelphia Press: He—I know I'm late, dear. You see I was detained a couple of hours by an old friend who just got back to town after a long absence. I had to tell him all I knew.

She (snappishly)—I don't see why that should have kept you so long.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Why, George, you didn't call on papa, as you positively promised you would!"

"No, dear, I—I am going to notify him a little later.

"How?"

"By-y wireless telegraph!"

Washington Star: "Every woman ought to know something about cooking," said the wise guy.

"I don't know about that," answered Miss Cayenne. "In case of incompatibility it gives the husband a chance to blame her for his dyspepsia."

Catholic Standard: "Mary," said the girl's mother, rather sternly, "what time did your man leave last night."

"It must 'a' been exactly 1 o'clock, ma," volunteered her younger brother.

"How can you say such a thing?" exclaimed Mary indignantly.

"Well, ma," said the boy, "when he was leavin' he asked Mary some question, and she said: 'Just one! Only one!'"

Philanthropy and Labor.

Philadelphia Press: The strike in the Dayton Cash Register company, like the Pullman strike seven years ago, has abruptly destroyed the value of a large amount of literature, written by college professors and others, intending to show how works could be managed in order to avoid all friction and conflict with labor. In the cash register works, as everyone knows, every possible arrangement was made for the comfort of the men, the highest wages were paid and every effort was made to link the prosperity of the works with the wages of the men. These works have just been closed, after a series of petty conflicts, which began in the demand that the towels supplied in the shops free of charge should be washed at a union laundry; next, an issue as to a change of wages when wood was substituted for a metal base, and, lastly, a long dispute over wages in the foundry where some of the men had been earning from $5 to $8 a day, and where the union insisted on the rule that no men employed should earn more than $4.50 a day. A dispute finally arose as to the employment of three men, which the company offered to submit to arbitration, whereupon the men gave a three hours' ultimatum and left their benches. The works are closed and are likely to be closed for some time to come.

Will They Emulate Boston?

Boston Transcript: These Arapahoe Indians, who are said to be arming, may be simply preparing to celebrate the Fourth. The most peaceable citizen is apt, about this time, to go loaded to the muzzle.

The Change in Cullom.

Chicago Record-Herald: Senator Cullom is a good Republican and a stanch protectionist. But he recognizes the popular demand and the party expediency of scaling down some of the duties that now operate to retard our commercial expansion and to keep us out of foreign markets.

Indianapolis Sentinel: McKinley says he really won't, but then we all remember what he said about "criminal aggression" in Cuba and the "plain path of duty" in Porto Rico.

Quickly Disbanded.

Chicago Tribune: At a special meeting of the McKinley Third Term association yesterday afternoon it was moved by Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, president, and seconded by Mr. Charles H. Grosvenor, vice president, that the association be disbanded.

A Drawback Removed.

Atlanta Journal: Perhaps this thing of receiving distinguished Americans in foreign courts will become more frequent now that it has been demonstrated it can be done without a speech from Hon. Chauncey Depew.

Better Stick to Prophecy.

New York Mail and Express: The stalwart and picturesque Ohio Republican, Gen. Grosvenor, is more at home in prophecy than in history. "Old Figgers" would better leave Washington's memory alone.

Giving the Foreigner the Benefit.

Indianapolis News: Mr. Schwab of the steel trust admits that it sells goods abroad for less than it sells them at home, but he says that this discrimination is necessary because of the cheap labor abroad. But does not the steel trust sell at a good profit abroad? If it does not why does it want foreign markets?

Staying on the Farm.

Minneapolis Tribune: The manufacturing industry of the United States has been growing at an unprecedented rate, but the growth of the farming industry has substantially kept pace with it. The census of 1890 showed 4,564,641 farms under cultivation and that of 190 shows 5,700,000. An increase of more than 1,100,000 farms in ten years is doing pretty well, considering the current complaint of the tendency of young men to leave the farm and flock to the cities.

Chasing Prosperity.

Indianapolis News: Ex-Senator Pettigrew is investing heavily in Wyoming oil fields. On the whole, the ex-senator is disposed to take a very cheerful view of things at present.

Doing the Other Fellow.

New York Mail and Express: China does not seem to care greatly how large a figure her indemnity is placed at so long as it is understood that the Western powers shall lend her money to pay it.

To Have and to Hold.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: It is understood that the kiss that Governor Allen bestowed upon a Porto Rican girl was entirely official and diplomatic in its character. He was merely sampling one of our new possessions.

Where Reporters Are Needed.

Baltimore American: To judge by appearances the British war office needs to apply to a few reporters to learn what is going on in South Africa.

Baltimore American: Anxious office seekers will find it advantageous to address Mr. Hanna as "Comrade."

DAILY STORY.

MISS CHARLOTTE.

BY JOSEPH BAUGHER.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller).

In a cheerful room in a house overlooking the Potomac, my sister Edith and myself helped our governess drape our gowns for the evening's party. It was the morning of Twelfth Night.

We have been talking of the holidays just past, when Edith said: "Tell us a story, Madge; one of your ghostly sort; you are always seeing and hearing such uncanny things, but we won't be at all afraid with all this sunlight streaming in the room, will we Miss Charlotte? Never mind that, Madge, go on and tell a story, please."

"No." I answered sharply, my sister was more than half right, but her flippant manner irritated me; besides fearing my friend's ridicule, I kept many things to myself.

"Won't do it? All right, then you tell one, Miss Charlotte," laughed Edith, ignoring my ill humor. Our governess, after a moment or two's thought, said:

"I will tell you—not a story—but a true narrative, if you care to hear it."

We assured her we would, and dropping her work she walked to the window and looked up the frozen river with an expression almost youthful. Returning, she resumed her sewing and quietly began:

"Many years ago in a lovely village on the Mississippi Sound a ball was given in honor of some young soldiers who were home on a short furlough. It was, as it is now, Twelfht Night, and the eve of their departure for the forts up the river. Among the dancers, all of whom I knew well, were Frank Lamoyne, an officer, and a young girl called Louise. They had been betrothed almost from childhood, and were waiting for peace to consumate their happiness.

"It was a gala night; a night to remember. Though midwinter, the air was warm as a day in June. It blew from the Sound, swaying the many colored lanterns without, and, laden with the perfume of orange groves, it filled the hall, fanning the colors of our cause. There was no thought of the morning's parting nor of an impending doom, as hand in hand down the great hall, through the waving and fluttering of the Red, White and Red they swayed to the measures of Stijell's 'Dream Waltz.'

"Miss Charlotte's lips trembled, her eyes grew moist, and her voice had unconsciously drifted back to that soft Southern accent of half-forgotten Creole days.

"Just before dawn," she pursued, "Frank and Louise walked to the beach. Between the dances couples would saunter through the groves or stroll along the shore. The wedding palms heard vows renewed that night and Love wrote its story on the sands.

"'May do you carry your sword?' laughed Louise, placing her hand upon the hilt. 'Do you expect the enemy?'

"'I'll dance no more,' he moodily replied.

"'What oppresses you? Are you keeping anything from me?' she asked.

"'Yes; I fear—'

"'O, Frank, you soldiers are all we have to comfort and sustain us. If you talk of fear, to whom shall we look?'

"'In the test of courage,' he replied, 'women are as brave as we men, but in our fear for you we are weak as a woman. I fear for you, our homes and the city yonder.

"'You say we are brave; then tell me—tell me,' she said, placing her hands upon his shoulders.

"'There are grave rumors that our state will soon be invaded by land and sea; the enemy will come in overwhelming force, and we few—a mere handful—are left to stay them. If we should not meet again'—

"'No, no; not that!' she implored.

"'Listen, my own; I know you are brave; I well know your deep, fervent nature and your horror of this conflict. I want you to believe, though I am a soldier, engaged in war's fearful traffic, I am at peace with myself; and if I should fall think of me only as a soldier lover who has gone before and awaits your coming on the Threshold.'

"'I will, I will,' whispered the girl, through her sobs.

"'Louise, Louise!' he cried, taking her in his arms, 'you are ever in my thoughts. In the field 'mid the cannon's roar, the clash of steel, the muskets, deadly hail—my thoughts are of you. 'Twas not the battle cry that urged me on, no, nor always thoughts of our holy cause, nor martial music, but you! you! you! Oh, even midst dead and dying. I have felt your kisses on my lips, your heart beat 'gainst my own, as I do now; and the young girl, smiling through her tears, clasped her hands around his neck and laid her head upon his breast. At that moment a streak of gray lined the horizon, and they heard the roll of the drum.

"'The reveille! The reveille! Look up, dearest, we must part.'

"'No, no,' she moaned, as she swayed in his arms.

"'Louise,' he whispered tenderly, as he felt her shudder when the sound of the drum again grated upon the quiet dawn. 'Be brave; this is your test, dearest—watch, hope and pray. Whatever betides we shall surely meet again.'

"With one last embrace, one lingering kiss, he gently unclasped from about her neck the hands of the half-unconscious girl and fled in the shadows of the grove. With him faded away the last strains of Stijell's 'Dream Waltz.'

"In the spring," continued Miss Charlotte after a pause, "Louise, with friends, went to New Orleans and the days that followed were dark and gloomy. They had little news from the outside world, and little entertainment; still one must work, though one's heart may break, so daily hands would knit and sew from morn 'till far into the night, and baby fingers were busy pulling lint to staunch the cruel wounds of war. Each succeeding day brought tidings of approaching evil. One night couriers dashed through the streets, crying all was lost; the enemy had cut the river's cables, silenced our forts and destroyed our fleet; within a few hours our city was at their mercy, and at the same time in the throes of a native mob, less merciful than the victors. As Louise knelt by her bed that night, praying God to keep her lover safe, Frank Lamoyne was lying in the turret of a ruined fort, with lifeless eyes staring at the stars."

"'Louise! Louise! Miss Charlotte, what became of her?' asked Edith, who was not a little touched.

"'Louise?' replied Miss Charlotte, as she spread a cloth over her work to protect it from the tears, 'she has just put the last piece of lace on your Twelfth Night gown, my dear Edith.'

"'You? You? Miss Charlotte?' we cried.

"'Yes I was called by my middle name in those days,' she replied quietly and left the room.

Night came, and before our guest arrived, I took some white roses to Miss Charlotte, which she fastened on her breast, and I left her dreaming before the fire of a Twelfth Night on the Mississippi Sound many years ago.

I had forgotten our governess until the small hours of morning; when the orchestra began playing Stijell's "Dream Waltz." I thought it was strange, as it was not on the program, and Miss Charlotte's story flashed across my mind. I left the dance and started for her room. Edith overtook me in the hall, and darting at me, an angry, frightened look, said: "Stijell's waltz, did you request it?"

"No."

"Then it's ghosts," she muttered and flew back to the parlor.

Amused at her superstition, I ran up to Miss Charlotte's room and quietly closed the door. It was quite still, save a few dying embers that crackled on the hearth, the ticking clock and the soft breathing of Miss Charlotte, who was sleeping in the old armchair before the fire. A feeling often before experienced crept over me, and, growing numb and cold, I sank in a chair, rigid—powerless. At that moment the room was flooded with a blue light—deep, unfathomable, indescribably blue, and I felt rather than heard a sound like sweet music.

"Louise!" From the chair came a quivering sigh broken ere it was breathed. Before the hearth appeared first the outlines, then the entire figure of a young soldier in silvery gray.

"Louise!" again came the call, and from the chair arose, with closed eyes, the form of a young girl in holiday attire of a bygone day.

"Louise!" once more came the pleading cry. The beautiful spirit, with my roses on her breast, opened her eyes, and taking the extended hands of the one in gray, clasped them around her neck and laid her head upon his breast. Then came from afar the mighty chorus of an unseen choir, "The Reveille." It was dawn again!

In the passing of Miss Charlotte, the scent of my flowers had passed away with her. They were withered—quite dead, and crumbled at the touch.

PREMATURELY OLD.

How Many Old People Are There In This City?

Nine-tenths of them are older than they need be, due to lack of timely care.

Nature cries out for assistance. Why don't you heed the call?

Do something for your body to revive and preserve it. Neglected machinery soon rusts and is worn out for the want of a little oil now and then.

Impoverished blood, worn-out nerves and their consequences make you prematurely old.

Youth Is a Priceless Jewel.

No one wants to grow old.

Get a bottle of Mull's Grape Tonic and note the change it will work for you within a very short time. It is a combination of Grapes, Fruit and health-giving Herbs. It is the only remedy of the kind known. It will reduce age more closely to a level with youth. It nourishes and builds up the worn-out tissues, brings health and glow to your body, revives, rejuvenates and works wonders for those who use it.

Recommended for men, women and children.

Absolutely harmless, yet all powerful and necessary to every system.

We implore you to test its wonderful curative powers.

You get a large bottle for 50c, almost as large as the $1.00 size of other remedies. One bottle is sufficient for the test. Every dose is worth a dollar to your health.

Yours truly,
YOUR DRUGGIST.

Give the Chaplains a Word.

Springfield Republican: The association of military surgeons of the United States army have unanimously denounced the act abolishing the canteen, but the army chaplains are yet to be heard from. The chaplain view of the year's experience without beer will be awaited with some interest, since the army chaplain played a prominent part in the anti-canteen campaign.

A Reminder For Teddy.

Boston Herald: Up to date, Mr. Roosevelt appears to have overlooked the fact that by helping on the third-term movement he would be fixing it so that when once he got into the White House he could stay long enough to make it worth while.

Many Precedents.

New York World: Better statesmen than Gen. Grosvenor have found the anti-third-term "fiction" bound in the same volume with insurmountable fact.

Surely He Is.

Indianapolis Journal: Your Uncle William McKinley, it may be remarked is something of a Republican politician.

Making a Vent.

Washington Times: Of course, Manley would like to be governor of Maine, but the announcement of his candidacy at this time is simply to give him a chance to blather through the summer. Manley must talk about something.

Source of a Discovery.

Washington Times: The Lincoln-like ability which Hon. William E. Mason has suddenly discovered in Hon. Shelby M. Cullom has reference solely to the fact that Mr. Mason's senatorial term expires on March 4, 1903.

Something For Perry to Learn.

Omaha World-Herald: Perry Heath says he had no idea that his mention of Mr. Hanna for the presidency would cause so much excitement. Perry should learn the difference between excitement and uncontrolled laughter.

Schlitz

The beer that made Milwaukee famous

You drink some beers that cause bilious headache. Perhaps you think that all beers do.

The cause of biliousness is the lack of age — too much haste to put the beer on the market. To ferment beer thoroughly requires a process of months. Without it the fermentation takes place in your stomach. That is the cause of biliousness.

Hurried beer is unhealthful. Schlitz beer is kept for months in refrigerating rooms with a capacity of 265,000 barrels — kept almost at freezing point until it is well fermented. Schlitz beer is never marketed until thoroughly aged.

GRAFTERS EXPOSED

Swindling Scheme In Minneapolis Brought to a Halt.

American Mining and Investment Company Admits Its Insolvency.

Same People Organized Many Companies For Swindling Purposes.

Minneapolis, June 18.—The American Mining and Investment company will do no more business in the state of Minnesota. The attorney general, together with his assistant, Charles W. Somerby, for the state; A. H. Hall, as attorney for the victims, and Frank M. Wilson, of Red Wing, and J. Van Valkenburg, of this city, as attorneys for the company, appeared before Judge Pond, in connection with the quo warranto proceedings instituted by Attorney General Douglas, and a stipulation was agreed to under which a receiver is to be appointed, the charter vacated and the existence of the corporation terminated.

The company admitted that it was unable to pay its just debts and obligations and that it was insolvent.

In debating the amount of bond to be given by the receiver the fact was fully developed that the company had liabilities to the amount of $2500, and assets not to exceed $1000, and for the first time in the history of Hennepin legal jurisprudence the judge fixed the amount of the receiver's bond upon the amount of its debts, rather than upon the amount of assets, which will likely pass through his hands.

R. S. Kollmer will be receiver.

First, the American Mining and Investment company was incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000, of which amount $1000 only was paid in. This company, so it is now alleged, merely acted in the capacity of broker or agent, and sold mining shares for a percentage or commission.

Next, the same people organized and incorporated under the laws of South Dakota, the Kettle Curlew, the Boundary Camp and the Queen Bee Mining companies, and capitalized them for an aggregate of $65,000,000.

This stock was put upon the market and disposed of through the American Mining and Investment company.

Before the attorney general began this action the company had disposed of practically every bit of the stock of the three companies mentioned, and it is estimated that the net profits footed up to about $250,000, perhaps more.

Becoming emboldened by success, and finding the game an easy one, arrangements had been made to enlarge operations.

The Union Consolidated Mining company was incorporated under the laws of South Dakota, and the capital stock was placed at $500,000,000.

This stock had just been put upon the market when the legal action brought the scheme to a standstill.

At the hearing A. H. Hall stated that he represented persons owning stock to the amount of $4,000,000, and that he had been informed that $14,000,000 of the stuff had been purchased in Minneapolis.

Disclosure made in the court show that the American company did not even have a clear title to its office furniture. Of other property it has none.

Regarding the supposed mining properties owned by the South Dakota corporations, it is said that there is reason to believe that there are no such properties, and that the assets of these companies will prove just as elusive and disappointing as those of the American Mining and Investment company.

It is expected that the whole matter will be taken up by the grand jury next month, and indictments are likely.

RAILROADS.

Middle West and Northwest to Be Under One Management.

Chicago, June 18.—The Tribune says: All the roads in the Middle West and Northwest in which E. H. Harriman, J. P. Morgan, the Vanderbilts and J. J. Hill are interested hereafter will be practically under one management. J. C. Stubbs, now third vice president of the Southern Pacific, will be traffic expert or manager for the Harriman group of roads, while Darius Miller, second vice president of the Great Northern, will occupy a similar position for the Hill roads.

Both probably will have offices in Chicago and will act in conjunction. This is the result of the conference held in Chicago on Saturday between Mr. Harriman and various railroad men.

Mr. Miller, it is understood, will also be made second vice president of the Burlington road.

Mr. Stubbs and Mr. Miller will act in unison on all transcontinental and competitive traffic matters. The making of the rates will be in their hands and it will be their duty to see to it that rates are fitly maintained. Their headquarters, it is said, will be in Chicago and the traffic affairs of this vast railroad combine will be directed from this city.

New York, June 18.—The Commercial Advertiser says:

The acquisition by Union Pacific interests of a dominating influence in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul is incidental to a far-reaching arrangement between powerful financial arrangements by which the control of all the powerful Western railways is to be so conducted as to insure harmony in territory and rates.

J. P. Morgan, E. H. Harriman, George J. Gould, the Rockefellers and James J. Hill, it is believed, will soon control the entire Western railway system. Each interest will take in charge a group of railways and a community of interest will embrace all the roads.

The steamship Hawaiian, which arrived at San Francisco Monday from Honolulu, brought the largest cargo of sugar ever sent out of the Hawaiian islands. It consisted of 800 tons valued at $750,000.

A cablegram received at the state department from United States Minister Bryan at Petropolis, announces that the Brazilian government has paid the indemnity requested for the destruction by a mob of a Baptist chapel in the province of Nictheroy, maintained by the American Baptist mission. The Baptist Missionary society has been duly advised.

The transport Pennsylvania arrived at San Francisco, Monday from Manila with thirty-two officers and 910 men of the Fortieth volunteer infantry.

The relatives of Frank Bolton of Newark, Ohio, believe that he perished in the hotel fire at West Baden, Ind., last week. He was a guest at the hotel and his friends have heard nothing from him since the fire.

The senate committee in the Hawaiian legislature returned a report recommending the entire abolition of the National Guard. The report suggested that the military paraphernalia be put aboard a scow, towed out to sea and dumped overboard.

The Roman Catholic church of the Immaculate Conception at Faribault, burned Monday morning. It was valued at $40,000 and was a handsome building. The insurance is $11,000. The vestaments and interior decorations were valued at over $2000 and are a total loss.

Emma Young, a Gypsy woman, who had hypnotized Mrs. A. Mumford of Kimball by means of a confidence game, was fined $100 and costs by Judge Scott at St. Cloud. She paid the amount. Piecing.

That's a word which may not be in the dictionary in this sense of its use, but which is in very common use in some sections of the country. "She's always piecing" they say of the woman who runs to the cupboard at irregular hours and eats a piece of pie, cake, or some other dainty. This irregular eating is one of the chief causes of dyspepsia and "weak" stomach.

Diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are completely cured by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the supply of rich, pure blood, and gives the body vitality and vigor.

"A year ago I was feeling very badly," writes Mrs. Lizzie Abrams, of 158 Johnson Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. "I had a very poor appetite and when I sat down at the table I could not eat, but would have to go away without even tasting the food. Chancing to hear from a friend who used your 'Golden Medical Discovery' for a disease similar to mine, I thought I would give the medicine a trial, and I can hardly express the benefit received from it. The first dose seemed to do me good. My appetite returned and I was able to eat heartily. I have improved so much since taking the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I do not look like the same person. Am to-day well and strong—the result of taking six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

IS OUT OF POLITICS

Burlington Railroad to Cease to Be Political Power.

Is In Line With the Policy of James J. Hill.

Interesting Talk With Mr. Hill on Railroad Matters.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The Burlington railroad is to go out of politics," said one of the leading railroad men of the United States recently. "This will no doubt be news to a vast number of people in the country traversed by this great trunk line," he continued. "For years the Burlington has played no small part in the politics of Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri. It has made and unmade men and it has been a strenuous power sought for by politicians for the purpose of their own personal aggrandizement. But this policy will no longer obtain on that road."

The taking of the Burlington out of politics is in line with the policy of James J. Hill in all the roads whose policy he controls. Thus, when the present vice president of the Northern Pacific railroad, Hon. Daniel S. Lamont, came to that position as Mr. Hill's representative it was announced that that road would cease being a political factor in the states through which it operated; that while it would help its friends, it would not actively engage in politics to the extent of inducing its employes to vote according to its interests. Since that proclamation was issued it is stated by Democrat, Populist and Republican alike that the Northern Pacific has not figured in the politics of the West, and now the Burlington is to be operated along similar lines; that is, it is to become a railroad from a railroad standpoint—a trunk line in every sense of the word, and a common carrier without regard to the interests of any particular constituency, but for the good of the country, which it traverses. The withdrawal of trust railway corporation from politics is likely to become their universal policy, as it is at once the safest for them and the best for the country.

• • •

In a recent conversation with President James J. Hill of the Great Northern railroad, he said to your correspondent that there was only one great railroad system in the United States, and that the system was the Pennsylvania. "I have tried in so far as my ability permitted to take the Great Northern property along lines similar to those of the Pennsylvania, for I am a profound believer in the methods pursued by that great corporation. During my connection with the Great Northern railroad it has been a kindergarten for the training of a great many railroad men, and while in a way I regret that such has been the fact, still I cannot help but believe that where you help to make a good railroad president, or general manager of a railroad property, you simplify matters, because your dealings thereafter are with men who know all the details of their business."

Among the graduates of Mr. Hill's kindergarten for railway presidents and general managers, all of whom draw generously large salaries are J. M. Barr, commonly known as Jim Barr, vice president of the Seaboard Air Line; Russell Harding, vice president of the Missouri Pacific; L. E. Johnson, vice president of the St. Louis & Southwestern, and W. H. Newman, now president of the New York Central. It has not been very many years since these men were actively attached to the Great Northern, and the life histories are synonymous with hard work, business sagacity and a wide knowledge of men and the great questions with which they have to deal. The man who made it possible for these men to secure and keep their present positions, James J. Hill, is one of the most interesting personalities in the railroad world today.

Although pleased to characterize himself as a plain farmer, Mr. Hill has demonstrated his ability to cope successfully with some of the greatest problems in practical railroad finance ever presented to man for solution. By his extraordinary force of character, by his own ability and industry, Mr. Hill has been able to build up a great prosperous railroad system from an unimportant and bankrupt concern. During the talk with him, which covered a wide range of subjects, Mr. Hill expressed himself as a positive genius and a man who knew the science of railroading in all its details and ramifications. Mr. Hill has been a builder-up of properties. It was due to his energetic effort that the successful outcome of the plan to place the control of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy with the Northern Pacific was brought about. He was instrumental in the reorganization and improvement of the operating methods of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and his representative, in the person of F. D. Underwood, was sent to the Baltimore & Ohio as vice president and general manager to help in the scheme of reorganization. Now Mr. Underwood has taken a like position with the Erie road, and it is confidently predicted that the Erie in a short time will be placed upon as solid and enduring a basis as the New York Central. An impressive statement by Mr. Hill concerning the future closed the interview. He said:

"The future destiny of this country is to feed the world, and I believe it our duty to get ready to accept the responsibilities in the way of transportation needed to meet the requirements of the world."

Some years ago many of the leading railroads of the country asked congress to amend the interstate commerce law so as to permit "pooling." That is to say, congress was asked to sanction agreements among trunk lines by which the parties to the agreement would refrain from committing murder or suicide so to speak. The interstate commerce commission heartily endorsed the application of the railroads, and the committees of the house and senate, which had charge of the railroad bills, likewise gave the proposition their unanimous endorsement. That was because they listened to the arguments and were convinced that the pooling plan was a good one or all concerned. But the fear of the grangers and "pops" and other more or less powerful farmers' organizations drove many members to vote against the proposition.

There is no cry which will stampede an ordinary gathering of congressmen representing rural constituencies more quickly than the cry of "Wall street." In the case of a pooling bill Wall street was to profit very largely, and consequently the bill was marked for defeat and defeated. Strange to say, Wall street is the greatest gainer. The recent consolidations in railroad circles and the formation of communities of interest is the direct result of the killing of the pooling bill. These combinations have resulted in feathering the nest of Wall street, and they have also resulted in killing off all chance for further disastrous wars. The South Atlantic seaboard, for instance, is reached by the Norfolk & Western, the Southern, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Atlantic Coast line and the Seaboard Air line. Until recent years there was always a disastrous rivalry between these roads and their Northern connections, the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore & Ohio. The Pennsylvania acquired the Chesapeake & Ohio some time ago, then the Norfolk & Western, and now the Baltimore & Ohio. The A. C L. and S. A. L. are merely combinations of lines reaching from Washington to South Atlantic ports. Without the Pennsylvania connections they would have no reason for being. As to the Southern, that great corporation was formed to stop the throat-cutting in the Southern states, and its interests have always been those of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. Controling as it does virtually three great lines from the Atlantic to the Mississippi with tenacles running into nearly every Southern state, the Pennsylvania no longer requires permission to form pooling combinations. It is simply a family affair now.

So, too, these Western combinations have been formed as the direct result of the failure or refusal of congress to pass the pooling bill. If matters had shaped a course otherwise, there probably would have been none of these combinations, and Wall street would never have had the opportunity to make the money which has flowed that way since the rumor of coming changes were first heard.

Mount Vernon, the repository for everything connected with the life and times of the first president of the republic, is to be enriched by George Washington's family coach, which has been presented to the ladies of the Mount Vernon association by Augustus Frey, a real estate agent in New York. Capt. Richardson bought the coach for $5600 at the close of the centennial exposition in Philadelphia. Mr. Richardson was famous as a collector of relics, and his home at Castle Eden, Morrisania, was a museum. Mr. Frey bought the coach of Richardson and in turn has presented it to the Mount Vernon association, where it will in the future have a permanent resting place. From the centennial to the present time Washington's coach has been rusting and a catch-all for discarded things usually thrown in garrets. It was a coach of some grandeur in its day, and as easy as the lap of luxury. Louis XVI had one not unlike it. Its broad panels were cream-white, its frame black, and around the edge of the body ran a pretty moulding of gold. The Father of his Country drove to it six cream-white horses, wearing black harness with silver mountings bright and jingling, and engraved with his arms. In this fashion, with footmen and outriders, did Washington go to his inauguration from Mount Vernon to Wall street, New York. Now, after knocking about in many cities of the East, having done duty in later days as a stage coach, and after its days of usefulness were over, being turned over to the chickens and the spirits of the stable, the coach is to be permanently placed in one of the out-buildings at Mount Vernon, where it will forever remain as one of the relics of the first citizen of the republic. "Few are our property inheritances from the personal estate of Washington," said a member of the Mount Vernon association recently, "considering how fondly proud other nations, who have in him only an abstract interesst, would be of this legacy, we should surely see that this coach of his is given gentle and respectable attention."

AT CASS LAKE

Hearing of Sol Williams For Shooting James Morris.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheriff George L. Hardy was in Cass Lake yesterday en-route to Vermillion Brook, to subpoena witnesses to testify in the preliminary hearing of Sol Williams, who will answer to the charge of murder at Walker next Friday. Sol Williams shot James Morris at Vermillion Brook, in the eastern part of Cass county, on May 24, from the effects of which Morris died on May 24. At the coroner's inquest, which was held on May 26, the testimony tended to show that the shooting was, in a measure, justifiable, Williams acting wholly on the defensive. The hearing of Williams was not held earlier, owing to the fact that the defendant's attorney, Frank Price, of Grand Rapids, was unable to be in attendance. It is more than likely that Williams will be bound over to await the action of the next grand jury.

The newly organized brass band used their new instruments for the first time Sunday afternoon, when several hours of practice was indulged in. The band and its instrumentation is as follows: Leader, George Johnson; solo cornet, Alex. Nachbar; E flat bass, A. M. Selby; B flat baritone, W. T. Reid; tenors, T. G. Brunelle and W. Letford; slide trombones, Dr. D. S. Stanton and Hughes Vanton; altos, John Osborn, C. Franz and John D. Wilm; E flat cornet, George Johnson; tenor drum, Delbert Le Hay. The band has been fortunate in securing the services of George Johnson, formerly of Argyle, Minn., as leader.

The fire department held a meeting Sunday afternoon. The committee which arranged the dance held last Friday night reported that the net receipts of the same were $31. This money goes toward defraying the expenses of the delegates to the Northern Minnesota firemen's tournament, which will be held at Bemidji this week. A committee from the Cass Lake Commercial club will accompany the delegates to the tournament and a strong effort will be made to secure the tournament of 1903 for Cass Lake.

MARKET IS DULL

Little Interest In Wheat and It Changes Slightly.

Lower Cables and Crop Conditions Give Easy Tone.

Prospects of Growing Crops Continue to Be Good.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 18.—The wheat market moved in a very narrow range today and trading was very light. The opening was easy and the tone was weak. Liverpool was rather disappointing closing unchanged to ½d lower. Northwestern wheat prospects continue excellent and from almost every quarter comes news of the finest conditions. An Argentine report this morning was to the effect that the surplus of wheat there is 46,000,000 bus, about half of which has already been shipped. Bradstreet's report of the world's visible showed an increase of 125,000 bus, which was rather less than had been expected. Clearance of wheat and flour were 354,000 bus. Primary receipts of wheat were 486,000 bus, last year 428,000 bus. Shipments, 222,000 bus; last year, 119,000.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 313 cars, against 330 last week and 311 last year. Chicago receipts, 124 cars, 4 of contract grade.

Trading in futures was dull on the Duluth board. July wheat opened 7c off at 69¾c, rallied to 69⅝c at 9:45, eased off to 69¼c at 11:40, sold at 11:50, sold at 69⅜c at 1:13 and closed at that price, which was ⅛c off from yesterday's close. Chicago July closed unchanged and Minneapolis, ⅛c off, while the September option in all three markets showed no change.

Cash flax is very strong and today closed 5c up at $1.80. September advanced ½c and October, ¼c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard—Cash, to arrive and July, 73¾c; September, 69¼c. No. 1 northern—Cash, to arrive and July, 69⅜c; September, 68¼c. No. 2 northern, 64⅝c. No. 3 spring, 66c. Durum, 67½c. Rye, 47½c. Flax—Cash and to arrive, $1.80; September, $1.31; September Northwestern, $1.32; October, $1.28.

Car inspection—Wheat, 163; corn, 19; oats, 26; rye, 7; flax, 2. Receipts—Wheat, 79,454; corn, 9639; oats, 41,314; rye, 1860; flax, 620. Shipments—Wheat, 73,334; rye, 17,000.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat and Corn Opened Weak and Dull.

Chicago, June 18.—Disappointing cables and a continuation of excellent prospects of the growing crop combined in producing a weak beginning in the wheat pit today. July opened ½@¾c lower at 70@70¼c, advanced to 70⅝c and declined to 69⅝c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 313 cars, against 330 a week ago and 311 last year. Local receipts were 124 cars, 4 of contract grade.

July touched 69¾c, but firmness developed in sympathy with corn and on reports of damage by excessive rains in Kansas, and July rallied to 70¼c where it closed firm and unchanged.

Corn opened dull and particularly unchanged, July at 43¾c on buying by elevator interests, July advanced to 43⅝c, but reacted to 43¼@¼c on profit-taking. Local receipts were 236 cars, 4 of contract grade.

Toward the middle of the session July sold down to 43c, but on covering rallied to 43⅜@43½c, where it closed steady and ⅛@⅜c improved.

Oats opened easier on favorable weather and moderate offerings, July ¼@⅜c lower at 28@28¼c. There was a good general demand which quickly absorbed all the early offerings and price advanced to 28⅛c. Local receipts were 207 cars.

Provisions were strong on buying by packers. July pork opened 2½c down at $14.85 and sold to $14.85. July lard opened 2½@5c higher at $8.57½ and rose to $8.67½. July ribs opened 2½c lower at $8.00 and advanced to $8.06@8.07½.

Close—Wheat—June, 69¾c; July, 70¼c; August, 68⅝c; September, 68¾@68¾c.

Corn—June, 42¾c; September, 44⅝@44½c; July, 43⅜@43½c.

Oats—June, 27¾c; July, 28⅜c; September, 26½c.

Pork—June, $14.87½; July, $14.87½; September, $15.07½.

Lard—June, $8.70; July, $8.70; September, $8.80; October, $8.80; November, $8.60; December, $8.30@8.32½; January, $8.17½@8.20.

Ribs—June, $8.30@8.22½; July, $8.10@8.12½; October, $8.12½; November, $7.35.

Flax—Cash, northwestern, $1.80; No. 1, $1.80; September, $1.31; October, $1.28.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, June 18.—The weather continues favorable everywhere for wheat. The market is fairly steady, but the tone can hardly be called strong. The fact that the foreign market did not reflect the reported damage to Russian crop, which caused the firmness here yesterday had a depressing effect. Foreign orders were very little in evidence and millers report European demand for flour very poor. We still fail to see anything likely to establish any material advance. We think wheat should be sold on the hard spots.

The corn market continues steady from absence of selling pressure. Conditions as we see them are not bullish, but holders seem firm and short sellers are timid in view of past manipulation. Weather continues favorable for the growing crop and demand is poor.

Oats were quiet and steady. There seems to be some rather strong local buying of oats which gives rise to the fear of manipulati n.

Provisions are strong and higher. Lard is 17½ cents higher and pork and ribs 10 to 20 cents higher. Receipts of hogs while liberal, do not come up to the generous expectations the trade had been indulging in. Cash demand continues good and the market is without selling pressure. Receipts of hogs at primary markets 65,000 against 68,000.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Realizing Caused Declines at Opening In Some Stocks.

Rally Followed But the Market's Gains Were Not Held.

Closing Active and Weak at Lowest Average Prices.

New York, June 18.—Realizing made considerable inroads on opening prices in some stocks, but there were notable gains in others, which gave the market a very irregular appearance. First sales of Amalgamated Copper were of 6500 shares at 130 to 128½, compared with 130 last night. In contrast there were sales of 1200 shares of Anaconda at 50½ to 51, compared with 50¼ last night. Union Pacific and Atchison lost over a point and M. & O., Tennessee Coal and North American rose from 1 to 1½.

A few material gains were made in special stocks, despite the general heaviness of the market, the early realizing being accentuated by a sharp relapse in St. Paul and Missouri Pacific. Amalgamated Copper rebounded and met sales which drove it down to 128. St. Paul fell with some resistance 3¾ to 173¾, and Missouri Pacific tumbled to 121. The ease with which the "stop loss orders" were uncovered in these stocks discouraged the bulls and they unloaded stock which had been exceptionally strong at the opening. Consequently North American, which had increased its gain 1½ to 103, broke 4, and Tennessee Coal lost 2½. Rock Island yielded 2¼. Consolidated Gas 3 and Colorado Fuel 2, and all classes of stocks were offered freely. A rise in United States Steel to 50 rallied the market, recoveries elsewhere reaching 1 to 2 points, the latter St. Paul. Twin City Rapid Transit rose over 2 points.

Prices were not well held at the rally, but although the tendency was drooping, the market did not get back to as low a point as in the first hour. Colorado Fuel made a violent dip of ten points and Tennessee Coal sold one point under yesterday's close after ruling 3 points above. The Distilling Company of America fell issues were dealth in for the first time and improved steadily from the outset. The common rose from 8¼ to 10½ and the preferred from 30¼ to 32¼. A good demand for Manhattan developed before midday and its rise to above 124 reiped the other local stocks. People's Gas bounded up 2 points, Rock Island rallied 1¼ and the general tone became firmer. Bonds were active but without definite tone.

The market's gains were not held, renewed selling of St. Paul, Union Pacific, Rock Island, Amalgamated Copper, Brooklyn Transit and Consolidated Gas causing breaks in those stocks of 1¼ to 3¼ points and affecting the whole list. This was after Atchison, American Tobacco and Anaconda had been lifted 1¼ to 1¾ to the best of the day. Prices went off easily again to the lowest of the day for some stocks. The closing was active and weak at the lowest average prices.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf gossip to Edwards, Wood & Co.: On the whole the days development in the Stock exchange increased bullish sentiment, particularly as regards Illinois Central, the copper stocks and the Southwestern railway shares. Reading common. Houses advise the purchase of Illinois Central, the Atchisons and the junior shares of Reading and Erie on scale. The head of a very prominent Standard Oil house said to the writer: "I do not see a cloud in sight." Other representative brokers, however, took some exceptions to the gold exports. The latter were unexpected. The withdrawal of $2,000,000 gold by the National City bank for shipment to Germany, excited the remark that the Standard Oil company might be preparing for a squeeze in money. But the prominence of the Rockefellers in the Union Pacific-St. Paul deal and the strength of important stocks of which they are known to be enormous holders, for example, St. Paul, Southern Pacific and A. C. P., robs this statement of much plausibility, besides over $2,000,000 gold from Australia ought to be available soon at San Francisco and large receipts from the Klondike cannot be far off. Then interest in the disbursements for July will be larger than ever before and it is argued that their effect financially should be good. At the same time there is enough uncertainty in the money market to make conservative people hesitate about increasing their commitments indiscriminately until the outlook is clearer. The rise in Illinois Central, the traders say, is the result of splendid buying, basedon the large earnings, the radically favorable crop conditions in its territory compared with those of a year ago, its fine dividend record and the fact that revenues for the year will show a surplus after the payment of regular dividend of about 4 per cent on the stock these considerations are a basis of confident predictions that the stock will be quoted at much higher prices.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 18.—Cotton opened steady 2 to 5 points higher in sympathy with firm English market advances, but later became unsettled, though profit-taking by the pit scalping contingent. Fluctuations were feverish and business was spasmodic all the first hour. Full River reports continued activity in yarns and cloths and stated that mills were bidding for large quantities of raw cotton. The range of prices was 8.37 to 8.34 on July, 8.42 to 8.37 on August, 8.37 to 8.32 on October and 8.40 to 8.43 on January.

Cotton spot closed dull; middling uplands, 8½; middling gulf, 8¾; sales, 1509 bales. Option futures closed steady: June, 8.17; July, 8.21; August, 8.67; September, 8.40; October, 7.33; November, 7.29; December, 7.32; January, 7.34; February, 7.34; March, 7.37.

By Missionaries and Their Critics Scored By Dr. Milne.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I regretted exceedingly to read in your issue of last Friday the editorial, "Looting in China." On several occasions The Herald has animadverted on this subject with sneering allusions to and stinging condemnation of the character and work of the Christian missionaries in that country. In the editorial referred to they are accused of general incompetency and ethical demoralization. It is insinuated that they are men "for whom we can find no use at home." It is asserted that they participated in the disgraceful looting which attended the capture of Pekin. Especial reference is made to Dr. Ament, as one who "has lost by his Oriental associationthe keen perception of Christian ethics which we are accustomed to expect from such a source."

To answer in detail all the charges, to unravel the tissue of misconceptions, half-truths and falsehoods which underlies the editorial would take too much space, and would weary your readers. Foreign missionaries are at the mercy of several classes. They have the opposition of Europeans and Americans in the great commercial centers of these lands, whose lives are sometimes such that Christianity becomes a byword and a hissing among the heathen. To such the missionaries are a rebuke and there is good reason why they should be hated and misrepresented. The occasional traveler alights from a steamship and after a few days sojourn writes up the country, depending chiefly for his information upon the commercial classes aforesaid. Now comes the newspaper reporter, sometimes irresponsible and hunting for a sensation. Among these it is not strange that the resulting image of the foreign missionary in many minds is half-caricature and half lie.

It would be folly to maintain that every missionary is an Adoniram Judson or a David Livingstone. Human weakness gets a fair representation among missionaries as among ministers and editors at home. Once in a while, too, an incompetent will slip through the hands of the most careful board. On the whole, however, it may be said with truth and soberness, that the noblest product of American life so far has been the American missionary. Everywhere he has won the discriminating plaudits of the wise and honest. He has caused the name of America to be honored, her institutions to be admired and her people to be loved in India, China, Japan and Turkey. If we had nothing else to show for a century of national life but the work and influence of our missionaries, our existence would be abundantly justified.

The quotation from Mr. Landols' book on the "admirable business acumen" of the incompetents who in China represent the churches of America," bears all the earmarks of being based on thorough misunderstanding and malignant misrepresentation. There is just enough truth in it to flout the lies while they do their deadly work. The editorial reference to the claim for literary works destroyed, as entering the "byway of comic opera," shows a singular lack of appreciation of the great work in China as in other lands, furnishing the people with a body of literature in their own language. The whole English reading world has sympathized with the loss of Thomas Carlyle, when, by the carelessness of the fiancee of John Stuart Mills, his manuscript of the French revolution was destroyed. It was not only a great financial loss, it was an agony to the soul. Especially would this be the case in a language like the Chinese. To have the manuscripts and presses and types destroyed, the costly labor of months and years irretrievably ruined is surely just and sufficient ground for a claim for indemnity.

The Rev. Dr. Ament, to whom The Herald, following Mark Twain, has paid particular attention, is a member of the same household of faith as myself. I have the honor also to claim a personal acquaintance with him. It is a happiness to assure the readers of The Herald that by all who know him and his work, Dr. Ament is considered a splendid specimen of Christian manhood, as vigorous in intellect and as sturdy in his character as he is robust in physique. I venture to say that had I been guilty of the acts for which he has been denounced, my natural inclination would be to boast of them. My friend and neighbor, Rev. Dr. Long, of the First Methodist church, who labored several years as a foreign missionary, said in my hearing that, had he been in the same circumstances as Dr. Ament, he would have taken exactly the same course. It may be that we are, as the editorial intimates he is, morally degenerate. If so, the people of our congregations, who have some confidence in us as moral teachers, are in a sad state. However, we are not alone. The course of Dr. Ament has been emphatically approved, without reservation, by every one who is in a position to know the facts at first hand, by United States Minister Conger, by all the missionaries in Pekin, by Li Hung Chang and the Chinese authorities, by eminent journals like the Outlook and Independent.

What he did may be very briefly stated. Alone for the most part, and appealing solely to their sense of right, he laid before the authorities of the villages, where the outrages against Chinese Christians had been most marked, the cases of those whose property had been destroyed and whose natural protectors had been cruelly murdered. These local authorities freely and gladly agreed to pay an indemnity, in amount equal to the value of the property destroyed with one-third additional. This one-third was in the nature of a penalty for the failure of the lawful authorities to protect the native Christians, and was to be applied in relieving the terrible necessities of the widows and orphans, left helpless by the massacres. To say that any of this money was used in the propagation of the gospel is a vile slander. This was done for the benefit of the helpless Chinese Christians for whom no foreign government was responsible, and with the full approval of the Chinese authorities, national and local. To my mind this course of Dr. Ament was most admirable for wisdom and courage. It was most statesmanlike, in complete accord with the highest justice and entirely worthy of a Christian gentleman.

Last year there was in our city, as guest and life-long friend of one of our most honored citizens, a gentleman whom many of our leading ministers and citizens delighted to honor—Dr. Sheffield, president of the American college at Tung Chow, near Pekin. He is a distinguished author of works in Chinese, one of which was in the library selected to give the young emperor an insight into Western knowledge. His character and work add new lustre to the American name. He is a friend and associate of Dr. Ament. In an article published last week in the Congregationalist, he bears this testimony. "Dr. Ament has been slandered into fame. He will prove himself by his splendid talent, culture, courage and Christian character to be worthy of that which has been thrust upon him." Most respectfully,

ALEXANDER MILNE.

Football Athletes May Not Have Coach Park.

There will be weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth among the football fraternity of the high school when they hear that Dr. J. D. Park, the last year's football coach, has received two offers to coach football the coming season, and may not coach the team here. One offer from Dakota is at double the salary that he received here last year, and another handsome offer is from one of the range towns. It is not known whether or not the popular coach of the best team that the high school has ever turned out will accept, but it is not though that he will do so on account of his business affiliations in Duluth.

It is intended, by the high school authorities, to secure a man to teach manual training and to coach football, but the players do not like the idea and it is said that there may be a slim representation of football athletes in the fall if they do not have Dr. Park to coach the team. He has proved that he can coach a football team thoroughly and the boys do not believe it possible that the high school will be able to secure both a first class football coach and manual training instructor for the salary of one. That the football team needs a coach of this kind has been shown by the team of two years ago and the last one. In 1899 the material at the high school was the best that has ever been shown. The men were all large, strong and good individual players, but they lacked team work and thus were defeated by almost every team that they met. In 1900, although the general weight of the team was not what it was before, they were brought out by the very efficient coaching of the Pennsylvania man to a degree of perfection that enabled them to take everything in sight.

Tom Reed cigar is proving a winner for us and will prove a winner for you if you will give it a chance.

A Tear for a Pain

Only expectant mothers, or those who have borne children, know the full meaning of these words.

Every woman should tell every other woman about "MOTHER'S FRIEND," that wonderful liniment that dispels all pain incident to childbirth. There is nothing like it.

JNO. S. MORTON, of Bistlove, N. C., says: "Too much can't be said in praise of 'Mother's Friend.' My wife used only two bottles before confinement and was in labor but twenty minutes. She is doing splendidly, thanks to 'Mother's Friend.'"

"I cannot keep the tears back."

HOW THE BUTCHERS RAID THE PEOPLE

Comparison of Prices of Meat In Duluth, Superior and Proctorknott---Work of the Combine Vividly Illustrated.

The housekeepers of the city of Duluth who have been paying high prices for meat have been doing some objecting, doubtless, but the butchers have been able to make excuses and blame the tallness of their demands upon the packers, whom they accused of charging enormous prices, so that the butcher, in self-defense, was forced to take a little more out of the consumer in order to keep the shop going.

Probably few housekeepers, however, have been fully aware of how much they have been paying for their meat in comparison with other places. They knew the prices were high, and that meat had become a luxury almost inaccessible, but they have supposed that other places were charging as much as Duluth, and that the high prices were merely an inevitable result of modern conditions.

As a matter of fact, however, the practice of the Duluth butchers of charging high prices is due not to the demands of the wholesalers, though perhaps they are not guiltless. Neither is it due entirely to modern conditions, unless modern conditions imply combinations and conspiracies to maintain exorbitant prices. The secret of the matter is that the meat dealers of Duluth have a close organization to keep up prices, and the agreed prices are higher even than similar organizations in other cities have dared to demand.

Below will be found a table comparing the prices of meat in Duluth with those in West Superior, where there is also a combination among the butchers, and those in Proctorknott, where there is none. It will be observed that where there is no combination, and the butchers have to hustle for trade, the prices are very much lower than either in Duluth or Superior. It will also be observed that in Duluth, where the greed of the butchers is being measured only by what they can force the people to stand, prices are higher than they are in Superior, where the butchers have used their power more modestly. The table follows, the prices, of course, being cents per pound to the retail trade:

	Duluth.	W. Su-perior.	Proctor-knott.
Porterhouse steaks	20	18	15
Sirloin steaks	18	16	14
Round steaks	15	12½	12½
Leg of mutton	15	12	12
Pork chops	12½	12½	10
Leg of veal	18	15	12
Rib roasts	16	15	12½

All of these markets are within a few miles of each other, all deal with packing houses where the prices are about the same and all serve the general public. In the two cities where there are combinations to keep up prices and to do away with competition the prices are higher than in the village where there is no combination, and where the butchers have to compete to get the business. In Duluth, where the rapacity of the butchers is stronger than those of Superior, the prices are higher.

The figures hardly need any comment. If there is anybody in Duluth who buys meat and who does not already believe that he is paying more than he should be asked to pay, this table ought to convince him. In raising the prices of living above those in other cities the butchers are working a deadly injury to Duluth. In order to get new industries here a showing on cost of living is necessary, and the news that it costs more to live here than it does elsewhere is enough to drive any industry away. So by combining to push their prices above a fair margin of profit the butchers are killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

These prices are correct, it may be well to state. Those for Duluth and Superior were obtained by inquiry from meat men, and those for Proctorknott are obtained from the advertised price list of Riddle's meat market in that village.

DOES NOT STOP.

East Enders Kick Against Lakeside Car.

Residents of the East End of the city who come down town about 7:40 o'clock in the morning have a grievance against the extra Lakeside car which goes west at about that time. Lately the car has refused to stop for East End passengers. Sometimes there is an East End car two or three blocks behind it, and then there is no particular reason to complain, especially if the car is behind time, nor would there be if the car was full. This is rarely the case, however. The car this morning passed Twenty-third avenue east a half minute ahead of time and was only two-thirds full of passengers, but refused to stop at any of the East End corners east of Ninth avenue. One stop was made at Ninth, and then the car pushed through to Second avenue east. The other car was from six to ten blocks or more behind it all the way down. The five minutes' delay is not ordinarily a serious one but it is enough to cause one to lose a train some time.

The motorman of the car possibly believes that the "limited service ought to be established on the Lakeside line even though the management of the company has not seen fit to see it that way as yet.

WORK IS DELAYED.

Timber For New Coal Dock Lost.

Work on the new coal dock for the Northwestern Fuel company now under construction on the Superior side of the harbor is delayed by lack of timber. A large raft in transport to the head of the lakes from Bayfield for the dock was caught in the storm last Friday and broken up. There were over 800,000 feet of sawed timber of all sorts and descriptions in the raft, and it broke in pieces and is supposed to be floating all over the lake at the present time. It will take some time for the raft to be brought together again, although a scow has been sent down to pick it up.

The delay in securing lumber is aggravating to the contractors, Frankman Bros. & Morris. The hydraulic dredge is still at work at the site of the proposed dock, getting things in shape, and it is expected that everything will be in readiness for a big rush on the work by the time the timber does get here. Some millions of feet of timber will be used in its construction, and the dock is to be one of the largest on the great lakes.

Red Letter Day—R. R. Forward & Co. Open New Store and Give Reception.

Today is a red letter day with R. R. Forward & Co., and with their customers as well, for it marks a new era of progress for this company. After a remarkable growth, R. R. Forward & Co. will today throw open their beautiful new store at Twenty-first avenue west and Superior street to the public. In celebration of this opening, a reception will be held this afternoon and evening at the store. In provision for this reception everything has been done that will help make the event the most enjoyable and most complete of its kind in the history of the city.

In the afternoon the ladies that call will be given flowers and souvenirs of different designs, and their call will be made as pleasant as they could wish. All visitors, both in the afternoon and evening, will be shown every part of the store, and will be given every attention. In the evening Fraaten's orchestra will be in attendance and will render a program of excellent music, which will be as follows:

March—"Radetzky" ..... Strauss
Overture—"La Gazza Ladra" ..... Rossini
Serenade—"Lalita" ..... Langey
Waltz de Concert—"Return of Spring" ..... Waldteufel
Characteristic—"The First Heart Throbs" ..... Ellenberg
Intermezzo—"Salome" ..... Loraine
Grand Selection—"William Tell" ..... Rossini
Idyll—"Dreams of the Alps" ..... Labitzky
Cuban Dance—"Trocha" ..... Tyers
Concert Polonaise ..... Beissig

Jumped the Track.

A Northern Pacific switch engine was thrown from the track at 1200 Garfield avenue yesterday afternoon by spreading rails, and interstate cars were delayed half an hour. The engine landed on its nose in the sands of Rice's Point, anw after being removed by the wrecking crew, left an excavation which would answer for a cellar or cistern. No one was injured.

TIMBER BURNED.

Bad Fire In Ontario Lumber Company's Yard.

Toronto, Ont., June 18.—Word was received here last night that fire had destroyed all the timber in the yard of the Ontario Lumber company at French river, on Georgian bay, amounting to 15,000,000 feet and valued at over $260,000.

The fire started from some unknown cause on the top of a pile of timber, and fanned by a high wind swept across the whole yard, consuming everything. Two schooners were lying at the dock, and though tugs immediately pulled them out into the lake, the steamers were scorched, so quickly did the fire spread. A boarding house and three dwellings were burned, destroying nearly all the belongings of the occupants, who barely escaped with their lives.

By the use of hose from the tugs the rest of the village was saved.

The mill was engaged in cutting timber for tramways and work will be resumed.

CANNOT CALL EXPERTS.

Prosecution of Mrs. Botkin May Be Abandoned.

San Francisco, June 18.—It looks as if though Mrs. Cordelia Botkin, who murdered Mrs. Dunning and Mrs. Deane, of Dover, Del., might escape punishment because of exorbitant fees demanded by Delaware medical experts for their attendance at the woman's second trial.

Mrs. Botkin's case will come up tomorrow and it was expected all former witnesses would attend, as all were friends of the murdered women and warmly interested in the punishment of the woman who committed this crime.

But letters have been received by the district attorney showing that Dr. Wolf, state chemist of Delaware, wants $1000 for his fee and $3 a day and expenses, and Drs. Downs and Bishop demand $25 a day and all expenses.

These, with the expenses of half a dozen other witnesses, will be so heavy that Judge Cook has refused to permit them to be called. Unless the experts reduce their bills or the state of Delaware will share this expense, Mrs. Botkin will go free.

SALARY OF SCHWAB

J. Pierpont Morgan Gives a Bitof Personal History.

Schwab Was Getting $1,000,000 a Year From Carnegie.

His Salary Now Is Not Larger Than Many Others.

Cincinnati, June 18.—Extraordinary circumstances were encountered by J. Pierpont Morgan when he set about the organization of the billion dollar steel trust, and one incident which has just come to light displays Charles M. Schwab, president of the combine, in an attitude which is unique in the world's history of finance. Recently, during a casual discussion of business affairs with a friend, Mr. Morgan was called upon to express an opinion as to the sincerity of Mr. Carnegie's declaration that he believed it wrong for a man to die rich. Said Mr. Morgan:

"I believe that Mr. Carnegie is absolutely sincere in what he says on that point, and I think his actions prove it. Let me tell you about one thing he has done. When the organization of the United States Steel corporation was about to be effected I met Schwab at my office to discuss the status of the Carnegie holdings. It was then expected that Mr. Schwab might be elected president of the corporation, but there was no definite conclusion on that point. Mr. Schwab astounded me by telling me that he was receiving a salary of $1,000,000 a year as president of the Carnegie company. I told Mr. Schwab that I had never heard of any such salary as that, and that to assume the contract along with the other obligations of the Carnegie company might in all probability be impossible to the new corporation.

"He drew a paper from his pocket and said: 'Mr. Morgan, here is my contract. It calls, as you will see, for $1,000,000 a year for five years, and in that time I have drawn $200,000 against my salary account. I am fully aware of the fact that sentiment and not business led Mr. Carnegie to draw that contract. I appreciate now that it offers an obstacle to this project, which is vastly favorable to the Carnegie interests and directly in line with the personal desire of Mr. Carnegie to be relieved of business responsibility. You need not hesitate on account of this contract. There is an easy way to settle that matter.'

"Thereupon Mr. Schwab tore the contract to pieces before my eyes. I felt it my duty to detail to Mr. Carnegie the scene in my office when the contract was destroyed. He smiled and said that there were few men in the world like Schwab. 'I don't propose that he shall lose anything by what he has done,' said he. 'I shall send him my check for the amount he lost when he destroyed the contract.'

"Mr. Carnegie drew his check for $4,800,000 and sent it to Mr. Schwab with a note explaining his understanding of the transaction in my office. That, I believe, is the basis for the stories we hear of the enormous salary paid to Mr. Schwab by the new corporation. As a matter of fact, his salary as president of the corporation is not larger than that of a good many railroad presidents.

CARS COLLIDE.

Buffalo, June 18.—Fifteen persons were more or less injured in a street car collision which occurred last evening at the corner of Main and Virginia streets. The injured are:

Miss Carrie Scieser, Pan-American visitor from Milton, Tenn., leg broken.
Mrs. O. Kinzie, Pan-American visitor from New York, leg severely wrenched.
F. Rosenaux, Buffalo, badly bruised.
F. N. Milring, Buffalo, severely bruised leg.

Several other persons received minor injuries, and the trailer on which they were riding were wrecked.

A car was turning on Virginia street from Main, when a Main street car, bound down town, crashed into the open trailer. All the passengers were thrown from the open car into the street.

For twelve years I suffered from eczema in a very bad form on the groin and upper limbs. The irritation was intense and few can realize what agony I endured. The skin assumed a coarse leathery appearance. I used ointment after ointment, wash after wash, and bottle after bottle of medicine. Doctors did me no good and I despaired of ever getting rid of it, when I saw Doan's Ointment advertised and thinking that it probably might relieve me, if only temporary, I got a box at W. A. The name of said corporation shall be Duluth Lithograph and Printing Co., and said corporation shall commence July 1, A. D. 1901, and continue thirty years. The amount of its capital stock shall be fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00), of which at least twenty thousand dollars ($20,000.00) shall be paid in on the day of the commencement of said corporation in money or property, and the balance from time to time thereafter as stock may be subscribed and paid for, as shall be provided by the by-laws adopted by the stockholders. The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which said corporation shall at any time be subject is fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000.00). The above named persons, associated for the purpose of forming this corporation, shall constitute the first board of directors. The government of said corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a president, secretary and treasurer, and such other officers as may be specified in the by-laws, subject to the control of the board of directors. Only stockholders shall be qualified to be elected to or hold the office of director.

Directors shall be elected at the annual meeting of stockholders, which shall be held on the second Monday of July of each year, between the hours of three and four o'clock in the afternoon at the principal office of the corporation in the city of Duluth. Any director may be removed from office at any regular meeting of stockholders, or special meeting of stockholders, called for that purpose, by vote of at least sixty-five (65) per cent of the then outstanding stock. Officers shall be elected by the directors at the first meeting of the board of directors after the annual meeting of the stockholders, and in case of vacancy in any office, such vacancy shall be filled by the directors at the first meeting of the board after such vacancy occurs.

The general nature of the business of said corporation shall be lithographing, stereotyping, electrotyping, zinc etching, engraving and half tone engraving, printing, ruling, bookbinding, blank book manufacturing, and doing anything that is properly incident to, or necessarily connected with said mechanical and manufacturing business. The principal place of the transacting of said business shall be Duluth, Minnesota. Said capital stock shall be divided into one thousand (1000) shares of fifty dollars ($50.00) each.
